College-Soviet Exchange

In a league with such prestigious institutions as Stanford, Yale and Harvard universities, Lindenwood is one of 10 colleges and universities in the United States embarking upon a unique student-exchange program with the Soviet Union.

Initiated entirely by members of the Lindenwood Student Government, the program will involve a group of Lindenwood students and faculty spending a week next year at a university in the U.S.S.R. and a group of Soviet students spending a week on the St. Charles campus. For details on this unique program, the first ever to pair American and Soviet universities for a reciprocal exchange of undergraduate students, see page 6.

A Powerful Boost for KCLC-FM

Seven years of planning became a reality recently when Lindenwood's community radio station, KCLC-FM, positioned itself as a major median in the metropolitan area with an increase in power from 1,500 to more than 25,000 watts. KCLC-FM Radio now has a stronger and sharper signal, enabling it to reach more than 95 percent of the estimated 2.4 million population in the metropolitan area. Turn to page 3 and, if you are in the area, turn your FM dial to 89.1

Mid Rivers Mall Opening Cites Lindenwood

St. Charles County's newest retail development, the $100 million Mid Rivers Mall in St. Peters, honored Lindenwood in special grand-opening ceremonies recently. The college was one of two charitable organizations to receive nearly $10,000 for ticket sales at the gala opening. A check, funds from which will go to the Performing Arts Dept. for equipment at Jelkyl Theatre, was presented to Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower by Robert L. Ferguson, chairman and president of May Centers, Inc., developers of the mall, during the gala event this fall. For the complete story, see page 3.

Descendent Visits Campus

Robert Easton, a veteran Hollywood character actor and an internationally-known dialect expert, saw his ancestors' creation when he visited the Lindenwood campus for the first time this summer. The 57-year-old Easton is an 11th generation American and the great-great grandson of Rufus Easton, the father of Lindenwood founder, Mary Easton Sibley. Editor Randy L. Wallick spent a day with Easton as he toured the campus and gathered material for his geneology, and Wallick's feature story on this fascinating Sibley descendent appears on pages 10-11.

Colleges Form Unique Pact

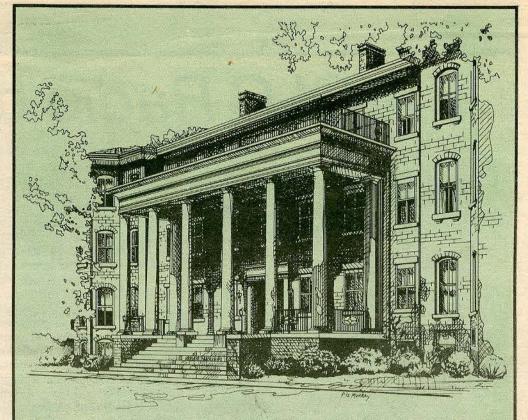

St. Charles County's newest educational institution, the St. Charles Community College, and its oldest, Lindenwood, joined forces with adoption of a cooperative agreement recently. The pact is designed to better serve graduates of the two-year community college who wish to continue studies at Lindenwood. For a look into this unique agreement, which was approved by boards of both colleges and signed by President James I. Spainhower and Community College President Donald D. Shook, turn to page 4.

Alumni Honor St. Louis TV Broadcaster

Lindenwood's St. Louis Metropolitan Noonday Alumni Group presented its first Noonday Award recently to television broadcaster Kathy Leonard, a general assignment reporter for KSDK-TV in St. Louis and a 1972 alumna of Lindenwood. For a glimpse into the life of one of Lindenwood's outstanding alumni and why the Noonday Group selected her for its prestigious award, turn to page 8.

Lindenwood Donor Honor Roll

Lindenwood completed the 1986-87 fiscal year with cash and total contributions of $1.66 million — the most successful one-year support record in college history! To honor those who contributed to this effort, including 48 percent of Lindenwood's alumni, turn to page 12 for a list of donors. This listing is only for gifts received July 1, 1986, through June 30, 1987.

A Challenge for Our Next 160 Years

by James I. Spainhower, President

As we face a new year in the midst of our 160th anniversary celebration, Lindenwood College has a challenge for the future — to strengthen itself as an even greater independent institution and to position itself as one of the most dynamic liberal arts colleges in the United States.

The college's challenge is shaped by its splendid past year. Its outlook for the future is one of growth, development and increasing its range of educational opportunities for those who turn to Lindenwood to receive a highly-individualized college education.

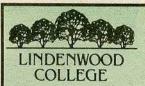

Since the early 19th century, the Sibleys and other Lindenwood leaders have strived to make sure that careful investments in higher education bring rich returns in personal and professional success.

The Sibleys' dream is never more evident nor our challenges more real than now, as Lindenwood finished recording its most successful one-year support record in its history. This has been achieved by a record $1.66 million in cash and total contributions during the past fiscal year, by the addition of corporate and civic backing for the college and, perhaps most importantly, by a record of 48% in alumni support, the highest in Missouri and one of the greatest in the country.

But, we must expand our efforts. Our challenges demand the best from all members of the college community — its alumni, boards, the community, corporations, faculty, friends, parents, staff and students. Perhaps never before in its 160-year history has there been a more important challenge and the need for a more committed and unified effort than during the next few years as Lindenwood eyes the 21st century.

We must meet our challenge by securing the college for the future. We must re-double our efforts on behalf of the college. Lindenwood will need to recruit more students and raise more money than ever before. And, in the midst of seasonal giving, there is no better time than the present to show our support for Lindenwood. The newly-created Butler Society, details of which can be found on page 20, is one of the best ways we can secure the future so Lindenwood can continue to meet its challenges.

As the new year emerges, our responsibility to the future demands no less than our best efforts. Each and every one of us must become an ambassador for this wonderful institution. Together, we have proven that when alumni, friends, parents, students and supporters join forces, only positive results can transpire at Lindenwood College.

KCLC Radio boosts power

Lindenwood's community radio station, KCLC-FM, has positioned itself as a major median in the metropolitan area with its recent power increase from 1,500 to 25,500 watts.

Increased community coverage, remote broadcasts, on-air endorsements, new or expanded programs and a week-long fund-raising campaign are going on as KCLC-FM draws attention to its sharper, stronger signal resulting from its power increase.

A formal dedication took place recently to observe the power increase and to draw attention to the 19th anniversary of the FM station. Guests included Kathy Leonard, general assignment reporter for KSDK-TV and a 1972 Lindenwood alumna; James G. Maurer, manager of community relations for Southwestern Bell Telephone and chairman of the KCLC Board of Advisors; Lindenwood College President James I. Spainhower; and James A. Wilson, general manager of KCLC Radio and chairman of the college's Communications Dept.

In November, the radio station aired messages from local and state community, business, civic and political leaders, congratulating it on the power increase and the anniversary of the station's formation in October, 1968. According to Glynelle Wells, special projects director

According to Glynelle Wells, special projects director for KCLC-FM, the power increase allows Lindenwood's community radio station to be heard clearly throughout the metropolitan area. The increased power also provides a sharper signal, enabling listeners throughout St. Charles and St. Louis counties to receive better quality reception, she added.

According to Wilson, planning for the recent power increase began as early as 1980-, while the application was filed with the FCC in 1982. "It's been a long, draining battle," Wilson said, "since we ran into a large number of unanticipated road blocks during the past several years.

NEW HEIGHTS — At left and below, workers move and install transmitter and antenna equipment for KCLC-FM's recent power increase from 1,500 to 25,000 watts. More than five years in the planning stage, the power increase means Lindenwood College's community radio station now reaches more than 95 percent of the population in the two-state metropolitan area. A sharper, stronger signal also results from the increase, enabling listeners to receive better quality reception on 89.1 FM.

"However, our signal now reaches more than 95 percent of the population in the metropolitan area. I hope the people in our new service area take the opportunity to share with our unique public radio programming as soon as possible," he added.

Earlier this year in anticipation of the power increase, KCLC increased its community service programming. New or expanded additions to its 18.5 hours of daily programming include "Dimension," a community issue-oriented program; "Business Update" to provide financial and business news; the daily "Community Calendar" to provide announcements of community events; and expanded jazz and bluegrass, including "Band Beat" to provide information on local jazz entertainment.

The station will be involved in upcoming community activities, such as live broadcasts from Mid River Mall in St. Peters, joint sponsorship of area concerts, live broadcasts of high school football each Friday in St. Charles county and coverage of the state high school football championships.

KCLC, 89.1 on the FM dial, broadcasts entertainment, cultural and public service programs as well as award-winning bluegrass, jazz, new wave and religious music from 5:30 a.m. to midnight each day. Utilized as an instructional tool for Lindenwood's communications program, the station is staffed primarily by volunteers and students.

KCLC Radio began in 1948 as a closed-circuit station on the Lindenwood campus. Twenty years later, a 10-watt FM station was established for broadcast to the City of St. Charles and, in 1972, that station increased its power to 1,500 watts to provide coverage to the metropolitan area. In 1983, KCLC-FM began stereo broadcasts.

Accreditation until 1994!

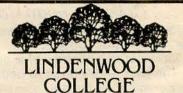

The North Central Association of Schools & Colleges (NCACS) has granted continued accreditation to Lindenwood College until 1994 - the maximum that can be received from the Chicago-based accrediting body.

body.

"This accreditation is quite an accomplishment," said President James I. Spainhower, "and it is indicative of the continuing value of a degree from this institution."

According to James F. Hood, former dean of faculty who served as coordinator for the NCACS study, "The accrediting team gave us high marks for our academic program. In fact," he added, "in every NCACS evaluation we've had recently, the association has never knocked our academic program, always saying that the college is a high-quality, liberal arts institution."

With member institutions in 19 states, the NCACS covers the largest portion of the United States as an official accrediting body for colleges and universities. It has granted accreditation to Lindenwood College since 1918.

College President Jim Spainhower addresses Mid Rivers Mall guests

Gala opening honors county's oldest institution

Lindenwood was one of two charitable organizations elected to benefit from the Mid Rivers Preview Grand Opening Celebration which took place this fall at the $100 million shopping center in St. Peters.

The college and Four County Mental Health, Inc., each received nearly $10,000 from the sale of nearly 1,000 tickets both organizations received for the gala event, courtesy of the May Centers, Inc., developers of the mall

Included as part of this year's effort to secure $1 million in fund raising, proceeds from ticket sales for the Mid Rivers Mall opening were earmarked to the Performing Arts Dept., which had an integral part in the opening festivities. Specifically, funds will be used for equipment for Jelkyl Theatre, a chief cultural source in St. Charles County for nearly 50 years.

With a theme of "Night on the River," grand opening ceremonies featured Art Fleming, well-known television broadcaster and former host of "Jeopardy," serving as master of ceremonies. Also taking part in opening ceremonies were a number of business, civic, political and community leaders, including Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower, who officially announced the beginning of the college's 160th anniversary this year.

As the oldest institution in St. Charles County, Lindenwood was selected to participate in opening ceremonies with the newest facility in the county - Mid Rivers Mall.

"As the newest member of the community, it is an honor to recognize the academic achievements of Lindenwood College, the oldest member of the community and the second-oldest edcuational institution west of the Mississippi," said Robert L. Ferguson, chairman and president of May Centers, Inc.

Sales of the tickets for the mall's grand opening were coordinated for Lindenwood by a 60-member blue ribbon committee chaired by Keith W. Hazelwood of Thompson & Mitchell, St. Charles, and Catherine O. Pundmann of Pundmann Ford of St. Charles, both members of the Lindenwood College Board of Accepting the check from May Centers, Inc., Spainhower said, "The opening of Mid Rivers Mall is a solid indication of the economic vitality of St. Charles County. This new addition to the retail offerings of the county helps to insure that shopping in St. Charles County will continue to be exciting and absolutely state of the art!"

Continuing, the president said, "Lindenwood, this year celebrating its 160th year of offering state of the art higher education experiences for its students, is pleased that its excellent Performing Arts Dept. has been designated to receive a share of the ticket sales from the mall's grand opening celebration.

"Theatre always has been a vital ingredient in Lindenwood's life," Spainhower said, and "funds from this benefit will help the college continue providing both education and entertainment to the community through its Performing Arts Dept.," he said.

Centered around a theme of "Night on the River," the Mid Rivers Mall grand opening attracted nearly 2,500 people to the three-hour celebration. Many of the mall's 100 shops and speciality stores were open during the event to provide patrons with a preview and sample of some of their goods and services. The mall, with a capacity of 110 stores, officially opened the following day, October 14.

Providing entertainment were students of Lindenwood's Performing Arts Dept., under the direction of Daniel Alkofer, Ph.D., department chairman. Linden-wood presented several olios, a series of vaudeville acts throughout the evening, and "River Review," a presentation with authentic scenes and costumes from the turn of the 20th century on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

Other entertainment was provided by Tanya Tungate, former Miss Missouri who did a repertoire from the musical, "Showboat"; the Pat Holt Singers; and the Singleton Palmer Jazz Band. Accenting the river theme were food and beverage stations at nine locations within the mall, each of which offered different selections from towns on the rivers, such as New Orleans, St. Louis and Hannibal, MO.

As part of the week-long grand opening, KCLC Radio presented live broadcasts from Mid Rivers Mall.

Lindenwood has received a contribution of $6,667 from the Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis as the first installment in a three-year, unrestricted pledge of $20,000 made to the St. Charles-based institution.

In announcing the recent gift, Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower expressed the college's deep appreciation to John L. Lenza, manager of the Contributions Program for Ralston Purina, and to William P. Stiritz, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the St. Louis-based firm.

The Ralston Purina gift has been earmarked to the college's general fund to be used for student scholar-ship assistance, facilities improvement and campus renovation and repair.

AN AUTUMN PICNIC — Lindenwood's picturesque campus provided the backdrop for a "Welcome Back B-B-Q" this fall for students, faculty and staff. The second annual event was hosted by the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers whose members utilized the opportunity to meet with the Lindenwood family. The picnic, termed a tremendous success, was arranged by overseers in cooperation with the college's Development Office and Tracy L. Mathis, a St. Charles attorney and chairperson of the board's Student Support Committee.

Colleges form cooperative agreement

Lindenwood and St. Charles Community colleges have adopted a cooperative agreement to better serve graduates of the two-year college who wish to continue their education at Lindenwood.

Approved by the boards of directors of both institutions, an agreement recently was signed by Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower and St. Charles Community College President Donald D. Shook during a formal ceremony at the Holiday Inn at St. Peters.

The two-page document calls for cooperative curriculums to ensure that community college graduates can transfer their credits to Lindenwood, for the creation of a number of 2+2 programs between both institutions, for cooperation between the faculties and staffs of both colleges, for joint promotion of the cooperative agreement between both schools, and for joint development of scholarship programs for community college students who want to pursue two more years at Lindenwood.

The agreement also calls for the establishment of an advisory board of representatives from both institutions. The board will "promote the cooperatiave relationship... and suggest new avenues for cooperation which will be in the interests of both institutions and the citizens of St. Charles County."

Spainhower called the agreement a symbol "of a great spirit of cooperation between the oldest and newest institutions in the county, Lindenwood and the community college. It shows that we'll work together, and I welcome the new college," he said.

Shook said the pact took advantage of the proximity of the two colleges. "We can do things that would not be possible if we were some distance apart. I believe we can offer the maximum potential to our students by expanding their opportunities."

A new look for theatre

Lindenwood College's theatre faculty of the Performing Arts Dept. has a new, more stable look this season, prompted by the recent appointments of three full-time faculty members.

Joining Lindenwood this year as chairman and professor of performing arts is Daniel W. Alkofer, Ph.D., formerly of Madison, WI. While teaching stage directing and other subjects and developing the theatre department, Alkofer also will direct two Mainstage Theatre productions, "A Christmas Carol" during the holiday season and next semester's presentation of "Rhinoceros."

Other full-time appointments include Suzanne E. Mills as assistant professor of acting, and Greg Hillmar as resident scenic and lighting designer and technical director.

Alkofer holds an undergraduate degree in philosophy from Oberlin College in Ohio, an M.A. in theatre from the University of Iowa, and a Ph.D. in theatre history from Indiana University. With 19 years of experience in teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, his most recent academic appointment is that of head of the Theatre Dept. at Oklahoma State University.

Besides work at colleges and universities, he has been production consultant for a dinner theatre in Madison, and he has worked at a civic theatre in Austin, TX. Alkhofer has directed 33 full-length productions, and his credits also include numerous assignments in acting and lighting design. His special interest areas include directing, theatre history and dramatic literature, especially British theatre from Shakespeare to the Georgian period.

Commenting on his aspirations for Lindenwood College, Alkofer said, "There is a great deal of rebuilding and development ahead of us. The potential is here to make Lindenwood the artistic center of St. Charles County, and I am committed to every effort to make that happen.

"I'm very pleased that the department combines music and dance with theatre," Alkofer said, "since the three fields frequently are combined. I also plan to revive the community support organization of the performing arts at Lindenwood, and to develop close ties with the community," he added.

Mills joins the college faculty after serving two years as a visiting professor. As assistant professor of acting, she not only teaches undergraduate and graduate courses, but also directs Mainstage productions. Her past work has included "Round and Round the Garden," "El Grande de Coca-Cola" and "She Stoops to Conquer." Earlier this semester, Mills directed the opening production, "Foxfire," and next semester, she will direct Lindenwood's production of "Hedda Gabler"

Mills completed her undergraduate work at the State University of New York at Sony Brook, and earned a Master of Fine Arts degree at Indiana University. In conjunction with the Lindenwood Performing Arts Dept., Mills recently received for the second year the Camelot Grant from the Arts & Education Council of Greater St. Louis for her children's play, "A New Twist," which will tour elementary schools in the area later this year.

An actress, she has appeared as Loretta in the Kennedy Center's ANTA touring company's production of "A History of the American Film." She has been an instructor at Indiana and Indiana State Universitites, and has served as a co-host of "PM Magazine" in Terre Haute, IN.

Hillmar's scenic and lighting experiences include assignments with the Nevada Dance Theatre, the Virginia State Ballet, the Tidewater Ballet, Capital Ballet Gala at the Kennedy Center, the University of Texas at Austin, Dogwood Dell Amphitheatre, the Little Theatre on the Square in Sullivan, IL, and others.

The fourth full-time theatre position is held by Niki Juncker, who joined Lindenwood in 1981. Former acting department chairman in 1986-87, she is an associate professor and costume designer for the Performing Arts Dept.

These four full-time faculty members hope to bring forth an exciting and successful 1987-88 season of productions to the entire St. Louis area. Upcoming are Henrik Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," to be performed February 25-27 and March 3-5, and Eugene Ionesco's "Rhinoceros," slated April 14-16 and 21-22. The two shows, which will be staged in Jelkyl Theatre in Roemer Hall at 8 p.m. each day, complete the Mainstage Theatre's presentations for the 1987-88 academic year.

COLLEGE KUDOS

President James I. Spainhower is serving as temporary chairman of the newly-formed St. Charles County Conference on Education (SCCCE), an organization addressing the total educational concerns of the county. Membership includes superintendents of all of the county's public school districts, representatives of private elementary and secondary schools and presidents of Lindenwood, St. Mary's and St. Charles County Community Colleges.

"There is a strong feeling among St. Charles County educations," Spainhower said, "that educators and the institutions they represent must be organized sufficiently on a county-wide basis to assure the continuation of quality educational opportunities for all areas of St. Charles County." Establishment of the SCCCE is viewed as a viable means of helping the county as a whole address its growing educational concerns in a unified manner, he added.

Thomas L. Gossage, senior vice-president of Monsanto Chemical Co., and Walter L. Metcalfe, Jr. an attorney with Bryan, Cave, McPheeters & McRoberts in St. Louis, have been elected vice-chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors. Chaired by Robert F. Hyland, senior vice-president of the CBS Radio Division and general manager of KMOX-AM and KHTR-FM Radio in St. Louis, the 30-member board oversees the management and operation of Lindenwood College. Gossage, who also serves as Development Chairman of the board, has been a member since 1983, while Metcalfe has served since 1969.

Lindenwood has named V. Peter Pitts, former director of admissions for the Chicago office of Monmouth College, as Director of Admissions for the Day College. He will be responsible for directing admissions efforts in the recruitment of students for the Day College, primarily full-time, traditional-age ones.

Since 1985 he has been responsible for the marketing, strategic planning, goal setting and recruiting in the Chicago area for Monmouth, a four-year private college affiliated with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Prior to his position at Monmouth, he was director of admissions for the Chicago office of Wartburg College of Waverly, IA, and for Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne, IN. A 1974 graduate of Wartburg, he holds a graduate degree in sociology from the University of Iowa.

Maggie Kracke, former director of marketing and business for St. Mary's College in O'Fallon, MO, has been appointed Director of Off-Campus Centers. A former adult admissions counselor and corporate recruiter for Lindenwood, she directs the college's West Port Center in Maryland Heights and the Downtown Center in St. Louis.

Kracke served in the Lindenwood Placement Office for a few months before being named director of the college's Lake St. Louis Faculty in 1981, a position she held for two years. In 1983, she joined the admissions staff in St. Charles and later was named corporate representative and adult admissions coordinator. Kracke holds both undergraduate and graduate degrees in business administration from Lindenwood, awarded, respectively, in 1981 with an emphasis in marketing, and in 1985 with an emphasis in human resource development.

Marsha Hollander Parker of St. Charles, former head of personnel and volunteer services for the St. Charles City-County Library, has been named Director of Admissions for Evening & Corporate Programs. She will be responsible for recruiting students for the Evening College, LCIE, Saturday Campus and graduate and corporate programs.

A 1971 graduate of Lindenwood, she holds a graduate degree in theatre, awarded in May. Prior to her appointment with the library in 1978, she served as a deputy juvenile office with the Missouri 11th Judicial Circuit Court, as Director of Volunteers for the St. Louis State School & Hospital, and as a teacher of psychology and religion at Duchesne High School from 1971-72.

Daniel N. Keck, vice-president of academic affairs and dean of faculty, has received an honorary membership in Alpha Lambda Delta, the national scholastic honor society that recognizes superior academic performance among college and university students. Keck serves as liaison administrator of the Lindenwood chapter, while Edith Graber, associate professor and chairperson of sociology, is faculty advisor. Established in 1924 at the University of Illinois, Alpha Lambda Delta has a membership of more than 325,000 at 206 chapters at colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Daniel W. Alkofer, a former university professor, is the new chairman of the Performing Arts Dept. For the past year, he served as production and design consultant for the Showroom of the Concourse Dinner Theatre in Madison, WI. From 1981-85, he was associate professor of acting, directing and theatre at Oklahoma State University (OSU) and, from 1969-81, was an assistant and associate professor at Idaho State University where he also served as business manager of theatre and auditorium manager. At OSU, he was chairman of the Dept. of Theatre at the Stillwater campus from 1981-84

Alkofer has more than 20 years of stage direction experience in addition to post-graduate expertise in lighting design, acting and narration. A 1962 graduate of Oberlin College in Ohio, he has a graduate degree in dramatic art, awarded by the University of Iowa, and a doctorate degree in theatre, awarded by Indiana University.

Paintings by W. Dean Eckert, professor and chairman of art, recently were shown in regional juried exhibits in Kansas City and Evansville, IN. An acrylic painting, "Velazquez at Segovia," was included in an exhibit at the Nelson Gallery in Kansas City that was open to artists in Missouri as well as adjacent states of lowa, Kansas and Nebraska. Out of more than 1,550 entries, Eckert's and 60 other were selected.

Another painting, "Segovia: Casa de los Picos," was displayed this summer in the Realism Today Exhibit at the Evansville Museum of Arts and Science. Indiana artists and those living within 200 miles of Evansville were eligible to submit entries for the juried showing. Eckert's acrylic painting was purchased during the exhibit for the corporate collection of Bristol-Myers of Hillsdale, NJ.

Rao Ayyaggari, assistant professor of biochemistry; Niki Juncker, assistant professor of theatre; Anthony Perrone, assistant professor of modern languages; and Wanita A. Zumbrunnen, assistant professor of English, each have been promoted to associate professors at Lindenwood. Ayyaggarri and Perrone have been members of the faculty since 1969, while Juncker has been with the college since 1981 and Zumbrunnen since 1980.

Larry Sackman, director of Financial Aid & Scholarships, has been elected president of the St. Charles Optimist Club, a 75-member community organization. Sachman, who recently completed his M.B.A. degree at Lindenwood, has been a member of the administrative staff since 1983.

Malone Aderholt, former executive secretary in marketing engineering for Monsanto, has been appointed assistant director of off-campus centers. Aderholt, who took an early retirement from Monsanto after 23 years of service, will work at Lindenwood's off-campus center in west St. Louis County. A graduate of Oklahoma State University, she is pursuing a graduate degree in counseling at Lindenwood.

Five members of the Art Dept. faculty were represented in "Faculty '87," an invitational exhibit recently held at the St. Louis Artists Guild. Faculty members are Dean Eckert, chairman and professor of art; Mark A. Fisher and Nancy Follis, adjunct instructors; Hans Levi, associate professor of art; and John H. Wehmer, professor of art. The five were among more than 80 artists/instructors selected for single exhibits in varied media. The one-month showing was represented by 16 colleges and universities in the two-state metropolitan St. Louis area.

Allen M. Schwab, former Dean of College Life, has been promoted to Dean of the Undergraduate College, an expanded position created recently by Lindenwood. Schwab will be responsible for the area of academic advising, including both the preceptor and the advising for majors programs; the coordination of retention efforts; new student orientation and other areas related to the academic status and progress of students.

A member of the college since 1983, Schwab also serves as associate professor of English. A 1964 graduate of the University of Illinois at Urbanna, he holds a graduate degree from the University of Washington and a Ph.D. in English from Tufts University.

University.

James G. Maurer, manager of community relations for Southwestern Bell Telephone and a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers, has been appointed chairman of the KCLC Board of Advisors, a group that provides directions for improving the overall efficiency and effectiveness of the college's 25,500-watt community radio station, KCLC-FM.

Barbara A. Carusa, a 1987 graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia, has joined the college as an admissions counselor responsible for recruiting traditional-age students in Illinois. During the past year, she served as a personnel assistant and intern at the University of Missouri-Columbia Hospital & Clinics where she was responsible for nurse recruitment and for screening applicants for service. Carusa also was a resident assistant at the Columbia campus from 1985-87. She is the sister of Lindenwood Controller Mary C. Martin.

Athletic Director Deborah Kehm, is Linden-wood's representative in the Show-Me Collegiate Conference, a group of National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) schools formed to promote positive ideals and objectives of athletics. The group will also provide members with athletic engagements, with a forum to formulate guidelines and solve common problems, and with promotion and enhancement of NAIA athletics within the academic environment.

Charter members in addition to Lindenwood include Columbia, Fontbonne, Hannibal-LaGrange, Harris-Stowe State and Missouri Baptist colleges. Additional members will be admitted with the unanimous approval of charter members.

Former Director of Development James D. Thompson has been named Executive Director of Development, a newly-created position with added responsibilities. A 1983 Lindenwood alumnus, he formerly served as Major Funds Coordinator until he was named to his previous position in 1984. With the appointment, Thompson serves as a member of the Executive Committee, a group composed of President James I. Spainhower and the three vice-presidents that meets weekly to administer college policy.

Keith W. Hazelwood, a former chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers, and Daniel N. Keck, vice-president of academic affairs and dean of faculty, are co-chairmen of the Task Force on Public Education in St. Charles County, a newly created body sponsored by the Industrial Development Authority of St. Charles County.

The task force will study public education in the county, focusing on the financing of public education, the perceptions of business and government about the quality of education, the relationships among school districts and college and universities, and strategic planning of the county's education system.

Randy L. Wallick, public relations director, has been selected for inclusion in the 1988 edition of American Publishing Who's Who in Society, a biographical directory of civic and professional men and women.

Alan Shiller, assistant professor of speech, taught an advanced communications seminar on public presentations recently to members of the Communications Workers of America at its annual conference at the University of Georgia in Athens, GA.

The collection of books is by, for and about black Americans, including first drafts, research notes, original art, correspondence and other working papers of McKissack, a well-known author and educator. Included in the collection are children's books for and about black Americans, including representative titles by William Armstrong, Gwendolyn Brooks, Ashley Bryan, Donald Crews, Pat Cummings, Paula Fox, Nikki Giovanni, Bette Greene, Eloise Greenfield, Virginia Hamilton, James Haskins, Langston Hughes, Ezra Jack Keats, Sharon Bell Mathis, Ann Herbert Scott, John Steptoe, Mildred Taylor, Brenda Wilkenson and other authors and poets.

A native of Nashville, TN, McKissack graduated from Tennessee State University at the age of 19 and taught ninth-grade English in Lebabon, TN, before joining Kirkwood schools in 1970, becoming the district's first black faculty member. She served as Children's Book Editor at Concordia Publishing House in St. Louis from 1977-82 before beginning a career in writing in 1983 along with her husband, Fred McKissack.

According to Nancy Polette, a nationally-known

According to Nancy Polette, a nationally-known author or children's books and assistant professor of education at Lindenwood, "As McKissack sees it, white history in America is a part of black history in America and, likewise, black history in America should be a part of white history. She wants to make minority literature, whether fiction or nonfiction, available to all age readers," added Polette, founder of Book Lures, Inc., of O'Fallon. The collection at Lindenwood College is made possible by a continuing grant from Book Lures.

"McKissack strives to give accounts of positive role models for blacks and whites to read about and imitate. She points out that the American blacks are more closely similar to American whites than they are to black Africans. And, American whites have more in common with American blacks than with white Europeans.

with American blacks than with white Europeans.

"Therefore," Polette said, "we need to learn as much about each other's history and similarities as we can. McKissack hopes to create a bond among the cultures and, through her writing and collections, she is succeeding by providing all levels of readers with black literature as a way to help bridge the racial and minority gaps in our country."

Members of the community and college honored McKissack during a reception September 27 to mark the opening of the collection.

The McKissack Collection of Black Children's Literature is one of several community events planned this term as Lindenwood College celebrates its 160th anniversary this year. It can be viewed during normal hours of Butler Library.

College-Soviet exchange

Lindenwood is among 10 colleges and universities in the country embarking on a unique student-exchange program that will bring a group of Soviet students to the Initiated entirely by members of the the Lindenwood Student Government (LSG), the program will involve a group of Lindenwood students and faculty spending a week at a university in the U.S.S.R. and a group of Soviet students spending a week at Lindenwood.

"The exchange program is the first ever to pair American and Soviet universities for reciprocal exchange of undergraduate students from all academic disciplines," said Ronald W. Watermon, a junior from Fenton who is president of LSG and project coordinator for the Lindenwood-Soviet exchange program. "It is an invaluable introduction to the U.S.S.R. and an opportunity to meet counterparts face to face," he added.

Faculty advisor for the program is C. Edward Balog, Ph.D., chairman and professor of history at Lindenwood and a member of the St. Charles City Council. Students who will participate in the Soviet exchange program have not been selected.

Co-sponsored by the Citizen Exchange Council (CEC) and the Soviet Student Council, the program involves the pairing of 10 American and 10 Soviet universities in 1988, including Lindenwood.

Lindenwood students will augment their traditional classroom education and form their own impressions of the Soviet Union based upon first-hand experience of Soviet culture and society. Through meetings with Soviet counterparts, students will explore common interests and concerns, and also will identify cultural and ideological barriers which often hinder the process of successful dialogue and negotiation, the CEC said.

Watermon said there is a three-year commitment to the exchange program, and an annual budget cost of $20-$30,000. "The LSG currently is in the process of fund raising, and it hopes to gain both corporate and philanthropic support from throughout the metropolitan area," he said.

Services held for three from college

Carol T. Gray

Services were held November 7 at West Baptist Church in St. Louis for Carol T. Gray, a 28-year-old mother of two and a Lindenwood College graduate student who was murdered November 4 after attending classes at the college's Westport Campus.

A 41-year-old janitor of an office building near Westport Plaza in St. Louis County has been arrested in connection with the killing. The suspect, Creston H. Austin of Bel Ridge, MO, has been charged with second-degree murder and armed criminal action. Ms. Gray was wounded fatally with her own handgun after she and Austin allegedly struggled inside her car.

Ms. Gray, who was single, lived alone in an apartment in north St. Louis County with her two children, Megan, 6, and Brad, 3. Her apartment was near the residence of her mother, Synobia Gray, and her younger brother, Darrell, 22.

She worked at the Metro Community Health Center as a health educator for the past four years. Ms. Gray specialized in the disease of sickle-cell anemia, and she worked closely with students in high schools in St. Louis to spread information about the illness.

A 1982 graduate of Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville with an undergraduate degree in health education, Ms. Gray, was pursuing graduate studies for an M.B.A. degree at Lindenwood.

In addition to her two children, mother and brother, she is survived by a sister, Renee Campbell of Tupelo, MS.

Lindenwood College's Circle K Club is collecting donations for the two children in their mother's memory. Donations will be presented to the family during the holiday. Donations also will continue after the holidays, and they can be made by forwarding contributions to the Circle K Club, in care of the Development Office, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301.

Lula Clayton Beale

Dr. Thomas W. Doherty

The Lindenwood College community expresses condolences to friends of Lula Clayton Beale, registrar emeritus, and to the family of Thomas W. Doherty, professor emeritus of modern language.

Services were held at the Kraeer Funeral Home in Pompano Beach, FL, for Miss Beale, who died at her Pompano Beach resident Nov. 13 at the age of 76.

A memorial service for Dr. Doherty was held Nov. 16 at St. Charles Presbyterian Church. Dr. Doherty died of apparent pneumonia Nov. 12 at St. Joseph Health Center in St. Charles at the age of 75.

Miss Beale joined Lindenwood College in 1952 as head resident of Butler Hall and as assistant to the Director of Guidance and Counseling, after a 23-year teaching career in public schools. Two years later, she was appointed registrar, a position she held for 20 years until her retirement in 1974. At the time of her retirement, the Lindenwood faculty voted unanimously to bestow upon her the title of registrar emeritus.

Following her retirement, Miss Beale resided in St. Charles until 1982 when she moved to a retirement community in Pompano Beach.

Miss Beale held an A.B. degree from Murray State College in Kentucky and an M.A. from the George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville. She was a member of the American Association of University Women, Altrusa, the Association of Fine Arts and the St. Charles Historical Society. She also was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, an international educational society in Murray, KY.

Miss Beale has no immediate survivors. Memorials in her name may be made to the Harry D. Hendren Memorial Fund for Art, in care of Lindenwood College.

Dr. Doherty retired from the Modern Language Dept. as an instructor of French at Lindenwood in 1977 after serving on the faculty for 27 years. At the time of his retirement, the faculty bestowed upon him the title of professor emeritus of modern language.

He received an undergraduate degree from Westminster College in Fulton, MO and his graduate and D.M.L. degrees from Middlebury College in Vermont. He also held a Certificat de Pronociation Francaise from the Institut de Phonetique in Paris, France, and a Diplome de Literature Francaise Contemporaine from Sorbonne in Paris.

Dr. Doherty was a member of the American Association of Teachers of French, and he was an Army veteran of World War II.

Recently, he had been studying piano and organ with Groff Bittner, assistant professor of music at Lindenwood. Last April, he presented a community recital at Lindenwood, featuring selections from Bach, Mozart, Chopin and Debussy. Dr. Doherty also served as a church organist at St. Charles Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by his widow, Christiane of St. Charles; a daughter, Anne Khosropour of Maid Madison, WI; a son, Daniel Doherty of Seattle, WA; a sister, Helen Watson of Denver, CO; and five grandchildren.

Memorials in Dr. Doherty's name may be made to either Lindenwood College, St. Charles Presbyterian Church or the St. Joseph Health Center Hospice in St. Charles.

CAMPUS NEWS

Promotions expanded by college

Lindenwood College is utilizing a number of media for its current advertising program to heighten awareness about the 160-year-old institution and to strengthen its non-tradional enrollment.

The adveristing program is part of a multi-faceted marketing objective to not only increase enrollment and awareness, but to increase fund raising and to position Lindenwood as a leader in independent education.

For this year's advertising program, which began in August, the college is placing print insertions in The Riverfront Times, a weekly tabloid with a circulation of more than 100,000; St. Louis, a monthly magazine with a circulation of 28,000; and, to promote its M.B.A. and adult programs, in Commerce magazine, the official monthly magazine of the St. Louis Regional Commerce & Growth Association, and in the weekly St. Louis Business Journal. Lindenwood insertions also appeared in the premiere issue of St. Louis Woman, a tabloid insert in the Business Journal.

Other specialized publications being used are public televion station KETC's Nine Magazine, the "College Guide" supplement of The Riverfront Times and the Business Journal's annual "Book of Lists," an information directory on key St. Louis industries and companies and the people behind them.

Recently, Lindenwood has contracted with Media Networks, Inc., to place advertisements in three national magazines comprising the St. Louis News Network. Lindenwood ads are appearing in regional editions of Newsweek, Time, and U.S. News & World Report, the three magazines that comprise the News Network with a combined circulation of nearly 100,000 in St. Louis and St. Louis and St. Charles counties.

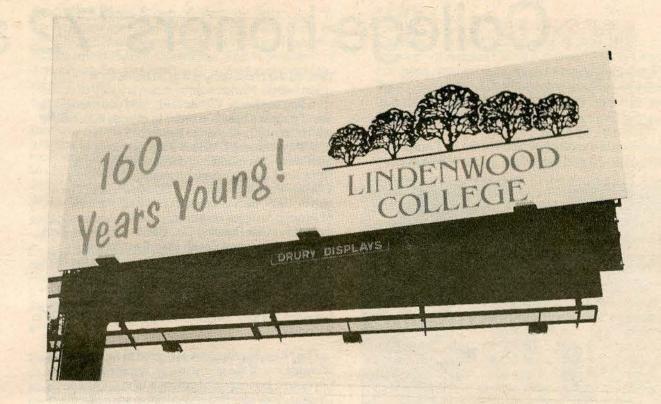

For the first time, Lindenwood has utilized outdoor advertising as part of its marketing program. The college contracted with Drury Displays of St. Louis to rent a 14x48-foot billboard at the St. Charles Rock Road exit of Interstate 170 for a two-month period this Produced in three colors, the billboard features Lindenwood's logo and its 160th anniversary theme, "160 Years Young." Rented at a well-traveled route between Clayton and St. Louis Lambert Airport, the billboard is exposed to more than 100,000 vehicles each day.

To supplement the Drury billboard, 18 smaller panels were contracted with Gateway Outdoor Advertising of St. Louis at locations near downtown St. Louis and areas in north and west St. Louis County. The panels, 6x12-foot in size, are designed to be placed low and close to the ground for greater visibility on secondary thoroughfares. A popular national medium, the smaller billboards are lower in cost for both production and rental.

Lindenwood's 18 billboard have an overall Daily Effective Circulation, known as DEC's in the trade, of 14.2 or 14,200 impressions made daily. The outdoor industry standard is 8.0 DECs, or 8,000, so Lindenwood's locations were considered nearly 40 percent greater than the national average. The DECs translate into an estimated 244,600 persons exposed to the 18 billboards each day.

Check your mailing label on page 1. If your address is incorrect, or if you're receiving more than one copy, contact the Public Relations Office, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301, for a correction.

To supplement its print campaign, Lindenwood utilized KMOX-AM Radio, one of the country's leading CBS affiliates, to broadcast 60-second spots during September. The commercials, which cite the benefits of a Lindenwood education, were aired by KMOX-AM throughout the day and evening hours, including during live sports coverage of the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals and for the St. Louis Football Cardinals season opening game against the Dallas Cowboys.

Currently, the college is airing 60-second spots on KYKY-FM Radio, one of the metropolitan area's leading adult-contemporary stations. The spots, which run until the end of the year, represent the longest flight Lindenwood has taken in the broadcast media. Geared toward adults, the spots cite Lindenwood's variety of programs, its convenient and accessible locations, its convenient payment plans to make education affordable and its outstanding alumni as proof of the value and quality of a Lindenwood education.

Coupled with the increased advertising program, our new and expanded college publications and promotional brochures, participation in community and special events like KETC-TV's annual fund-raising auction and recent Grand Opening Celebration of Mid Rivers Mall in St. Peters, and increased media and public relations efforts.

Publication is goal of EWI

In cooperation with more than 60 publishers of educational materials, Lindenwood College's Education Department has established the Education Writers Institute (EWI) to train educators to write for publication and profit.

"The purpose of the EWI is to train educators to transform their knowledge and ideas into publishable manuscripts or products, and to bring the completed works to the attention of appropriate publishers," said Nancy Polette, assistant professor of education and director of the newly-formed institute.

In addition to books and articles, other education formats can include instruction texts and workbooks, filmstrips, cassette tape scripts, transparency masters and computer programs.

The education market is one of the largest publishing industries in the country, and publishers constantly are seeking new and exciting products, said Polette, an author herself with numerous articles and more than 20 books to her credit.

Instruction takes place during two 16-week semesters, and course work can be done through the mail. In cooperation with instructors, students will complete 15 lessons within this time period. An optional three-day writers workshop at the St. Charles campus also is part of the EWI.

"Included in this instruction will be what makes an outstanding product, the basics of writing for a commercial market, developing a writing style, how to analyze specific markets, how to query publishers and increase chances of being published, and how to avoid common mistakes in the free-lance market," Polette said.

At no additional cost to participants, Lindenwood College awards three semester hours of college credit for course completion.

Five receive Monticello awards

Five coeds at Lindenwood College are the recipients of $2,000 scholarship awards from the Monticello College Foundation in Godfrey, IL.

Students are Karen S. Dinkins of St. Charles, Cynthia M. Foster of Hawk Point, MO, Cara M. Sutton of Fenton, MO, Melanie C. Smith of Griffith, IN, and Kathryn M. Wetzel of St. Louis.

One of the oldest independent institutions in the country, Monticello was founded in 1835, and it provided higher education for women until its dissolution in 1971. The Monticello Scholars Program was established by the Monticello Foundation to continue the memory of the former Godfrey-based college and to recognize outstanding female scholars.

Last year, five other Lindenwood coeds each received $2,000 scholarship awards from the Monticello College Foundation, bringing its total contributions to $20,000.

This year's recipients were nominated for the awards based upon their individual records of scholastic ability, leadership potential and involvement in extracurricular activities in the school, church or community.

Dinkins is a junior majoring in elementary education. Foster, the daughter of Jimmy Don Foster of Hawk Point, is a freshman majoring in English. A sophomore majoring in elementary education, Sutton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sutton of Fenton. With an undeclared major, Smith is a freshman and the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Marvin E. Smith of Griffith. A freshman majoring in business administration, Wetzel is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Edward A. Wetzel of St. Louis.

Currently celebrating its 160th anniversary as an independent institution, Lindenwood, like Monticello College, began as a liberal arts school for young women, a position it held until 1969 when it became coeducational.

ALUMNI NEWS College honors '72 alumna

"Advertising works to strengthen, alter or create beliefs to make people behave the way advertisers want them to," said Clayton E. Wilhite, chief executive/managing director of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Inc. (DMB&B), St. Louis.

Speaking at a recent luncheon of the St. Louis Metropolitan Alumni Noonday Group, Wilhite explained the philosophy is that all behavior is based upon beliefs. Market segmentation is a way of understanding segments, Wilhite said, "and you must understand people's beliefs in order to change their beliefs which, in turn, will change behavior."

FIRST RECIPIENT — Kathy Leonard of KSDK-TV receives the college's first Noonday Award from President James I. Spainhower for professional accomplishment in the broadcast profession.

Wilhite became DMB&B's top executive in 1985 after serving as marketing director for Young & Rubicam-London where he managed the firm's Colgate-Palmolive business. During a career that began in 1969, he has worked on behalf of a wide variety of America's major consumer products and services, including Miller Brewing Co., BMW, Club Med, Sony, Kimberly-Clark and Zenith as well as Colgate.

His presentation followed the highlight of the Noonday Group's luncheon, its first presentation of the Noonday Award for professional accomplishment in the metropolitan area. The first recipient was Kathy Leonard, general assignment reporter for KSDK-TV in St. Louis.

The Noonday Award is expected to be an annual presentation of the group, which is composed of St. Louis area business professionals who are alumni of Lindenwood. Meeting several times annually, the Noonday Group promotes networking among its members and the St. Charles-based college.

As an active alumna of the college, Leonard was cited for her outstanding accomplishments in the broadcast profession in the metro area.

A 1972 graduate of Lindenwood, she has been with KSDK-TV's "Eyewitness News" team since 1981. After graduating from Lindenwood with a degree in broadcast communications, she joined CBS' KMOX-AM Radio as a reporter. She moved to KSD-FM Radio in 1973 and, in 1976, won the Missouri Broadcasters Association's First-Place Award for her special report on a "Stop Smoking Clinic."

Upon receiving the award, Leonard payed tribute to Lindenwood College and its community radio station, KCLC-FM, which she said provided her with opportunities in the broadcast profession.

As a Lindenwood student, Leonard worked as an on-air anchorperson and as news director of KCLC—FM. She was the first woman in Missouri to receive a First-Class License from the Federal Communications Commission, which she still has.

Nearly 40 Lindenwood alumni, friends and guests attended the fall luncheon, held at the Media Club in downtown St. Louis.

Metropolitan area alumni interested in finding out more about the Noonday Group are invited to contact the Lindenwood College Alumni office at (314) 949-2000, extension #319.

CLUB NEWS

ST. LOUIS CLUB - Members held a meeting this fall with a lunch at the Kirkwood home of Mary Ambler ('30), Lindenwood archivist. Keynote speaker was Jean Fields, associate professor of English and communications, who discussed "Maj. George Sibley and the Santa Fe Trail."

Club members also held a joint meeting in December with the St. Charles Club.

In conjunction with the Lindenwood Fashion Marketing Dept., the club's fifth Annual Fashion Show/ Luncheon is scheduled February 20 at La Chateau in Frontenac.

On April 23, members will meet on campus for a breakfast with President James I. Spainhower.

For membership or club information, contact Nancy Prosser Dietz ('76) at (314) 878-3721 or call the Lindenwood Alumni Office at (314) 949-2000.

NOONDAY ALUMNI GROUP: Members heard a discussion on advertising and the American consumer by Clayton E. Wilhite of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles of St. Louis (see adjacent story) when they met this fall at the Media Club. At the luncheon meeting, alumna Kathy Leonard of KSDK-TV was honored.

Earlier in the year, the group met at the Omni Hotel for a luncheon and discussion, "Linking the Metropolitan Area with Light Rail," presented by Sandra Kling, executive director of the Citizens for Modern Transit.

For membership or club information, contact Mike Wood at (314) 921-5525 or call the Lindenwood Alumni Office at (314) 949-2000.

KANSAS CITY CLUB - Members held a spring luncheon at the Victory Country Club, hosted by Judith Brougham ('60) of Kansas City, followed by a luncheon and board meeting at the residence of Francis Weeks ('40) of Leawood, KS.

Other recent activities included a reception for prospective Lindenwood students in the Kansas City metro area as well as for Presbyterian students at the Second Presbyterian Church in Kansas City, and a golf and swim picnic at Victory Country Club, hosted once again by Judith Brougham.

The club has two scholarship recipients enrolled at Lindenwood-Candy Myers and Lori Kaster.

ST. CHARLES CLUB - Club members held a potluck in September to honor "Mrs. Sibley's Attic Sale" scholarship recipients and their parents, and, in December, they held a joint dinner meeting with the St. Louis Alumni Club.

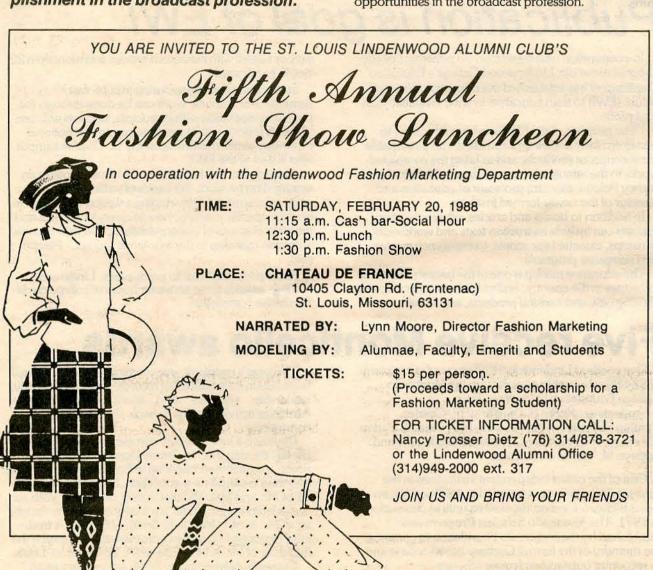

The group's fifth annual "Mrs. Sibley's Attic Sale" is scheduled June 4 on the Lindenwood College campus.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA CLUB - Club members met earlier this year at the residence of Corrine Paulson Needham ('40) of Escondido, CA. Ten college alumni were present at the gathering, including many from the San Diego area and Marilyn Bennett Noonan ('69), former president of the Lindenwood Alumni Association.

Members also held a buffet at the residence of Nancy Patterson Van Loenen ('39) of Mission Viejo, CA, and sponsored a meeting at the home of Leatha Cross Dean ('20) of Pacific Palisades, CA.

As a gift to the college, club members donated $300 as a end-of-the-year contributions.

For membership or club information, write or call Arminta Harness ('49), 1633 Nelson Ave., Manhattan Beach, CA 90266, (213) 379-9353, or the Lindenwood Alumni Office at (314) 949-2000.

Easton descendent traces roots to Lindenwood

by RANDY L. WALLICK, Editor

"I almost can feel her spirit and part of the history that lies beneath this ground," said Robert Easton as he stood at the grave of his great-great-grandaunt, Mary Easton Sibley, at Founder's Cemetery on the main campus.

A veteran Hollywood character actor, Easton made his first visit to St. Charles and the Lindenwood cemetery during his attendance this summer at the St. Louis convention of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

His two-day visit continues years of research into the geneology of the Easton family, said the 57-year-old actor who admitted he was proud of being an 11th generation American, directly descended from three of the original founders of Hartford, CT, in 1636. Easton's visit to St. Charles centered upon the Lindenwood College Archives, historic Sibley Hall and Founder's Cemetery.

The small cemetery on the campus contains 20 graves, 17 of which date before 1880. Two contain those of Maj. Geoege and Mary Easton Sibley, founders of the college in 1827. Two others contain Mary Easton's parents, Rufus and Alby Abial Easton, Robert Easton's great-great grandparents.

A giant of a man, 6'7", with a rusty-white beard like Father Christmas and long, reddish hair, Robert Easton has accumulated more than 40 years in show business as a Hollywood character actor and a renowned dialect expert whose slogan reads, "The Dialect Doctor - Accents Cured, Dialects Strengthened."

Born in Milwaukee and raised in Texas, Easton is a veteran of show business who in recent years has made his mouth his livelihood in Hollywood and some 50 countries around the world. In recent years, he has taught British actors to speak as if they were born in Louisiana, and he has taught Americans to speak as if they were descended from noted nobility. He has coached the likes of Gregory Peck, Sir Laurence Olivier, Charlton Heston, Jane Fonda, Ann-Margaret, Al Pacino, Robert Duvall and literally hundreds more who have been taught his expertise.

It is hard to belive that the man with a thousand tongues, as he is referred to sometimes, once had a speech impediment. As a child, Easton said he talked with such a severe stammer that people used to ask his mother what language he was speaking. Because of this, he taught himself to slow down, collect his thoughts and enunciate his words.

"I became so successful at this self-instruction that I won a place on the "Quiz Kids" at age 14," he said. The "Quiz Kids", recently written about in People magazine, was a 1940's radio show that featured ultra-intelligent teen-agers who were quizzed by a panel of professors. During World War II, the "Quiz Kids" toured the country, selling millions of dollars worth of War bonds. As a result, Easton and the others were invited to the White House as the guests of President Harry S. Truman and later were introduced from the floor of the U.S. Senate, an honor usually reserved for military heros and foreign dignataries.

While traveling the country as a member of the "Quiz Kids" show, he became interested in American dialects and began to imitate them. Easton also developed a strong penchant for acting, which led him to write, direct and perform on radio while in high school.

After graduating from a San Antonio high school, he entered the University of Texas to study acting.

Because of exceptional performance on entrance exams, Easton was allowed, by special permission of the dean, to take freshman, sophomore, junior and senior courses concurrently.

He abandoned college a year later at the age of 18 to try his luck in Hollywood and to attend the NBC-UCLA Radio Institute. Within a short time his career became firmly established, paving the way to more than 600 professional appearances on radio, 800 on television and 60 major motion pictures.

Radio buffs may recall more than 100 shows he did as the next-door neighbor of "Fibber McGee and Molly," as well as recurring roles on "Our Miss Brooks" with Eve Arden and on the "Halls of Ivy" with Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Colman.

In the early days of television, Easton is perhaps best remembered for starring roles on "Cavalcade of American," "Navy Log," and as Chester's inept brother on "Gunsmoke". His slow Texas drawl and towering size helped him capture other frontiersmen roles on "Wagon Train," "Death Valley Days," "Annie Oakley," "Johnny Ringo" and "Rawhide." In radio, he rode the range with "Roy Rogers,", "The Cisco Kid" and "Gene Autry."

Easton also has created a list of zany characters on such top comedy shows as "Jack Benny," "Red Skelton," "Milton Berle," "Bob Hope," "Father Knows Best," "The Life of Riley," "December Bride," "George Gobel" and "Ray Bolger," to name a few. Early television viewers also may recall his roles as Ronnie Burns' dim-witted college buddy on the "Burns and Allen Show" and Nancy Kulp's bashful birdwatcher boyfriend on the "Bob Cummings Show."

Although Easton admitted that comedy is his strong point, he modestly acknowledged dramatic appearances in such radio shows as "Suspense," "Family Theatre," and "Inheritance," and in such "Golden Age" television dramas as "Playhouse 90," "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Climax," "Screen Director's Playhouse," "Schiltz Playhouse of Stars" and "Ford Theatre."

His motion picture credits range from John Houston's "The Red Badge of Courage" and Robert Wise's "Somebody Up There Likes Me" to Tony Richardson's "The Loved One" and John Logan's "Paint Your Wagon."

"I've played my share of parts," Easton said, "but there was a time when they all appeared to be only a slight variation of each other. I was typecast as the perennial bumpkin, and I've played a succession of half-witted hayseeds, lovesick louts, shiftless share-croppers, dopey deputies or courtly country cousins. I wanted to break the mold, so I went to England in 1961, and I became fascinated with the variety of English accents. I decided to start studying phonetics at Universy College in London," he said.

After 12 busy years in Hollywood, Easton and his wife, June, returned to her native England for what he calls, "a short holiday." Both liked England so much that their "short holiday" stretched into three years, during which Easton worked for British Broadcasting Co. both as an actor and a writer, did 42 British television shows and took part in motion pictures both in England and on the continent.

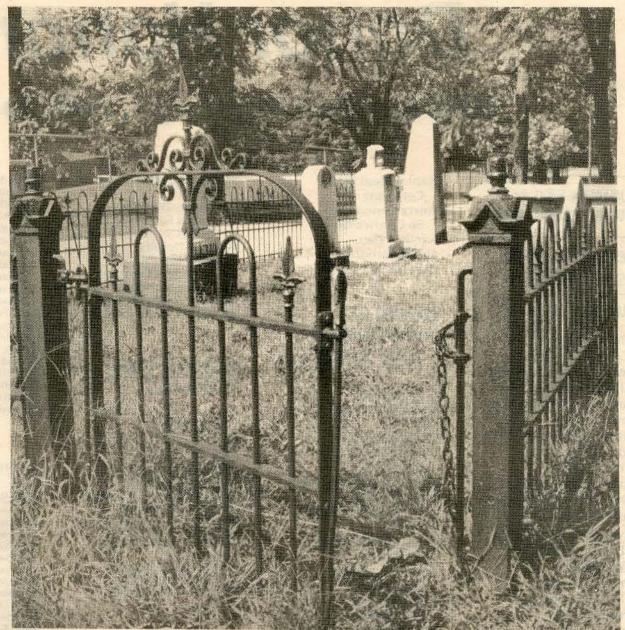

In the past 20 years or so he has established himself on the West Coast through word of mouth and an occassional talk-show appearance, including six times on the "Tonight Show" with Johnny Carson, two with Mike Douglas and one with Merv Griffin. Originally, his clients were sent by directors; today, a number of famous personalities call upon Easton on their own without waiting to be sent. His clients have included Al Pacino in "Scarface," Jane Fonda in "The Dollmaker," Charlton Heston in "The Mother Lode," Sir John Gielgud for "Invitation to the Wedding," Sir Laurence Olivier in "The Betsy," Ann-Margarent in "The Cheap Detective," Lee Remick in "Ike," and Gregory Peck in "The Boys from Brazil."

Many of his coaching assignments have resulted in Emmy awards or Oscar nominations for his clients. Altogether, he has taught more than 2,000 actors and actresses as well as attorneys, professionals, physicians and others who have had diction or voice production problems, or who have just wanted to improve their communication skills.

On a given day, Easton might be found easternizing a Californian sound, deemphasizing the cultured finishing-school tones of an actress about to star in a western, teaching an American-born Oriental the cadence of Hong Kong natives, or working on a single film project in which a dozen different dialects are involved.

Easton's time is spent either at his 24-room mansion in Pasadena, CA, or on movie sets in various locales throughout the world. Each of the rooms in the home he shares with June - "he married me for my accent" - is like a neighborhood library. Four rooms are devoted to libraries, while many others are lined with books, plays, poetry notes and articles - some 60,000 of them dealing with diction, dialects, linquistics, semantics, folk humor and speech, culture, anthropology and

Historic Founder's Cemetery

Lindenwood visitors often are surprised to find a small cemetery situated beneath the trees on a grassy knoll overlooking the stadium. And, with the exception of the graves of college founders Maj. George C. and Mary Easton Sibley, little is known about those buried in the other plots.

Set apart from the main campus, the cemetery was proposed by the Sibleys in 1853 when ownership of the Linden Wood Female College transferred to the auspices of the Presbyterian Church. Plans by the Sibleys called for a site, about one-fourth of an acre in size, to be used for the Easton and Sibley burial sites. This parcel now contains 20 graves, 17 of which date from before 1880.

In a section of this land is found the Sibley-Easton plot, the larger of two fenced areas, which contains the graves of Mary and George Sibley.

Buried near the Sibleys are Mary's parents, Rufus and Alby Abial Easton; a brother of Mary Sibley, Langdon C. Easton; a daughter and daughter-in-law of Rufus and Alby, Russella E. Anderson and Mary B. Easton, respectively; and three grandchildren of Rufus and Alby, Thomas L. Anderson, Louisa Gamble Easton and Rufus Easton.

Mary Sibley was the oldest of 11 children born to Rufus and Alby Easton, who came to St. Louis in 1805 when Rufus was appointed a territorial judge and the first postmaster of St. Louis by President Thomas Jefferson. In 1814, Easton was elected to a four-year term as a delegate to Congress from the Louisiana Territory. When the state government was organized, Easton probably moved his family to St. Charles following his appointment in 1821 as Attorney General, Missouri's second.

Born in Great Barrington, MA, in 1772, George Sibley came to St. Louis in 1805 following his appointment to the Indian Dept. by President Jefferson. Three years later, he was commissioned to help establish Fort Osage on the Missouri River. It was here, 300 miles from the nearest white settlement, that he brought his 15-year-old bride, Mary Easton.

Fort Osage was closed in 1822 along with other government trading posts, but Sibley remained as post-master until 1825. It was in that year that his wife returned to St. Louis when George and two other men received a presidential appointment to mark a road from western Missouri to New Mexico, a route that would take two years to complete and which would later become known as the Santa Fe Trail.

geography. An article a few years ago in the Saturday Evening Post once said, "Robert Easton's private library is more complete than USC, UCLA and the Los Angeles public libraries combined."

Easton also has done work for the Los Angeles Police Dept. as a volunteer consultant on cases where voice recordings are involved, ranging from murder to terrorism. A former University of Southern California instructor and frequent lecturer at college and university campuses throughout the country, he has served on the national boards of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists

The basis of Easton's success is his penchant for prodigious researching, as evidenced on his visit to Lindenwood. Armed with a shirt pocket full of pens and a notepad, he frequently was scribbling away notes during his Lindenwood visit, which included several hours of research in the College Archives. It was in the archives that Easton found much about his family, including correspondence from his mother and grandmother, an unknown Easton relative and numerous clippings and documents about Maj. George and Mary Easton Sibley.

Standing at Mary's grave, he broke into tears as he remarked how he would have liked to have known "such a remarkable woman" who was so far-thinking in her day and time.

Upon leaving the campus, Easton paused to reflect upon his visit. "This is a beautiful campus, something you don't find in California," he said. "But, what is more impressive is the friendliness of this campus and of those I have met today here and in St. Charles. You have a unique, warm and beautiful college, something my ancestors would have been proud of," he added.

It is apparent Robert Easton is related to Rufus and Mary Easton for he shares the vision they did more than 150 years ago.

An Appeal To Join the Butler Society

During the 1930s and '40s, Lindenwood was able to build what many referred to as the "Wellesley of the West", primarily through the generosity of Col. James G. Butler and his wife, Margaret Leggat Butler. The gifts from the Butler family totaled nearly $4 million a few decades ago — a sum that would be equivalent to more than $25 million in today's economy.

During the Butlers' lifetime, Ayres, Butler and Niccolls halls were built. Funds from the Butler estate led to the construction of Roemer and Irwin halls, Butler Library, the Gables and Eastlick Residence.

Imagine what Lindenwood College could do today with individuals like the Butlers — individuals with vision who would have the personal satisfaction of having a major influence upon the destiny of Lindenwood College.

Today, we don't have Col. James and Margaret Butler, but we do have the support of thousands of individuals who share Lindenwood's vision — alumni, corporations, foundations, business and industry, churches, the community, and friends and supporters!

We can do it today! All it takes is for a few of these individuals to step forward and cast their vote for the future of Lindenwood by joining the Butler Society.

The Butler Society is Lindenwood's premiere donor group. Alumni, friends and supporters of Lindenwood can join this prestigious and important group by one of the following:

 Making a cash gift of at least $25,000, which can be paid in installments over a two-year period.

• Make a planned gift that directly will benefit the college with at least $25,000.

Planned gifts can be a premium-paid life insurance policy in which Lindenwood is named as a beneficiary for at least $25,000; real estate, securities or personal property that has a current appraisal value of at least $25,000; the inclusion of Lindenwood College in a will that contains a minimum bequest of $25,000; or the purchase of an annuity, or the creation of a living trust, a charitable trust or other gift instrument that provides the college with a minimum of $25,000.

Those who become members of the Butler Society may designate the specific purpose for which their gift is to be used, such as for books for Butler Library, endowment funds, scholarships for needy students, or they may instruct college officials to use the funds in an area of greatest need, such as campus improvements, building renovation and repair or facilities development.
