Hunter Makes History with Monumental Gift

Applause filled the 1988 commencement ceremonies as Robert Hyland, chairman of the College's Board of Directors, announced that Dr. Harlen C. Hunter, a St. Louis Orthopedic Surgeon and Sports Medicine Specialist, would contribute $600,000 to improve the college's outdoor athletic facilities.

Hunter has practiced sports medicine for 16 years. A native of Iowa, Hunter is founder and owner of the St. Louis Orthopedic Sports medicine Clinic in Chesterfield, Mo.

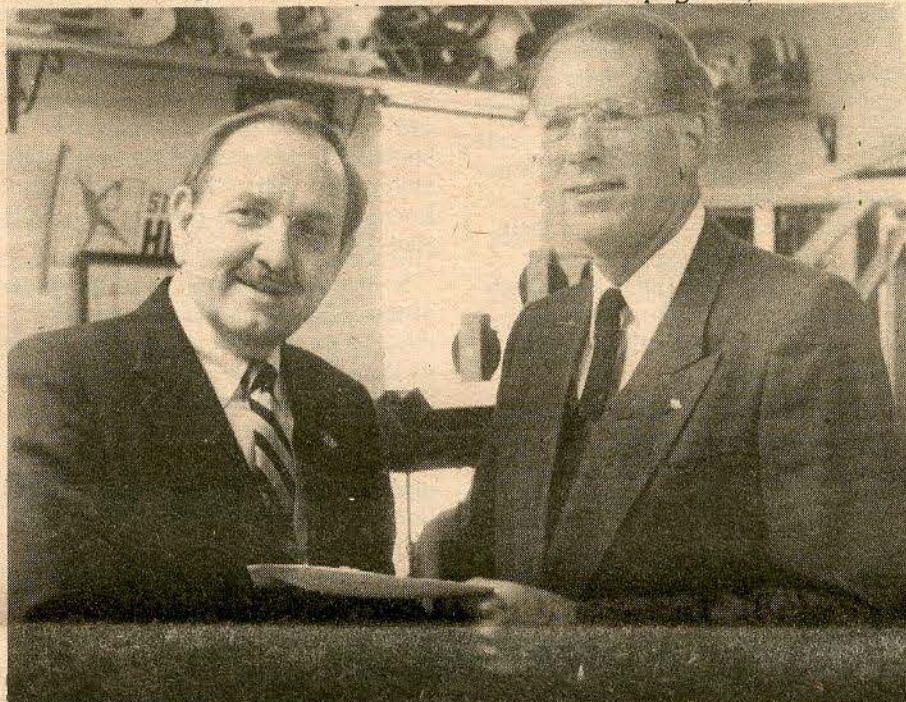

Speaking before a crowd of 2,000 commencement participants, families and friends, Hyland said the Board of Directors "has voted unanimously to name the college's outdoor athletic facilities the 'Harlen C. Hunter Sports Complex.' This is the second largest single gift in Lindenwood's 160-year history," he continued. "Not since the early 1900s has Lindenwood College received such a large single gift." Hyland remarked that Lindenwood's first large gift was from Colonel James Butler, founder of the American Tobacco Company, and in today's dollars would equal twenty-five million.

According to Hyland and College President James I. Spainhower, the Harlen C. Hunter Sports Complex will include the renovation of the existing stadium and the addition of three new fields for softball, baseball and soccer practice. Spainhower said work would begin immediately and the project should be completed by Fall. He noted that Hunter's gift enables Lindenwood to offer "vastly improved athletic activities for its growing student body." Besides assisting the Lindenwood students, Spainhower believes the new sports complex will expand athletic opportunities for high schools and other public groups throughout the greater St. Louis Area.

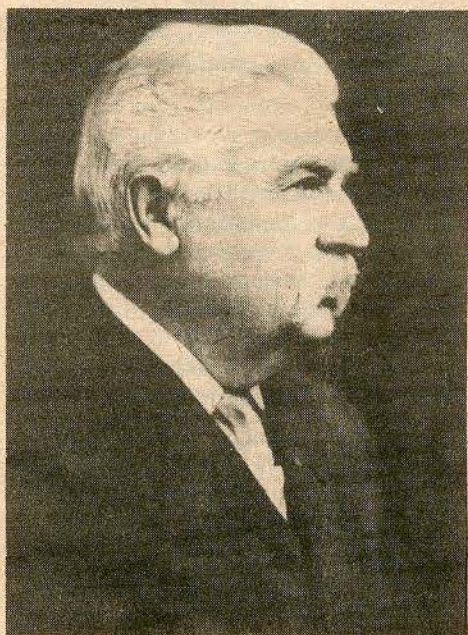

Remarked Hyland, "All of us in the Lindenwood family share in deep gratitude and appreciation for this historic gift which will make so much difference in the future of our beloved Lindenwood." (See Dr. Hunter interview on page 11)

Butler Society Sets Giving Pace

Colonel and Mrs. James G. Butler donated funds which would have equaled $25 million today.

Twenty-one charter members of a new major donor group, The Butler Society, have joined in a tremendous gesture of dedication and commitment to Lindenwood College. Among the charter members is Robert F. Hyland, Board of Directors Chairman; Maurita Estes Stueck ('43), Alumni Board Chairperson and James I. Spainhower, President of the College. Thomas F. Bakewell ('74), incoming chairman of the Board of Overseers, also has joined.

Membership in The Butler Society is based on a gift of $25,000 or more to the College. The organization is named for Colonel and Mrs. James G. Butler who were the College's greatest philanthropists in the early 1900s. Funds from the Butlers and their estate led to the construction of nearly one-half of all campus buildings.

Gifts to The Butler Society will be used to expand library and classroom resources, such as books and lab equipment; to continue building renovations and upkeep for all buildings; to increase scholarship funding; to supplement faculty salaries and to meet general operating expenses.

Charter members agree that this new major gifts program shows their enduring support and faith in the College's future. Bakewell said, "Because I am aware of the everyday needs, as well as the long-range necessities of Lindenwood, I'm trying to do more." Added Stueck, "It's incumbent upon us to maintain private, liberal arts colleges (such as Lindenwood) that are not dependent upon government support."

President Spainhower said the overwhelming support of the three board chairs is a sign of their faith and confidence in the quality and importance of the education that Lindenwood provides. Board of Directors Chairman Hyland agreed that this current spirit of support is most enthusiastic.

James D. Thompson, Executive Director of Institutional Advancement and College Relations, remarked that "The Butler Society is the single most important giving organization at the College. Its charter members represent all walks of life, and they are committed to continuing the traditions and tender loving care that are indicative of this Great American College." Thompson said anyone interested in joining the Society may contact him at the Development Office, 314/949-2000 extension 338.

"There are a number of giving options for charter members," added Thompson. "Memorial and tributes are strongly encouraged, and your gift may be directed according to your specific request." Concluded Thompson, "If you believe in the mission of this superb liberal arts college, your commitment can strengthen its present operations and secure its future."

Applications Increase by 45%

"There's a good feeling overall," said Peter Pitts, director of day admissions. "My staff is optimistic that good things are coming for Lindenwood in the very near future, and the full-time day student applications are a reflection of our feelings."

Pitts was commenting about the tremendous growth in student applications for the Fall 1988 College enrollment. He said that total applications received to date are 347. When compared to last year's full-time day student total applicants of 235 at this time, this year's figure shows a 45.1% increase.

Even more striking is the huge increase in residential student applications, which currently displays a 126.8% increase. That's a difference of 112 residential applications in 1987 as compared to the 254 residential applications received so far.

"We're looking forward to a better weekend life for the students, simply because of the increased out-of-state applications," said Pitts. "There were only 78 residential day students last semester and we're expecting anywhere from 130 to 140 residential day students in the Fall."

"Our goal for 225 new full-time day students is within our grasp," commented Pitts. With 190 day students already admitted, the new scholarship programs, and facilities improvements like the Harlen C. Hunter Sports Complex, Pitts said he is confident they will hit the mark.

The President's Message

"Hope is the parent of faith"
...C.A. Bartol

To accomplish any task in life, a person or an institution must believe the task can be done.

Dr. Harlen C. Hunter, with his generous gift of $600,000, has not only renewed the hope of Lindenwood, he has given us cause to believe that this college can attract the number and size of major gifts necessary to insure its future. The hope his gift provides is the parent of the faith essential for Lindenwood to continue its efforts to maintain and enhance its reputation as an independent liberal arts college of high quality.

Lindenwood College 1988 is both blessed and cursed by a campus and buildings that are old. Our ancestors planned and built a beautiful campus. All who have been participants in the Lindenwood experience have fond memories of the enchantment of a tree-filled campus with charming old buildings dotting this beautiful forest.

But the buildings are old and they must be repaired and restored to their former luster. Changing times have brought changing fire codes and changing program needs, both of which require expensive modifications to our priceless old buildings.

The Lindenwood of tomorrow must be a Lindenwood that once again has six to seven hundred 18-to-21-year old students living on this beautiful campus. There are young men and women who want to attend a caring college like Lindenwood, but the college must offer facilities that are competitive with other independent colleges with missions similar to ours.

Specifically, our existing student activities and athletic facilities are woefully inadequate. This fall, thanks to another provider of hope, alumna Dorothy Warner of Clinton, Illinois, a step will be taken towards improving our athletic facilities. Ms. Warner has given $25,000 to refurbish the indoor swimming pool and locker rooms in Butler Hall, plus putting a new roof over aging Butler Gym. These improvements, when complemented by the refurbished stadium made possible by Dr. Hunter's gift, constitute a big step toward our goal of providing athletic facilities that will help us recruit traditional aged students.

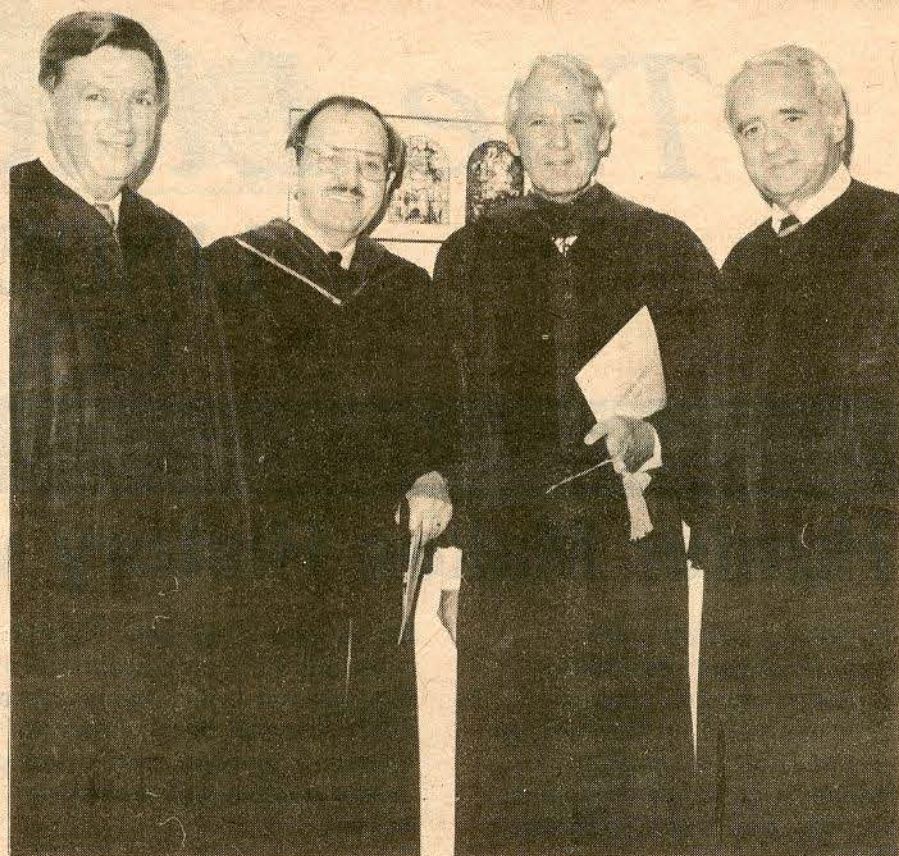

We also need a field house. Such a facility requires a major expenditure of five to six million dollars for a building that is worthy of this outstanding campus.

Because of modern day parents of faith, like Dr. Hunter and Dorothy Warner, our hope has been renewed and we believe funds for the field house and needed improvements to Sibley Hall, Butler Hall, Ayres Hall, Roemer Hall, Irwin Hall, and Nicolls Hall will be forthcoming.

So many people believe in the future of this magnificent old college that those of us who share responsibility for its leadership today are convinced that the college's alumni, parents of students, members of its boards, St. Charles and St. Louis area constituency, plus interested corporations and foundations, will respond to our appeal for help to enable us to remain a strong, independent, liberal arts college of high quality.

Dell'Arte Replaces CASA

In the wake of the announcement by the St. Louis Conservatory and School of the Arts, (CASA) to terminate its satellite location on the Lindenwood campus this spring, the College is well under way with plans to take over the operation and to expand CASA's programs, especially those affecting Lindenwood's music students, into Dell'Arte.

For several years CASA has provided opportunities for instrumental music instruction on the campus, as well as overload teaching in voice and piano. But, according to Dr. Daniel Alkofer, whose Department of Performing Arts will administer Dell'Arte, "the choices for instrumental instruction have been CASA's, not ours, and CASA has not been aggressive or particularly imaginative in broadening the range of opportunities for students on the campus."

"Terry Martin, the new director, is now onboard," Alkofer said, "and we shall immediately proceed to expand the offerings to our own students as well as to young people and non-College adults throughout St. Charles County as well as to north St. Louis County."

"Martin will be recruiting a wide range of experienced professional performing artists and teachers to develop all aspects of the program for the fall," Alkofer said. "We expect to get Lindenwood students excited about the new possibilities for music instruction, and of course we expect to be able to recruit many new students for the College with an interest in music."

A summer session has been planned to run June 20 through July 30. Former CASA-Lindenwood faculty will be offering instruction in several instruments. Those already committed to summer teaching include Michael Karpowicz, wood winds and jazz ensemble; Julie Leonhardt, violin; John McClellan, guitar and guitar ensemble; Lana Turner Richard, piano; and Bradd Robinson, brass and brass ensemble. Additional summer appointments are expected.

The regular school year program will include training not only in instrumental music and voice for all students, but also preparatory training in dance, dramatics, music and movement, and music appreciation.

Information on summer and fall Dell'Arte programs will be available through June by calling 949-2000, ext 342, Monday through Thursday afternoons. After the July 4 holiday call ext. 253.

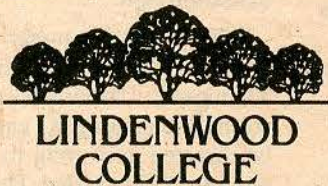

COLLEGE FISCAL YEAR ENDS AT RECORD—BREAKING $2 MILLION

Yes, you can make this the next LindenWord lead story with more historic good news.

Your gift of $25, $100, or $500 will determine the fate of this headline.

All donations received on or before June 30, 1988 will give the extra push to put the College's fund raising efforts over the top. With your help, Lindenwood can be $2 million stronger.

Please tear out this ad and send it with your contribution today.

1988 END OF YEAR APPEAL

Yes, I want to see the historic headline published and I want to help Lindenwood accomplish another record-breaking fiscal year for its students.

Fund Drive May Break $2 Million

by Mark McColl

ST. CHARLES - Lindenwood College has an outside chance at collecting $2 million in cash and pledges this fiscal year, said Jim Thompson, the college's development director.

The college is now winding up its annual fund-raising drive, and had collected $650,000 in cash and $200,000 in pledges as of last week. Thompson said. These figures are independent of the recent $600,000 donation given to the college by Dr. Harlen C. Hunter.

College officials will have to hustle, if they hope to achieve the $2 million figure, as the college's fiscal year ends June 30. Thompson said Lindenwood normally receives nearly all of its corporate gifts in the fourth quarter, but will need another large gift to break the $2 million barrier. But with Hunter's gift in tow, Thompson said the college had a chance to reach that goal.

In any event, the college will apparently go over the last year's record-setting figure, when for the first time, Lindenwood received more than $1 million in gifts and donations. Lindenwood received $1.66 million in donations, with $1.01 million in actual contributions; $350,000 in "planned gifts" such as wills or estates; $225,000 in new gifts for future years and $75,000 in material gifts of goods or services.

It appeared early this fiscal year that the college would be headed for another good year of fund raising. But problems in the fall with the stock market caused some problems for a time, Thompson said.

"We had a slow point in the late fall when there were problems with the stock market," he said. "I think all the people who wanted to donate did, but they waited before sending their donation in to see what would happen."

Donations have picked up recently and are once again on record pace. Thompson said the school had set fund-raising records for the months of March and April.

Thompson credits increased alumni support and revenue from previously untapped sources for the college's recent success. Lindenwood had the highest level of alumni support of any college or university in Missouri last year (45 percent) and one of the highest in the country.

The college had also gotten gifts from several Civic Progress corporations over the past few years. In addition to these gifts, Thompson said the college's Business Partnership campaign, which is designed to solicit funds from smaller businesses and firms, has been a tremendous success. This campaign has been spearheaded by Chairman Clayton Wilhite, St. Louis chairman of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles Inc. and a member of the college's Board of Directors.

According to Lindenwood's publication, The Pioneer, this campaign has raised more than $281,000 in gifts and pledges, and should reach the college's goal of $350,000.

Thompson said donations made by these corporations aren't as large as some of the contributions made by the Civic Progress firms, but he said they had made a difference in the college's financial picture.

"It's kind of a unique device," he said. "Two years ago, our contributions in this area were zero."

If the college does reach the $2 million figure, it will have Hunter to thank. Hunter, a St. Louis County surgeon and founder of the St. Louis Orthopedic Sports Medicine Clinic, earlier this spring made the largest single contribution to the college since the days of Col. James G. Butler, when he donated $600,000 to be used to spruce up the college's outdoor athletic facilities. Butler, a local philanthropist gave the college what would be equivalent of $25 million. Nearly half of the college's major buildings on Lindenwood's St. Charles campus were built with funds provided by Butler.

The college has named its new donor recognition group after the colonel. The Butler Society formally recognizes persons who donate $25,000 or more to the college. Formed this year, Thompson said there will be 21 charter members to the society. They will be formally recognized and honored by the college later this year.

Funds generated by the college are used in several different ways, including scholarship assistance for deserving students, campus renovation, purchase of new equipment and materials, and expansion of college programs.

Studies Target New Legislation IVSI Courses Designed To Meet Federal Regulations

The International Valuation Sciences Institute (IVSI) at Lindenwood College will offer fall classes designed to help appraisers meet tougher government standards. Studies, which begin October 1, will cover appraisal principles and methods, influences on appraised values, government regulation and expert witness testimony.

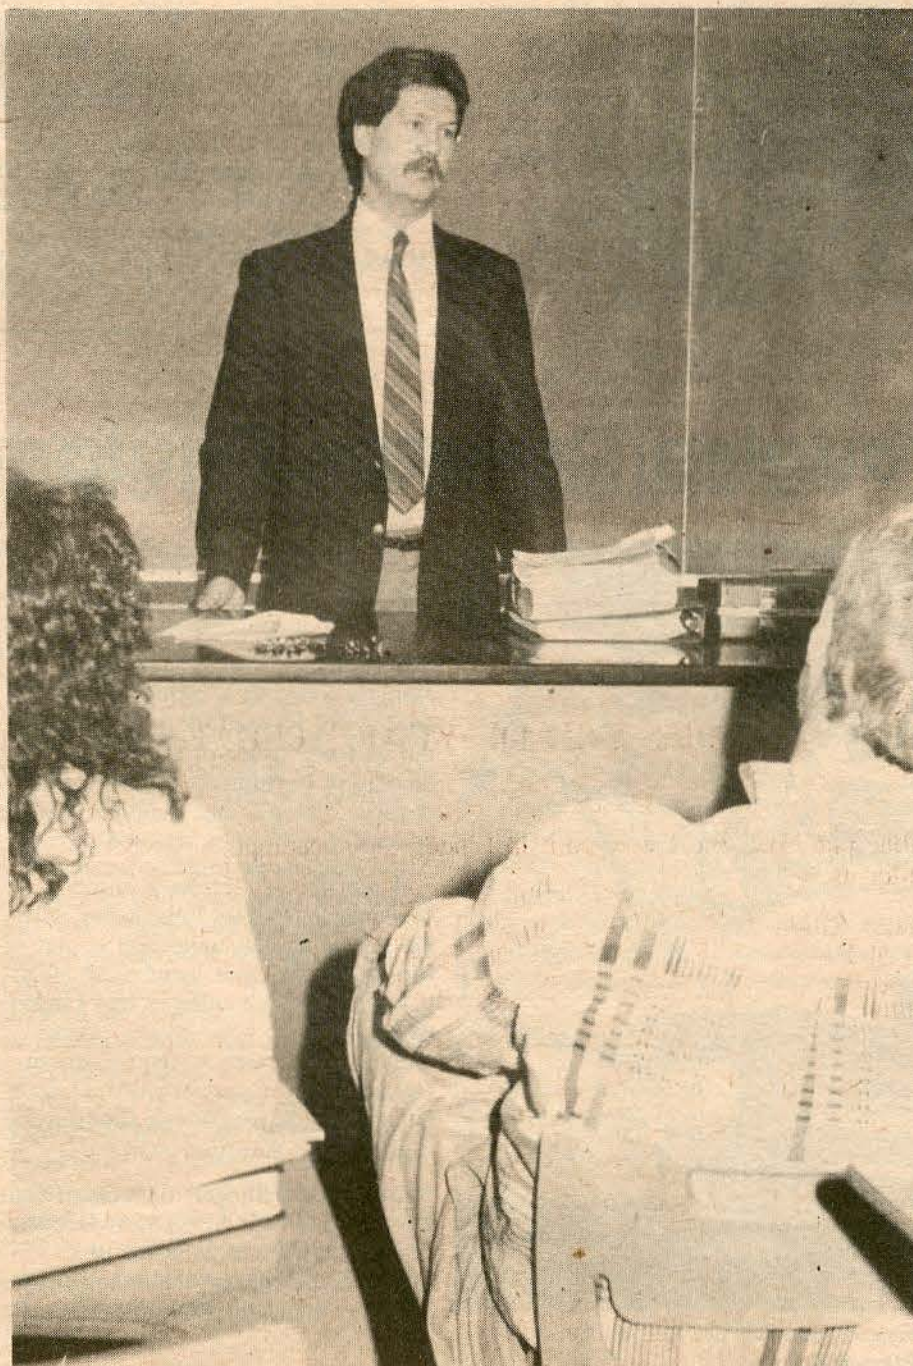

Legislation is impending which will tighten standards for appraisals involving the federal government. It will establish an overview of appraisals, and will require education, testing and licensing of appraisers who do federal government work.

"Congress is about to regulate the standards of appraisals which come under government scrutiny or those that involve government work," said Richard Rickert, Ph.D., director of the IVSI. "Any appraiser whose work is affected by this pending legislation will have to become licensed. This, in turn, will require examination and a college degree," he added.

Rickert said appraisal organizations throughout the country are assisting the federal government for its proposed legislation. "The IVSI program already is advised and taught by appraisers involved with these organizations, and the program at Lindenwood currently is recognized as the premier program for appraisers in the United States," he said.

IVSI studies this fall will include economic and legal principles of appraisals, methods of ranking and evaluating properties and the analysis of social, political and environmental influences on appraised values.

Appraisers also will work on effective research, reasoning, and written and oral communication skills, including report writing and expert witness testimony. Later studies will cover investment, income and financial analysis, allowing students to choose their individual focus in real estate, fine arts, antiques, business valuation, machinery and equipment or jewelry and gems. Studies can lead to either an undergraduate or graduate degree in Valuation Sciences, Rickert said.

On Thursday, August 25, the Lindenwood Evening Admissions Office will host a special orientation session to talk about the IVSI program and other courses of study offered in its LCIE Accelerated Evening Format. The session begins at 7:00 p.m. in Young Lounge on the St. Charles campus. It is free, but reservations are advised and can be made by calling 949-2000, ext. 271.

During the past year and a half, the IVSI received nearly $70,000 in donated library resources, scholarships and support funds for its International Valuation Sciences degree program.

The IVSI program already is having an impact on appraisers preparing to meet stronger government standards," Rickert said. "Some of the reasons are the quality of its graduates and their employment in the appraisal profession, plus the Institute's connections with national appraisal organizations, such as the American Society of Appraisers," he added.

Valuation Sciences classes meet for the international appraisal program at Lindenwood.

Carpenter Receives Fellowship

Bonnie Carpenter, a Lindenwood student who recently completed the first part of her three-two program at the College, has been named a 1988 Harold P. Brown Fellow by Washington University. The fellowship carries a full-tuition scholarship and stipend for two years of undergraduate study in the university's School of Engineering and Applied Science.

"I've always wanted to become an astronaut or a scientist," said Carpenter. Upon her completion of the two-year study at Washington University, she will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics from Lindenwood as well as an undergraduate degree from Washington University. Last summer, Carpenter participated in a six-week NASA program designed for future astronauts. She hopes to join the space program with her engineering degree.

Dr. John Bornmann, chemistry professor at Lindenwood, believes that the NASA program was a "stepping stone" for Carpenter's career. He remarked that she has been "an exemplary student in her classes and extracurricular activities." Said Bornmann, "I have the utmost confidence in her academic performance and future goals, and Lindenwood College is proud of her academic achievements."

In a letter to Carpenter, Washington University's Robert Ridgway, assistant dean of the School of Engineering, said she impressed university interviewers by her "rare combination of an outstanding academic record with a diverse range of extracurricular interests and activities." The Harold P. Brown Fellowship Competition is for students in a three-two program, consisting of a three-year undergraduate study at a Washington University affiliated institution, like Lindenwood College, and a two-year undergraduate study at the university.

"Bonnie's fellowship at Washington University is a tremendous honor to Lindenwood College," remarked President James I. Spainhower. "Her achievements are proof of a Lindenwood program that works in the best interest of students," he added, "and we wish Bonnie every happiness and success in her future."

MCI Offers Scholarship

Last year MCI Telecommunications Corporations began a new scholarship, the first of its kind, at Lindenwood College. Because it offers minority students superb scholastic and a possible career situation with this major corporate leader, the scholarship was named the "MCI Opportunities Scholarship."

Keith Pearson of Chicago received the first scholarship in 1987. A smiling, amiable St. Louis Cardinal fan, Pearson said "I couldn't have attended a college like Lindenwood without MCI's help and I'm really glad they picked me." He added that MCI is working with him to set up a student internship this summer at MCI's Chicago offices. "They are giving me every chance to make the most of my education at Lindenwood," Pearson said.

As part of the Lindenwood Business Partnership Campaign which began last year, MCI arranged this special scholarship to assist minority students. Believing in the potential of all people, MCI wanted to help students who have proven academic ability and great financial need. Karen Keen ('77), a representative of MCI, was instrumental in securing the new scholarship to help a Lindenwood student. For more information about the MCI Opportunities Scholarship, please call Jim Thompson, executive director of institutional advancement at 314/949-2000, extension 320.

McDonnell Douglas Donates Equipment

Luther Bellinger, Walter Diggs, Dr. Daryl Anderson, President Spainhower and Dr. John Bornmann gather around the lab equipment recently donated by McDonnell Douglas.

The McDonnell Douglas Corporation has made a major gift of a number of pieces of technical laboratory instrumentation to Lindenwood College. The equipment which McDonnell Douglas found as a surplus to its needs, will be used by the college for the students' hands-on-experience with laboratory instruments in chemistry, physics, biology, and computer science courses.

Walter Diggs, secretary of the McDonnell Douglas Foundation, said the gift of the lab equipment is part of McDonnell Douglas' continuing effort to cooperate with colleges like Lindenwood and to provide greater opportunities for students in the classroom. He noted that a number of McDonnell Douglas employees attend Lindenwood College on a part-time basis.

Luther G. Bellinger, director of community affairs for McDonnell Douglas, said that the gift is evidence of McDonnell Douglas' continuing support of higher education both in St. Louis and throughout the country. "Through gifts of surplus equipment such as the instruments given to Lindenwood, McDonnell Douglas supplements other assistance it provides to colleges and universities," Bellinger observed.

Two Lindenwood College professors, Dr. John Bornmann, professor of chemistry and physics, and Dr. Daryl Anderson, professor of biology, said that the equipment will be extremely valuable to Lindenwood students.

It will provide students with the opportunity to learn basic concepts which will prepare them to use more sophisticated equipment. "Although technological instrumentation changes rapidly, the equipment provided by McDonnell Douglas will enhance practical experience for students and prepare them to use future generations of technological instrumentation," said Dr. Anderson. Dr. Bornmann noted that the purchase of this technical equipment would be cost prohibitive to colleges like Lindenwood.

Lindenwood Honors Top Scholars

Prior to the annual commencement exercises, Lindenwood students, faculty and staff convened in Jelkyl Theatre for the annual Honors Convocation. Awards for academic performance, creative leadership and scholarship were presented to students who had excelled during the 1987-88 academic year.

In the area of performance, John Nauman of Maryland Heights, Mo., received the Spahmer Creative Writing Award. Debbie Porter of St. Charles, Mo., and Nancy Talley of St. Charles, Mo., each received recognition with the Outstanding Teacher Education Award. The Harry D. Hendren Award for outstanding performance was received by Kory Tedrick of St. Charles, and Cathy Bay of St. Louis received the Jana Rae Maddox Memorial Mathematics Award.

Lisa Reising of St. Charles and Laura Miller of Charleston, Mo., received the Freshman Chemistry

Award, sponsored by CRC Publishing Company. The Outstanding Senior Communications Award went to Judy Sneddy of St. Peters, Mo., for her outstanding academic performance and distinguished service in departmental activities. Joe Arnold of Belleville, Il., received the Anna Award for dedicated service to KCLC and outstanding academic performance.

In the area of creative leadership, Ron Watermon of Fenton, Mo., and Christy Diven of Trenton, Mo., received the James D. Thompson Leadership Award for their contributions to the US/Soviet Student Exchange Program at Lindenwood College. Beverly Pentsil of Mounds, Il., and Candace Kilpatrick of Cedar Hill, Mo., were voted the President's Council Recognition of Special Merit.

In the area of scholarship, Ralph Godsey of High Ridge, Mo., received the St. Charles Kiwanis Renaissance Medal of Honor Scholarship. This fulltuition scholarship is awarded annually by the St. Charles Kiwanis Club. It is the highest academic and community service award presented annually by the St. Charles Kiwanians.

The Russell Crider Pre-Health Professional Scholarship was awarded to Lise Smith of Lake St. Louis. Smith is a sophomore who is planning a professional health career. The James Magee II Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Steven Schepker of Maryland Heights, Mo., for his work in the performing arts. The Magee Scholarship honors the memory of former Lindenwood student, James Magee II, who was a resident of St. Charles County.

Additional awards in the area of scholarship include The Gilbert F. Bickel III Award for Business Administration, jointly received by Scott Schneider of St. Charles and Michele Fehlings of Hermann, Mo., the Senior Book Award, presented to Douglas Hoggatt of St. Louis and Candace Kilpatrick of Cedar Hill, Mo., the Associates of Fine Arts Award, given to Erika Frischer of St. Peters, Mo., and an award to the outstanding member of the Psychology Interest Group went to Lise Smith of Lake St. Louis.

Virginia Grober of St. Charles was selected NAIA Scholar Athlete, an award based on academic achievement and high proficiency as a starting player in 75% of the season's games. Beth Neyman of Midwest City, Ok., received NAIA All-American recognition for excellence on the soccer field. This is NAIA's highest recognition for women's soccer. Bob Mertz of St. Louis was selected to receive the Show Me Conference most Valuable Player Award as the Most outstanding player in the six-college conference.

LCIE Hits "Lucky 13"

"Happy Birthday to You" sang the crowd of students gathering at the 13th birthday celebration for the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE).

With its mission to serve adults who might not be served in other programs, LCIE has been accredited by the North Central Association and cited as a "model for programs serving adult learners." Offering a variety of bachelors and masters programs, LCIE has been creatively structured for adults who desire more individualized programs. It concentrates on classroom as well as experiential learning. The assortment of programs available include Professional Psychology, fulfilling coursework requirements for counselor licensure in Missouri; Corporate and Industrial Communications degrees, which use the College's radio station, KCLC-FM 89.1 and the campus television studio for instruction with possible internships at local and area radio and television stations; an MBA program and bachelor's program in business administration and a program in Valuation Sciences, which is linked to the International Valuation Sciences Institute at Lindenwood, in cooperation with the American Society of Appraisers.

LCIE is a great learning alternative for working adults, parents, or adults seeking a program designed to their specific interests. With an accelerated format on the quarter system, students meet for one four-hour session per week and spend countless hours preparing presentations and papers outside of classes. It is a program that has experienced tremendous growth in the number of students attending and its flexibility and accessibility may be its greatest contributors to its continued expansion.

After 13 years, the LCIE program is still innovative and fresh, but best of all its professional faculty and considerate advisors extend the tender loving care of a Lindenwood, high-quality education to adult students.

LCIE students congregate at the birthday celebration and opening colloquium for the accelerated learning programs at Lindenwood.

Student Exhibits Alumni Fashions

LaVon Boothby models for "160 Years of Lindenwood Style."

Michele Fehlings of Hermann, Mo., who received a Bachelor of Arts degree at the 1988 Commencement ceremonies, recently presented a fashion exhibit reflecting 160 years of college attire. Called "160 Years of Lindenwood Style," Fehlings' exhibit was part of her internship in business administration and fashion marketing.

"My main goal is to draw people to Lindenwood to learn more about the college, its rich traditions and history, and how Lindenwood has always played an important role in the St. Charles community," Fehlings said prior to her presentation in the months of April and May. She selected styles illustrating changes in history and atmosphere of the college which she believed reflected the response of Lindenwood's students. Most articles of clothing were loaned by alumnae or acquired through the Missouri Historical Society or the College's archives. Fehlings said the alumnae offered praise, encouragement and support for her internship.

Concluded Fehlings, "I would like to thank everyone who assisted with my special internship at Lindenwood College and," she added, "it was an honor to give the college and the alumni a special tribute commemorating the 160th Anniversary of Lindenwood."

Memorabilia is Hot Item

We recently received this letter calling for alumni assistance on a new, intriguing student project:

Hi! This is LaVon Boothby and I'm a member of the Food Service Committee at Lindenwood. Both Sophia Wehmer and I will continue to be in touch with you through alumni publications.

The Food Service Committee will be decorating the Lion's Den, a new booth area in Ayres Cafeteria, with 50's and 60's memorabilia. Any newspaper clips, advertising signs, posters, old license plates, picture of alumni, etc. would be appreciated for a decorative collection on walls in the Lion's Den.

If you would like more information about the project, please call me in September at extension 366--and pray (because it's a hall phone), or write to me in care of Lindenwood College. Thank you for remembering your alma mater and assisting with this new project.

Sincerely,

LaVon Boothby

Faculty and Staff Serving Many Years

Fifteen Faculty and Staff members at Lindenwood College were honored on March 18 for their years of dedicated service to the institution.

Faculty and Staff recognized at the Third Annual Faculty/Staff Recognition Breakfast are Jeanne Huesemann, mathematics professor and emerita, 31 years; James Feely, English professor, 30 years; John Wehmer, art professor, 29 years; Groff Bittner, music professor, 27 years; James Hood, history professor, 27 years; Howard Barnett, English professor and emeritus, 23 years; Eva Dessert, housekeeping staff, 23 years; N. Jean Fields, English and mass communications professor, 23 years; John Bornmann, chemistry professor, 23 years; Zelma Young, cafeteria staff, 22 years; Marion Thomas, housekeeping staff, 21 years;

Dean Eckert, art professor, 20 years; Richard Weir, political science professor, 20 years; and Edward Balog, history professor, 15 years.

Twenty-four Faculty and Staff members who served five or ten years were recognized, and a special tribute was made to the college's emeriti.

Dean Eckert, professor of art; Maggie Kracke, director of off-campus admissions; and Peter Pitts, director of day admissions were the featured speakers at this special event. Appreciation gifts were presented by Darlene Jemison, bookstore assistant manager and 1988 Faculty/Staff Campaign chairperson, and President James I. Spainhower.

Dr. Esther Johnson, religion professor emerita, looks on as faculty and staff receive recognition for service.

College Presents 1988 Sibley Medallion To Crider

Dr. Spainhower pays tribute to Mrs. Jane Crider.

Nearly 120 friends gathered to honor Board of Directors Member Jane Crider as she received the third annual Sibley Medallion of Honor Award given by Lindenwood College. In light of her many college and civic contributions, Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower remarked, "no one deserves this more."

Crider, an active member of the College's Board since 1977, is best known for her assistance to handicapped citizens of St. Charles County and the state of Missouri. She and her husband, Dr. Russell J. Crider who was a distinguished St. Charles Physician and member of the Lindenwood Board of Directors, co-founded the St. Charles County Association for Retarded Citizens. It was the first facility to help provide jobs for handicapped and mentally-disabled citizens. She also helped create the Boone Center Sheltered Workshop and was instrumental in the founding of Boonslick State School in O'Fallon, Missouri.

In 1979, the first mental health center in St. Charles County, the "Jane Crider Mental Health Center," was named in her honor. She has been a guiding force behind Four County Mental Health Services, Inc., and the United Services for the Handicapped which she pioneered with College Overseer Jim Fitz.

Crider continues to assist students at Lindenwood through a number of scholarships which she has personally established at the College. As a memorial tribute to her late husband, she and other college friends established the Russell J. Crider Pre-health Professional Scholarship to assist students pursuing pre-medical careers.

The 1988 Sibley Medallion of Honor salutes the Lindenwood spirit of caring, a spirit which is second-nature to Jane Crider.

Lions and Overseers Hold Concert

The Conners with Jim Fitz.

Board of Overseers Development Chairman, Jim Fitz of St. Charles Gas Company promised and delivered a "great night of family entertainment," when "The Conners In Concert" appeared at Lindenwood on May 23. The concert was arranged by the St. Charles Lions Club and the College's Board of Overseers as a benefit for a new scholarship program. The scholarship will enable a visually-impaired or handicapped student to attend Lindenwood College in the Fall.

Fitz secured the internationally-known musical entourage consisting of famed marimbist/vibraphonist Jack Conner, pianist/composer/accompanist Carol Gaddy Conner and vocal virtuoso Garrett Conner. Jack has appeared with Roger Williams and Don Ho and has been featured on The Merv Griffin, Ed Sullivan and other popular television shows. He also has performed with the Tokyo Symphony and the St. Louis Symphony. Carol is well-known for her religious, inspirational compositions and flavorful piano arrangements.

Garrett has been a St. Louis Muny Opera performer and appeared in the movie, "Paint Your Wagon." On the evening of May 23, "The Conners" charmed a receptive Jekyll theater audience with melodic show medleys, classical to contemporary musical hits and lighthearted humor mixed throughout their performance.

Jim Brakensiek, president of the St. Charles Lions Club; Walt Thompson, the club's special events coordinator; Larry Kelley of Lindenwood's Board of Directors; President James I. Spainhower and Fitz were recognized for their assistance with this scholarship benefit event. Underwriters for the concert included Commerce Bank of St. Charles, St. Charles Gas Company, Pio's Restaurant, J.R. Mentel and Associates, Landmark Bank of St. Charles County, Thornhill and Associates, Mid-Towne IGA, Pundmann Ford, Futura Financial Group, Micrologic Business Systems Inc., St. Charles Eye Center and A Friend.

Anderson Lectures On Evolution

Biology Professor Dr. Daryl Anderson presents the 1987-88 Faculty Lecture at Butler Library.

"Adapting-The Mirage" a lecture focusing on the current misunderstandings of evolution and social consequences, was presented by Dr. Daryl Anderson of Lindenwood's biology department at the faculty lecture held in April.

Holding a Ph.D. in biology from Washington University, Anderson earned her undergraduate degree in biology from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. She has completed postdoctoral work under Barry Commoner at the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems and believes that it greatly enhanced her biological expertise.

Anderson is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Botanical Society of America. She also serves as chairperson of the board for the Thomas Merton Foundation, a religious organization.

The lecture, which is an annual event at the College, drew a full house as students, faculty, staff and other friends gathered in Butler Library to commemorate the occasion.

Commencement '88 Salutes Two Educators

Eagleton and Lichliter Receive Honorary Degrees

This year's commencement ceremonies recognized two individuals with long histories of accomplishments. Mary Florence Lichliter, dean emerita of Lindenwood College, and Thomas F. Eagleton, former United States Senator from Missouri and the 1988 Commencement speaker, received honorary degrees for service to education.

Lichliter, receiving an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, was described by Art Professor John Wehmer as a woman who "brought the skills, the maturity, and most importantly, the inspired leadership to challenge the minds of young women and to ask of them a life-long commitment to the fulfillment of their lives at the highest level of achievement." Serving Lindenwood as Dean of Women for approximately twenty years, Lichliter later became the college's Dean of Continuing Education and Career Planning. After founding and strengthening the adult education and career programs, she served as Director of Alumnae Affairs and Placement from 1974 to 1976 when she retired.

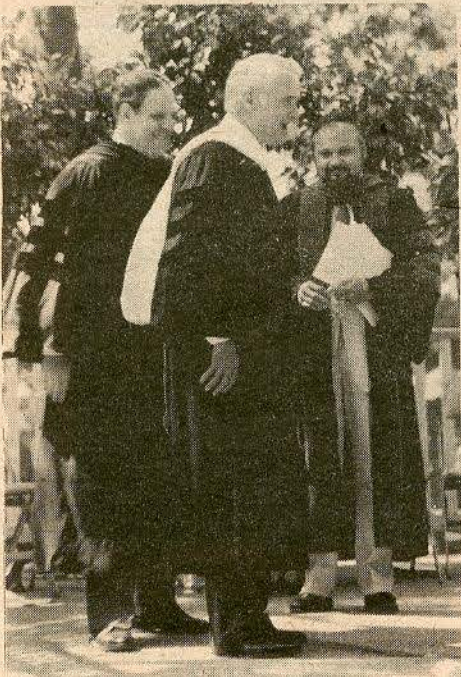

Former U.S. Senator Thomas F. Eagleton was presented an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the Lindenwood College Faculty. According to History Professor C. Edward Balog, Eagleton "made significant contributions to the public." Since "he is continuing in service of education" through his recent appointment to the Washington University Faculty, Balog said the faculty believes that he "represents the values and goals of (their) profession."

Lichliter is a resident of Pompano Beach, Fl., and holds a Master of Arts degree from the University of Chicago. She earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Wellesley College and served as Boston University's Associate Director of Student Counseling. She also served as Dean of Lasell Junior College in Massachusetts and Assistant Professor of History at Drury College in Springfield, Mo.

Nationally-known for his eighteen years in the United States Senate, Eagleton holds an LL.B. degree cum laude from Harvard Law School. He earned his B.A. cum laude at Amherst College and has been the recipient of numerous local, state and national awards and honors. Along with his distinguished professorship at Washington University, he has been a contributing writer to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and is a member of the Thompson and Mitchell law firm.

Merit Awards Recognize Achievements

Alumni Select Accarrino and Brougham in 1988

The awarding of the Alumni Merit Awards recognized two individuals who clearly are devoted to their alma mater. Frank Accarrino ('72) and Judith Batton Brougham ('61) received the Alumni Merit Award for Professional Accomplishment and the Alumni Merit Award for Service to the College, respectively.

Accarrino said it was good to return to the campus because he has so many good memories. Among them, he mentioned his wife, Leslie Volz, ('72). They were married immediately after their Commencement. Fifteen years and five children later, Accarrino is vice president, production operations/manpower scheduling, for NBC. He said that a key to his success has been in treating people as he would like to be treated.

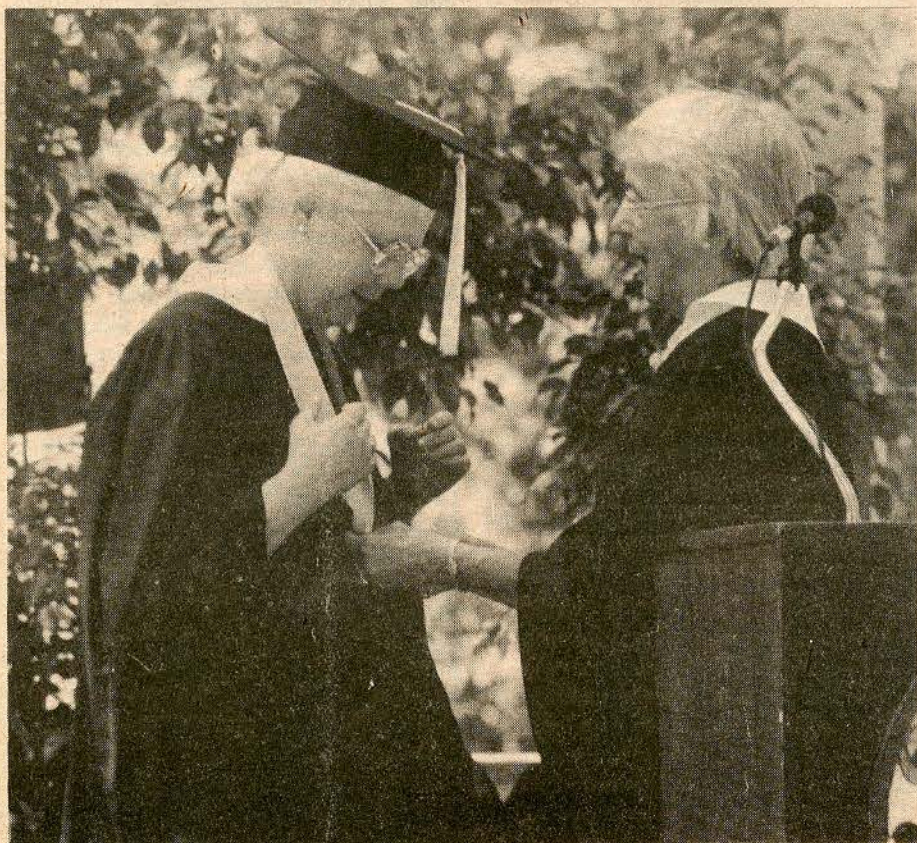

Beginning a broadcasting career working for the College's radio stations, KCLC-AM/FM, Accarrino worked at a variety of radio and television stations in St. Louis and Pittsburgh. He joined NBC and its Operations and Services Division as On-Air Technical Manager in 1980. Since 1985 he has been Director, News Technical Services with responsibility of directing the technical managements and coordination of in-house and field operations for NBC News programs like "Before Hours," "NBC News at Sunrise," "Today," "Sunday Today," "Nightly News with Tom Brokaw" and "Main Street." More recently he has worked on the "David Letterman Show" as part of his responsibilities for the NBC News, NBC Sports and NBC Entertainment divisions.

Brougham commented that the Alumni Merit Award for Service to the College was a very special award to her. Devoting countless hours to Lindenwood Brougham has been an active member of the Kansas City Lindenwood Alumni Club, serving as its president from 1974 to 1976 and also on the alumni board in the early eighties. She has been a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors for the past five years.

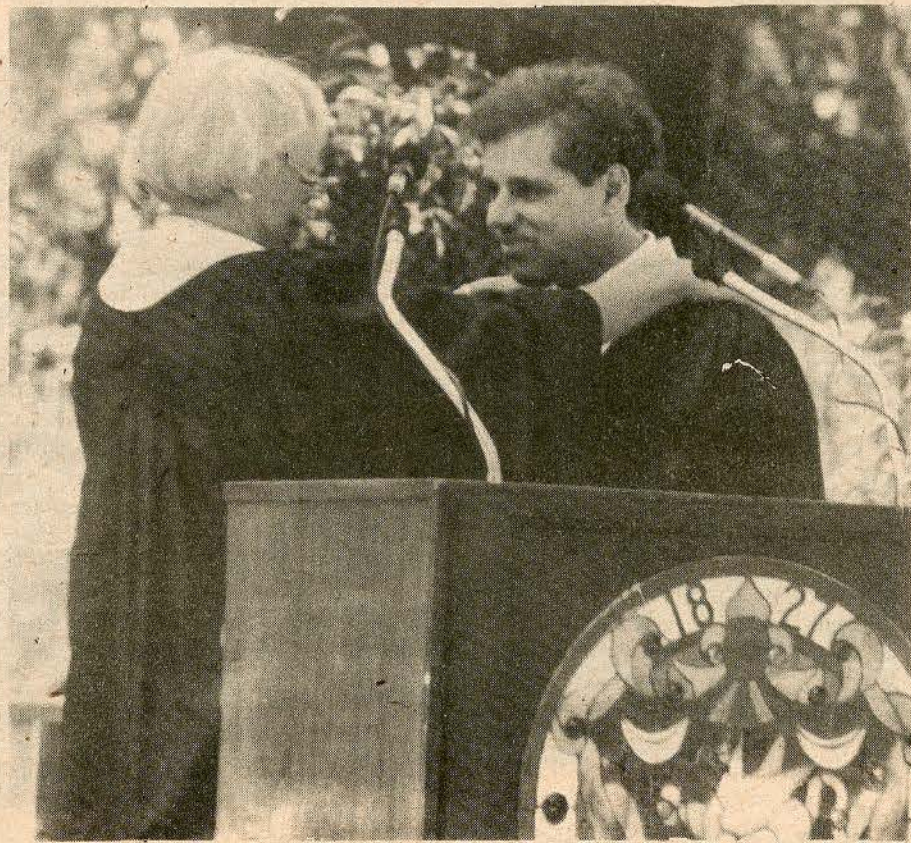

A talented and accomplished pianist/harpist, Brougham has entertained alumni with beautiful renditions on the harp at special events, like Alumni Reunion '87. She is past-president of the moment Musical Club and chairs the program committees of the Kansas City Musical Club and St. David's Welsh Society of Greater Kansas City.

Brougham serves as a member of the Sketch Box Committee for the Kansas City Art Institute. She was music chairperson of the Kansas City Renaissance Festival in 1977 and currently, is chairperson for the Women's Golf Invitational for Victory Hills Country Club to be held June 22 in Kansas City, Ks.

According to Brougham's husband, Leo, she solos on land through her music and in the air via plane and glider. On May 14, for her dedication to Lindenwood, its alumni and students, Brougham was soaring once again.

Judith Batton Brougham ('61) receives Merit Award from Maurita Estes Stueck ('43).

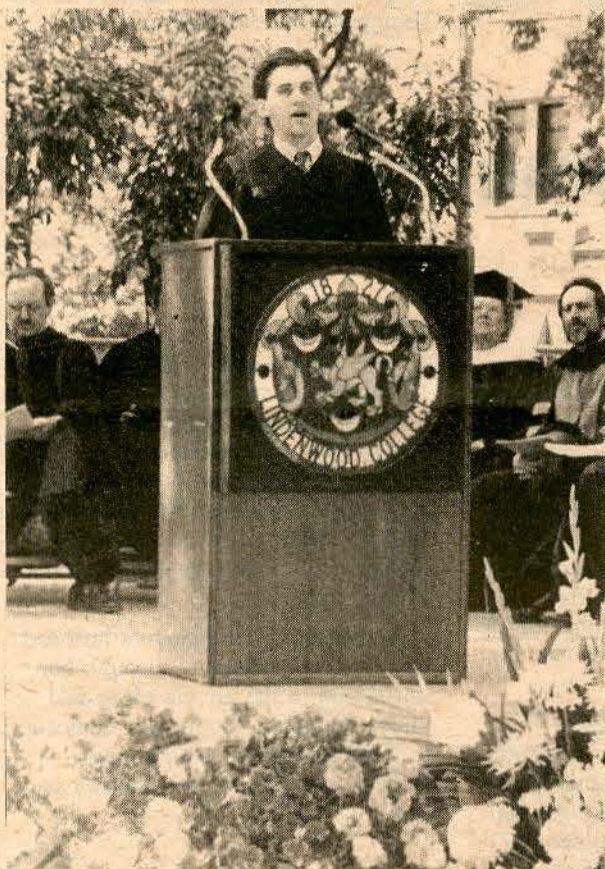

Frank Accarrino ('72) accepts Merit Award from Maurita Estes Stueck ('43).

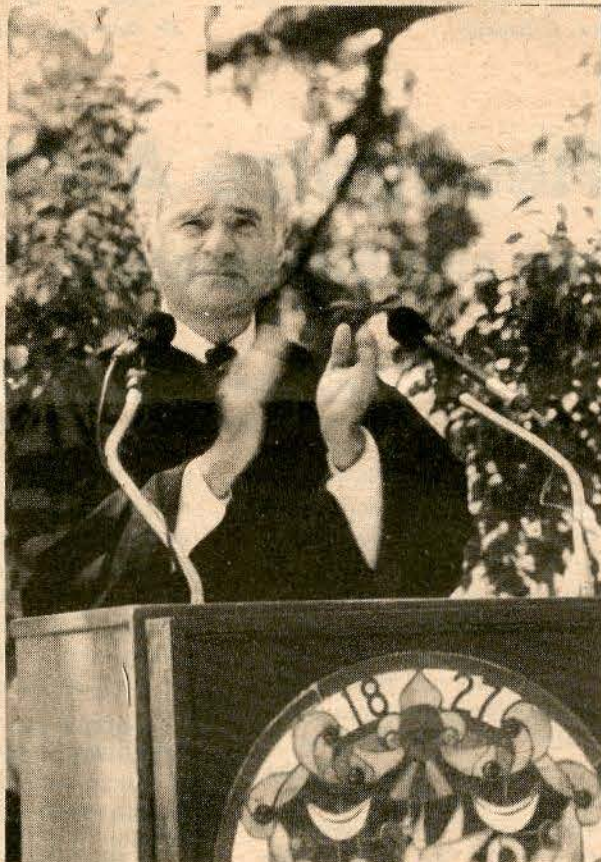

Graduates Energize the Quadrangle

Students and faculty line the halls of the St. Charles Presbyterian Church where they will participate in the annual Baccalaureate service.

Joe Arnold delivers an eloquent speech on behalf of the Class of '88.

Thomas F. Eagleton was the honorary guest speaker at Commencement.

Graduates file in as a crowd of 2,000 looks on with smiles and admiration.

Thanking College Chaplain Reverend George Wilcox for the beautiful weather, President James I. Spainhower welcomed approximately 2,000 students, faculty, board members, families and other college friends to the 160th Commencement of Lindenwood College.

The announcement of a $600,000 gift from Dr. Harlen C. Hunter, a speech from former U.S. Senator Thomas F. Eagleton, honorary degrees to Eagleton and Mary Florence Lichliter, dean emerita, and alumni merit awards to Frank Accarrino ('72) for professional accomplishment and Judith Brougham ('60) for college service led the ceremonies with a smashing display of gratitude and enthusiasm for the College's continued success.

And traditionally saving the best for a grand finale, degree candidate from the months of December 1987 through prospective candidates for the Summer of 1988 were presented to President Spainhower amidst cheers and applause. The Lindenwood College Class of '88 includes:

Attic Sale Brings Record Crowd

Festivity was the order of the day at Lindenwood on Saturday, June 4! The campus was at its most beautiful for the fifth annual "Mrs. Sibley's Attic Sale" which was held on the center campus. More than 150 antique, craft, flea market and food vendors sold their wares to approximately 5,000 bargain hunters who visited the campus.

Throughout the day entertainment was provided by the St. Charles Municipal Band, the Sweet Adelines, the Happy Tappers Cloggers, and Gene Henderson and his band. Such delicacies as crab rangoon, shish kabob, barbecue, ethnic foods, caramel apples and popcorn were sold by private vendors and civic groups.

More than $5,000 in scholarship money from attic sale proceeds will be presented to the college. Proceeds are earned from vendor space rental, and club booths such as plants, baked goods, books and flea market items.

According to Esther Fenning, Director of Alumni Activities, the attic sale committee begins its work one year in advance of the sale.

"St. Charles alumni club people work so hard to prepare for this day," said Fenning.

"Countless hours of organization, contacting vendors, publicizing, taking reservations go into it. Most of our volunteers work full time, in addition to their attic sale commitment," she added.

"Mrs. Sibley's Attic Sale" committee members are: Gerry Jacobs, president of the St. Charles Alumni Club; Anne Pals, General Chairperson; Maisie Keeser, Reservations Chairperson, Virginia Terry and Irene Hettich, Club Book Booth, Jean Zerr, Corinne Hill and Sally Schaefer, Hospitality; Glenda Schaefer, Treasurer and Publicity and Mabel Salfen, Club Flea Market Booth.

The date for the 1989 "Mrs. Sibley's Attic Sale" is set for Saturday, June 3. Lindenwood friends and alumni are invited to participate by renting a booth or by volunteering to help with the sale. For information, call Gerry Jacobs at (314) 553-2447 or the Lindenwood alumni office at 949-2000, Ext. 317.

Annual Reunions Honors KCLC

by Esther Fenning

October 14, 15, and 16 are the dates set for the Lindenwood Alumni Association's annual alumni reunion weekend. Special recognition will be given to the celebration of Lindenwood Radio Station KCLC in honor of its 40th anniversary.

According to Jinny Gender ('76), there will be a memorial service for recently deceased professor emerita Martha May Boyer on Saturday, October 15 at 10:30 a.m. in Butler Library.

Professor Boyer was responsible for the funding of KCLC and in her 35 years at Lindenwood was highly respected by her students. A few of Professor Boyer's students, including Robin Smith, KMOV-TV Channel 4 and Kathy Leonard, formerly of Channel 5, will share their memories of Boyer and KCLC.

Other communications events scheduled are a "Jean Fields Tunnel Runners Film Festival," sponsored by the Lindenwood Student Government; a KCLC open house on Saturday afternoon and a theatre production, "The 1940's Radio Hour" by Walton Jones, on Saturday.

Weekend activities will begin Friday, October 14 with open classes for observation, a walking tour of downtown St. Charles, and alumni art exhibit and reception, a dinner/auction and the "Jean Fields Tunnel Runners Film Festival."

A continental breakfast in the library will be held Saturday morning, followed by a short association meeting and the memorial service for Dr. Boyer.

The annual luncheon will be held at Ayres Dining Hall on Saturday. Honored classes (those with numerals ending in "3" and "8") will be recognized at the luncheon where faculty and emeriti will be guests of the alumni association.

Campus tours and dormitory open houses will follow the luncheon. The president and his wife, Joanne, will host a wine and cheese reception at their home followed by "The 1940's Radio Hour."

There will be a buffet breakfast on Sunday followed by a church service at the Lindenwood Chapel of the St. Charles Presbyterian Church.

All alumni are invited and encouraged to attend reunion. For information, call the alumni office at 949-2000, ext. 317.

Alumni Events Raise Funds

Fashion Show

The fifth annual Alumni Fashion Show was held at Chateau de France and sponsored by the St. Louis Alumni Club on February 20. Belendas, owned by Linda Kraska, provided designer fashions for the student, alumni, emeriti and faculty models. Nancy Prosser Dietz ('76) and Jeri Herhold Stine ('70), club president, recently presented a check for $1000 to President Spainhower for the club's annual scholarship gift. The scholarship is made possible through a gift by the club and the annual fashion show.

President Spainhower, Janet Riddle ('56), Martha Stine ('77) and Nancy Dietz ('76) converse at one of the St. Louis Alumni Club meetings.

Celebrity Benefit

In an effort to raise funds for campus TV Studio equipment, Glenda Raef Schaefer ('68) coordinated a special evening with veteran actor Jonathan Frid. His one-man show called "Fools and Fiends," featured spine-tingling readings from frightmasters like Edgar Allan Poe, Stephen King, Irwin Shaw, and others.

Schaefer also arranged a special actors' workshop, where Frid and co-producer, Mary O'Leary of "The Guiding Light" presented techniques for producing the "villain" on stage, television and film. Frid is probably best-known for his long-running character of Barnabas Collins on the television series, "Dark Shadows."

Mary-Eileen Ruffahr ('82), Virginia Terry ('62), and Esther Fenning ('77) talk with Jonathan Frid at an alumni reception.

The events held on March 25 and 26 included a reception for alumni and friends after the performance. The benefit proceeds will help with the purchase of new equipment for the TV studio in Young Science Hall.

Donors Renovate LC Facilities

Schott Assists with Great Hall and Dining Changes

HAVE YOU NOTICED some dramatic changes in the College's Dining Hall? Or have you attended a wedding reception, lecture or other special event in the beautiful Latzer Great Hall? Recent changes in these two college facilities have given new life to the areas, while maintaining the elegance and atmosphere of their original designs.

And the mastermind behind these new sights is Mrs. Jane Schott, a parent of a Lindenwood alumna and Maurita Stueck, alumni board president. Schott said she wanted to do something special for the College because she was so pleased with the way it helped her daughter. As a tribute to her own mother, the late Cora O. Latzer, Schott first decided to renovate the Great Hall on the top floor of the Memorial Arts Building. With covers on the old registers, a new parkay floor and classic Renaissance selections on the walls, Schott and friend, Pat Hopmeier of Plaid Wagon Interiors created a lasting memorial to Mrs. Latzer. Named the "Latzer Great Hall," it represents many thoughtful hours of dedication to a considerable project. A portrait of Latzer hangs outside the foyer to greet visitors at the formal college gatherings.

And as if Latzer Great Hall were not enough, Schott and Hopmeier went on to evaluate the College's dining facilities with Stueck's assistance, suggesting tasteful changes to improve the atmosphere for students. Schott, who once again funded the project, discussed improvements at length with Hopmeier, Stueck, and college officials. They decided to add register covers, paint the dining hall a soft peach and remove old carpeting for a light forest green covering in all the rooms. The Alumni Reunion '87 Honored Classes ending in 2 and 7, added shining brass chandeliers to the Heritage Room. Schott also arranged a new booth area for students with Tiffany lamps and a festive look.

More changes are expected as Schott designates the finishing touches for her creative renovations. Lindenwood and its students have experience a welcome, spirited change thanks to Schott's dedication. The College is proud to be able to present renewed beauty and warmth for students through such continued thoughtfulness of a Parent.

This exquisite portrait of Mrs. Cora O. Latzer welcomes visitors to the new Latzer Great Hall.

Trump Gives Special Birthday Tribute

Miss Dorothy Trump, life member of the Lindenwood Board of Overseers, wanted to give a special gift to President Spainhower last year. Her idea to renovate the small foyer adjacent to the Legacy Room created the perfect setting for what is now called "The Lillian Trump 1827 Room."

Designed for one-table meal gatherings or more intimate dining, The 1827 Room was the perfect complement to the recent renovations proposed by Lindenwood Parent Jane Schott and Alumni Board President Maurita Stueck.

"I'm so pleased with Lindenwood's progress since Jim Spainhower became the President," said Trump. "I just wanted to do something special to say thanks for his leadership and friendship."

Walls of the 1827 Room display former College Presidents. Spainhower said he is inspired by the likeness of McCluer, Roemer, and other great Lindenwood leaders. In his sixth year of service to the College, Spainhower commented, "We are so proud to have Dorothy Trump as a friend and supporter. Her association with Lindenwood, and that of her late mother, Mrs. Lillian P. Trump, and their tremendous generosity have been a blessing for many years." The Lillian Trump 1827 room will be available to students, faculty, staff and alumni for those very special occasions when a small dining room is needed.

Warner Provides Funding for Pool Renovation

Board of Directors Member Dorothy DuQuoin Warner ('36) has recently donated substantial funding for the renovation of Butler Pool. Warner's gift complements the recent $600,000 contribution from sports medicine specialist Dr. Harlen C. Hunter for renovations and additions to create a new sports complex at Lindenwood.

Warner has been a strong supporter of her alma mater for many years. Her latest gift places her in the newly formed Butler Society, which includes commitments of $25,000 or more.

An active member of the board for the past fourteen years, Warner received the Alumni Merit Award for Service to Lindenwood in 1977. Like many alumni, she credits Lindenwood for her successes. And Lindenwood College truly reciprocates that credit through its appreciation of Warner and the many alumni who have endeared Lindenwood throughout the years.

Hunter Reveals Progressive Insights for Stadium and Youth

Commenting on his recent $600,000 gift to Lindenwood College, Dr. Harlen C. Hunter said he wasn't planning on it. "One thing just led to another, and I began to see the great need to establish a sports facility for our youth."

Hunter said when he first began his clinic in 1976 there were only two places for major high school outdoor athletic events in the St. Louis area. One of those facilities was the Lindenwood College stadium.

Created as a practice field for the former Football Cardinals, the Lindenwood stadium attracted a steady flow of high school athletic events from the St. Louis metropolitan area. "In all reality," said Hunter, "athletics is the physical conditioning of the young. I felt that my gift to Lindenwood could continue this important health activity even beyond my own lifetime."

And it's obvious that Dr. Harlen C. Hunter cares about people. When he began the St. Louis Orthopedic Sports Medicine Clinic in the mid-seventies, there were only 20 such facilities in the entire country. Today, the number of sports medicine clinics has grown to over 700.

Planning ahead seems to be one of Dr. Hunter's natural talents. He described a newly-designed, semi-tractor trailer which will become a mobile unit for his clinic. Scheduled to follow an extensive racing car circuit across the country, Hunter's latest innovation is equipped as an acute trauma and rehabilitation center. It houses a physician, paramedic, trainer and all the equipment needed to assist with injuries. He hopes the mobile unit will be helpful for local and area athletic events, as well.

Like Lindenwood, Dr. Harlen C. Hunter is dedicated to serving the needs of others. And his family is supportive in every way. "JoAnn, my wife, and Todd and Juliann, my children, have given me the encouragement to pursue my dreams," he said. Hunter's staff of doctors, athletic trainers, physical therapists, nurses and assistants share his dream. Said Hunter, "We all work together. It's a winning attitude." He added, "Everyone has a right to follow their star."

To Lindenwood College, the rising star is Dr. Harlen C. Hunter. And the Harlen C. Hunter Sports Complex is something that Hunter and the College hope will help young athletics realize some of their dreams. Like the caring nature indicative of Lindenwood's mission and its many supporters, Dr. Harlen C. Hunter is a person with a caring vision.

On behalf of Lindenwood College, we extend our warmest gratitude for the visionary gift of Dr. Harlen C. Hunter. We look forward to the completion of the Harlen C. Hunter Sports Complex for the students at Lindenwood College and the entire metropolitan community.

Soviet Delegation Visits Lindenwood

As the Soviet Union experiences Mikhail Gorbachev's "glasnost" reforms and President Ronald Reagan emphasizes student exchanges, Lindenwood College has been among the first colleges and universities to join this new spirit of openness in conjunction with the newly-established U.S./Soviet Exchange Program.

Mikhail Myasnikov, deputy chief of foreign affairs for the ministry of higher education, and Olga Balakireva, representative of Kharkov University, visited Lindenwood on January 20 to consult with students, faculty and administration in preparation for the reciprocal exchange program in the Fall. Karen Handelsman, senior program coordinator for the Citizen Exchange Council in New York joined the group as they conferred with students and faculty at the College. A press conference was held at the Margaret Leggat Butler Library on January 21, and students received televised coverage for the announcement of details surrounding the exchange.

Modeled after the effort of some Yale University students in 1985, the Lindenwood program was initiated by students in the Lindenwood Student Government (LSG). Ron Watermon, LSG president, has been a driving force behind the student efforts. Commenting on the recent planning session Watermon said, "At first they (the Soviets) were skeptical about the value of an exchange with a small, Midwestern college, but they quickly warmed to our reception." This is the first time a Midwestern college has participated in the exchange program. Watermon said they have plans to show the Soviet students some of the popular St. Louis sites like the Gateway Arch and the Riverfront, plus the growing St. Charles Main Street Historical Area. Board of Directors Chairman Robert Hyland has arranged a tour of KMOX Radio, and other tours are being planned.

Watermon concluded, "The Soviets were very warm and friendly, and they really liked the T-shirts and other Lindenwood memorabilia that the Student Government presented." Watermon believes that the Soviet students are as excited as Lindenwood students, and that everyone is looking forward to the Fall Exchange.

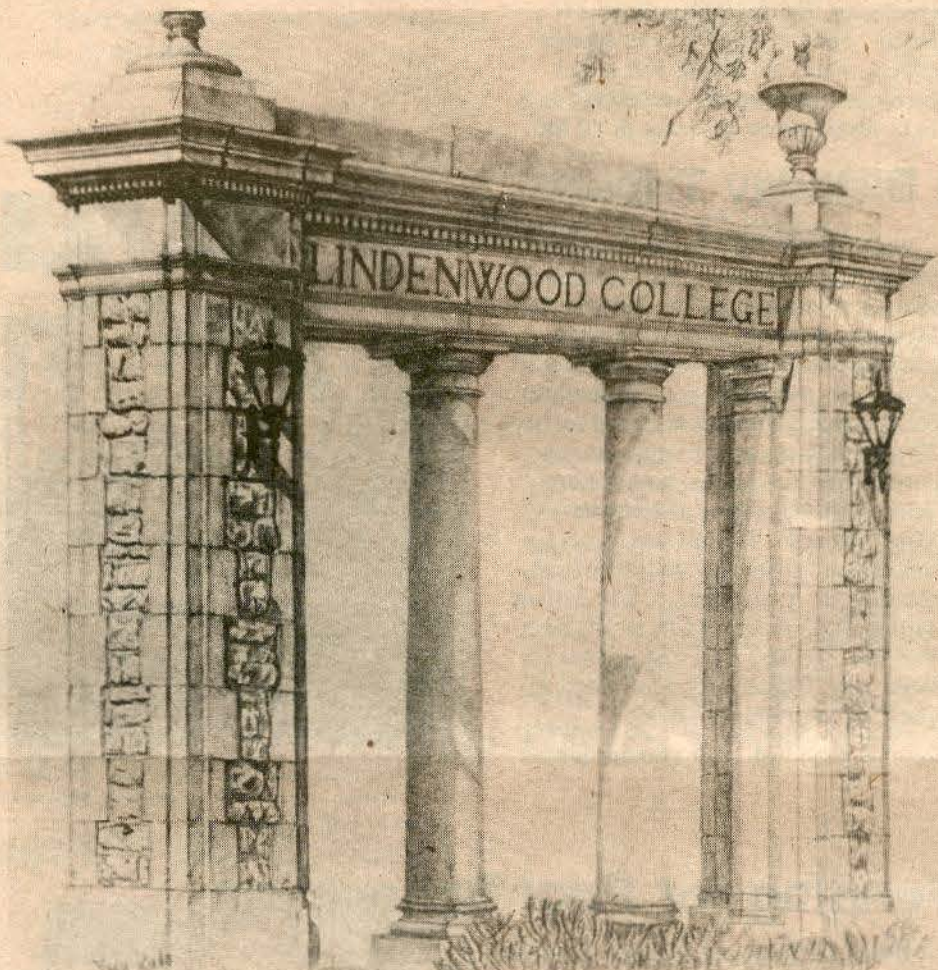

The LSG will raise funds for the program which will cost $20,000 to $30,000 each year. They are currently looking to corporations and philanthropic organizations in the St. Louis area, through the assistance of the College's Development Offices.

West Port Moves To Larger Center

In an effort to offer larger classrooms, study areas and food service to students attending the West Port Center of Lindenwood, the college has secured a new facility for teaching at the off-campus site.

The new address of the Lindenwood West Port Center office is 11960 Westline Industrial Drive, St. Louis, MO 63146. The Center is located on the first floor of the 12000 Page Building, and students will begin their July 11-Quarter in the new facility.

Maggie Kracke, director of off-campus centers, commented that the larger, highly-visible facility will have a patio area for socializing and studying before classes. She said that arrangements also have been made for a vending service to supply sandwiches and snacks. "We were looking for something that would benefit the students," said Kracke, "and we are confident that the new location will do just that."

Phonathon '88 Enlists Support

Donna Ziegemeier, phonathon evening supervisor, recently announced that the Lindenwood College Alumni Phonathon '88 surpassed the $100,000 mark for pledges on May 18. Additional gifts from alumni received on the 18th put the annual Spring Campaign at a total of $140,000 in gifts and pledges. With a goal of $190,000 for the spring phoning sessions, success for the College and its phoners is well within reach.

Director of Development for Individual Giving, Chuck Brown, expressed congratulations to Phonathon '88 volunteers and staff. Brown said he is impressed with their dedicated efforts and determined spirit. Concluded Ziegemeier, "The staff and volunteers are confident that we will reach the goal for the June 30 fiscal year deadline. And speaking with Lindenwood's alumni is fun and rewarding," she added. "On behalf of Alumni Phonathon '88, we thank you for sharing your memories and deeply appreciate your continued support."

Campus School Teaches Real Life to Children

Ruth Ann Freese, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Barry Freese ('75) tries out for her first job as camerawoman in the LC TV Studio.

The Lindenwood Campus Preschool is more than just a school—it's a real-life learning experience for children ages three to five.

Recently students at the preschool toured the Lindenwood College video studio and KCLC radio station. These on-campus facilities are just two of the real-life situations that the preschoolers may experience as participants in the pre-school program at Lindenwood. For more information about the programs offered at the campus school to preschoolers age 3-5, please call 314/949-2000 extension 356.

Teacher Scholarships Continue

The Lindenwood Education Department announces the renewal of the teacher scholarship program for the 1988-89 school year. Teachers who are under contract can receive scholarship aid up to $75.00 per credit hour. The Masters in Education program at Lindenwood allows teachers to pursue areas of individual interest and/or to receive certification in additional teaching disciplines. For more information call the Education Department, Lindenwood College 949-2000 Ext. 356.

PLEASE SHARE YOUR LINDENWORD

We need your help to spread the good news about Lindenwood, a college that truly cares for its students, alumni and friends. If you enjoy reading the LindenWord, please share it with your friends. If you have suggestions or ideas on how we could improve your publication, please write to Phyllis Morris, Campus Box 652, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri 63301. Your input is welcomed and appreciated. Thank you for your readership!

Faculty Exhibit Works

Dean Eckert, Nancy Follis, Grant Hargate, Hans Levi, Alice Schermerhorn and John Wehmer of the art department and Gregg Hillmar and Niki Juncker of the performing arts department presented an exhibition of works in scenic and costume design, ceramics, photography, painting and drawing at the Harry D. Hendren Gallery during the months of February and March. Entitled "Vision and Meaning," the group exhibit included a special presentation by some of the exhibitors who explained their artistic works.

READERS SURVEY

Mailing the LindenWord is costly, but we believe it's worthwhile. We are happy to provide this service to alumni, friends and students. We will continue to share the spirit of Lindenwood's latest developments with you; however, if you are receiving two copies, have suggestions, or would like to discontinue your free subscription to the LindenWord, please let us know. Just attach your mailing label to a brief note outlining your request and send it to Phyllis Morris, Campus Box 652, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301. Thank you!

Performing Arts Offers Summer Conservatory

The Young Artist Conservatory began in the Fall of 1987 as an extension of Lindenwood's well-acclaimed Performing Arts program. Actors ages 10-17 representing many different school districts have been meeting each Saturday morning for instruction in all aspects of creative dramatics and theatre. For the Summer term, the Young Artist Conservatory will offer "The Play's The Thing" featuring scene work and a culminating performance piece. Actors of all proficiency levels are invited to participate in the Conservatory and will be grouped according to ability and previous training. Classes meet each Saturday morning from 9:30 - 11:30 in the Fine Arts Building beginning Saturday, July 9. The special summer rate for this 11-week session is $175. For further information call Marsha Parker at 949-2000, Ext. 362.
