

Historical $1 million challenge

Lindenwood College has the unique opportunity to raise $1 million during the current fiscal year which ends June 30th.

"Less than one month and $100,000 separates us from making history at this grand old college," said James D. Thompson, director of development for the St. Charles-based institution.

Because of the success of its 25 annual funding drives conducted this fiscal year, Lindenwood College seems to be in the best shape in the past 25 years to reach the $1 million mark in annual giving.

"We have witnessed what we can do together as a college family," said Maurita E. Stueck, a 1943 alumna and president of the national Lindenwood College Alumni Association.

Lindenwood College will need to have all pledges paid before its June 30th deadline, and it will need to:

- Match Raymond W. Harmon's $100,000 gift through board of directors and personal giving;

- Have all donors act as generously as possible to honor this unique opportunity at Lindenwood;

- Ask some of our donors to make an extra gift this year.

"If these things happen within the next few weeks, we should be within just a few thousand dollars of success," Thompson said.

"We are so heartened by our recent success in fund raising that I am sure with a little extra push we will reach our $1 million goal and can begin our 160th year with a celebration," said President James I. Spainhower.

Each and every friend of Lindenwood will need to do what they can to help, whether it is a $1 gift or a $10,000 one. Person by person, we have made tremendous progress, Thompson said, and this is how we will have to meet our goals.

A contribution form for tax-deductible contributions to help the college raise $1 million can be found on page 5 of this issue.

the linden word

Vol. 3, No. 4

Summer '87

Adult programs switch to fall quarter system

As a means of providing more flexibility and service to adult students, the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE) will change its calendar from the trimester to a quarter system, effective this fall.

The change consolidates the Evening College and LCIE, and provides four terms a year for all adult offerings, including the graduate program in business administration both on and off campus.

"This change will serve to put the Evening College on parallel courses and will allow adult students greater flexibility in planning their programs of study," said Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of the Evening/LCIE Division.

The format of the LCIE, which is an intense, concentrated term of study on related subjects with small class groups and highly individualized attention, will not change, she said.

The accelerated pace of the LCIE will change. "Under the old system of three 14-week terms or trimesters, a student could earn 10 credits per trimester or 30 credits annually," Taich said. "With four terms now offered annually, a student may earn nine credits per quarter, or 36 credits per year. An option with this new schedule is that the student can take the summer term or any other one off, and he or she can still maintain a calendar-year total of 27 credits."

The LCIE was established by Lindenwood in 1975 and, since then, it has acquired a national reputation for its successful approach to non-traditional education. It has been accredited continually by the North Central Association of Colleges & Schools, an organization which recently cited LCIE as a model for other adult programs throughout the country.

At the undergraduate level, LCIE courses are offered in business, communications, gerontology, health administration, human and organizational development and valuation science. At the graduate level, courses include business administration (an M.B.A. or an M.S. with an emphasis on finance, management or marketing), communications, gerontology, health management, professional psychology and valuation science.

Continued on page 16

FOR SCHOLARSHIPS — Kiwanis Club members Frank C. Young, left, immediate past president, President Paul D. Orf and James D. Thompson are pictured in a recent college recognition for the club at which details of a $100,000 endowed scholarship program were announced.

Kiwanis Club creates $100,000 trust fund

The St. Charles (Noon Day) Kiwanis Club has created a $100,000 permanent scholarship endowment trust for students from Lindenwood College and area high schools.

The Kiwanis Club is celebrating its 52nd year of service to the community, and it made this historic commitment to higher education as part of its celebration. The $100,000 gift to establish the trust recently was announced at Lindenwood College in a celebration to honor the Kiwanis Club.

The gift is considered to be one of the largest scholarship trusts created by a single service club in the midwest. "It is the hope of the Kiwanis Club Board of Directors to double this trust in ensuing years," said Paul D. Orf, club president. "We are very proud of our scholarship program and the hundreds of young people it will help at Lindenwood and at colleges outside the community," he added.

The trust, which will provide a minimum of nine scholarships annually, will be administered by a special committee of educators, concerned citizens and friends of youth, all of whom are members of the St. Charles Kiwanis Club, said Rudy Beck, committee chairman. The committee is appointed by the club's board of directors.

Continued on page 16

COMMENCEMENT HONORS — Mary Talbot, second from right, professor emerita of biological science, listens along with President James I. Spainhower and Vice-President of Academic Affairs Daniel Keck as Daryl Anderson, Biology Dept. chairperson, congratulates Talbot on receiving an honorary doctorate degree at commencement. Story and commencement photos are on pages 8-9.

Non Profit Org.
U.S. Postage
PAID
Permit No. 84
St. Charles, Mo.

Lindenwood College
St. Charles, MO 63301
Address Correction Requested

College's future looks 'promising'

On January 1st of this year, I began my fifth year as president of Lindenwood College. Perhaps now is a good time to share with Lindenwood's family of friends, as represented by the readers of this column, a brief and candid evaluation of Lindenwood activities these past four years.

Once known as the "Wellesley of the West," the second oldest college west of the Mississippi has experienced some turbulent times in the past 20 years that have affected the image of the college. The cumulative effort has resulted in a mixed image of this venerable old college to the general public.

A good image is of bedrock importance to an institution like Lindenwood. Without a positive public image — strong volunteer leadership, able and numerous students, competent faculty and generous gift support are almost impossible to attract and retain.

The college has addressed this problem of image by accepting the challenge to build a stable institution that naturally will reflect a positive image. Across the long haul, a college can reflect only what it actually is.

The progress Lindenwood has made in restoring a positive image would not have been possible without a growing and enthusiastic cadre of volunteer leadership. Under the conscientious oversight of Chairman Robert Hyland, the board of directors has increased in number and in sharing the time and talent of individual members. From a time in the late 1970s when eight to 12 members were involved in active leadership, the board now totals about 30 with more than two-thirds of this number involved in active leadership roles.

In addition, the Lindenwood Board of Overseers, formerly unorganized and existing only in theory, is active with more than 30 members who provide programmatic oversight for Lindenwood.

Other college endeavors involving extensive volunteer leadership include a number of fund-raising programs under the guidance of Thomas Gossage of the board of directors, including the highly-successful Corporate Partnership Campaign handled by Clayton Wilhite, also of the board of directors; the Loaned Executive Program now in progress; and the formation of the Lindenwood National Advisory Council.

Among those providing hours of volunteer leadership are the college alumni, headed by board member and alumni President Maurita Stueck. The growth of alumni giving and interest has been phenomenal, and both continue to be on the rise.

The willingness of Lindenwood's volunteer leadership to be involved actively in the work of the college is as refreshing and exciting as it is necessary. Without an active volunteer constituency, a private college cannot survive. The vested interest of Lindenwood's volunteer constituency rests on its will to see this college survive and prosper. Without this strong will to survive as a quality college, Lindenwood's future would be bleak.

The future for Lindenwood, however, looks promising. As I look to the years that lie ahead for this college, I have four observations to share.

First, there is cause for optimism that this college can continue to be a viable and worthwhile institution of higher education. We have proven that we can survive tough times. Although the path ahead will not be easy, it can be traveled if we want to continue the journey. There remains a critical need on the higher education landscape of America for private, independent colleges like Lindenwood which major in the liberal arts, provide individualized attention for the total educational needs of each student, and that consistently emphasize the importance of values in the educational process. With our outstanding legacy, our prime location and our unusually strong leadership, we can, if we have the will, continue to survive and, in time, prosper.

Second, there is cause for concern for Lindenwood is years away and millions of dollars behind becoming the kind of first line, quality liberal arts college it once was. The donors of those millions will have to be found and persuaded that Lindenwood is worthy of their generosity. It will take years to accomplish all that needs to be achieved, and these years must be lived out by volunteer and employed leadership that possess both patience and tenacity. Whether such generous donors and persistent leaders will be present in sufficient numbers is reason enough for those who care about Lindenwood to be concerned.

Third, there is cause for caution. A private institution that remains heavily dependent on enrollments and gifts for financial solvency must be cautious. Such a college is vulnerable to competitive forces that can diminish its supply of students and can siphon off its sources of gifts. The greater St. Louis area has more institutions of higher learning than it needs. All of these institutions, private and public, are going to the same corporate and charitable sources that are being solicited by Lindenwood. In addition, numerous colleges and universities from outside the area have opened teaching centers that compete for students. Here in St. Charles County, the new St. Charles Community College and the nearby University of Missouri-St. Louis compete for students by offering tuition rates far below Lindenwood's. Despite the recovery Lindenwood obviously has made, now is not the time to throw caution to the winds.

Fourth, and finally, now also is not the time to despair. This fall beneath the lindens on this magnificent campus, Lindenwood will begin its 160th academic year. This grand old college has endured much and conquered more. I have no doubt that for as long as the mind can envision, from this beautiful and inspirational spot, opportunities to gain a first-rate educational experience will continue to be offered.

I thank you, a friend of Lindenwood, for permitting me to share with you the excitement of making these educational adventures available for our generation.

Respectfully,
James I. Spainhower, President

IN APPRECIATION — Clayton E. Wilhite, center left, of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors is presented a plaque by board Chairman Robert F. Hyland, center right, as Thomas L. Gossage, left, and Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower look on. Wilhite, St. Louis chairman of D'Arcy, Masius, Benton & Bowles, was cited for his direction of the Lindenwood Business Partnership Campaign, a new fund-raising campaign that generated $72,000 from small and medium-size businesses in the metro area. Gossage, senior vice-president of Monsanto Chemical Co., is the board's development chairman. He and Hyland, senior vice-president of CBS Radio, Inc., said volunteer efforts led by Wilhite added nearly 50 new businesses this year to the growing list of Lindenwood supporters. The $72,000 is part of an estimated $1 million in fund raising that may be generated by the close of the 1986-87 fiscal year on June 30 — an amount that would establish a record for the 160-year-old college.

the linden word

ROBERT F. HYLAND,
Chairman, Board of Directors
RONALD W. OHMES
Chairman, Board of Overseers
JAMES I. SPAINHOWER,
Lindenwood President
RANDY L. WALLICK,
Editor & PR Director
MAURITA E. STUECK ('41),
President, Alumni Council
ESTHER TALBOT FENNING ('77),
Alumni Affairs Director
PAULA G. MURRAY,
Graphic Artist
CHRISTINE CORDES,
Production Assistant

Written and produced by the Lindenwood College Public Relations Office, the linden word is published quarterly and disseminated free of charge to nearly 30,000 alumni, friends and supporters of the college.

Views and opinions appearing in this publication are not endorsed necessarily by the Lindenwood College Board of Directors or the Lindenwood Board of Overseers.

Address all communications, letters, subscription requests and changes of address (include both the mailing label from the current issue along with the new address and proper zip code) to: Public Relations Office, Lindenwood College, First Capitol Drive and Kingshighway, St. Charles, MO 63301.

For 50 years of service

Board member receives honorary degree

Arthur S. Goodall of St. Louis, a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors since 1937, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at the institution's Spring Commencement.

Cited by college officials for his lengthy service, which is believed to be the longest tenure of any college board member in the United States, Goodall is a life member of the 30-member governing board.

In past years, Goodall has served as vice-chairman of the board of directors and, for many years, was chairman of its Building Committee. During his chairmanship, the Fine Arts Bldg., the Young Hall of Science and Parker and McCluer residence halls were constructed on the 100-acre campus.

One of the newest facilities on campus, the Fine Arts Bldg. contains modern studies, classrooms, offices, laboratories and a recital hall and studio theatre for the Performing Arts Dept. Named in memory of Howard I. Young, former chairman of the college's board of directors, the Young Hall of Science was erected in 1966. Parker and McCluer halls accommodate more than 200 men and women students.

Also during his tenure as committee chairman, funds were secured for the remodeling of Jelkyl Theatre, the 415-seat facility in Roemer Hall.

Goodall joined the board of directors under the leadership of President John L. Roemer, and he has served with seven of the college's 18 presidents in its 160-year history — Harry M. Gage from 1941-46, Franc L. McCluer from 1947-66 and 1973-74, John L. Brown from 1966-73, William C. Spence from 1974-

79, Robert Johns from 1979-82 and James I. Spainhower, current president since 1983.

Goodall also has served as chairman of the college's Fund-Raising Committee. By his own estimates, Goodall has personally presented Lindenwood or has been instrumental in garnering about $750,000 for the benefit of the college during his 50 years of service.

The establishment of the Nannie S. Goodall Memorial Scholarship Fund, named in memory of his mother, has benefited many deserving students at the college.

He is a 1921 graduate of the School of Business at Washington University in St. Louis. Before his retirement, he was involved in investment securities, heading a St. Louis-based investment securities firm under his name, Goodall & Co.

A member of the First Presbyterian Church in St. Louis, Goodall was honored by Lindenwood and its board of directors in 1983 for his lengthy service to the college. At that time, the board passed a resolution proclaiming the two Victorian-style lounges on the main floor of the Roemer Memorial Arts Bldg. to be known as the Arthur S. Goodall Lounges.

The lounges, perhaps the most beautiful rooms on campus, are utilized by the college for a number of community and college events. Funds used for the refurbishment of the lounges stem from Goodall's personal contributions to Lindenwood.

50 YEARS OF SERVICE — Arthur S. Goodall, right, is escorted from the podium by his brother-in-law, Charles E. Starmer, after receiving an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at Lindenwood's Spring Commencement. Dr. Goodall was cited for 50 years of service on the Lindenwood College Board of Directors.

Indiana student chosen for Motley scholarship

Melanie C. Smith of Griffith, IN, a 1987 graduate of Bishop Noll Institute in Hammond, IN, is the recipient of a scholarship worth $34,000 during the next four years at Lindenwood.

Selected from nearly 100 nominees, Smith is the recipient of the Guy C. Motley Scholarship, an award that covers the full cost of tuition as well as room and board at the 160-year-old liberal arts college.

The nominees are outstanding high school students from throughout the United States who were nominated by school guidance counselors, Lindenwood alumni, clergy and friends of the college.

Enrolled as a freshman this fall at Lindenwood, Smith plans to major in psychology at Lindenwood. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith, she plans to become a gynecologist after graduation. In high school, Smith was active in debate and theatre, and she was a member of the Service Club.

Competition for the Motley scholarship award is by nomination only, and it is based upon academic record, leadership, personal achievement and character.

The Motley award is among nearly 200 residential scholarships, ranging in value from $2,000 to $20,000 during the next four years, that are offered each year by Lindenwood. Motley is a former director of admissions, vice-president of the college and chairman of an administrative committee that presided over college operations in the 1940s.

According to Lindenwood College President James I. Spainhower, Lindenwood College offers the Motley scholarship award each year "as a means of strengthening its residential population to attract outstanding students." He said that "because of increased annual giving, Lindenwood has been able to increase its amount of direct support for scholarship assistance, such as the Motley Residential Scholarship, Lindenwood's most prestigious award." This year, $727,000 in direct support will be awarded in scholarships by the college to outstanding students such as Smith.

All nominees not receiving the Motley scholarship automatically are considered for Lindenwood's nearly 200 other residential scholarships that comprise the $727,000 annual total.

The $727,000 in direct support is in addition to financial aid, which this year totalled nearly $1.5 million for the college's nearly 2,000 students.

Those who want to nominate outstanding students, such as students who will be seniors this fall in high school, or who want to find out more about the 1988 Motley scholarships, should contact Lindenwood. Inquiries and information on nominations can be directed to either the Admissions Office or Financial Aid & Scholarship Office, in care of Lindenwood College.

TOP STUDENT — Melanie C. Smith, this year's recipient of the Guy C. Motley Scholarship, is pictured with Admissions counselor Michael Dickherber during a recent visit to the St. Charles campus.

'87-'88 budget okayed, called 'conservative'

The Lindenwood College Board of Directors has approved a proposed fiscal 1987-88 budget of $8.83 million, representing a 4.7 percent increase from the current operating budget.

Effective July 1, the proposed budget calls for anticipated revenue of $6.14 million from tuition, $1.3 million from gifts and other sources and $1.37 million from auxiliary operations.

In announcing the new fiscal year budget, President James I. Spainhower said it was based upon a 9.2 percent increase in tuition. Tuition for the 1987-88 academic year will increase from $5,200 to $5,680 for the college's full-time day students. Room and board this fall will be $3,190. Spainhower said a reduction was made in tuition for the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education to equalize it with Evening College and off-campus sites.

"Although it has been necessary to make a modest increase in tuition, Lindenwood remains below the national average for its tuition and room-and-board charges," the president said. "We have checked with area colleges and also find that we are about the same as institutions of our size," he added.

If operational costs remain as budgeted, the 1987-88 fiscal year will show a surplus of $111,085, and would represent the sixth straight year the college has ended year-end operations with a balanced budget.

The budget calls for a five percent salary increase for all full-time faculty and staff employees plus equity adjustments in some positions. "The tuition increase makes it possible to provide modest salary increases for our faculty and staff who have been working for years for salaries far below those in comparable institutions in the area," Spainhower said.

The new budget calls for the hiring of no new personnel or faculty members for the upcoming fiscal year, although it does provide for the reinstatement of a few faculty positions that have not been filled because of fiscal restraints. Included are positions in the Communications, Math & Computer Science and Performing Arts departments.

All requests for capital expenditures for equipment have been eliminated from the budget, and they will be funded from a cash reserve account to which funds will be applied monthly.

The budget, which Spainhower called "a solid, conservative one," was reviewed by a planning committee consisting of the senior administrative staff and two faculty representatives. Faculty members consisted of James D. Evans, Ph.D., chairman of the Psychology Dept., and Robert W. King, associate professor of business administration, while administrative input consisted of Vice-President for Academic Affairs Daniel N. Keck, Vice-President for Finance Kenneth W. Musbach, Vice-President for Administration Jerry Rufkahr and Spainhower. The committee's recommendations were reviewed and approved by the board of directors' Finance Committee, chaired by Henry J. Elmendorf.

FLORIDA BOUND TO NASA — Senior Bonnie N. Carpenter discusses her career ambition to become an astronaut with Professor John A. Bornmann, chairman of the Chemistry Dept. She is one of 36 students in the country who will take part in a summer space training program at John F. Kennedy Space Center near Cape Canaveral, FL.

College coed chosen for NASA training

"Some students laugh at me, and ask me if I'm really serious about wanting to become an astronaut," said Bonnie N. Carpenter of St. Charles, a senior this fall at Lindenwood.

But, the laugh is on others, as Carpenter is among 36 students from throughout the country chosen to participate in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) "1987 Space Training Program."

The Lindenwood coed will travel to Cape Canaveral, FL, this summer to participate in the six-week NASA program designed for future astronauts at the John F. Kennedy Space Center.

"I've always wanted to be an astronaut or a scientist after graduation," said Carpenter, who is looking forward to the summer program, feeling it will provide her with opportunities and experience. "Besides, this will really look good on my resume," she added.

The daughter of William and Bonnie Carpenter of St. Charles, Carpenter is a 1985 graduate of St. Charles High

Circle K award

Lindenwood College's Circle K Club, a service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of St. Charles (Noon Day), has received the "Circle K'er of the Year" award for outstanding community service.

Presented recently at a district convention at the Lodge of the Four Seasons in Lake Ozark, MO, the award cites the 45-member club for its community involvement. The award was presented by the Missouri-Arkansas District of Kiwanis International.

School who is majoring in mathematics and mechanical engineering at Lindenwood in a cooperative five-year program with Washington University in St. Louis.

The program is designed to enable Lindenwood students to complete three years of study in the liberal arts and then take a two-year intensive course at the Sever Institute of Technology of the School of Engineering and Applied Science Washington University. At the end of the full course of study, students will receive a B.A. or B.S. degree from Lindenwood in addition to a B.S. in Engineering from Washington University.

Options for students such as Carpenter during the two-year engineering phase include concentrations in applied mathematics and computing science or chemical, civil, electrical or mechanical engineering.

Although she is majoring in mathematics and mechanical engineering, Carpenter recommends any major for students interested in space flight. She said that even political science or law are good majors "because NASA has so many needs."

Carpenter said she "is dying to know" how she was chosen for the select summer program.

According to John A. Bornmann, professor and chairman of chemistry at Lindenwood, Carpenter was selected because of her academic achievement at Lindenwood and because "of her interest in the space program." Bornmann suggested Carpenter, who has a grade-point average of 3.7 out of 4.0, apply for the NASA program earlier this year.

"Bonnie wants to be an astronaut," he said, "and the NASA summer program is a stepping stone to achieving her goal," he added.

Growth experienced in computer science

by BARRY FREESE,
Admissions Counselor

Lindenwood's fastest-growing department is the Mathematics & Computer Science Dept., which currently is the third largest among the Day College, Lindenwood's traditional, residential college.

The growth has been caused by a rapid increase in student enrollment for the computer science major, which now numbers 45, said John F. Dooley, assistant professor of computer science and coordinator of the Computer Science Program.

Dooley, a 1974 Lindenwood alumnus with a B.A. degree and a major in math, earned an M.S. in computer and information science at Syracuse University and an M.E.E. in electrical engineering at Rice University. With impressive academic credentials, Dooley has strong professional experience; he was employed in computing with McDonnell Douglas, American Telephone & Telegraph, Bell Laboratories and IBM prior to joining the Lindenwood faculty in 1984.

"The Mathematics & Computer Science Dept. has grown many times during the three academic years since I returned to Lindenwood," Dooley said. "It is very rewarding, but much of the credit goes to Dr. Dominic C. Soda, department chairman, for his foresight in starting the Computer Science Program and for all of his academic and professional support for academic computing at the college," he added.

The five majors who graduated last year were the first at Lindenwood to earn a B.S. degree in computer science. This spring's class numbered six, and this number is expected to double for the class of 1988.

Dooley reports the reception in the job market has been positive, and that salaries in the "upper $20s" have not been uncommon for recent Lindenwood graduates without experience.

The growth in enrollment has been paralleled by a similar increase in equipment or hardware as it is known in computerspeak. In the 1983-84 academic year, the first courses were taught on the college's DEC VAX-11/750, a 32-bit super microcomputer. The VAX was, and still is, used by both the administration at the college and the Business Administration Dept. Seven Apple IIs rounded out the computer resources three years ago.

Since Dooley's arrival in 1984, a DEC PDP-11/44 microcomputer with one megabyte of memory, a 121-megabyte hard disk drive, a 1,600 bits-per-inch tape drive, 12 video display terminals, two dot matrix printers, one line printer, a letter-quality printer and a modem have been added to support the Lindenwood program.

In addition to the Apple II microcomputers, one IBM PC/XT has been added, three more IBM microcomputers are to be acquired this summer, and two Apple MacIntoshes are to be purchased next year.

The PDP-11 forms the heart of the new Mathematics & Computer Science Dept. Computer Center, located on the third floor of the Howard I. Young Hall of Science, which recently was painted by the Computer Club. "The center is open 24 hours per day, seven days a week, and thus offers one of the best computer resources I know at a small, liberal arts college like Lindenwood," Dooley said.

Through his knowledge of resources available at Bell Labs, Dooley obtained for Lindenwood the popular UNIX operating system for the PDP-11. The actual cost to the college was equal to the cost for the tape, and Dooley personally installed UNIX, saving the college several thousand dollars.

Continued on page 16

Ohmes elected chairman of overseers

Ronald W. Ohmes of St. Charles, president of F. F. Kirchner & Co., a Bridgeton, MO-based supplier of building materials, has been elected chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers.

Comprised of community and business leaders, the 30-member board operates in conjunction with the Lindenwood College Board of Directors to provide programmatic oversight for the institution.

Ohmes is a 1959 graduate of the University of Missouri with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Active within the community, he is a member of the board of directors of Commerce Bank of St. Charles County and the St. Peters Hospital Board of Trustees, and he serves as president of the Wonderland Camp Foundation, an organization serving retarded and handicapped children and young adults.

A member of the St. Charles Borromeo Parish and the St. Charles Country Club, he is past president of both the Missouri and St. Charles Jaycees and past board chairman of the Missouri Concrete Association. For 17 years, he served as a member of the St. Charles City Planning and Zoning Commission.

Born in St. Peters, he is a lifelong resident of the area. Ohmes and his wife, Janice G., have five children.

Ohmes replaces immediate past Chairman Keith W. Hazelwood, an attorney and partner with Hazelwood, Barklage & Barklage in St. Charles.

Ohmes

LETTERS TO LINDENWOOD

Dear Editor:

I was pleased to read in the last issue of the Linden Word that the name of the Tea Hole has been resurfaced and applied to the new student activity center.

When I was a freshman in 1951, I asked why they called the center such a strange name. Someone told me it was called "Tea Hall" in the "old days." I wonder if this is true?

This also brought back the memory of my semester at the American University in Washington, DC, in Lindenwood's Washington Semester program. We traveled back and forth from the Ward Circle campus and the downtown F Street Campus on Foxhall Road, which we called Foxhole Road. It is very nice to have these pleasant memories!

Beth Glebe Houchin ('55)
San Diego, CA

(Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to Jim Wilson, general manager of KCLC-FM Radio, and it is worthy of sharing with readers to show the calibre of students attending Lindenwood today.)

Dear Mr. Wilson,

Recently, students Tony Averbeck and Dave Powell of KCLC provided music for the Henderson Elementary School second annual Jump Rope for Heart, a fund-raising project for the St. Louis Chapter of the American Heart Association. The music was excellent, and these gentlemen set a great example for our youth. We were very fortunate to have had an opportunity to meet two such fine students who willingly donated their time for this worthwhile event.

The event was a great success with $4,983 pledged to the American Heart Association. A special "thanks" to you and your staff for your efforts on behalf of the American Heart Association.

Carolee Wilfong,
Physical Education Teacher
Henderson Elementary School
St. Charles

Dear Classmates of '68

Our 20th class reunion is around the corner! How can we indulge ourselves in these moments of nostalgia?

What do you remember best? Who do you remember best? Where are you? We can't pass up this chance to say hello again and to share the old triumphs and disappointments and to discover the new in each of us.

We were the last class before coeducation, still influenced by the 1960s. Let's get together and share the 1980s and encourage each other for the 1990s. There's a lot we've got left to do.

Write a note today to an old friend, an old roommate or to someone you'd like to see take part in the 20th class reunion next October. Or, write to me with ways to make our get together great—Patricia K. Stone, Wist Hall Annex 2, 1776 University Ave., Honolulu, HI 96822.

See you in October, 1988!

Patricia Mackey Stone
Honolulu, HI

Hello!

My husband, George, and I recently visited the Lindenwood campus for the first time since my last visit in 1956. How happy I was to see it still beautiful.

It was a surprise to find that my old college dorm is now used by the administration for offices. Niccolls, of course!

Alice Holman Ahrens ('59)
Rosemont, PA

As a service to readers of this publication, Lindenwood invites letters to the editor as a means of providing greater communications to various constituencies of the college.

We welcome correspondence, and we only ask that all letters be signed and written as briefly as possible because of space limitations.

Lindenwood reserves the right to edit all letters to conform to grammar, journalistic style and/or space requirements.

Letters should be sent to the Editor, Linden Word, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301.

Help Us Make an Historical First as We Begin Our 160th Anniversary

As Lindenwood College closes its 1986-87 fiscal year on June 30, it has the unique opportunity to accomplish a task never done since its founding in 1827 - raise $1 million for its annual funds drive during a fiscal year!

Be a part of this accomplishment. Contribute whatever you can to help us raise $1 million before June 30 - $5, $25, $100 or more.

As we begin our 160th anniversary this fall, what better accomplishment is there than to say we've raised $1 million in fund raising - with your help, we can!

Lindenwood College - Since 1827 160 Years of Quality and Tradition

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE 1987 END OF YEAR APPEAL

Yes! I want to give an extra boost to Lindenwood College in 1987. My gift will help make history as part of the first one million dollar fund raising year at Lindenwood College.

Enclosed is my contribution for:

$25 $50 $75 $100 $500 Other

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

I understand that my gift sent before June 30, 1987 helps the college to achieve another successful fund raising year.

YOUR CONTRIBUTION IS VERY MUCH APPRECIATED

HONORED BY COLLEGE - Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower, left, presents the Sibley Medallion of Honor to John C. Hannegan as his wife, Mary Louise, looks on. The St. Charles attorney was honored for his support of Lindenwood and for his "conscientiousness, assistance and leadership" as a member and secretary of the 28-member Lindenwood College Board of Directors. Named for Maj. George and Mary Easton Sibley, the award is an annual presentation to an outstanding community leader who has helped Lindenwood College.

John Hannegan honored with Sibley Medallion

John C. Hannegan, a partner in the law firm of Thompson & Mitchell of St. Charles, is the recipient of Lindenwood College's "Sibley Medallion of Honor" award.

Named in honor of Mary Easton Sibley, who founded Lindenwood in 1827, the award honors a community leader whose dedication and support to the college have created a strong bond between the institution and the community.

Hannegan and his wife, Mary Louise, were honored during a dinner and presentation ceremony April 3 at Ayres Cafeteria in the Memorial Arts Bldg. on the St. Charles campus. The event included "a celebrity roast and toast for this year's 'Sibley Medallion' recipient," said James D. Thompson, director of development at Lindenwood.

Selected from several community leaders earlier this month, Hannegan was chosen for the award for his leadership and support of Lindenwood as a member of the college's board of directors. Currently serving his third three-year term on the board, Hannegan is secretary of the 28-member governing body.

Check your mailing label on page 1. If your address is incorrect, or if you're receiving more than one copy, contact the Public Relations Office, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301, for a correction.

In citing Hannegan, Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower said "he is a loyal friend who has supported the college through some very good times and some very rough times as well. His conscientiousness, assistance and leadership often have proven invaluable."

Hannegan is a graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia and holds a J.D. degree from St. Louis University. Admitted to the Missouri Bar Association in 1960, he specializes in legal fields of banking, corporate, finance, health care and real estate law. From 1964-68, he served as special assistant to Missouri Attorney General Norman B. Anderson.

Hannegan is legal counsel and a former member of the board of directors of St. Anthony's Medical Center in St. Louis County, is a member and past president of the St. Charles County Bar Association, and is a board member of Youth in Need in St. Charles. He has served as an advisor to the Salvation Army, helping the organization to raise funds and obtain services to build the Hospice Home for Homeless and Stranded.

The St. Charles attorney also has served as executive director of the Foundation for Restoration of Ste. Genevieve, MO, and was founder, board chairman and legal counsel for Lewis and Clark Mercantile Bank in St. Louis County. He also has served as secretary of Mercantile Bank of St. Charles and as legal counsel to Rozier Mercantile Bank.

The "Sibley Medallion of Honor" is an annual presentation by the 160-year-old Lindenwood College to an outstanding community leader. Last year's recipient was Henry J. Elmendorf of St. Charles, a well-known civic leader and secretary-treasurer of Jim Meagher Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, Inc., in St. Charles.

Committee selects new reading list

Four outstanding books have been selected for the upcoming academic year's All-College Reading List, a campus event designed to inspire reading and discussion about popular literary works.

Selections by the All-College Reading List Committee include Ray Bradbury's short novel, Fahrenheit 451; Charles Darwin's The Origin of the Species; Carol Gilligan's In a Different Voice: Psychological Theory and Women's Development; and Dancing on My Grave by Gelsey Kirkland with Greg Lawrence.

The four books have been placed on reserve at Butler Memorial Library, and faculty members have been encouraged to use material from the selections in appropriate courses for the 1987-88 academic year. Members of the campus community also are invited to take part in lectures, discussions and film presentations that the committee is planning.

Members of the All-College Reading List Committee include Ann Canale, Ph.D., Associate professor and chairperson of English; Michael Castro, Ph.D., associate professor and faculty advisor in the LCIE; Niki Juncker, associate professor of theatre and acting co-chairperson of the Performing Arts Dept.; Jean Taylor, instructor and professional librarian; and William Tietjen, Ph.D., associate professor of biology.

Published in 1953, Bradbury's novel is set in the future when "firemen" burn books that have been forbidden by a totalitarian "brave new world" regime. The hero of the story is a book burner who discovers that "books are flesh and blood ideas" which "cry out when put to the torch."

In conjunction with Fahrenheit 451, the committee plans to have discussions on censorship issues as they confront Americans today, such as creationism, textbook selection and pornography.

Darwin's book, The Origin of the Species, perhaps is among the most influential books in western literature. The concepts introduced in this book, written in the 1850s, run as a thread through all fields of biology, affecting research in such diverse disciplines as recombinant DNA technology and medicine.

According to committee members, the version of Darwin's book selected for the All-College Reading List includes an introduction by the editor and a glossary of scientific terms which will add to the text. The film "Inherit the Wind," and a discussion also are planned to supplement the reading.

In her belief that developmental theories consistently have overlooked women, author Gilligan traces how women are brought up to value relationships as opposed to men who learn to value achievement. In her book, published in 1982, she argues that this difference is a strength rather than a weakness.

In her book, Dancing on My Grave, author and ballerina Kirkland discusses her struggles with drug addiction, anorexia and mental illness while at the pinnacle of her career in ballet. In the book published in 1986 by Doubleday, she describes how her recovery was achieved through literature, art and music.

Committee members would appreciate suggestions from alumni and friends of Lindenwood College about specific discussion topics for the All-College Reading List, or speakers who could take part in campus events. Members so encourage Linden Word readers to take part in the 1987-88 All-College Reading List and read one or more of the four books selected.

Further information or comments can be sent to the All-College Reading List Committee, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301.

Campus hosts IVSI

Nearly 30 appraisers from throughout the country enrolled in the first program of the International Valuation Sciences Institute (IVSI), held recently on the Lindenwood campus in St. Charles.

Serving higher education, research and publication in the field of valuation sciences, the IVSI offered studies in valuation theory, methods of analysis and valuation, appraisal communication and courtroom testimony.

Those attending the recent two-week session also did focused studies in the various fields they represented, such as real estate, art and antiques, gems and jewelry, machinery and equipment and business valuation. Appraisers attending Lindenwood represented many states, including Alaska, California, Hawaii, New York and Texas. Participants at the IVSI, held May 3-15, were either studying for credit towards an undergraduate or graduate degree in valuation sciences at Lindenwood.

"We were pleased to offer this program in higher education for appraisers," said Richard Rickert, Ph.D., IVSI director, "since many of these people have no access to such studies that lead to a college degree. As the only current program of its kind, the IVSI has a major impact on improving the quality and responsibility of appraisals for both the public and for government. It will make important contributions to appraisal science, legal work and communication," Rickert added.

The program addressed important needs in appraisal education for meeting government standards and for upgrading the appraisal profession. The Washington, DC-based American Society of Appraisers (ASA) supports the IVSI program with grants, scholarships, planning personnel and library resources, Rickert said.

The teaching faculty at the IVSI represented the ASA, the Society of Real Estate Appraisers or the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisal.

The IVSI also sponsors research and publication by appraisal educators and students. For further information about IVSI programs, contact Rickert at Lindenwood College, P.O. Box 646, St. Charles, MO 63301, or call (314) 946-6912, extension #227.

EDWARD J. HARRIS, JR., former assistant women's basketball coach at the University of Missouri-St. Louis (UMSL) has been named coach of the college's women's basketball team. A social studies teacher at Parkway South High School in St. Louis County, he served as defensive coordinator and started Girl's basketball in all high school grade levels. Harris has served as an assistant football coach at Washington University, as head coach at Kennedy High School, as assistant football coach at Ritenour High School and, for the past three years, as assistant women's basketball coach at UMSL. From 1970-74, he was athletic director at the U.S. Coast Guard base at Governors Island, NY, where he was in charge of athletics for children's leagues and military personnel play. With the Coast Guard, he received "Coach of the Year" honors three years in sequence for coaching undefeated football teams at both the adult and youth levels. A 1976 graduate of UMSL, he holds an M.A. degree in educational processes from Maryville College in St. Louis County.

THOMAS W. DOHERTY of St. Charles, professor emeritus of modern languages, recently presented a piano recital in Sibley Chapel on the Lindenwood campus. Although Doherty served as professor of French from 1950 until his retirement in 1977, he also is a pianist and organist, and he currently is studying with GROFF S. BITTNER, assistant professor of music at Lindenwood. Presented to the community, the concert included selections by Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Debussy and Albeniz.

LARRY SACKMAN, director of Financial Aid & Scholarships, won a three-day, two-night stay for two at the Lodge of the Four Seasons in Missouri's Lake of the Ozarks. His was the winning ticket drawn in a raffle to raise funds for Lindenwood athletic programs and to purchase a van for men and women teams and student activities. Tickets were sold on campus to students, faculty and staff by athletic members; staff employees of the Admissions, Development and Financial Aid offices; and members of the Lindenwood Student Government. Nearly $1,000 was raised from the recent event.

ALAN H. SHILLER, assistant professor of speech, was the keynote speaker for commencement this spring at Deaconess College of Nursing. A member of the Deaconess faculty, Shiller addressed about 200 graduates on the topic, "Being Socially Acceptable." A member of the faculty since 1980, Shiller is a frequent speaker at civic, business and community functions. Commencement was held at Graham Chapel on the campus of Washington University.

"Stretching Minds with Picture Books" is the title of an article by NANCY POLETTE, assistant professor of education, that appeared in the spring issue of Agate, a new publication for American and Canadian educators of the gifted. The four-page article appeared in the premiere issue of the journal of the Gifted and Talented Education Council of the Alberta Teachers' Association in Alberta, Canada. A member of the Lindenwood faculty since 1980, Polette is a nationally-recognized authority on gifted education.

ARLENE TAICH, Ph. D., director of the proposed Institute for Intergenerational Studies at Lindenwood College and dean of the Evening College/Lindenwood College for Individualized Education, was a recent keynote speaker at the Sigma Phi Omega banquet and installation ceremony held at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville. She addressed the topic, "Elder Pioneers-Gerontological Entrepreneurs." Sigma Phi Omega is the national academic and professional society in gerontology.

DIANE DENNEY, assistant professor of education and director of the Reading Clinic, has received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Harris-Stowe State College in St. Louis. A member of the faculty since 1980, Denney is a 1965 graduate of Harris-Stowe who holds an M.A. degree from the University of Missouri-St. Louis and who is completing her doctorate at St. Louis University. Denney received the award during the May 14 commencement at Harris-Stowe.

"Maintaining Academic Quality with the Use of Adjunct Faculty" was the title of a workshop featuring ARLENE TAICH, Ph. D., dean of the Evening College/Lindenwood College for Individualized Education, at the recent national conference of the American Association for Higher Education. Held in Chicago, the meeting was attended by 2,000 higher education professors and administrators. Also joining Taich at the national conference was ALLEN SCHWAB, Ph. D., associate professor of English and dean of College Life.

HANS LEVI, professor of art and photography, exhibited a collection of his works recently at the Curved Entrance Gallery at Stephens College in Columbia, MO. The exhibit of color photos featured his explorations with the use of the Widelux slit camera. Levi, a member of the faculty since 1980, also lectured on his unique experimental color work and served as a juror for the Juried Stephens Students' Show this spring at the private women's college.

"The Introduction of the Automobile to St. Charles" was the subject of an address by JEAN FIELDS, associate professor of communications and English, presented recently to the St. Charles Kiwanis Club. A frequent speaker and an historical authority, Fields is a 22-year veteran of the Lindenwood faculty and the recipient of Lindenwood College's 1987 Faculty Lectureship as part of its "Year of the Professor" recognition.

Concepts of justice in Russian history and literature were explored recently during a campus presentation by C. EDWARD BALOG, Ph. D., chairman and professor of history, and WANITA A. ZUMBRUNNEN, assistant professor of English. Balog taught a course in Russian history during the spring semester while Zumbrunnen just completed her doctoral dissertation on the concepts of justice in American and Russian history. The presentation was part of the English Department's Colloquia series of informal sessions for students, faculty and staff.

JAMES A. HAUKAP of St. Charles has been named Coordinator of Audio-Visual Services at Lindenwood College. A 1981 graduate of the University of Missouri-St. Louis, he is a former studio production assistant with American CableVision in St. Louis, account executive with Wagner Advertising in St. Louis and social worker with Four County Mental Health, Inc., in St. Charles.

JAN GARDEN CASTRO, communications instructor in the LCIE, is scheduled to lecture at Columbia College in South Carolina this fall on the centennial of the birth of artist Georgia O'Keeffe. Castro is the author of numerous essays, articles and poems as well as the book, The Art and Life of Georgia O'Keeffe, which explores life and paintings of the late well-known American artist. Distributed by Crown Publishers, the book recently went into its fourth printing, bringing the total number of copies to about 75,000. A member of the LCIE adjunct faculty since 1981, Castro has another book, Margaret Atwood: Vision and Forms, scheduled for publication next year by Southern Illinois University Press.

ROBERT F. HYLAND, regional vice-president of the CBS Radio Division and chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors, has been named senior vice-president of the CBS Radio Division. Hyland, a 47-year veteran of broadcasting, retains his position as general manager of the CBS-owned KMOX-AM and KHTR-FM in St. Louis. "We have all benefited from his programming acumen and vision," said Robert Hosking, division president, "and are delighted to have him as senior vice-president of CBS Radio." Hyland has received countless civic and industry awards for his community service and professional accomplishments, including an honorary doctorate degree presented to him from Lindenwood College.

JAMES F. HOOD, Ph. D., professor of history, has been appointed by former Mayor MELVIN G. WETTER as chairman of the St. Charles Bicentennial Commission. Hood and members of the organization will plan historic events in St. Charles on Independence Day and on September 17 - the 200th anniversary of the actual signing of the U.S. Constitution - involving the community, city government, schools and churches and civic clubs and organizations. Hood, who also serves as Special Assistant to PRESIDENT JAMES I. SPAINHOWER, is a 26-year member of the administration and faculty at Lindenwood. Wetter is a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers.

In Memoriam

DAVID C. BAUE

Services were held April 14 at Immanuel Lutheran Church in St. Charles for David C. Baue, a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers who died April 11 from an apparent heart attack at the age of 53.

A board member since 1985 and a long-time supporter of Lindenwood College, Mr. Baue was president of Baue Funeral Homes and St. Charles Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Baue held an undergraduate degree from Westminster College in Fulton, MO, and was a graduate of the Dallas Institute of Mortuary Science. He joined his family's funeral business in 1957 and, at the time of his death, owned the largest funeral home in St. Charles County as well as two others in St. Peters and O'Fallon, MO.

Active in his community, he was on the board of directors of the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce, the St. Charles Rotary Club, the St. Charles County YMCA and the Boy Scouts Eagle Board of Review. He was past chairman of the St. Charles Community Council and United Fund Campaign. In 1960, he was the recipient of the Junior Chamber of Commerce "Young Man of the Year" award and, in 1968, was named to the "Outstanding Young Men in America." In 1985, he was selected "Small Business Person of the Year" by the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce.

A native of St. Louis, Mr. Baue served on the board of directors of the National Selected Morticians from 1963-66 and, from 1960-68, was a member of the National Foundation of Funeral Service Selection Room Committee for Merchandising Research. Since 1968, he was a frequent lecturer on merchandising for the National Foundation of Funeral Service.

At the time of his death, Mr. Baue was completing his third term as chairman of the Missouri State Board of Embalmers & Funeral Directors. He was a past president of the Missouri Funeral Directors Association, was a member of the Mortuary Science Dept. at St. Louis Community College at Forest Park, and was a board of directors member of Commerce Bank of St. Charles.

Mr. Baue is survived by his widow, Jill; two sons David P. and Mark G., a part-time Lindenwood College student, both of St. Charles; a daughter, Mrs. Lisa Baue Devaney of St. Charles; his mother, Viola B. Baue of St. Charles; a brother, Dr. Arthur E. Baue of St. Louis; a sister, Caroline Eaton of Fairfax Station, VA; and one grandson.

Contributions in Mr. Baue's memory can be made to Lindenwood College, the Boy Scouts of America, the St. Charles YMCA or the National Foundation of Funeral Service. Memorials can be directed through Baue Funeral Home, 620 Jefferson St., St. Charles, MO 63301.

MARY E. YONKER

Services were held April 18 at St. Charles Presbyterian Church for Mary E. Yonker of St. Charles, former assistant to the president, who died April 16 at St. Joseph Health Center following an apparent heart attack. She was 69 years of age.

Miss Yonker retired in 1982 after 34 years of service to Lindenwood. Following graduation from Washington University in 1939 with a degree in psychology, she joined Lindenwood in 1947 as secretary to President Franc L. McCluer.

During her lengthy career with the college, she served under four presidents — two administrations with McCluer, one with President John A. Brown, another with President William C. Spencer and one with President Robert Johns. Her secretary title was changed in 1980 to Assistant to the President and, in 1982, she received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree for her years of service to the college.

Miss Yonker had been a member of the P.E.O. philanthropic organization, Gamma Phi Beta and the St. Charles Business & Professional Women.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Blanche Yonker of St. Charles, and a sister, Mrs. Katherine Gill of Princeton, NJ. Interment was in Femcliff Cemetery in Hartsdale, NY.

Memorial contributions in Miss Yonker's name may be made to St. Charles Presbyterian Church, Gamble and Sibley Streets, St. Charles, MO 63301.

Lindenwood '87 Commencement '87

Clockwise on this page, from above, flag bearers from the classes of 1984, 1985 and 1986 lead the procession to start Spring Commencement. Right, framed between graduates, Kenneth W. Thompson, Ph.D., delivers the commencement address, "Life as Renaissance," as an intense audience relishes his inspiring words. Below, a mixture of faces, personalities and pursuits compile this year's graduation class, but each person has the personal distinction of being a member of the alumni family of the 160-year-old Lindenwood College.

under the lindens

Several thousand people converged on the Lindenwood campus May 16 to see more than 400 students receive associate, undergraduate and graduate degrees at the annual Spring Commencement.

Under sunny skies, graduates, friends and family members heard an inspiring commencement address by Kenneth W. Thompson, Ph.D., director of the White Burkett Miller Center of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, entitled, "Life as Renaissance." Thompson, a member of the college's board of directors and chairman of the National Advisory Council, also is Commonwealth Professor of government and foreign affairs at the University of Virginia.

The night before commencement, graduates and their families gathered at the Lindenwood College Chapel of St. Charles Presbyterian Church to hear the Rev. Rudolph W. Beard, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Jefferson City, MO, deliver the annual baccalaureate. The pastor also is a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers.

One of the highlights of commencement was the presentation of an honorary Doctor of Science degree to Mary Talbot, Ph.D., of St. Charles, professor emerita of biological science.

Talbot retired from Lindenwood in 1968 as professor of biology and chairperson of its Biology Dept. She was called one of the institution's most influential and dedicated instructors by Professor Daryl J. Anderson, chairperson of the Biology Dept. who introduced Talbot to the commencement audience.

At the time of her retirement, President John A. Brown and members of a faculty committee cited Talbot for "the wisdom and high moral tone of her counseling, for the many hours she has given to service on faculty committees, for the high standards of teaching she has maintained, and for the quality of excellence she has demanded from her students...Those of us who have had the privilege of knowing her as a colleague appreciate her honesty, sincerity, sound judgement and dry wit," the president and faculty members added.

"As a teacher, she is the kind that prompts mothers to send their daughters back to Lindenwood," the group continued. "She shows them the excitement of the mud-bottom pond coming to life in the spring and the thrill of finding and identifying the parasites in an animal. When interesting specimens are available, she is not too busy to take care of them...and she helps students to see and appreciate the world around them. The ant that crosses her student's path is no longer a nuisance; it is a fascinating part of the environment."

Ants have been a key part of Talbot's life for she has spent 50 of her 83 years studying their food habits, shelter, social organization and adaptation to the environment. During her tenure at Lindenwood, she devoted her summers to extensive research in the biology of ants, becoming a well-known authority among ecologists and entomologists.

Talbot graduated in 1921 from Denison University in Granville, OH, where many of her relatives had received their education and where her grandfather once served as president. During her junior and senior year at Denison, she spent the summer at a laboratory on a Lake Erie island where she became acquainted with the zoology staff at Ohio State University in Columbus. It was at OSU that she received a master's degree in general zoology, awarded in 1927, and where she began studies on the classification and distribution of ants.

Talbot earned a Ph.D. in 1934 at the University of Chicago, before joining the Lindenwood faculty as an instructor in botany in 1936. She had previous teaching experience at OSU, the University of Omaha, Stephens College in Columbia, MO, and the University of Chicago.

In addition to teaching and research, she is an author, having written more than 30 professional papers and articles.

Clockwise from the top, beneath the beauty of towering trees, and azure skies, more than 2,000 people gathered May 16 to see 409 students receive associate, undergraduate and graduate degrees. Center, 1987 Senior Class President Celia Angel of Modesto, CA, receives her B.A. degree from President James I. Spainhower, right. Right, smiles beam on the faces of 1987 graduates as they witnessed Arthur S. Goodall receive an honorary doctorate degree for 50 years of service on the Lindenwood College Board of Directors, perhaps the longest tenure of any board member at a college or university in the country.

Photos by Randy L. Wallick

ALUMNI CLASS NOTES

'24

Mary Rudy Downing of Ft. Lauderdale, FL, and her family and friends entertained President James I. Spainhower during his recent trip to Florida. She presented the president with a copy of her memoirs, "Back to the Present," which is a literary journey through her life from childhood in Paola, KS, to Ft. Lauderdale.

'32

50TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Fern Halliburton, 22 E. 62nd Terrace, Kansas City, MO 64113 (816/444-2557).

Rebecca Carr Wayland of Fredericktown, MO, reports the death of her husband of 50 years, Henry P. Wayland, on Oct. 24, 1986. He is survived by two sons and six grandchildren.

'33

Margaret Moore Smith of Douglas, AZ, was honored recently for her contributions in education. A specialist in the field of special education, she and her husband, C.B., are the parents of Julian, James, Sara and John.

'36

Helen Foster Purvis of Tupelo, MS, had "a wonderful time at the 1986 reunion," and reports that she will be back in 1991 if she "even can wiggle." She added that "President Spainhower is doing a marvelous job, and if anyone can bring Lindenwood back to its former position, he can."

'37

50TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Alma Reitz, 8044 Watkins Dr., St. Louis, MO 63105 (314/727-5861).

Lavonne Chapman Ater of Ferriday, LA, married Dr. Frank Wedam, a veterinarian, in May, 1976. She reports that she and her husband lead dual lives, part of the year in Klamath Falls, OR, and the rest in Louisiana.

'41

Genevieve Kniese Chadhuri of Pittsburgh, a cellist with the Pittsburgh Symphony, recently traveled with the orchestra to Japan, Hong Kong and China. The symphony is scheduled to perform Beethoven's "9th Symphony" with the Chinese Choir.

'42

45TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Grace Quebbeman Galt, 34 N. Clay St., Ferguson, MO 63135.

'44

Shirley Goodman Kirshner of Toledo, OH, runs a support group for single people. She also is chairperson of an armchair theatre group which performs in the community, and is the co-author of a poetry book, One Day at Shirley's.

'46

Helen Joan Stahl Walter of Bellevue, OH, attended her 40th reunion last fall at Lindenwood and reported she enjoyed it. She retired this year after teaching retarded children for 15 years. She majored in pipe organ at Lindenwood, and she still plays for local churches.

Sophia Russell Johnson of Sedalia, MO, writes that she would love to hear from her classmates who would be interested in a '46 reunion. She is the mother of Judith Johnson Woolery ('76) of Sedalia.

'47

40TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Barbara Wexner Levy, 1236 N.E. 92nd St., Miami Shores, FL, 33138 (305/757-7638).

'52

35TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Virginia Ratcliff Trent, 41 Clermont Lane, St. Louis, MO 63124 (314/991-0393). Trent, a past recipient Alumni Merit Award and vice-president for marketing and public relations at Children's Hospital in St. Louis, was the recent keynote speaker for the Recruit Graduation Review at the Naval Training Center in Great Lakes, IL. In her speech to more than 1,000 graduating recruits, she demonstrated how the dynamic nature of marketing has benefited the health care consumer.

'53

Marcy Cook Watts of Camden, AR, reports the death of her husband.

'55

Gloria Bursey Slykhouse of Grand Rapids, MI, is the editor and publisher of a national monthly tabloid, Choices - for Your Third Age, targeted for the "over 50" age group, the tabloid features humor, success stories, financial news and legislation for the 50 and older generation. A yearly subscription is $5; for information, contact her at 221 W. Leonard Rd., Grand Rapids, MI, 49504.

'56

Marilyn Mitchel Thoren-Gordon of St. Louis is selling real estate for Coldwell-Banker in Des Peres, MO. She welcomes calls from alumnae friends in the greater St. Louis area.

'57

30TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSONS - Cynthia Coatsworth Gilman of 821 Parry Dr., Chadron, NB, 69337 (308/432-5051) and Fern Palmer Bittner, 2929 Concordia, St. Charles, MO 63301 (314/946-9727).

'58

Anne Blackman of Chesterfield, MO, managing editor of the West County Journal in Creve Coeur, recently was elected president of the Creve Coeur Chamber of Commerce in St. Louis County.

'60

Judith Batton Brougham of Kansas City recently arranged a concert at the Roanoke Presbyterian Church for Welsh tenor, John Haydn.

'62

25TH-YEAR CONTACT PERSON - Martha Skaer Wright, 2001 W. Geyer, Frontenac, MO, 63131 (314/821-7377).

'63

Judy Hoefler of Easton, CT, has been named president and manager of telecommunications at People's Bank in Bridgeport, CT.

'67

20TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Judith Prowse Reid, 3417 Mansfield Rd., Falls Church, VA, 22041 (703/379-0739).

Margo Musgrove Tann of San Jose, CA, and her husband, Jim, have three children - Johnathan, 17, Emily, 15, and Zachery, 10. She writes that she doesn't want to miss the 1987 Alumni Reunion, her 20th.

'70

Mary Lipson Dunham of Haslett, MI, has received a master's degree in agency counseling from Michigan State University.

'72

15TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - Kathy Leonard 5529 Pershing Ave., #31, St. Louis, MO 63112.

Jean Settle Perrone of St. Charles, received her M.F.A. from Lindenwood last month. She exhibited art work at the Hendren Gallery on campus recently.

'74

Frank Rittenhouse of St. Charles has been employed with Sharp Electronics Corp. for two years as regional sales manager. He reports he is "applying the work habits I so diligently learned in Irwin Hall."

'76

Adrienne Ilona is the name given to the daughter of Naomi Ferencz Farley of East Meadow, NY. She was born June 27, 1986.

Cara Ashley is the name given to the daughter of Jan Richmond Dineen of St. Peters, MO. She was born January 13.

'77

10-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - NONE - Contact the Lindenwood Alumni Office if you are interested in serving as a contact person, (314)946-6912.

Scott Alexander is the name given to the son of Janet Ruppert Bassel of Ballwin, MO, who was born January 9.

Sean Sykes, the five-year-old son of Roy Sykes and his wife, Susan, of St. Peters, MO, recently was selected as 1987 Heart Child of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Heart Association. Sykes, who holds an undergraduate degree in communications from Lindenwood, is a photographer for the St. Charles Journal.

'78

Nancy Schneider of St. Charles has been appointed by Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft to the board of directors at Northeast Missouri State University in Kirksville, MO. She is an attorney in private practice and a trial lawyer for the St. Charles County Juvenile Office.

Eric O. Stuhler of St. Charles has been named a partner in the St. Charles law firm, Rollings, Gerhardt, Borchers & Stuhler, P.C. Stuhler is vice-president of the Lindenwood Alumni Association.

'79

Suzanne Glenzy of Greensboro, NC, is a buyer of junior sportswear and dresses for Belk's Department Stores in North Carolina.

'80

Libby Spillman of Louisville, KY, has pursued a career in performing arts since graduating from Lindenwood. She writes that she has done more than a dozen roles in regional dinner theatres, solo work with small orchestras and taught in a performing arts school. Currently she is doing radio, television and recording work for agencies like Helen Wells in Indianapolis, Faces, Ltd., in Cincinnati and Louisville Performing in a production of "Noises Off" in Naples, FL.

Leslie Church of St. Louis has been promoted to distributor for Venture Stores.

Kevin Collins of Hyde Park, MA, is the director of leasing for Boston Design Center. He writes that he expects to be at the 1987 reunion in October, and that he and his wife, Dawn, are expecting their first child in September. He and his wife were married last October 18.

Stephen Linehan of Lake St. Louis, MO, is president and chief executive officer of Metlife Health Care Network in St. Louis.

Margaret Travis of Foristell, MO, received an award for her sculptured ceramics at the recent Belleville (IL) Ceramics Show. Her art work is available at Grand Gallery South, 3115 S. Grand Ave., St. Louis. She also is a substitute teacher in Wright City and Wentzville public schools.

Alyce Mabrey of St. Charles received a St. Charles School District "Impact Award" that recognizes educators who have had an impact with an idea or technique that has been adopted by other school districts or teachers.

'81

Donald E. Glosier of St. Charles has received the 1987 President's Award from McDonald's Corp. for outstanding service to the firm and to customers. He is St. Louis regional real estate manager for McDonald's Corp.

Theodore Ingram of Shreveport, LA, is a train master with Union Pacific Railroad Co.

Edna Hughes of St. Ann, MO, is a registered nurse who recently retired after 33 years of service with St. Luke's Hospital in St. Louis. She served as director of Ambulatory Care Group at the hospital.

'82

5TH-YEAR REUNION CONTACT PERSON - NONE - Contact the Lindenwood Alumni Office if you can serve as a contact person, (314) 946-6912.

Kristi Lynn Seitz Aubuchon of St. Charles is a teacher's assistant at Becky David Elementary School in St. Charles. She and her husband, Phillip, were married Dec. 20, 1986.

'82

Miriam E. King-Watts of St. Charles, dean of admissions at Lindenwood, has been named Dean of Admissions & Financial Aid at Chatham College in Pittsburgh, PA. A member of the administration for 12 years, she attended Lindenwood from 1962-64 and is a 1966 graduate of Pennsylvania State University. She obtained a master's degree in adult studies at Lindenwood in 1982 after joining the college in 1975 as head resident of the Lindenwood College for Women. She was appointed assistant director of admissions for the college and for the LCIE in 1976 and, four years later, as director of LCIE admissions. She was appointed dean in 1984. Founded in 1869, Chatham is a four-year, private college for women, serving about 700 students.

'83

Michael O'Sullivan of Chesterfield, MO, has been promoted to Manager of Merchandising Systems for Anheuser-Busch, Inc., of St. Louis. Joining the brewing organization in 1981, he formerly served as Manager of Merchandising Development. In the new position, O'Sullivan is responsible for the production and distribution of all point-of-sale advertising materials for Anheuser-Busch beer brands. A 1971 graduate of Southeast Missouri State University, he has a M.B.A. degree from Lindenwood.

Michael Burris of Kalamazoo, MI, employed in quality control with General Motors Corp., is planning a career at the University of Chicago as a representative for the Institute for Athletics & Education.

Betty Knapp-Hardin of St. Charles, was one of several teachers who received an "Impact Award" from the St. Charles School District. The award recognizes ideas or techniques by teachers that have had an "impact" on other educators who have adopted them for their districts.

'84

Kimberly Jones of Pine Bluff, AR, is an early morning DJ at KCAT-AM Radio in Pine Bluff.

Wendy Weger of Lake St. Louis, announces her engagement to Bill Tietjen, associate professor of biology at Lindenwood. She is a part-time laboratory instructor in the Biology Dept. who is pursuing a graduate degree in education.

Ryan Daniel is the name given to the son of Judy Peters and her husband, Daniel L., who was born April 7, weighing 8 lbs., 5 oz. Ryan is the St. Charles couple's first child.

Navy Lt. Frank A. Little of the Naval Medical Command in Washington, DC, recently received the Navy Achievement Medal for superior performance of duty while serving at the Naval Hospital Marine Corps Base in Camp LeJeune, NC. Little, who is a 1981 graduate of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, holds a M.S. degree from Lindenwood. He joined the Navy in 1970.

'86

Donna L. Wallick of St. Louis has been appointed as a teacher and Director of Gifted Education at the Bayless Consolidated School District in St. Louis County. A 17-year member of the Bayless faculty, Wallick will coordinate the new state-funded program for gifted children in the school district, beginning this fall.

Larry Fernandez of St. Louis is working on air at WEW-AM Radio in St. Louis.

DEATHS

'08

Ethel Spencer Craven of Point Reyes, CA

'13

Margaret Bezenberger (nee Baetz) of Cleveland, May, 1986

'18

Marcia Eberlein of St. Louis, Jan. 12, 1987

'32

Phyllis McFarland Austin of Lakeland, FL, Sept. 13, 1986

'38

Allene Holton Conn of Poteau, OK, Dec. 14, 1986

'40

Helen Hellerud Marlow of St. Louis, Jan. 1, 1987

'42

Audrey Jorden Nulsen of Jamestown, NC, May 1, 1984.

'47

Beverly Wilson Hampton of Phoenix, AZ

'57

Eva Orndorff Carpenter

Two alumnae cited for service

Joanne Kleberger O'Keefe of Bellefontaine Neighbors, MO, and Carol Gardner Transou of Johnson City, TN, are recipients of Lindenwood College Alumni Merit Awards for distinguished service. Both were cited during the college's 1987 Spring Commencement.

An active alumna, O'Keefe was honored for outstanding service to her alma mater. She is a former president of the college's St. Louis Alumni Club, past treasurer of the national Alumni Council and former chairperson of the 1985 and 1986 Annual Alumni Reunion and the St. Louis Club's 1983 Fashion Show, an annual alumni fund-raising for Lindenwood College scholarships.

A history teacher at Science Hill High School in Johnson City and 1987 Tennessee Teacher of the Year, Transou was honored for professional accomplishment in her profession. A 27-year veteran in teaching, Transou is in her 21st year at Science Hill.

Alumni nominated for outstanding accomplishments in their professions were Margaret Bassnet Burtin of Lebanon, MO, a 1961 alumna and the city's first councilwoman who is serving her second two-year term; and Jan Kniffen of St. Charles, a 1978 graduate with an M.B.A. and treasurer and director of corporate finance for the May Department Stores Co. in St. Louis.

An alumna who has volunteered much of her life to helping Lindenwood in numerous fund-raising events and alumni activities, O'Keefe also is a volunteer at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in St. Charles.

Married, O'Keefe and her husband, Kevin, a St. Louis attorney, have two children - Christopher and Margaret.

Transou received the Tennessee Teacher of the Year Award for her dedication to the profession, and for "making American history come alive" in the classroom. She, several of her students, and her method of instruction about the Vietnam War were featured in a recent issue of U.S. News and World Report.

O'Keefe is a 1970 graduate of Lindenwood College with a B.A. degree in music education. Transou is a 1958 magna cum laude graduate of Lindenwood with a B.A. degree in history and government. She also attended Vanderbilt University in Nashville, TN, and has completed 30 hours of post-graduate work at East Tennessee State University in Johnson City.

Presented annually by the Lindenwood Alumni Council, the awards are the highest to be bestowed upon Lindenwood graduates. O'Keefe and Transou were nominated for the prestigious awards earlier this year by many of the college's more than 10,000 alumni throughout the United States.

In addition to O'Keefe, other Alumni Merit Award nominees for service to the college include Judith Baton Brougham of Kansas City, MO, a 1960 alumna, member of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors and former member of the Lindenwood Alumni Council; and Margaret A. Ahrens Keeser of St. Charles, a past president of the St. Charles Alumni Club.

When she received the award, Tennessee State Education Commissioner Robert McElrath said she "represents the best qualities of the teaching profession and the many excellent teachers in classrooms across the state. She believes in setting high expectations for herself and for her students and is willing to go the extra mile to help them reach new insights and new goals," McElrath added.

Some previous recipients of the Alumni Merit Awards include Patricia Price Bailey of Washington, DC, a member of the Federal Trade Commission; Robin Smith of KMOV-TV in St. Louis; Diane Stanley of Washington, DC, an officer for the U.S. Information Agency; and Armita Harness of Manhattan Beach, CA, the first female engineer of the U.S. Air Force.

O'Keefe and Transou received the Alumni Merit Awards from Eric Stuhler, a St. Charles attorney and vice-president of the Alumni Council, during the May 16 Spring Commencement in front of historic Sibley Hall.

A TOTE FOR $10* — Purchase a Lindenwood tote bag and support the Alumni Association, which will donate proceeds for scholarships and facilities renovation. As shown by '87 alumnae Melissa Callis, the attractive bags are off-white in color, contain the inscription "Lindenwood College" and feature a drawing of the front gates. Priced at $10 at the Bookstore (*or $11.75 shipped), tote bags are available by sending a check, payable to the Lindenwood Alumni Association, to the Alumni Office, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO 63301.

A Message from Alumni President

Dear Fellow Alumni,

One of the nicest tasks I have had in my first year as president of your Alumni Association has been to review the biographical sketches of alumni who were nominated for the Alumni Merit Awards. One of these awards is given for outstanding professional accomplishment; the other, for special service to the college. Recommendations for these came from you, alumni who wanted to give recognition to one you deemed deserving. The story of these two recipients is on this page; I know you will take pride in reading it.

The Alumni Association, governed by the Alumni Council, now numbers more than 10,000 former Lindenwood students. It is composed of nine members-at-large, a representative of each Alumni Club and alumni who serve on the college's board of directors. The five class presidents or their representatives from the last five years also serve.

The nominating committee will meet soon to prepare a new slate to elect at the fall reunion. If you would like to serve on the council or would like to recommend someone you think would be a good Lindenwood Ambassador, let me know! Leadership given by our volunteers is of great importance to the college's development. This fact is evident in the many positive articles contained in this issue, so thanks for taking a few minutes to be updated on your college. Particularly, read about the college's $1 million challenge on page 1.

Consider becoming an Ambassador of the college. See you at Reunion!
Maurita Stueck, Alumni President

EXCEL Program

College alumni aid admissions efforts

Lindenwood alumni always have recruited students for their alma mater, but usually on an informal basis.

Recently, Esther Fenning, director of alumni affairs, and Miriam King-Watts, dean of admissions, created an alumni advocate program called EXCEL, which means Excellence X Caring=Lindenwood. Participants in the EXCEL program do what Lindenwood alumni always have done, but now they do it with the support and resources of the Admissions Dept., admissions counselors and with the assistance of Jinny Gender ('76) of Kirkwood, MO, coordinator of the EXCEL program.

Alumni participating in the EXCEL program supplement the admissions staff by recruiting outstanding students in key geographic areas of the country. Those taking part in the recruiting program are asked to supply the Admissions Dept. with names of prospective students in their area or to contact students whose names have been furnished by the admissions staff.

EXCEL volunteers also visit area high schools, attend college fairs, provide newspapers with student news and plan events for both alumni and students. On the local level, representatives from Alumni Advocates, a branch of the EXCEL program, talk to prospective students and their parents, provide personalized tours of the St. Charles campus and answer questions about a Lindenwood education.

According to King-Watts, the EXCEL program is branching into the area of adult education. "We are identifying key alumni in area cooperations," she said, "with an object to remind firms that we are here and that we have undergraduate and graduate programs and flexible schedules for adults who want to complete or enhance their educations. We are placing admissions information in personnel offices throughout the metropolitan area." Martin Sherman ('74) of St. Charles is making calls to firms and businesses for the EXCEL program.

"If you would like to join other alumni in the EXCEL program and spread the Lindenwood message to local high schools and traditional students or to adults in your work place, we would like to have you on the team," she said.

To volunteer to be a part of the EXCEL program, contact the Admissions Office at (314) 946-6912.

Lindenwood extends appreciation to the original group of alumni and volunteers taking part in the program, each of whom is a perfect example of EXCEL:

Von Adams ('84) of St. Louis; Phyllis Aki ('83) of Honolulu, HI; Brad Anderson of Franklin, WI; Flora Armon ('82) and Janet Baron ('74) of St. Louis; Stephanie Bassman ('82) of Maryland Heights, MO; Paul Bellina ('82) of Chantute AFB, IL; Peter Bezemes ('79) of Saugus, MA; Stephanie Bischof of St. Charles; Lavada Blanton ('80) of Brooklyn, NY; Theresa Boin ('75) of New York City; Adriene Boyd of Belleville, IL; Karen Bradley ('71) of Nevada, MO; Carol Brown of Bethlehem, PA; Deloris Bruck ('82) of St. Peters, MO; Evelyn Busby ('81) of Florissant, MO; Glen Cerny ('74) of Bowling Green, OH; Chrystal Chostner of San Diego, CA; Christopher Coleman ('76) of Brooklyn, NY; Kevin Collins ('80) of Hyde Park, MA; Richard Conover ('82) of Springfield, MO.

Monique Davenport ('85) of St. Louis; Elaine Dodd ('71) of Tulsa, OK; Josie Erling ('71) of Hermann, MO; Martha Fails ('71) of Grain Valley, MO; Gary Fey ('84) of Toledo, OH; Mary Field of Antlers, OK; Patricia Fish ('70) of Salt Lake City; Judith Friedman ('75) of Takoma Park, MD; Cathren Gamble ('72) of Houston; Jinny Gender ('76) of Kirkwood, MO; Sue Glenzy ('79) of Greensboro, NC; Sharlene Glock (52) of Las Cruces, NM; Linda Gottschalk ('77) of Fort Worth, TX; Margaret Greet ('70) of Rossford, OH; Ann Hanawalt ('71) of Jacksonville, FL; Lisa Henderson ('87) of St. Charles; Lesley Herzog ('70) of Nathrop, CO; William Heusler ('82) of St. Charles; Ann Jaltuch ('72) of Darien, IL; Damita Jeffery ('81) of St. Louis; Berle Johnson ('71) of Kansas City, KS; Lee Jolliffe ('74) of Columbus, OH; Priscilla Jones ('79) of Moore, OK; Suzie Karaffa-Schweizer ('79) of Granville, OH; Karen Keen of St. Charles; Lenora Keener ('73) of Cuyahoga Falls, OH; Jim Knoblauch ('77) of Danville, IL.

Ann Koonce ('79) of Midland, TX; Sara Lovinguth ('71) of Roanoke, VA; Amy Mader ('70) of Neward, OH; M. Elizabeth Marquardt ('73) of Julesburg, CO; Krista ('85) and Ron Martin ('83) of San Diego, CA; Patricia McCaque of Los Altos, CA; Karen McCarty-Wright ('80) of Union, MO; Pat McMackling ('73) of St. Charles; Nubia Mendoza of Chesterfield, MO; Ellen Meyers ('70) of New York City; Glenn Michaels of Brunswick, ME; Chris ('79) and Lisa Miller ('79) of St. Louis; Esther Muench ('62) of King Mountain, NC; Marty Neuman ('83) of St. Charles; Elaine Olsen ('70) of Montesano, WA; Robert Ott of St. Ann, MO; Jane Range ('76) of Granite City, IL; Carolyn Read ('74) of Vidalia, LA; Donna Reese of St. Charles; Susan Rendlen ('81) of Basalt, CO; Judith Retsema ('80) of Jefferson City, MO; Nancy Ross ('82) of Manchester, MO; Tommy Rupinski ('74) of New York City.

And, Wanda Schaeffer ('81) of O'Fallon, MO; Jane Schieber ('75) of Columbus, OH; Susan Schiller ('77) of New York City; Debbie Schnedler ('71) of Belle, MO; Machel Scholey-Mercer ('75) of El Paso, TX; Dixie Smith ('43) of South Charleston, WV; Cynthia Sprenger-Malesky ('75) of Geneva, OH; Mike Taylor ('73) of St. Peters; Pamela Thompson ('79) of St. Charles; Jean Tipton ('78) of Cortez, CO; Susan Tropeano ('71) of Burke, VA; Emily Watson ('38) of Sikeston, MO; Terri Wilder ('76) of Dallas; Lisa Willis ('84) of St. Charles; Meryl Woolf ('71) of Cranston, RI; Ann Wyman ('71) of Fairborn, OH; Suzanne Zeller ('81) of Wheat Ridge, CO; and Constance Zimmer ('72) of Lincoln, NE.

Join Us This Autumn for Alumni Reunion Weekend . . .

OCTOBER 16 -18

Friday Activities:

- 2 - 4 p.m. Registration
- 4:30 - 6 p.m. Alumni/Student Art Exhibit * Reception with Associates of Fine Arts*
- 6 p.m. Dinner at Ayres Dining Hall
- 7:30 p.m. Square Dance with Students and Parents at the Newly-Opened Tea Hole*

Saturday Activities:

- 9 a.m. Annual Alumni Association Meeting and Continental Breakfast
- 11 a.m. Panel Discussion, "The Place of Liberal Arts in the Age of Information," Featuring Jean Fields, John Dooley, Jim Wilson, Alumni and Students*
- 1 p.m. Annual Alumni Luncheon in Ayres Dining Hall
- 3 - 4:30 p.m. Alumni, Parent and Student Activities*
- 4:30 p.m. Wine and Cheese Reception at the Home of Dr. and Mrs. James I. Spainhower*
- 6 p.m. Supper on the Lawn of the Memorial Arts Bldg.
- 8 p.m. Theatre Presented by Dept. of Performing Arts

Sunday Activities

- 8 a.m. Buffet Breakfast in Ayres Dining Hall
- 8:30 a.m. Alumni Ambassadors Meeting
- 10:30 a.m. Service at Lindenwood College Chapel, St. Charles Presbyterian Church* and Help Us Celebrate 160 Years of Quality and Tradition!

*In Conjunction with Parents' Weekend, October 16 - 18
Call the Lindenwood Alumni Office for Further Details, (314) 946-6912

Contralto presents community recital

A community recital featuring well-known contralto Judith Farris of New York City was held recently in historic Sibley Hall Chapel on the Lindenwood campus. The concert was dedicated to Mrs. Margaret Ohrman of St. Charles, a 1929 alumna and long-time friend of the college.

"Because of her never-ending faith and trust in all young people, the dedication she has given to the betterment of education, and because of her personal investment in me, it is with sincere appreciation that I dedicate this recital to Mrs. Margaret Ohrman," Farris said.

In responding to the generosity of Farris, Mrs. Ohrman said, "The appreciation is extended to Miss Farris from us. Any 'reverse appreciation' goes to Dr. Ritter of Cape Girardeau who, among other great qualities, has the ability to detect talent.

"With a slight variation, I quote from Thomas Wolfe's The Web and the Rock, 'If a woman has talent and can not use it, she has failed. If she has talent and uses only half of it, she has partly failed. If she has a talent and learns somehow to use the whole of it, she has gloriously succeeded, and won a satisfaction and a triumph few ever know.'

"To quote from John Massfield, 'Better the World with a Song,'" Mrs. Ohrman said.

Attended by more than 125, the recital featured three arias by George Frideric Handel, songs by Johannes Brahms, "The Confession Stone" by Robert Fleming, songs by Richard Straus, an aria by Gian-Carlo Menotti, and songs by Roger Quilter and Ned Rorem. Farris was accompanied on piano by Ernestine Carr Kirk, director of choral activities at Maryville College.

A native of Cape Girardeau, MO, Farris is a well-known contralto who has appeared as a soloist with the American, National and St. Louis symphonies.

Farris began her career as an apprentice with the Santa Fe Opera. She has appeared with the Opera Theatre of St. Louis, the Tulsa Opera, the Fort Worth Opera, the Chicago Opera Theatre, the Connecticut Grand Opera and the Washington Opera in repertoire ranging from Puccini to Gilbert and Sullivan. She has appeared with the Baltimore Choral Society and the Hartford Symphony, and has performed as a soloist with the Handel Society, New York's Musica Sacra and the Honolulu Symphony.

Cited with numerous awards and honors, Farris is the recipient of the Miriam Anderson Scholarship, the National Arts Club of New York City for Contraltos, the Minna Kaufman Ruud Award, the Lucrezia Bori Award and the Kathryn Long Grant from the Metropolitan Opera.

A graduate of Southeast Missouri State University, Farris is a private voice teacher in New York City, and she is a soloist in the New York Philharmonic's recording of the Beethoven "Choral Fantasy" on RCA Records.

In addition to the concert, Farris presented a workshop on April 27 on campus for Lindenwood performing arts students studying music.

Farris

Grant offers tuition discount for teachers

A $15,000 grant from the Norman J. Stupp Foundation of St. Louis will enable educators in the metropolitan St. Louis area to receive an 80 percent tuition discount for "Books, Media and the Gifted Student," a conference to be held this summer on the Lindenwood campus.

To feature a number of well-known speakers on gifted education, the July 20-24 conference is designed to provide educators with information on research, materials and strategies in working with gifted children.

Educators outside the metropolitan area, including those in adjacent Illinois, the remainder of the United States and Canada, are eligible for a 50 percent tuition credit as long as grant money lasts. Regular tuition for the five-day conference, which offers two semester hours of graduate credit, is $340. With Stupp Foundation scholarship assistance, St. Louis area educators will pay $70, while all others will pay $170.

According to Nancy Polette, conference director and assistant professor of education at Lindenwood, scholarships from the Stupp Foundation are limited, and are on a first-come, first-served basis. Early registration is advised.

Summer camp

Lindenwood will host a camp for cheerleaders June 30 through July 3, open to middle, junior and senior high school students from throughout the United States.

With instruction provided by the Universal Cheerleaders Association (UCA) of Memphis, TN, participants will receive in-depth instruction in new cheers, sideline chants, pom poms, tumbling, conditioning and safety. Cheerleaders also will participate in private coaching sessions during the week-long camp.

Special seminars for cheerleaders as well as sponsors also are scheduled.

Further information about the camp can be obtained by contacting the UCA at (800) 238-0286 or (800) 523-6135 (in Tennessee).

Keynote speakers and workshops presenters include Dr. George Betts of the University of Northern Colorado, an author and a consultant to school districts throughout the United States and Canada; Johanna Hurwitz, an author; Nancy Johnson, a consultant on gifted education and the editor of Good Apple magazine; Patricia McKissack, an authority on the gifted minority child and an author; Peggy Parish, an author and creator of the Amelia Bedelia series for children; Keith Polette, an author and a consultant on literature and higher order thinking; Jerry Shales, a director of library services and a lecturer on media and thinking skills; Gloria Skurzinski, an author; and Joe Wayman, the editor of Challenge Magazine for gifted educators.

"During the conference, participants will experience strategies to totally involve students in reading, writing and language experiences through the integrated use of story and drama throughout the curriculum," said Nancy Polette, herself an author and nationally-known authority on gifted education.

The conference will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. daily in Young Hall Auditorium on the Lindenwood campus. Overnight accommodations are available on campus, and transportation is available to the college from Lambert St. Louis Airport.

For further information on "Books, Media and the Gifted Student," as well as details on scholarship assistance, contact the Lindenwood College Education Dept. at (314) 946-6912.

Film wins United Way award

by MELISSA CALLIS

"The Five-Minute Call," a humorous training film for the United Way produced for Monsanto Co. in cooperation with Lindenwood College, has received an award for "Special Recognition for Excellence in Training" by the United Way of Greater St. Louis.

The 10-minute training film was directed by Peter V. Carlos, communications and video instructor and faculty advisor in the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE). It involves Lindenwood students and staff in talent and production.

According to Eugene F. McCoskey, conference faculty supervisor at Monsanto Co. and a 1987 LCIE alumnus with an undergraduate degree in communications, the training film was designed to teach employees at Monsanto the proper way to solicit fellow employees to donate to the United Way campaign.

"The training medium is so boring," McCoskey said, "so we wanted to approach the project with a humorous angle by having fun showing the drastic wrong way and the correct way to solicit contributions for the United Way."

The video teaches the five correct steps in employee solicitation; for those doing the soliciting, it shows how to make an appointment with fellow employees, how to introduce the United Way and its services, how to ask for an increase in the previous year's pledge, how to answer questions and handle concerns about the United Way and how to ask for a donor's pledge card.

The film uses humorous skits with such well-known figures as Andy Rooney of CBS' "60 Minutes", Peter Falk as Columbo, Sylvester Stallone as Rocky Balboa and Marlon Brando as the Godfather. It also provides background information about the United Way and its more than 100 community service organizations, including the YMCA and the Boy Scouts of America.

"The Five-Minute Call" has been made available to other firms and organizations taking part in the annual United Way campaign, although it was used only for soliciting Monsanto employees, McCoskey said.

The film received recognition at a United Way recognition banquet earlier this year at the Omni International Hotel in St. Louis. It also was submitted for awards in a variety of categories, such as lighting, makeup and corporate training, for the local Emmy Awards by the St. Louis Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

Writers taking part in "The Five-Minute Call" included Carlos, McCoskey and Jennifer Luner and Gene Pfeiffer of Monsanto. LCIE students Cindy Shelly provided talent, Lynne Landholt served as production and talent assistant, and Carol Knight was production assistant.

Nine reelected as directors

Nine members of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors have been reelected to three-year terms on the 30-member governing body.

Members are Mrs. Russell J. Crider, Henry J. Elmendorf, John C. Hannegan and Robert Kaplan, all of St. Charles; Robert G. McKelvey of St. Peters, MO; James O'Flynn of St. Louis; Kenneth W. Thompson of Charlottesville, VA; and David A. Wilhelm and John D. Wolf, both of St. Louis.

A well-known community and civic leader, Mrs. Crider has been a member of the board since 1976. Secretary-treasurer of Jim Meagher Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, Inc., in St. Charles, Elmendorf is completing his second three-year term. A St. Charles attorney with Thompson & Mitchell, Hannegan has been a member since 1977, and serves as secretary of the board. Kaplan, president of Kaplan Real Estate in St. Charles, has served since 1984.

Continued on page 16

A student production

Video salutes 160 years of heritage

'TAKE FIVE, MAKEUP' — Michael G. Lind, an LCIE junior, and Susan L. Wilson study cue cards as makeup is applied by Pattie Wagner during the production of a videotape for the college. Produced as a salute to Lindenwood's 160th anniversary this fall, the 60-second film was made possible through student and volunteer efforts.

Tuition waivers donated for community auction

As a way of showing its support for public television, Lindenwood College donated two tuition waivers, valued at $3,000, to Channel 9 for use in the television station's recent community auction.

Auctioned to the highest bidders on the last day of the fund-raising event, the tuition waivers are for undergraduate studies this fall or next spring. They can be applied to full or part-time instruction at the main campus in St. Charles or at branch facilities in downtown St. Louis, Clayton or near West Port Plaza.

The only conditions to the tuition waivers are that applicants meet regular admissions criteria of Lindenwood and that they be used within the specified time period.

Sherri Grothaus of Silex, MO, a sophomore majoring in business administration and education, and Michelle Luck of Troy, MO, a 1987 graduate of Buchanan High School enrolled as a freshman this fall at Lindenwood, were the successful bidders.

With an estimated audience of 1.2 million in Missouri and Illinois, Channel 9 is a locally-owned, non-commercial station serving a 70-mile radius. Its community auction is an annual event designed to raise funds for programming costs and operational expense.

According to Jan Rahn, auction representative for Channel 9, the tuition waivers are donations that "produce some of the best bidding among viewers of Channel 9."

In return for its awards, Lindenwood received on-air promotion during the May 14-17 auction, including the presentation of a 60-second video produced exclusively for the auction. The video features a salute to this year's 160th anniversary of the private, liberal arts college. In addition to the video, the college was mentioned in Nine Magazine, a monthly periodical for 45,000 Channel 9 supporters, and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Lindenwood also contracted an ad in the April issue of Nine which brought attention to its $3,000 in tuition waivers.

An added feature to Lindenwood promotion this year was live, on-air commentary provided by Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of the Evening College/LCIE Division, and James A. Wilson, chairman of the Communications Dept. and general manager of KCLC Radio. Aired during the "Showcase" segment of the auction, a black-tie affair for gifts valued at $3,000 and more, the interview offered viewers information about Lindenwood and its educational

Continued on page 16

by RANDY WALLICK, Editor

It is 72 degrees outside, but a fire is about to be lit in the fireplace of the Goodall Parlor in the Memorial Arts Bldg. on campus.

As photo floodlights brighten the parlor, a woman in an evening gown and a man in a tuxedo wipe away perspiration as they study cue cards in front of the film crew.

"Quiet on the set!" a voice shouts as the videotape begins to roll.

"Here's to 160 beautiful years," the man says as he raises a champagne glass to toast Lindenwood College's 160th anniversary.

"Beautiful, and stimulating," the woman replies as she, too, toasts the college.

And, so begins the first of several takes for the opening scene in Lindenwood's 60-second video that salutes 160 years of excellence and tradition in education.

"Lindenwood College is more than just another pretty campus," states Susan L. Wilson.

"True," replies Michael G. Lind. "The college's stimulating atmosphere is as much a product of a dedicated faculty and a supportive, community feeling."

"Our accelerated evening program has been cited as a model for adult education nationwide," Wilson states.

Wilson and Lind were selected from more than a dozen people who auditioned for the video. Executive vice-president of Lindhorst, Liem & Wilson, a St. Louis-based advertising and public relations agency, Wilson is a former model and Miss Missouri. Lind is an LCIE student from St. Peters majoring in business administration.

As the video records such campus and classroom scenes as instruction in the Biology Lab, computer science facilities in Young Hall, the beauty of the tree-lined pathways and research services available at Butler Memorial Library, Lind replies, "And, up-to-date facilities give our students hands-on experience and practical skills for the business world."

"Don't forget our programs in science, the arts and hummthies, er humanities..."

"Cut," a voice yells, and the camera stops. "We'll take it again from here. Relax, quiet in the room...action!" The camera records.

"Don't forget our programs in science, the arts and humanities."

"And, our athletics programs...the women's soccer team took fourth place, national, this year," Lind states as both salute Coach Deborah Kehm and the Lady Lions which finished fourth in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics competition last fall.

The video was arranged for promotional use on KETC-TV during the station's community fund-raising auction May 14-17. In return for $3,000 in tuition waivers donated to Channel 9, Lindenwood received on-air promotions, including the airing of the 60-second video.

Shown during the four-day community auction and during a special "Showcase" segment during the final night, the video was viewed by an estimated 950,000 with a 70-mile radius in the St. Louis metro area of Illinois and Missouri.

Produced at little cost to the college, the film involved the volunteer efforts of faculty, staff, students and friends as well as countless hours of writing, editing and filming not to mention rehearsing.

Under the supervision of Peter V. Carlos, faculty advisor and communications instructor in the LCIE, the video was primarily a student project involving LCIE talent. Carlos is an independent producer, director and writer who has taught communications, video production and documentary making at Lindenwood since 1979.

Working with Randy L. Wallick, director of the Public Relations Dept. at Lindenwood, Carlos arranged for Kathleen E. Grimm to write the script. An LCIE senior from Winfield, MO, Grimm is financial aid officer at Lindenwood who also does free-lance writing, art and production work. Carlos also arranged for Dave Smith, an independent cameraman and an adjunct professor of video production in the LCIE, to handle the shooting. Equipment was provided by Producers Communication Services, Inc., of St. Louis, courtesy of Steve West and Parvin Tramel.

Filming took nine hours, and was shot at various locations on the Lindenwood campus such as the Biology Dept., stadium, student center, television studios in Young Hall and Butler Gym as well as the MAB Parlor. Assisting Grimm in hours of late-night production and editing was Karen Johnson of St. Charles, and LCIE senior majoring in communications.

Other LCIE communications majors taking part in the production include Mary Klaucke, a junior from St. Louis, Carole L. Knight, junior from St. Charles, and Alice Neaf of St. Louis, a junior.

Others providing input into the project include Barry Bruns of Producers Communications; Alrene Taich, dean of the Evening College/LCIE, Pattie Wagner, a makeup artist at American Image Beauty Salon in St. Louis; Christine Cordes, director of graphic arts at Lindenwood;

Continued on page 16

SOCCER SALUTE — Peter V. Carlos, left, of the LCIE faculty confers with cameraman Dave Smith of the LCIE adjunct faculty as they prepare to shoot a scene that cites the nationally-ranked Lindenwood women's soccer team.

Major goals set for college

Lindenwood has established four major objectives that will strengthen and expand the college mission, financial stability, future development and reputation and awareness.

In a major address to the Lindenwood community, President James I. Spainhower said the objectives are:

- To continue to fulfill the college mission;
- To regain financial stability;
- To lay solid foundations for the college's future;
- And, to enhance the college's reputation and public awareness of its stature.

Spainhower told all faculty and staff members in the recent address that the college's boards of directors and overseers and its administration were committed to the four major objectives he outlined.

Commenting on the goal to fulfill the college mission, Spainhower said the goal is "to maintain a community of learners where instruction in liberal arts is paramount, where individualized attention is given to each student, and where importance of values in the educational process is emphasized."

Regarding financial stability, he outlined several steps the college was or is taking to achieve a sound and secure financial base.

"Lindenwood has discontinued borrowing to meet operational expenses, and it largely has eliminated short-term debt and, thereby, ended high-interest charges by selling some of its assets."

Teachers offered tuition discounts

Lindenwood College is offering tuition scholarships and housing stipends to Missouri educators of the blind and visually impaired. Scholarships can be applied towards a certification program to be held this summer at the St. Charles-based institution.

Courses and workshops will take place at Lindenwood as well as in Kansas City at the Children's Center for the Visually Impaired, 400 W. 57th St.

All Missouri educators are eligible for tuition scholarships on a first-come, first-served basis. Undergraduate cost is $10 per course or workshop plus tuition scholarship, while graduate cost is $20 plus tuition scholarship. Full lodging stipends are available for double occupancy.

Courses scheduled at Lindenwood June 15-July 17 are "Braille - Reading and Writing", from 1-4 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays; "Orientation and Mobility for Visually Impaired Children", on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon; and "Methods and Materials for Teaching the Visually Impaired", from 4:30-7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. All courses offer two hours of academic credit.

Workshops slated at Lindenwood July 20-31 include "Testing and Assessment of the Visually Impaired", from 1-4 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays; "Conservation and Use of Limited Vision", from

Continued on page 16

Among the assets mentioned were the 50 acres of land sold last year for development of Lindenwood Village, a $80 million retirement complex to be constructed adjacent to the campus; the property on First Capitol Drive that contains Commerce Bank of St. Charles, land that has been leased annually; and the college's share of the Lindenwood College Chapel at St. Charles Presbyterian Church.

The president said increases in levels of giving would be sought from such contingencies as faculty and staff, the board of directors, the board of overseers, alumni, friends of the college, and the business and corporate community in the metropolitan area.

"We have achieved a mix of faculty, staff and program reductions combined with modest increases in tuition and room and board that has produced four balanced budgets," he said. Tuition for the 1987-88 academic year has been increased about nine percent, from $5,200 to $5,680 for full-time students. Room and board is $3,190 for the fall semester.

Two other areas cited by Spainhower include the utilization of college facilities

Kelley named as director

Larry G. Kelley, president of Commerce Bank of St. Charles County, has been elected to the Lindenwood College Board of Directors.

Kelley formerly served on the college's board of overseers, a 30-member group of community and business leaders that works in conjunction with the board of directors to provide programmatic oversight for the St. Charles-based institution. He served as chairman of the board of overseers from 1985-87 and, as such, was a voting member of the board of directors.

Kelley joined the Commerce Bancshares organization in 1966, and was appointed to his present position in 1976.

Community active, he is a member of the St. Joseph Health Center Development Council, the St. Charles County YMCA, the St. Charles Industrial Development Board and the Tri-County United Way Board of Directors. He is a past president of the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce and the Florissant Valley Lion's Club.

Kelley

on a year-round basis, such as conferences and events held on campus, and a continued effort to maximize efficiency in all areas of institutional operations.

To lay a solid foundation for Lindenwood's future, the college will develop a strong student body consisting of full-time traditional students and part-time non-traditional students. It will continue to retain a high calibre of faculty, seek to reduce staff turnover, maintain stability in senior-level administrative positions, expand volunteer leadership, and continue improvement of campus facilities.

Addressing the fourth objective, to enhance the college's reputation and public awareness of its stature, Spainhower said, "To be known as a good college, a college must be a good college. And, a good college like Lindenwood will have an effective public relations program to let the public know how good it really is."

ADMIRING THEIR WORK - Kathleen Carlson, a May graduate, and Kathy Kutay, a sophomore, admire one of their stained glass windows displayed at the Tea Hole on campus. Produced as a class project, the windows feature a rose motif and are valued at $1,500. Carlson and

Stained glass windows presented to college

Two 25x30-inch stained glass windows designed and built by two Lindenwood students have been presented to the college for permanent display in the Student Center Lounge in the newly-opened Tea Hole on campus.

The windows, estimated to be worth $1,500, were given to the college by Kathleen Carlson of St. Louis, a 1987 graduate, and Kathy Kutay of St. Charles, a sophomore.

They were produced as part of a class project for Art 236, "Three-Dimensional Design," a course taught by John H. Wehmer, professor of art. The three-hour undergraduate course explores three-dimensional space and design and problems associated with open and closed areas, mass and volume. Basic fabrication skills also are taught.

"We discussed some ideas with Professor Wehmer, and decided to do a stained glass window for the Tea Hole," Kutay said. "Once we got into the project, we decided to do another one for the other side." The students estimate more than 100 man-hours went into the project.

The president concluded his address by saying that Lindenwood has made tremendous accomplishments in recent years, but there is still a need for improvement. As examples of accomplishments, he cited reduction of the college's short and long-term debt; four years of balanced operating budgets; increased giving in all areas, particularly among alumni, the boards of directors and overseers and the corporate community; and the attraction of quality students who have high ACT (American College Testing) scores.

"The four objectives I have outlined are our matching orders now and for the immediate future," Spainhower said. "Together, we can march towards making this grand old college an even better institution as it begins its 160th year of quality and tradition in higher education," he said.

The stained glass windows replace two panes on each side of the fireplace in the Student Center Lounge. A rose motif on the fireplace mantel is the design used for both windows.

Materials used for the windows were provided by the college, including clear glass from old windows in historic Sibley Hall.

Carlson is a business administration major, while Kutay is majoring in studio art.

Dedicated earlier this year, the Tea Hole contains a snack bar, lounges, pool and ping-pong tables, study areas, kitchen facilities, a snack bar, meeting rooms and the lounge.

The total cost of relocation of the Tea Hole from Nicolls Hall, as well as the improvement of the facility, was financed by a $5,400 contribution from the Kiwanis Club of St. Charles.

Lindenwood 1,000 says 'thank you'

In appreciation of the support it has received in recent months, Lindenwood College hosted a Theatre Night during the spring semester, an event that paid tribute to contributors who have given to the 160-year-old institution.

Special recognition went to the St. Charles Kiwanis Club (Noon Day) for its support, which includes sponsorship of the college's Circle K Club, financial assistance for scholarship awards and its recent $5,400 contribution for refurbishing the student center on campus.

Theatre Night consisted of a reception, special recognition to members of the Lindenwood 1000 Club and a performance of Neil Simon's comedy, and Carmine Ficocelli, an electrician with the college's Maintenance Dept. Lind's tuxedo was provided at cost by Thro's Clothing Co. of St. Charles, courtesy of Frank Netsch, while flowers used in the Goodall Parlor scene were provided by Parkview Gardens Flowers & Gifts of St. Charles.

Videotape

Continued from page 14

"The friendly atmosphere, the academic reputation, you know, it all seems too good to be true," Lind states.

"With 160 graduating classes, we must be doing something right!"

"Happy anniversary, Lindenwood College!" both toast to the camera as a song from American jazz composer Scott Joplin is heard and the camera pans to the family crest of Maj. George and Mary Easton Sibley.

The film, which may be used for other promotional television spots as part of the future marketing plans for Lindenwood, is an example of the professionalism that can be created through volunteer efforts at the college. More importantly, it exemplifies the quality of instruction and the calibre of students found at the 160-year-old liberal arts institution.

"Happy anniversary, Lindenwood College" best sums up the video.

KETC-TV

Continued from page 14

offerings, such as broadcast communications, KCLC and adult programs.

An audience estimated at nearly 950,000 watched the four-day fund-raising event featuring Lindenwood promotions.

Lindenwood was the first college in the metropolitan area to show its support for the community auction through the donation of tuition waivers, beginning in 1984. Since then, nearly $11,000 has been provided in direct support to Channel 9 through tuition waivers and scholarship assistance. Lindenwood's involvement with Channel 9 stems from a relationship arranged by Randy L. Wallick, public relations director, in cooperation with the Lindenwood Scholarship Committee, chaired by Larry Sackman, director of financial aid and scholarships.

This year, the committee awarded more than $725,000 in direct support for undergraduate and graduate scholarships to deserving students, which includes the $3,000 earmarked to Channel 9.

"Chapter Two," staged by the Lindenwood Performing Arts Dept. The Lindenwood 1000, an organization of local community and business leaders who contribute from $100 to $1,000 or more annually to the college, hosted the event.

"The recent Theatre Night was our way of thanking the community for the tremendous response it has given Lindenwood College in recent months," said James D. Thompson, director of development.

All levels of support, including those from local community, alumni and corporations and foundations, have shown dramatic increases this fiscal year as part of the college's Renaissance Campaign to secure $10 million in fund raising. For the first time in its 160-year history, the college anticipates a record $1 million in gifts by the time its fiscal year ends June 30, Thompson added. With six weeks remaining, the college has raised about $900,000 in cash and contributions, surpassing last year's

Computers

Continued from page 4

The powerful database INGRES was acquired for $200 from the University of California at Berkeley, and also was installed at considerable savings. Considered to be the "original" relational database, INGRES provides Lindenwood students with hands-on experience in the "hottest" kind of database programs, Dooley said.

Regarding the potential for continued growth in the Mathematics & Computer Science Dept. and in the computer science major, Dooley is optimistic. "I feel we have something special to offer that will continue to serve our students and their prospective employers — the combination of a strong technical and scientific education in computer science plus the literacy, writing and communication skills that come from liberal arts.

"This combination of technical and communication skills is exceptionally marketable in the workplace," Dooley added.

Further information on the college's Computer Science Program can be obtained by contacting Dooley or the Admissions Office at (314) 946-6912.

Quarters

Continued from page 1

"The LCIE program strives to keep current with the business world so students may be offered the courses needed to meet the requirements sought in their chosen fields," Taich said. "For example, the academic requirements for the Professional Psychology field of study recently have been updated to match professional licensing requirements, and the Valuation Sciences Dept. is coordinating its program with the American Society of Appraisers to provide the most current information available in the appraisal profession," she added.

With the switch to the quarter system for the LCIE, the new fall term begins October 2 for all adult programs. Day courses for traditional students remain on the semester calendar, and the fall semester begins on September 2.

12-month total of $787,000 in fund raising.

At Theatre Night, special recognition was given to Kiwanis Club members Paul D. Orf, president of the St. Charles club, Frank C. Young, immediate past president, and Rudy Beck of the Kiwanis Scholarship Committee, each of whom has been instrumental in aiding the liberal arts college, Thompson said.

Summer courses

Continued from page 15

9 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Fridays; "Anatomy and Physiology of the Eye", from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays; and a graduate seminar, "Braille Math", from 1-4 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The graduate seminar offers one hour of credit, while the other three workshops offer two hours.

Courses in Kansas City, offered June 15-July 17, include "Methods and Materials for Teaching the Visually Impaired", from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays; "Conservation and Use of Limited Vision", from 9 a.m. to noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays; "Anatomy and Physiology of the Eye", from 1-4 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays; and "Orientation and Mobility for Visually-Impaired Children", from 1-4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A workshop, "Testing and Assessment of the Visually Impaired", also is scheduled September 16-November 18, from 5-8 p.m. on Wednesdays, at the Children's Center.

Courses at Lindenwood as well as the Kansas City site may be applied toward a graduate degree in education with an emphasis on teaching the blind and visually paired. Course instruction will be provided by Lindenwood faculty members, registered professionals and officials of the Children's Center.

This year's expanded program for Missouri educators is sponsored by the Lindenwood Education Dept. in conjunction with the Children's Center for the Visually Impaired.

Enrollment is limited for both courses and workshops, and early registration is advised.

For further information on availability of scholarships and housing stipends, contact the Lindenwood College Education Dept. at (314) 946-6912, extension #356.

Reelected members

Continued from page 13

Completing his first three-year term, Thompson directs the White Burkett Miller Center of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, and also serves as commonwealth professor of government and foreign affairs.

Board members since 1984, O'Flynn is president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, Wilhelm is president of the Forsyth Group in St. Louis and Wolf is executive vice-president of operations for McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Co.

The board oversees the management and direction of the 160-year-old liberal arts college.

The cost of relocating and refurbishing the student center, known as the Tea Hole, was financed by the Kiwanis Club in recognition of the Circle K, Lindenwood's chapter of the world's largest service organization.

During Theatre Night, a plaque was presented to Orf and Young, honoring the Kiwanis Club for its support. The plaque is displayed permanently in the Tea Hole as an inspiration for other community groups and organizations that can show support for the college.

Located in the center of the campus, the Tea Hole is a hub of student activity. Named for a popular center of activities in the early and mid-1900s, the Tea Hole contains a snack bar, study and meeting areas, lounges, ping-pong and pool tables, meeting rooms, kitchen facilities and a game area.

For St. Charles area readers interested in finding out more about the Lindenwood 1000, contact the college's Development Office at 946-6912, extension #338.

Scholarship endowment

Continued from page 1

"This is a very rewarding endeavor since we have met so many applicants who are bright, dynamic young people deeply concerned about their higher education," he said.

"We know that this trust will impact positively on the leaders of tomorrow," stated Frank C. Young, immediate past president of the club.

Scholarships will range from $1,000-$6,000 and will be awarded on the basis of academic achievement, extra-curricular and community involvement, financial need and leadership potential.

The highest award is the Renaissance Medal of Honor, which is presently jointly by Lindenwood College and the Kiwanis Club. The college and the club each provide $3,000 "to one of the finest college students in the state of Missouri," said James D. Thompson, a Kiwanis Club member and administrator at Lindenwood. "The award is presented to an individual who exemplifies the highest personal, community, service and academic calibre of both the college and the Kiwanis Club," he added.

The Renaissance award is in addition to smaller scholarships provided to local students by the Kiwanis Club. This year's recipient was Douglas W. Hoggatt of St. Peters, a senior this fall majoring in English.

Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower said, "Members of the Kiwanis Club are like honorary fathers to our students, and they have done a yeoman job of working with the college."

Lindenwood fully matches Kiwanis Club scholarships, meaning that any recipient can double the amount of scholarship assistance.

For further information on the St. Charles Kiwanis Club Scholarship Program, contact Rudy Beck of the club's Scholarship Committee or Jim Thompson, advisor to the Lindenwood Circle K Club.