LINDENWOOD TO REOPEN TODAY AFTER VACATION

Lindenwood College will reopen after three weeks' vacation this morning. The first assembly of the New Year will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, in Roemer Auditorium. The student body will begin immediately to practice singing the standard Lindenwood song, for which a $25 prize was awarded just before Christmas, jointly to Misses Kathryn Walker and Helen Roper.

President and Mrs. John Lincoln Roemer have returned from a vacation visit to relatives in Davenport, Ia. Dean Alice E. Gipson spent the holidays at her home in Caldwell, Idaho.

DR. AND MRS. J. L. ROEMER TO GO TO ATLANTIC CITY

Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer of Lindenwood College will leave tomorrow for Atlantic City to attend the national Educational Week exercises there, beginning Monday. The various denominational educational boards will hold a council in the early part of the week, followed by two days' session of the Presbyterian College Union at Hotel Strand, which will bring together representatives of fifty-seven different Presbyterian institutions, one of which is Lindenwood.

At a session jointly with the council of church boards of education, there will be a discussion of "The College's Opportunity to Contribute to the Preparation of the Christian Teacher, the Minister and the Missionary." Another leading topic will be, "Religious Education for the Twentieth Century."

Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer of Lindenwood College left Saturday for Atlantic City, N. J., to spend about two weeks in the East. They will attend the sessions of Educational Week, in Atlantic City, which are to include annual meetings of the Association of American Colleges and of the Presbyterian College Union. At the end of the week they will go to New York City for several days to visit friends. A social affair in their honor is planned, about Jan. 17, by the New York Lindenwood College Club, which was represented at Lindenwood's centennial here last May, and which has in its membership a number of former St. Louis women.

Educational Week.

Among educators attending the fourteenth annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges, January 12-14, in Atlantic City, will be Dr. and Mrs. John Lincoln Roemer of Lindenwood College, who left for the east Saturday and will attend all the meetings of Educational Week, beginning Monday at Atlantic City. The Presbyterian College Union, representing fifty-nine Presbyterian colleges, is included in the grouping. This year's meeting of the Association of American Colleges is particularly interesting to women's colleges, because the association president is a woman, President Lucia R. Briggs of the Milwaukee-Downer College. Among the reports to be given will be one of a special commission on "The Cost of College Education." Prof. Mark A. May of Yale, Dr. Maynard M. Metcalf of Johns Hopkins, Prof. Carl C. Brigham of Princeton, and President Lawrence Lowell of Harvard are on the program. "The College Curriculum for Women," a discussion led by Dr. Meta Glass, president of Sweet Briar College, will be a subject in line with Lindenwood's recent research for vocations of women.

Before returning, Dr. and Mrs. Roemer have been invited in the week of January 16 to attend a function of the New York Lindenwood College Club. This club was well represented at Lindenwood's Centennial last May, and its president is a former St. Louis woman, Mrs. George Pegram of South Orange, N. J., formerly Miss Jessie Crawford.

The first dancing party of the season, in Butler gym, at Lindenwood College Friday evening was a sort of farewell to the students to the president, Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, and Mrs. Roemer, who left yesterday for the West, to spend two weeks in Atlantic City and New York. They will devote the coming week to the programs of National Educational Week in Atlantic City, attending two important conventions of bodies, of which Lindenwood is a member, the Presbyterian College Union and the Association of American Colleges.

The Roemers' visit to New York will be of a social nature, where they will renew friendships with former Lindenwood girls of New York City, who came West for the college centennial last May. Mrs. George Pegram, who was formerly Miss Jessie Crawford of St. Louis, will preside at a social affair to be given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Roemer, by the New York Lindenwood College Club, of which she is president.

Local Girl in Unusual Party

Miss Helen Rudolph of Atlantic who is president of the Iowa club at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., participated with the other members of this club in the management of a party out of the ordinary at Lindenwood, in Butler gymnasium, last evening. The affair was a "farm party." The Nebraska club and the Rocky Mountain club were co-hostesses.

The party was decidedly a clever success. Advertising posters placed at various advantageous points about the campus were decorated with pictures of farm animals and the figure "13," with also what seemed several meaningless letters of the alphabet but which soon spelled (as some were added each day) an invitation to the party.

Everyone came dressed in simple girlish calico or gingham gowns, and had a great deal more fun than when the costumes were formal. The gymnasium was realistically decorated as a barn, with farm implements and hay and coops of live chickens. For fear that these guests (the chickens) might be handled or fed and made ill, their coops were decorated with signs warning the girls not to "feed the wild animals." During the evening there were dances in which all participated, when the college secretary, Mr. Motley, as master of ceremonies, called off real square dances and reels. At intermission there was an excellent program of singing and dancing in farmer outfits, which was enjoyed immensely by all. At the close of the evening refreshments of popcorn balls and cider were served, and when the retiring bell rang, sending the tired farmers and farmerettes off to bed they all voted it as one of the happiest evenings of the year.

The Western Club of Lindenwood College, composed of girls from Nebraska, Iowa and the Rocky Mountain region, gave a "farm party" Friday night in Butler gymnasium, which was decorated like a barn, realistically adorned with stalls of hay, wherein grazed a small pony. In one corner a coop was filled with chickens.

During the week preceding the party posters informed the student public that something was to happen on Friday night. The girls came dressed as farmerettes. Dressed in overalls, gingham aprons and the like, they danced among "cows," "pigs" and cornstalks. At noon Friday, preceding the party, programs arranged for sixteen dances had been put in each girl's mail box, the front of each program showing a "most contented cow."

RAYON EXHIBIT TO OPEN AT LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

A "rayon exhibit," the first of its kind at Lindenwood College, will open this morning, to continue all week. It is being given by the home economics classes, under the direction of Miss Thora Strain of the faculty and is open to all interested.

There are displays of the four different standard kinds of rayon, each manufactured by a distinctive method. The "viscose" display is unique, showing the fabric from the time it is started until the finished yarn is developed. The part that wood plays as a basis is shown.

Among the various types of rayon which will be shown are the "nitrocellulose," or Chardonnet; "cupramonium" and "cellulose acetate." Materials or threads of each will be shown.

There is also a display of rayon garments which have been washed several times. Each of these garments has been measured before and after washing, to see if there is any shrinkage or other deterioration. Comparison is being made between garments of silk and rayon to determine which will better stand washing and which will give longer wear.

Booklets and other articles on rayon received from Washington, issued by the government as the result of research, will be on exhibit. Any visitor may study here the processes of manufacturing this comparatively new fabric.

STUDENTS ARE TOLD

Critic Addresses Linden-
and Shows Examples.

"Women in Art" was the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Emily Grant Hutchings, art critic of the GLOBE-DEMOCRAT, yesterday morning, at the Thursday assembly in Roemer auditorium, at Lindenwood College. She presented several paintings and works of art in fabrics and embroidery, illustrating her chief argument that "woman has always been the inspiration of art."

Treating specifically of what woman has done, Mrs. Hutchings told of the first woman painter in history, Vigee Lebrun, court painter to Marie Antoinette. A copy of the Lebrun portrait of Marie Antoinette was shown. The second woman painter in history was Angelica Kauffmann, and the third, after a lapse of forty years, was the great painter of animals, Rosa Bonheur. The speaker pointed out the difficulties, which had been in the path of women with real artistic ability.

Among the portraits shown was Gainsborough's portrait of Mrs. Hallett and Sir Peter Lely's portrait of Nell Gwynne. Among fabrics were shown a New England hooked rug, a "slendang" of Javanese batik about 100 years old, a modern scarf of batik, done by Mrs. Camilla Bringhamst Hammond, daughter of Robert Bringhamst, the sculptor; a very old Spanish mantilla of cream lace; a Japanese houri coat and a Persian embroidered shawl, about 200 years old; a modern Florentine embroidered shawl, a hand-woven Persian princess coat of red silk and gold thread woven in elaborate brocade. The last-named work of art and both the Persian shawl and the Japanese houri coat were from the collection of Mrs. Christopher W. Johnson.

Mrs. Hutchings urged the students to remember the satisfaction which may be derived from a study of the beautiful, far transcending any modern tendency toward "speed of motion," or indolent indifference.

WYMORE GIRL DISTINGUISHES HERSELF IN LITERATURE

Miss Irene Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dawson, of Wymore, recently had published in the literary supplement of the "Linden Bark", the campus weekly of Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., an article on "Ideals of College Education," selected from a number of its kind, because of its excellence. The literary supplement of "Bark" is issued once a month, and is the weekly publication of this student paper, and is circulated throughout the entire student body. The article written by Miss Dawson, who is a Freshman at Lindenwood, follows in full:

"The entire object to true education is to make people not merely do the right thing, but enjoy right things." That is education in its entirety.

In teaching children right from wrong one cannot tell them not to do the wrong and then leave them to comprehend the demand. But he must make the right seem as rascinating and full of possibilities as the wrong looked. Then, when the children learn that the latter proves to be real joy and that the former is merely an empty semblance of it, they will choose the right always. In the same way, people who are only grown up children, must be taught. A true education teaches them to know life as it is and to be unafraid to face it squarely. When they have come in contact with the most lasting, genuine facts of all the ages. (As they will do in college). They will come to know and understand the true meaning of all life. It is then that they will strive for the thing that will make their life the richest and most complete."

Art Crafts' Guild World
Contest Cup Awarded.

An engraved silver cup, 24 inches high, was added to the trophies of Lindenwood College yesterday by the presentation on behalf of the Art Crafts Guild of Chicago of the highest award for "the finest annual published by any woman's college in America or in the world."

The speech of presentation was made by President John Lincoln Roemer, who summoned to the platform the thirteen girls constituting the Linden Leaves staff for this year. Several of the number were members of the staff of 1927, for which centennial edition the cup was awarded.

Dr. Roemer read a letter from the Central Engraving Company of St. Louis, through which the Art Crafts Guild made its selection.

"When you take into consideration," the letter observed, "all the fine woman's colleges in the United States that publish books for larger student bodies than yours, and costing more money than the Centennial Linden Leaves, you will realize that your volume has competed with the best and has won the greatest achievement possible." The Central Engraving Company did the engraving.

LEE'S SUMMIT GIRL DESCRIBES COLLEGE FEAST.
Miss Gloria Butterfield of Lee's Summit, has received the distinction at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., of having one of her themes in the English department published in the literary supplement of the weekly Linden Bark. Selection of this material is made by the teachers, the supplement appearing once a month.

Typical College Feast.

By Gloria Butterfield.
At ten o'clock with a disgusted manner, I throw my pencil aside, my books on the window, and start toward the door. After tripping over the bridge lamp and kicking aside the rug, I reach it.

What sights my eyes behold!—girls from our halls, dressed in pajamas, girls from adjoining halls, with coats covering scant clothing. They shriek as they see gayly cretonned bedspreads and curtains, an old fashioned fireplace, boudoir pillows and dolls thrown on an overturned trunk, two sets of chairs and a study table—all which constitute the setting for one of the most informal and delightful experiences of college life—a feast at "rec." But their happy smiles fade verceptibly when they see no food.

I laugh, then drop to my knees, and drag three boxes from under the bed. The girls shiek, reach into the first box, and pull out bunches of luscious grapes, bright ruddy apples and large juicy pears. The second and third boxes contain delicious fresh "lady fingers" and nut stollen, with a jar of black-berry jam for tartness.

All too soon we see it is twenty-five and hasten to close the boxes, and push them back into their most excellent hiding place. Each girl makes her short hegira to her room, shouting her appreciation of the feast. With the last each, dying away in the halls, mingles the shrill "lights out" bell.

AT SECOND PRESBYTERIAN

"Young People's Night" will be celebrated at the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, tomorrow night, beginning with a tea at 6:15 o'clock, continuing with two brief meetings of two young people's societies, and culminating in a service with young people as ushers and singers. At this 8 o'clock service the pastor, Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, will preach a sermon especially to young people on "Not Tomorrow, But Today."

A sextette of students from Lindenwood College, consisting of Misses Euneva Lynn, Alice Plass, Virginia Rhorer, Lillian Wolf, Iris Fleischaker and Dorothy Gartner, with Miss Cora N. Edwards as accompanist, will sing. Young people are to be present from the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., from Washington University and other schools. The church choir also will sing, and an organ recital of fifteen minutes will precede the service, with numbers by Joseph Bonnet and Frysinger. Miss Virginia Neville will lead the 7 o'clock young people's service.

Tonight Young People's Night. To the 8 o'clock service we urge all young people, as well as older ones, to come. Special music will be sung by the Lindenwood College Sextette, under the direction of Miss Cora N. Edwards. Dr. MacIvor's sermon will be one of particular interest to young men and women. We are glad to have young people make this their Church home and the center of their activities.

Miss Gertrude Prack, secretary of young people's work at the Second Presbyterian Church, yesterday told students of Lindenwood College "how much influence college girls possess."

"Many of the teen-age girls," she said, "are apt to take you as a model just because you're 'in college.' Generally you are apt to think the other way around. You are apt to criticize the saleswoman at the counter, and the way she waits on you. Stop a moment; remember you may yourself be a subject of criticism, or, at least, of example."

Mary E. Helphenstine Found Dead in Bed

Death from Heart Trouble Discovered by Neighbors Who Force Door of Home on Friday Evening.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Helphenstine, 58, who lived alone in the old brick mansion at the corner of Garrett and Montgomery streets, just west of the grade school building, was found dead in her bed at about 7:30 Friday evening by a party of neighbors and friends who, alarmed by her not having been seen for two days, went to the home and gained entrance by forcing a rear door. Coroner Higgins of Arcola was summoned, and gave his opinion that death had occurred about forty-eight hours before, probably from heart failure and without suffering, as the bed clothing was not disarranged, death evidently having come quietly, as she slept.

Miss Helphenstine was an earnest worker in Ebenezer Presbyterian church, and was last seen alive at prayer meeting at that church on Wednesday evening, of which she was the leader, at which time she seemed in her usual health, but mentioned to friends that she was suffering some pain in her back. She and Miss Nettie Mitchell were to discuss some work of a missionary society committee after the prayer meeting, but as the service was followed by choir practice they postponed the discussion, and on Thursday Miss Mitchell tried several times to telephone Miss Helphenstine, receiving no answer. This was not unusual, as Miss Helphenstine was frequently absent from home for hours, attending to personal business or church work, but when the calls were still unanswered on Friday and the phone operator reported that the line had been silent since Wednesday, Miss Mitchell became uneasy, and began inquiries among Miss Helphenstine's neighbors. When it was realized that no one had seen her since Wednesday, a party of neighbors and friends went to the house, which they found to be locked, but with mail in the outside box which has accumulated since Thursday morning, and a window open in the second floor bedroom usually occupied by Miss Helphenstine. After consultation it was decided to force a back door, when the tragic discovery was made and the coroner and prosecuting attorney notified. On their arrival the coroner decided that no inquest was necessary, it being plain that death was from natural causes.

Among the party going to the house were Rev. H. S. Claypool, pastor of Ebenezer church, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. George Furby, Miss Veva Furby, Mrs. W. H. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Scroggs and Miss Nettie Mitchell.

Miss Anna Helphenstine, supervisor of music in the Kansas City schools, a sister of the deceased and her only near relative, was notified and left Kansas City at once, arriving here early Saturday morning.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. J. Allen and Rev. H. S. Claypool at Ebenezer church on Sunday afternoon, attended by a large gathering, and interment was made in the family lot in Greenfield cemetery.

Mary Elizabeth Helphenstine was born in Greenfield, August 2, 1869, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos P. Helphenstine. Her father, who was a veteran of the Civil war and a descendant of the Hollanders who settled in America in early pioneer days, came to Greenfield from Pennsylvania in 1867 and established a hardware business, returning to Indiana in a few months and bringing here his bride.

ROBERT S. L.

In her early womanhood Miss Helphenstine united with Ebenezer Presbyterian church, and was a faithful and consistent worker until her death. She had taught the primary class of the Sunday school for nearly forty years, and was also active in all other church work.

She was educated at old Ozark College of this city and at Lindenwood College of St. Charles, graduating from the latter institution in 1888.

Her mother died in 1910, and her father in 1914, since which time she had lived alone in the old home built by her father soon after his locating here.

She leaves one sister, Miss Anna Helphenstine of Kansas City, and many friends, especially among the workers of her church, where she will be greatly missed and sincerely mourned.

ANNOUNCES NEW COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY PROCESS

A new color photography process, adapted to the making of lantern slides for scientific uses to illustrate lectures has been announced by Dr. Arden R. Johnson, head of the chemistry department of Lindenwood College. The results of his work are soon to be published in the British Journal of Photography.

It is claimed for this process that it is an entirely new departure in color photography, since it is concerned with the reproduction of arbitrarily selected color in such work as reproducing colored maps and drawings. The colors are obtained without the use of any dyes, and the process is sufficiently simple to be available to the ordinary laboratory worker with ordinary photographing materials.

The finished plate is as transparent to light as slides made by the black and white process.

First of Six Lenten Services Held in Lindenwood Chapel

Dr. Roemer, President of
er Pronunciation.'

By request of the Y. W. C. A. at Lindenwood College, special Lenten services were inaugurated in the college chapel yesterday, to be conducted each Sunday morning, at 11:30 o'clock, for six weeks, by the president of the college, Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer. The series began with a discourse yesterday on the unusual subject, "Proper Pronunciation," which was interpreted with a spiritual significance, from the words of St. Paul, 1 Cor. 14, 19: "I had rather speak five words with my understanding than 10,000 words in a tongue."

"The Apostle Paul," said Dr. Roemer, "had experienced an unintelligent service in the Corinthian church. Whatever was the language of 'tongues,' it was understood only by the emotional feeling of the worshipper. It was not edifying to the church—that was certain in the Apostle's mind. The words spoken might be understood by God, but not by man. Paul had reached the height of his patience, and he emphatically declares, 'I had rather speak five words that could be understood than 10,000 that no one can understand.'"

Pronunciation Important.

"Pronunciation of words in intelligent speech is very important. Dictionaries are published not only to tell us the meaning of words, but the proper way to pronounce them. When a speaker pronounces a word differently from the way you have known, your intellectual sensibilities are jarred. A mispronounced word will long be remembered."

The speaker referred to a recent book, "Seven Thousand Words Frequently Mispronounced." "It is appalling to think that every time you open your mouth there are 7000 chances of making yourself ridiculous. It is reassuring, however, that most of the 7000 words we shall never need to pronounce."

Dr. Roemer called attention to the fact that small words rather than long ones are of greatest worth in common speech. "Here are three words which he urged on his hearers—"God," "I" and "they."

"Mistakes in pronouncing the greatest word known, 'God,' may be three in number. Some never pronounce the word at all. God never comes into their thoughts. They take everything as a matter of course. Such people fail to see that life is purposeless without God. Then there are those who pronounce the name in profanity. They do not always mean to be irreverent, but often speak as they do because of a lack in their vocabulary. Byron says, 'He knew not what to say, and so he swore.'"

Someone Like Voltaire.

"A third mistake is to pronounce the name as though God were far away. Some people are like Voltaire, who lifted his hat as he passed a crucifix; a friend remarked to him, 'I thought you were an infidel,' and Voltaire answered, 'We salute, but we do not speak.' That is how some people acknowledge God's bounty."

The speaker warned about the pronunciation of the word "I," lest one think only of self; and about the word "they," which "divides the speaker from the rest of the world."

"'God,' 'I' and 'they,' when pronounced correctly, put us in proper relations with the divine and human life, and to our responsibilities, which will give meaning to our sojourn in this land of our pilgrimage. If we learn to use these three words correctly, we need not worry about the 7000."

At Deans Meeting.

Attending the annual meeting of Deans of Universities and Colleges, which meets this week in Boston, Mass., will be Dean Alice E. Gipson of Lindenwood College. She expects also to visit Washington, D. C., and New York before her return next week.

Voice of People Not Voice of God, Says Dr. Roemer

Choices for Leadership Not Popular Selection, He Asserts.

"Television," said Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer in a Lenten sermon at Lindenwood College yesterday, "was the secret of the Almighty before man ever thought of looking at the face of his fellowman 1000 miles away."

The sermon was on an Old Testament text, "The Lord seeth not as man seeth. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

"God's television," said Dr. Roemer, "is beyond the outward appearance. He sees this world in its every thought; in its every purpose; in its greatest possibility."

Reviewing certain leaders of prophetic times, the speaker said the theory "Vox populi, vox Dei" does not hold good. "The voice of the people is not the voice of God." As to God's choice of David for king, "the youngest, tending sheep, the unseen, the unknown, proved God's choice."

God's Choices.

"The little boy (Moses) found on the banks of the Nile was not the choice of Israel for deliverer from Egypt."

"Few would have selected Abraham Lincoln to occupy the niche he does among earth's immortals. The selection was not the result of a popular election. God's choices for leadership are not the popular selections. God has a way, all his own, of looking at things."

Referring to a charge that the present age is afflicted with "golditis," Dr. Roemer said: "Aaron and the golden calf were as nothing compared with the worship of the golden idol that allures the world today. There is new meaning to gold. Luxuries have become necessities. At any risk nations and peoples seek to possess material wealth, to realize life that is life indeed to them. This is the greatest menace to world peace. The blessings of wealth are turned to curses by the desire of man to deify its power for selfish purposes."

Coveted Gold.

"Our own country is one of the best hated nations on earth, for the reason that it has quantities of gold which other nations covet. Our right use and not abuse of gold is our greatest safeguard. If we turn our dollars into deities, there is nothing that can save us from national destruction. All the peace societies we can organize will be impotent to avert the catastrophe."

"The state of the world will not be changed by statutes. Statutes are guide-posts. What society accepts as right, it embodies in law. People are prone to over-emphasize the making of laws to make a better people. Should our lawmakers take a vacation, we would not be damaged greatly."

"The effectiveness of any law is the willingness of citizens to obey it. This better world for which we are looking is of our making. There is no shifting of responsibility; no world panacea possible without your part in it. 'God looketh upon the

Lafayette Park Church Observes Fiftieth Anniversary

Dr. Walter F. McMillin of Philadelphia Gives Opening Service.

"Well done, Lafayette Park," was the greeting given yesterday morning by Dr. Walter F. McMillin, pastor of the Central North Broad Street Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Pa., in the opening service of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Lafayette Park Presbyterian Church, corner of Missouri avenue and Albion place, where he was pastor for fourteen years. In keeping with the golden anniversary, the church was beautifully decorated with yellow roses and astors, and two illuminations bearing the dates 1878 and 1928.

One of the largest audiences in the history of the church was congratulated by Dr. McMillin for the fifty years of service. He also congratulated all who have been identified with the church at any time, and all the present members.

Mr. McMillin compared the Lafayette Park Church with the ancient Church of Philadelphia, taking his text from Rev. 3:7-13, and finding that these churches have many of the same characteristics.

The Church of Philadelphia was founded from a colony, and the city was given the name of a man who loved his brother. In the same way our forefathers struggled and Lafayette came from France to give his support to the church.

Strength Founded on Truth.

"Philadelphia was the only city of Asia erected for a missionary purpose, and likewise the church of Lafayette Park was founded to give only the information of one who died on the cross. Thank God that the cross of Christ has been upheld and has been the message of this church from its first pastor, Dr. David Marquis, to Rev. C. E. Nesbit, the present pastor.

"A great catastrophe in the form of an earthquake came to the Church of Philadelphia, and many years later there came a time when this church was almost wiped out by the cyclone of 1896. Credit is due to Dr. Samuel Palmer, who was pastor at that time, and who went here and there getting funds for the rebuilding of the church.

"Thou hast a little strength" was said of the Church of Philadelphia." Here Dr. McMillin spoke of the beautiful walls and floral decorations, and of the fact that the money has all been raised for the celebration." Lafayette Park Church has always found a way to do things because there has been strength founded on the truth of the scriptures, and whose hope and trust has been in Jesus Christ.

"And hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name," can be said of this church as well as the one of Philadelphia. The minister's first note is to strike is that from the Bible. Silence the church whose base note is not that of the scriptures.

Door Always Open.

"Wonderful blessings are promised this church. 'I have set before thee an open door,' is written in Revelation, and this church has always had an open door, and a text to preach from, thank God.

"God has promised to take care of this church in the future, 'I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world.' Jesus Christ is coming from the realms of glory, to be with his people here on earth, and to try them that dwell upon the earth."

"There will also be admonition, for the Church of Philadelphia was warned. 'Hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.' We too, will have to hold on, for messages have been taken out of the mouths of ministers. Let it be our prayer to God that this church can hold fast to its crown."

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the church held a memorial service for the late Robert Ranken, a ruling elder, and for his wife. A tablet in their memory was placed on their pew. Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, and Dr. McMillin made addresses.

The exercises will continue tomorrow night with a pageant, and with special services Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Conservatism Praised by Dr. John L. Roemer in Lindenwood Sermon

Great Saving Grace in This Age of Undigested Theo- ries, He Says.

In a Lenten sermon yesterday at Lindenwood College, reviewing customs and possessions which may be put away as "childish things," conservatism was condemned by Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer.

"The 'from Missouri' attitude," he said, "is a great saving grace in this age of phantasy, and undigested theories. We owe a great gratitude to the Almighty that in his ordered laws of human development he has made it possible that convictions be eradicated from the human make-up." A word of defense of "old fogies" was presented in defining such "old fogies" as "that element of society which refuses to take up every new theory of life that is thrust forward for acceptance as the last word on the subject."

Yet the speaker pointed out that it is a mistake to strive to hold on to childhood. "The woman of 45, who dresses like a girl of 15, has something wrong with her." Dr. Roemer characterized man's life as "beginning with balls and dolls, and ending with creeds, philosophies and theologies."

Final Truth.

"Adult life is admonishing youth to be careful in formation of speech, habits and thoughts, for what we acquire in the transition from youth is going to fasten itself upon life. It is hard to get rid of acquired mental possessions. I knew a man who cultivated the habit of using cuss-words. His artistry in profanity he valued highly, until he found it was a senseless cultivation of a useless vocabulary. His effort to dispossess himself was the agony of a lifetime."

"The miser is only the product of thinking in terms of wealth as the summum bonum of life. The loss of his money is the loss of life, to him."

The speaker said, referring to modern scientific thought, that "one misinterprets the classroom when one says that an open mind for truth is a perverted mind. At best, we see only through a glass darkly. The truth of yesterday is the obsolete of today." Dr. Roemer revealed an argument presented in Presbytery, when a certain candidate was asked, "What is the final truth" of a certain subject?

"Another minister objected, giving as his reason that final truth is impossible in theology as in every realm of knowledge. 'A finished theology,' he said, 'belongs to a cemetery, not to a living city.'"

As the foundation upon which growth rests, the text was given: "And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three."

Miss Halcyon Burch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Burch of Carterville, recently has received considerable commendation because of her splendid work in the oratory department at Lindenwood college, at St. Charles, Mo. Miss Burch is a sophomore in the liberal arts college of the school, and has attained a splendid scholastic record. She is a member of Beta Pi Theta, the honorary French club, and the honorary English club. She is studying oratory aside from her regular academic course. At a chapel recital presented in Roemer auditorium March 1, Miss Burch took part in an oratory recital, and received a great deal of applause and favorable criticism on her reading. She read "Flaming Ramparts," a difficult and heavy reading by Edith B. Delano.

Lindenwood College Sociology Students to Do 'Case Work'

Each Member to 'Adopt' Poor Family for Season.

Something entirely new in the curriculum of Lindenwood College this semester is a class in "case work," carried on under the direction of the department of sociology. Each member of the class, to gain practical experience, "adopts" a poor family for the season. As the town of St. Charles, the seat of Lindenwood College, is composed for the most part of thrifty citizens of long residence, many of them owning their own homes, the competition to find some really indigent family has been keen among the "case work" students, most of whom are seniors.

The point of this applied Christianity is to make the assisted family feel that they are not helped like paupers, but that the bright visits of the young students are in the name of friendship, to help those "out of luck" to help themselves. Ingenuity is being taxed to make these unexpected calls on the poor family seem quite casual. Clothing, money and even food may be conveyed in the ministrations, but the sting of charity must not attach thereto, the friendly attitude of the "case-worker" being kept constantly in mind. Each student has to find her own family. Some are envied a little by others, because they have found families more needy. Blind old people, widowed mothers of small children, wage-earners who have been hit by automobiles, flood victims—all these, and more, are being ferreted out by these college girls. The study goes along in scientific manner. Tabulation is made of causes, and of progress, and there will be theses at the end, demonstrating the work done on the "cases."

Field Towns.

The "case work" students are calling other students to assist them. They are looking through the dormitories to find jobs of plain sewing for their clients, or perhaps washing and ironing, shoe-shining, darning, shampooing—anything to bring up by honest industry the exchequer of their "families." Thus there will be a "quid pro quo," and the family may eat the bread of independence. A growing desire to become social service workers is seen among the students, particularly in the senior class, where five out of this year's forty-three prospective graduates have signified their intention to devote themselves to this calling.

Miss Rachel M. Morris, recently of the University of Chicago, is teacher of the case work class, and will supervise certain field tours which the class will make to institutions and organizations in St. Louis that are engaged in similar service. Two speakers from St. Louis' Psychiatric Clinic, Miss M. E. Grummer and Dr. T. Meltzer, are giving lectures to the class respectively on "Psychiatric Social Work" and "Delinquency and mental deficiency." H. H. Soffer, an attorney of this city, has addressed the girls on "Social Work and the Courts."

Courses in Geography.

Besides this striking course, the new catalogue just issued offers for next year two courses in geography. This is a course much advanced from the dreaded "joggerly" of childhood. It is adapted to college atmosphere. In the first term it will discuss "Principles of Geography," taking up a study of the geography of Europe and America "with special reference to the influence of its physical environment on man." In the second semester it will be "Economic Geography," a study of "the ways in which the economic life of peoples is adjusted to their natural environment."

There will be a new course in business law which will be a development of the department of economics. A one-hour new course is to be given in "Appreciation of Art," designed to be a study of principles of art. There are also several new courses in educational methods.

Certain pleasantries have been heard as to the requirement of all freshmen, in effect this year, to attend "Civilization" lectures each week, but this course on American Contemporary Civilization, given by Miss Florence Schaper of the sociology department, is considered one of the best cultural agencies among the recent new classes, and is to be in full force next year. The Orientation one-hour freshman course, required, which was new this year, has proven of value in its purpose of teaching "how to study" and of placing the young collegian on the track of studies which are best suited to her personality and her future vocation. It will be regularly continued next year.

German Literature.

A class in German literature is added to the courses in that language.

Sent out with the new catalogue is Lindenwood's Viewbook for 1928-29, in which the foreword bears the caption, "Lindenwood College Begins Her Second Century." This preface reviews Lindenwood's history in its aim through 100 years of "contributing to the highest type of education which could be given to the girls of its time."

"It has been a boarding school for girls of all ages," says the Viewbook foreword, "it has been a junior college, and now for almost a decade it has been a senior college for women."

The following ideal is quoted for a young woman of today: "Undeniably smart in appearance * * * thoroughly self-reliant and with a definite objective ahead of her, she takes her purposeful way * * * the Young Woman of today. True, she bears resemblance to those who have gone before her in bygone years, but only slightly. Her ideas of style * * * her knowledge of the world in general, and above all her potential value in the world of this day, are distinctly of a new and wonderful generation."

Discussing the much-disputed question as to whether a college gains or not by being near a large city, the Viewbook says, after first mentioning opportunities which the city gives for music and art: "St. Louis provides for us laboratories of practice. Here students may readily see theories or facts familiar to them, being worked out, used or discarded in industry, civics, religion or education. We are glad Lindenwood students have access to these large industrial plants, newspaper offices, churches, schools and theaters in St. Louis. Fifty minutes from St. Louis has meant much to our students."

GALENA GIRL MAKING GOOD

Miss Norma Paul Ruedi, of this city, who is in her sophomore year at Lindenwood College, is receiving congratulations on the publication of her book of poems, "If Dreams Came True," by the Avondale Press. The work has received commendary notice in the March "Writers' Digest," and is being received in the St. Louis newspapers.

Miss Ruedi keeps on writing, although carrying on full work in the college. She is able to make good grades, and has so keen a call to the literary field that somehow she finds time for this activity outside the curriculum. She has two novels, "Jane Bug" and "Green David," which are shortly to appear. These are stories laid in the Ozark country.

The Lindenwood College paper, "The Bark," has the following to say of Miss Ruedi:

OUR OWN POETESS "If Dreams Came True"

"If Dreams Came True" how nice it would be, and wouldn't we all like to know it might happen? Perhaps Norma Paul Ruedi could tell us how, because that is the title of her book of poems just off the press. She is making her dreams come true by putting them down just as they occur to her, because at present her two novels "Jane Bug" and "Green David" are on the Avondale Press in New York City.

"If Dreams Came True" has received favorable criticism in the Writers' Digest for March, 1928, in these words: "This very successful anthology of the poetry of Norma Paul Ruedi shows the tendency of youthful expression in contemporary literature. The volume consists mainly of poems that voice the fancies of her girlhood, and while the verses, at times are halting, they are expressions of her true feelings. The daintiness and charms of the poems are light and amusing and show promise. This reviewer looks with interest for future publications of Miss Ruedi.

Norma Paul says that she began writing poetry when she was six years old, and that many of these poems were published elsewhere before being collected in book form. They are mostly about everyday things but a few are phantasies and love poems—some long and some very short, and numbering about eighty in all. Although she has been writing poetry all the time, Norma Paul is now turning her talent towards prose, and is at the present time at work on her third novel.

"Jane Bug" is the story of a family—the Brownes—and the daughter's experiences at college are true experiences of Oreen Ruedi, Norma Paul's sister, at Lindenwood. This novel was started during her last year in High School, and was accepted for publication in the fall of her first year at Lindenwood. This fall, "Green David" was accepted for publication. This second novel is an Ozark Mountain romance, with the country around Springfield, Mo. utilized as its setting. Norma Paul intends to confine her settings to the locality in which she has grown up—that of the Ozarks.

Norma Paul's verse is spontaneous, and for that reason delightful to everyone who has ever wanted to express herself with really beautiful words, but just couldn't. There will certainly be a rush on a copy "If Dreams Came True" when it arrives in Lindenwood.

Press Responsible for Higher Morals, Says Dr. Roemer

It Is News When Crooked Business Is Revealed, Pastor Declares.

"Big business and religion are not incompatible," said Rev. Dr. John Lincoln Roemer at a Y. W. C. A. Lenten service yesterday morning at Lindenwood College. In support of the idea that "the commercial world is on a much higher plane today than in the past," he stated the fact that "it is 'news' today when crooked business is revealed," adding:

"We owe much to the press for a higher standard, because under the searchlight of publicity even one who does not care must keep in the paths of rectitude."

Parable of Christ.

The sermon was on the parable of Christ, told in St. Matthew, in which the kingdom of heaven is presented as "like to a merchant seeking good pearls." The speaker narrated conclusions of a Men's Conference of the Presbyterian Church, recently held at the Statler Hotel and the City Club.

"The most forceful speakers pointed to straight business methods as necessary to the cause of Christ, if his kingdom is to be 'sold' to the public. The church today is saying to its members: Study the methods of salesmanship, purchases and promotion; learn something that will put effectiveness into the greatest business enterprise of this world—the promotion of the kingdom of God on earth."

Rapid Turnover.

The principle of "rapid turnover" was suggested by the merchant man of the parable. "Marked down has a wonderful magnetic power of attraction. 'Bargain Day's' effect on the public is well known. The greatest bargain is in the value, not the price," Dr. Roemer said.

"The possession of the best is the biggest achievement of life. The merchant man, with the universal mercantile feeling, parts cheerfully with his other possessions, in order to obtain a better possession. He clears out as fast as he can from every other investment, for a more productive one.

"The kingdom of God is worth everything a man has to obtain it. All else is meaningless without it."

Referring to the "best things" as suggested by this "business parable," Dr. Roemer named "contentment" and "satisfaction." "He who lives for glory will die in disappointment. The big satisfaction in life is to be conscious we have—like the woman who touched the hem of Christ's garment—"done what we could."

LOCAL GIRL'S POEM IN SCHOOL BOOK

Miss Mary Mason's "Port 'O Moon" in Literary Supplement to Linden Bark

St. Charles, Mo.—(Special) — Miss Mary Mason, the daughter of Captain and Mrs. Paul B. Mason of 208 East Locust, has received considerable commendation over a poem she wrote at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., which appeared in "Linden Bark," the campus weekly.

Miss Mason is a sophomore in the Liberal Arts college, and has been elected to three of the honorary clubs of the college through her splendid scholastic work. She is a member of Beta Pi Theta, the French club, El Circulo Espaner, the Spanish club, and the English club. She is majoring in the modern languages.

Miss Mason's poem "Port O' Moon" is beautiful, and shows her extreme artistry in the use of the English language.

"PORT O' MOON"
(By Mary Mason.)

A ship comes home to port o'moon
The seas of romance sailed;
The cargo loaded in its hold
By knights in armor mailed.

Oh in the hold are all our dreams,
We deamed when we were small
Of romance and adventure bold—
The dreams that to us call.

For Cinderella's silver shron,
High on a shelf it lies,
Is on that ship at port o'moon,
Packed round with many sighs.

And Rumpel-Stilts-Kins golden straw
Is wrapped in the cape of red,
That small Red Ridinghood wore when
She gaily tipped the mead.

For Ali Baba's treasure rare,
Lies round in golden chests;
And lit by Aladdin's magic lamp,
The Jolly Roger rests.

And Long John Silver's wooden stump,
With Blind Penn's blackened patch,
Is cast off, needless now, you know,
Like Hawkin's cottage latch.

The pussy of Dick Whittingdon
Pursues Pied Piper's mice; While Shakespeare's deer looks on aghast,
And nibled once or twice.

Sir Walter Raleigh's scarlet cloak,
Yet caked and dark with mud
A silver imprint still remains,
Where England's queen had trod

This magic ship at port o'moon,
Has silver spars and sails;
And D'Artagnan is at the wheel,
A knight who never fails.

The captain of this fairy ship
Is gallant Robin Hood,
With Major Andre at his side,
A time to every mood.

The first mate true is Galahad,
In silver armor bright;
His gleaming sword he holds aloft,
A truly shining light.

And Kipling's Burma-maid is cook
She stirs the golden pot,
That at the rainbow's end had been,
Where Arthur's knights had fought.

This ship that lies at Port O'moon,
Our dreams packed in its hold,
Will sail the seas of romance gay,
As pirates did of old.

And some day we will reach that land
Beyond the sunset's rim;
The land where all our dreams come true,
And color's never dim.

LINDENWOOD HEARS CZECH PROFESSOR

Dr. J. V. Janes Says People Are 'Backward Because They Like to Be.'

Dr. Jiri V. Janes, professor of geology in the Czecho-Slovakian Charles University at Prague, lectured yesterday on "Primitive Peoples" in Roemer Auditorium at Lindenwood College. Dr. Janes, accompanied by his wife, is touring this country under the auspices of the International Institute, and came to Lindenwood at the invitation of the Student's International Relations Club.

They arrived in St. Charles after an address at the University of Illinois, and left by bus yesterday afternoon for Columbia, to speak before the students of the University of Missouri.

Dr. Janes presented results of his own study of the native Australian and South Sea Islander. "Isolation among animals and plants develops peculiarities," he said. "The same is true among human beings, as for example, those who live in remote islands or in regions separated from the rest of the world by mountains or in oases of deserts. One of the most interesting examples is the island of Sardinia, where you will find a population living almost the same kind of life that they lived 2000 or 300 years ago, with old folklore, old customs and very primitive agriculture."

Dr. Janes pointed out that while plants and animals in isolation only carry out a "biological program," human beings add their own wills to the process of biology and are "backward because they like to be." Stereoptican views were shown of Australia and the surrounding islands, and the "four different types of mankind" were described who have been backward races here, representing four stages of primitive human civilization.

"The most primitive of these people were on the island of Tasmania, south of Australia, until about 100 years ago, when European civilization started with its disastrous effect upon them."

WEST PLAINS GIRL WINS MORE LAURELS AT COLLEGE

Miss Helen Roper of West Plains, is gaining laurels as a musical composer, for her original compositions at Lindenwood College. In this work she is collaborating with Miss Kathryn Walker, another student, and also a Missouri girl, from Aurora, Mo., who writes the words.

Their latest work, which has been recently produced on the stage of Roemer Auditorium, is the musical comedy, "So This is College." It received first place in an open contest of the Lindenwood Athletic Association. This organization gives an annual original musical comedy each year, the manuscript being selected solely on its merit. Many catchy choruses, sung by fifty girls who are members of the Association, as well as the melodic phrasing of the entire production, attracted wide praise. It was one of the most important audiences of the college year, as many former Lindenwood students always come "home" for the annual A. A. play.

Membership in the Athletic Association comes only as a reward for faithful work, and the making of so many points in the physical education department, either in golf, tennis, hiking, hockey, basket ball or base ball, or any of the numerous activities.

Miss Roper and Miss Walker both reside in Butler Hall at Lindenwood, and their mutual abilities have supplemented one another on several former occasions, notable among which was the writing of the college song of the year 1927-28. Dr. John L. Roemer, the president, annually awards $25 for this prize. This, too, was in a competition open to all. The choice narrowed down to three songs, which in turn were sung in chapel, and the "Roper-Walker Combine" won by popular vote. It is so that the students are beginning to designate the pair, for whom a great future is predicted.

DOROTHY FOGWELL HAS LINDENWOOD OFFICE

Miss Dorothy Fogwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Fogwell, 443 West Eldorado street, has been elected secretary of the Y. W. C. A. club at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo. The Y. W. C. A. is one of the most influential clubs at Lindenwood, and Miss Fogwell will serve during the next school year. At the present time the Y. W. C. A. is conducting Lenten services each Sunday morning in the college chapel, in which Miss Fogwell takes part.

Betty Birch of Toledo Lindenwood May Queen

ANNOUNCEMENT was made at the annual May Queen's reception at Lindenwood College, Friday night that Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, O., a senior, had been elected May Queen for 1928. Miss Birch is the daughter of the Rev. Chester Birch, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Toledo, who formerly served pastorates in St. Louis and Kansas City. Her mother, formerly Miss Lura Maud Welty, was a Lindenwood College graduate of 1892.

Miss Birch will receive her bachelor's degree in May. She is a leading member of the Lindenwood Players, and for two years in succession wrote the musical comedy accepted by the College Athletic Association for its annual play. One of her plays has been accepted by a stock company in Arkansas, and she is receiving royalties on it.

The maid of honor, a junior, will be Miss Elizabeth Foster of Arvada, Colo. Other attendants who were announced were: Sophomores, Misses Adeline Brubaker, Springfield, Ill.; Gertrude Hull, Butler, Mo.; freshmen, Misses Letha Bailey, Neodesha, Kan.; Bobbie Wyeth, Charleston, Ill.

Mrs. John L. Roemer, Dean of Students, made the announcement as to the Queen and her attendants, and these were afterward grouped around her on a dais for a program of dances. The coronation will occur in the open air amphitheater May 26.

'Budgeting Safeguards Home,' Says Home Economics Student

College Course Prepares Girls for Home-Making

CRITICS who carp at lack of preparation for practical living provided by higher institutions of learning will find themselves disarmed if they investigate what the high school and college household economics departments give to their students, according to Miss Marion C. Kaiser of 953 Belt avenue.

Miss Kaiser, a student at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, has completed as a result of her class work in home economics, a thesis on budgeting which bristles with facts and figures and practical provisions for the safe voyage of a bride and bridegroom whom she launches on the sea of matrimony.

The newly-weds are equipped with a budget guaranteed to cover all expenses, even to the financing of their own home. By systematic spending she protects the doors of their little home from the entrance of not only the large wolf of poverty, but from all of little rodents in the form of unexpected and unforeseen devourers of the income—Christmas and birthday gifts, flowers for the sick friend and like expenses.

Savings Help.

This couple, two years out of college, have each saved $1,000. They have clothes enough for the first year and in addition the man owns a flivver in good condition and the bride is lucky enough to have received for wedding presents complete kitchen and laundry outfits, and she has linens enough for four or five years. The man has an income of $200 per month, which, is supplemented by the rental for $30 per month of the extra bedroom in their bungalow.

One thousand dollars is paid down on the total cost of the house and lot, leaving a debt of $5,000, which, according to Miss Kaiser's figures may be paid off in seven years and eleven months at the rate $75 per month. She has carefully estimated the various items of the cost of building the bungalow which is illustrated in the thesis as an attractive frame colonial dwelling having a living room, dining room, two bed rooms, kitchen, breakfast room and adequate closets and shelves.

Miss Marion C. Kaiser, 953 Belt avenue, a student at Lindenwood College, has compiled a workable budget for the expenses of a young couple, including provisions for the financing of their own home.

On her general budget, which is made out for three years, $45 of the monthly income is allowed for food; $75 for shelter, $10 for clothing the first year and $25 for the next two years, $26 for maintenance, the first year and $34 the next two, $15 savings, $14 for extras and $45 for advancement and recreation.

Clothing Item Watched.

The clothing budgets for both the man and the woman are carefully itemized. Sixty dollars is allowed the first year, $180 the second and $150, the third. This means careful planning to dovetail one year's purchases into the next. Her hats of which she has but two new ones every year must not cost more than $5 apiece. Her most expensive dress and she can have but one at that price per year, must not be more than $25. She is allowed the second year $12 for six pairs of hose, $15 for underwear, $3 for gloves, $3 for handkerchiefs. Two pairs of shoes are bought per year at $8 per pair and the rest of the money divided up between the necessary house, sport dresses and a suit which may be purchased the second year and for the third year's use also.

The man's budget is much the same. He may buy a $60 suit the second year and $40 one the next. He is limited to $2 apiece for his shirts of which he buys two the first year, four the second and six, the third. A $40 coat is scheduled for the third year as he is supposed to wear the one he had the first year for at least two years.

The maintenance item takes care of $12.85 taxes; water, fire and tornado insurance; coal, gas, electric, ice supplies, telephone and replacements. Under savings are listed life insurance and permanent equipment. Advancement and recreation, includes $4 per month for church, each paying 50 cents per week; charity, $1 per month; education $5, which pays for one good book and several magazines; $20 for health, doctor's and dentist's bill and $15 for recreation, which includes picture shows, theaters, weekend trips, gas for the car, a vacation trip which is taken in the car and gifts.

Furniture Budget.

The other $1,000 is used for furniture. The living room is allotted $300; the dining room, $200; the master's bedroom $230; the extra bedroom $140, and the breakfast room with linoleum rugs, $56. Drapery, $45 and bedding, $29, make up the total.

The gift problem has been worked out in detail by the student, who allows $33 to cover Christmas presents. This gives the man a home made flannel robe costing $7 and to the woman a new $7.50 purse. The respective mothers and fathers are included as well as the average number of uncles, aunts and cousins and friends with which most young couples are blessed. The woman must have clever fingers for none of the items aside from their presents to each other cost more than $1.

Miss Kaiser has attached floor plans of the kitchen and breakfast rooms showing in detail the placing of the cupboards and equipment to save steps. Green and orange have been specified as the colors used in the two rooms.

In a foreword Miss Kaiser says she thinks too little approval and encouragement is given to the study of home economics in the schools, although it is a subject in which women are vitally concerned. "It should be studied not merely for the sake of cooking and sewing, but it covers a wider scope, including the science and art of bearing, training, housing, clothing and feeding the human race. A knowledge of mathematics, biology, chemistry, as well as the social sciences is necessary.

"If we are to build up the nation and counteract an age which seems bent on tearing down, home economics must be developed in the schools for the schools carry up into the home. The homes build the nation, and they are necessarily limited the intelligence of the homemaker."

Marian Seybolt Elected Member of Beta Pi Theta

Miss Marian Seybolt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Seybolt, has recently been elected a member of Beta Pi Theta, the national French honorary fraternity. Requirements for admission are high, demanding superior work in French and standard work in all other college courses. Written reports upon a French novel, a French short story, and a French play are also required. Lindenwood's chapter of Beta Pi Theta was chartered in the year 1926-1927. Miss Seybolt is a sophomore at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., this year.

MATCHMAKING PARENTS BLAMED FOR SOME DIVORCES

President Roemer of Lindenwood College Warns Girls Against Companionate Marriage.

Match-making parents are likely to lead their children to the divorce courts, said the Rev. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, in a Lenten sermon delivered yesterday to the girls of the school. He declared that marriages should be based upon the self-knowledge of both bride and bridegroom, and upon their understanding of each other.

"What we call 'unfortunate marriages' cannot be solved by 'companionate marriage' or other substitutes," he said. "If young people before or after marriage would give some attention to knowing themselves instead of fault-finding, more marriage contracts would stand the stress of personal peculiarities."

TOLEDO, OHIO, GIRL TO BE LINDENWOOD MAY QUEEN

Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, Ohio, was announced as the Lindenwood College May Queen by Mrs. John Lincoln Roemer, at the annual May Queen's reception at Lindenwood Friday night. This was a party after a new plan, with awnings stretched from Ayres to Jubilee Hall, and refreshments served during the evening, instead of a formal dinner preceding the dance.

Miss Birch, the senior, who has been chosen for the highest social honor of the college, has many friends in St. Louis. Her father, Rev. Chester Birch, is a Presbyterian minister, who has been pastor in Normandy and also in Kansas City, and has taken a prominent part in the Winona Lake assemblies. She will receive her bachelor's degree in May, a few days after her coronation as May Queen on May 26.

Miss Elizabeth Foster of Arvada, Colo., was the vote of the juniors for maid of honor. The two sophomore attendants will be Misses Adeline Brubaker, Springfield, Ill.; Gertrude Hull, Butler, Mo., and the two freshmen, Misses Letha Bailey, Neodesha, Kan., and Bobbie Wyeth, Charleston, Ill.

MISS BETTY BIRCH.

MISS BIRCH, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Chester Birch of Toledo, O., has been chosen May Queen of Lindenwood College. She will be crowned at the Spring Festival, May 26.

ST. CHARLES, Mo.—Miss Kathryn Walker, of Aurora, with another Missouri girl, Miss Helen Roper of West Plains, are coming to be known at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, as the "Walker-Roper Combine" because of their success as co-authors of musical productions, Miss Walker writing the words, and Miss Roper the music. Their latest success, which has just been produced on the stage of Roemer Auditorium as the annual offering of the Lindenwood Athletic Association, is musical comedy, "So This Is College." Everything in it was original and modern. The "Ham on Ice Chorus", "Dutch Chorus", and the general musical motif, "So This Is College," were received with unstinted applause, the capacity audience representing not only the college militant, but also many guests returning from other school days at Lindenwood for this outstanding entertainment of the year.

Honors of Misses Walker and Roper were attained in open competition, and a number of other manuscripts for a musical comedy were submitted, the names of the authors not being revealed until the work had been awarded first place on its merits. The "Walker-Roper" Combine is also responsible for Lindenwood's new song of 1927-28, for which there was an award of $25.

Failure to Know Self Fatal in Marriages, Asserts Dr. Roemer

Suggestions for More Perfect Matches Included in Sermon.

Suggestions as to more perfect marriages were included in a Lenten sermon to the Lindenwood College girls, yesterday, by Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, on the topic, "First Things First." He said:

"Parents who would make 'matches' for their daughters are very apt to lead them to the divorce court after giving them away at the altar. 'Companionate Marriage' and other substitutes for the marriage vow are not going to solve the difficulties of 'unfortunate marriages.' If young people before or after marriage would give some attention to knowing themselves instead of fault-finding, more marriage contracts would stand the stress of personal peculiarities.

"Failure to know self is fatal. The square peg trying to fit into the round hole spells failure. Not what you would like to be, but what it is possible for you to be, is the only royal road to a successful life."

"Can't Wait" Characteristic.

Dr. Roemer read Matt. 6, 33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God," saying in comment, "The message of the text is, Start right.

"'Can't wait' is characteristic of the age. It is written on everything—schools, commerce, society, churches. The boy can't wait to become a youth, nor the youth a man. The 'short-cut' to achievement is the 'sure-cut' to disappointment.

"On every doorway of life should be written—'First Things First.'" The speaker pointed out that the "first things" are to know God, to know man, and to know the beauties of the world.

"Someone has said that the first thing in successful living is self-respect. You must have evaluation of your personality. Colleges give mental tests, orientation courses to evaluate and properly place us where we rightfully belong. They mutely say: "Get some respect for your ability to do what you are able to do successfully.

"If self-respect, self-appreciation, is a cardinal virtue of successful living, where can we secure it other than from God, who places a value upon us? 'We are workers together with God.' Man is a child of God and a member of his family."

Appreciating Humanity.

The speaker showed the importance also of appreciating humanity and of discovering in this world "a paradise of beauty."

"The mark of the highest civilization is its quest for the beautiful. Styles of dress are the insignia of man's nature craving adornment. The Apostle enjoined his beloved to 'adorn the doctrine of God our Savior in all things.'

"Man at his worst is 'ugly.' Ugliness makes no appeal to the best in us. To seek first things first, our starting point must be in doing what we can to transform ugliness into beauty.

*Globe-Democrat,
Mch. 26*

"Let the beauty of the Lord be upon us. God's beauty is found in the beauty of thought. Do not dwell on the imperfections of life. God's beauty is found in the beauty of service. External beauty is only skin-deep. When the outward does not please, cosmetics and lifted faces change our physical appearance. The artificial cannot displace the natural. The 'schoolgirl complexion' is not the result of using any brand of soap. But some people whose outward beauty may not win a prize have a beauty beyond the price of the richest jewels. The beauty of service is beyond compare.

"To every person we meet we have an errand."

LINDENWOOD TO CONFER DEGREES ON 43 STUDENTS

Much Interest Being Taken in Commencement to Be Held in May—Other Attractions on Program.

With a record number of degree girls—43, who will become bachelors of Arts, or Sciences, or possibly Music—Lindenwood College, looks forward to its late-May commencement with a keener interest than usual. Honors mean much in a large class and the May Queen, just announced from out that class, is to have a glorious crowning at the 101st annual coronation ceremony (for Lindenwood is just that old.)

She is Miss Betty Birch, of Toledo, O., daughter of Rev. Chester Birch, a Presbyterian minister, and Mrs. Lura Maud Welty Birch, who was herself a "sweet girl graduate" at Lindenwood in 1892. "Queen Betty" is a slender, winsome girl of brightest auburn hair who has scored successes on the college stage, both as a leader in the Lindenwood Players and as a playwright. Several of her musical comedies have been produced in Roemer Hall at Lindenwood, and one of them is paying royalties from a stock company in another State.

The juniors, also a large class elected the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Foster, of Arvada, Colo., who is in the cabinet of the college Y. W. C. A., and takes part in other campus activities.

Two maids each were elected from the sophomore and freshman classes. Misses Adeline Brubaker of Springfield, Ill., and Miss Gertrude Hull, of Butler, Mo., of the former, and Misses Letha Bailey, of Neodesha, Kans., and Bobbie Wyeth of Charleston, Ill. for the freshmen.

The May Queen's Reception, in the last of March broke the news of Her Queenship to the 500 students. In formal state, as at one of the high events of the year, the president's wife, Mrs. John Lincoln Roemer, sat on a dais, and called the lucky girls to her court around her. Five seniors, all from Missouri assisted as hostesses—Misses Virginia Sue Campbell of Bowling Green, president of the class; Gertrude Webb and Erma Meier of St. Louis; Helen Wisdom of Lincoln, and Ruth Cameron of Rolla.

As Lent comes to an end, there will be numerous social celebrations to close Lindenwood's school year. Something new, unknown in the 100 years hitherto, will be a "Soph Prom" on April 20.—a dinner-dance in which the special guests will be for the Sophomores of which Miss Ruth Lindsay Hughes, of Kansas City, Mo., is president.

The "Junior Prom" is to follow on May 12, when the juniors, with Miss Ruth Bullion, of Little Rock, Ark., at their head, will entertain the seniors and their friends.

Then will come President and Mrs. Roemer's annual luncheon to the seniors, and finally commencement with all its frills, in the last week of May

GIRL'S POEMS ARE DAINY AND AMUSING
 REVIEW BY MARCIA WALLACE.
 "If Dreams Came True," by Norma Paul Ruedl. (Avondale Press, New York.)
 Norma Paul Ruedl, a sophomore at Lindenwood College, whose home is in Galena, Kan., is author of a volume of poems. "If Dreams Came True" consists of poems which voice the fancies of the writer's early girlhood, being concerned for the most part with everyday things, but including a few phantasies and love poems. They are dainty and amusing and appear spontaneous in expression. The book has received favorable mention in the Writer's Digest.
 Miss Ruedl has written also two novels which have been accepted by publishers. They are entitled, respectively, "Jane Bug" and "Green David," and are concerned with Ozark life and scenery. At present she is working, outside of school hours, on a third novel.
 Miss Ruedl is no older than the average college sophomore, and it is not yet two years since she was graduated from high school.

Attendant To May Queen
 Miss Gertrude Hull, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Hull of this city, has been selected by members of the sophomore class of Lindenwood College at St. Charles, Mo., as attendant to the May Queen of the college. Miss Hull's selection carries with it quite an honor, showing the esteem in which she is held by the other members of her class which numbers about 150.
 The coronation of the May Queen of the college is the big event of the school year which is held during the closing days of school. The May Queen is selected from the Senior class and her attendants from the other three classes. Miss Bettie Birch was selected as May Queen for this year. She is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Welty, former pastor of the Butler Presbyterian church.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Journalistic Writing Class

Editorial

We are very proud of Jeanne Reese, one of our former Newton High School students. She has written a theme appearing in "The Linden Bark," which took the prize for Lindenwood as the best girls' school paper in the world.

House Hunting

(By Jeanne Reese)

When in the course of his life, a man deems it quite necessary to dissolve his bonds of single blessedness and take a mate to love, cherish, and adore him till death does the parting; when in the course of his life and happiness a man reaches this mental state or condition quite unanalyzable, yet justifiable we presume, then it is that he ventures heart and soul upon a task decidedly planned for him by the Almighty. He house hunts.

Whether he pursues his hunt alone or takes his charming love with him, whether he looks for the house before his marriage, or waits until he is sure of his prize, whether he is successful or not, at any rate he house hunts.

He stumbles up and down front flights till his legs ache with pain; he inspects and scrutinizes so many houses that his mind cannot recall them or distinguish between them; he follows addresses that lead to vacant lots and curses the day that houses were invented. He has tete-a-tetes with dirty aproned landladies and smells the odor of fried potatoes that clings about them; he battles with growling bulldogs who park in front yards expressly for the purpose of chewing strangers alive; he rolls down back stairs to inspect cellars, maybe, we venture, to see if the former tenant has left any of that prized possession usually found in cellars; and occasionally, he even gets the "inside dope" on suspicious attics that might hold clanking chains or shades of relatives passed on. He looks at homes that make his eyes bulge with their splendor; he looks at homes that make him shudder with their dinginess; but he never looks at homes that suit him.

Yet indeed, tho his hardships be many and varied, the prospective (or retrospective) bride-groom is not discouraged. He sails out upon his task in the same way that he has sailed out upon the sea of matrimony. He is confident and feels extremely important; and he flutters about much like the male species of bird when he hunts a resting place for his mate. At any rate, he assures himself that he is a wise old bird and he plucks and smooths his features with pride. At the end of the first day his wits are exhausted, but the next day at sunrise he is at it again. For only the early bird catches the worm, and he must needs find a house or die attempting.

If he doesn't hunt houses, he hunts flats or hotels, (unless perhaps, he is one of those fortunate souls who may share the home of mother-in-law because of the strong attachment between his wife and her mother). He may find his house at last or he may never find it; he may feel quite at home with mother-in-law, or indeed, the many trials involved in his task may even discourage his getting married at all or make him regret the day of his marriage. But if, in the end, he finds a cottage that suits—a cozy little love nest where he may house his little dove and raise little fledglings—then, no matter if thousand-fold trials and troubles settle down upon him, he will remain a happy old bird and continue to coo till the end of his days.

Verna Anderson, a Newton High School student last year, now attending Lindenwood College, at St. Charles Mo., had a theme in the "Linden Bark", the college paper, of March 13. One written by Jeanne Reese appeared in the same publication of the paper and was given in the last edition of the High School news. Verna Anderson's appears below.

Sitting on a Tack

He who sitteth on a tack will rise again. This is an old proverb which the large majority has found to be plainly true. How the idea of placing tacks on unsuspecting people's chairs originated would be hard to tell. Who knows, Eve or Adam may have introduced the custom. At any rate, the American small boy has enlarged and improved the idea until it has become almost a tradition, like bringing an apple to "dear teacher" or something along a similar trend. This latter custom is much less exciting and involves far less exercise than that which I have chosen to discuss.

There is something about a tack, its handy size, or its nice, sharp point, that invariable fascinates the funmaker. One glance at it and the age-old idea occurs to him like a bolt from the blue, and immediately he is chuckling to himself at the prospect of his future victim hopping two or three feet into the air after a sudden and absolutely unexpected contact with a poor little innocent tack.

The tack, in itself, is harmless enough and quite a valuable thing to have around the house. Carpets on stairs have a most irritating way of slipping and curling under one's feet without the aid of said tack.

Some of my more critical readers may think that I might have chosen a weightier topic to discuss at such great length. That viewpoint is to be questioned, however. What is more important and to what do we award more attention than brief jabs of pain? Seamstresses can testify to the fact that tiny pricks can be most painful at times. Ask any bachelor about those monthly attempts at darning and mending and he will have a whole extemporaneous speech on the tip of his tongue ready to reel off by the hour.

An examination of almost any small boy's pockets will always yield at least one tack. The youngster would feel lost without a tack handy where he could get at it on a moment's notice. The tack has put the rubber band and its companion, the paperwad, on the shelf when it comes to furnishing classroom amusement. Of course, elsewhere than in the classroom this playful pastime is indulged in but no-where has it found such hearty advocates of its cause. Admittedly, the custom is anything but funny to the most important person concerned, the victim, but think of the relief from the boredom of monotony it affords the spectators. If Nathan Hale was "willing to give more than one life for his country," can't we, at least make an effort to take the little practical jokes in life, pleasantly?"

CHARLESTON GIRL HONORED—

St. Charles, Mo., March 29—Another of Charleston's girls has been honored at Lindenwood College this year. Miss Bobbie Wyeth, the daughter of Mrs. Grace Wyeth, has been chosen as one of the two freshmen attendants for the May Queen, at the coronation on the college campus, May 26. The queen, Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, Ohio, at a formal announcement party Friday night, March 23, walked down the aisle under a bower of flowers, followed by her attendants. The maid of honor was from the junior class, while from the sophomore and freshman classes two girls were chosen. Miss Wyeth looked more like a state queen's maiden of long years ago than a freshman attendant of the present day. Her dress was a lovely green with tight bodice of velvet, and a tiered skirt of tulle. An immense black bow adorned the left side, its ends dropping slightly down over the tulle skirt. About her throat, and in her ears, were jade and pearl necklace and earrings to match, the top of the earrings not visible because of the blond hair that softly waved over her ears and into a low knot on the back of her head. The shoes of black satin beaded with cut steel beads were almost hidden by the length of the lovely skirt.

Last year Miss Wyeth attended the Eastern Illinois State Teachers College high school, and was a member of the Student Governing Body there. She had a leading role in the senior class play there last year.

This year Miss Wyeth is pursuing the regular Liberal Arts course at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri.

Newspapers Serve
What Readers Want,
Says Dr. J. L. Roemer

A suggestion as to newspaper reading by young people was made by Rev. Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, in a Palm Sunday sermon, concluding his Lenten series at Lindenwood College, yesterday. His theme was "The Master Motive." Touching "the higher and lower levels of life," he mentioned newspapers.

"What you elect to read from the news columns, what you love to read, whether it be of events and personages well worth while, or whether it be scandals and divorces, indicates the part of your nature you prefer to nurture," he said. "As long as people love their basement abode, they are going to have animal visitors. If the literature of the day lacks moral tone, caters to the worst in us; if the press is filled with the seamy side of life, it is because of the many who demand what they are served."

Dr. Roemer said that to himself the editorials of a paper were always of first interest. "They are, as a rule, visitors to dwellers on the top floor of a man's nature. You who read the St. Louis papers find the editorials appealing to the best that is in life."

The text was Gal. 2:20, "The Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me," and the sermon presented the Apostle Paul as a model in the taking of love as a master motive of life. Stating that "every great achievement in life finds its source in human affections," he said:

"Yale students have recently voted Lindbergh the most popular man in all the world today. The flying achievements of the great aviator were the result of his love for aeronautics. Unknown and unheard of, his life was given to the perfecting of his knowledge in aerial flight.

"The master motive of Paul's life put new energy into him. He had a goal to reach, a purpose to fulfill.

Anæmic virtues make us limp and bloodless. Faith suffers from catarract; hope shakes like a reed; charity is so infirm, if she gets her hand into the pocket it is with extreme difficulty she pulls it out. Half-hearted people always do things badly."

'Linden Bark' Has Story Written by Alberta Sievert

MISS ALBERTA SIEVERT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Sievert of this city, who is attending Lindenwood college at St. Charles, Mo., was recently honored when she had a short story published in the "Linden Bark", the college weekly.

Miss Alberta's story was carried in the literary supplement of the paper. While at Lindenwood she is an active member of the art club and of the Oklahoma club.

The story is titled, "The Recital," and carries a by-line by its author. It is:

"With dread Jane counted the days until the recital, for after one more week of practice she would have to face her first audience. As the four o'clock bell rang every afternoon she entered the dark, spacious auditorium. How small she felt among the hundreds of vacant chairs and expanse of platform, bare except for the huge grand piano at one end. "What is there to be scared of?", she asked herself over and over again. "Certainly nothing is going to bite me." She played the piece through without a mistake and it was with more self-confidence that she left the auditorium on the last afternoon.

"Aren't you just scared stiff?" greeted her on the morning of the fatal day. Yes, she was scared and her fingers were cold and stiff. Twelve o'clock! At two o'clock she would have to play. The curtain went up promptly at two. Jane walked onto the platform, her knees shaking so she felt sure she would never reach the piano bench. The audience of giggling girls applauded, which only added to poor Jane's fright, if that were possible. With damp icy fingers she started the piece. She must hurry, faster and faster went her fingers; they were slighting some of the notes now but she must keep her pace; it was too late to slow down. Her knees were still shaking and only with great effort was she able to push the pedals. Her heart was pounding and her head seemed to be filled with a rushing roaring river. What was wrong? She felt she had been there for hours and was still playing the first section. At the end of the first repeat she found herself playing that first section for the third time. The only thing to do was to go on and make sure she played the second ending this time. There she was again! For the fourth time Jane raced thru that first section, she couldn't stay there much longer. The notes of the last few measures rushed to her confused mind and with shaking hands she played them.

"She fairly ran from the stage and dropped into the nearest chair completely exhausted. With gasping breath and parched mouth she heard the usual praises from those back stage. With thankful heart she knew that only she and the teacher would ever know that she had played the end and fourth section four times."

Miss Marian Pope, the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Pope of 214 Jefferson street, has added another laurel to her crown at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo.

"Adam and Eva" an unusually clever and successful play, sponsored by the dramatic fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, was presented on Wednesday night, April 19. The entire cast was excellent, but Miss Pope, as the masculine lead "Adam" literally "brought down the house."

Miss Pope is very talented dramatically, and has taken part in several small playlets at the school. At the "Southern Party" given by the girls in the various Southern State clubs, Miss Pope dressed as an old negro mammy, and gave a clever reading. On Thanksgiving Day, she read the President's Proclamation before the entire school, and invited guests at the Thanksgiving chapel exercises. Miss Lillie Bloomenstiel Makes Hit In College Play At St. Charles, Mo.

Miss Lillie Bloomenstiel, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Alex. Bloomenstiel of Donaldsonville, was one of the leading characters in Philip Barry's play, "Adam and Eva," which was presented under the auspices of the Alpha Psi Omega fraternity at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., where she is a student. It was a most clever little play about the idle rich who are given a pseudo father who frames the loss of their fortune so that they will go to work. Of course he falls in love with Eva and marries her in the end, but Lord Andrew Gordon, the part taken by Miss Bloomenstiel, is a Scotchman in search of an heiress and much to everyone's surprise, he still loves her in the end. Miss Bloomenstiel took her part exceedingly well and amused her audience with her southern talk that took on a Scotch dialect.

Miss Bloomenstiel also took one of the leading parts in the French play that was given last year with so much success. She is very active in campus affairs and is president of the Beta Pi Thea, the French fraternity, and president of the Southern club.

An unusual party inaugurating the commencement season was a birthday party for President John Lincoln Roemer, at Lindenwood College Wednesday night, May 2. This was a dinner dance given by two student clubs, the Eastern, comprising all States east of Indiana, and the Oklahoma Club, which is one of the largest in the college. It was a "spring tulip" affair, with Holland settings of a windmill made for the occasion and illuminated with artistic Dutch lanterns. The gym walls were fashioned of green, with a tulip border. Refreshments were served at the base of the windmill, and at the conclusion of the dance there were souvenirs of linen handkerchiefs made in Holland. An elaborate birthday dinner opened the evening's festivities. Miss Janet Hood, of Washington, Pa., and Miss Daphne Boop, of Nowata, Okla., are presidents of the two hostess clubs.

THE JOHNSON COUNTY DEMOCRAT

St. Charles, Mo., May 3, 1928—Miss Virginia Ott, a Sophomore at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri, is the authoress of a poem which was published recently in the college weekly, The Linden Bark. This paper issues a literary supplement once a month, composed of literary contributions which have been selected by the heads of the English Department as representative work. Miss Ott has taken part in other campus activities by being Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. last year and a member of the Kansas Club. Her poem follows:

NIGHT

By Virginia Ott

Night with her shimmering silky sheath
Night with her shadowy blue

Creeps o'er the earth with steps so light
Enfolding me and you.

She glimmers in her silvery sheen
Revealed by moon and star,
She Glides o'er bush and tree and field
Showering her gifts afar.

She wraps her cloak around the sad
A comfort and a joy,
She holds all love close to herself
And they her powers employ.

A lady night with voice divine
And beauties all untold,
Reveal to us your glories bright
That we may seek their mold.

When day is o'er and rest is sweet
Cime softly as thou will
And take me in your arms, O Night
That I may feel you still.

O lovely Night, O beautiful Night
O Night of all supreme,
Come let me rest my weary head
As on your breast I dream.

Miss Olcott in Recital.

Miss Ruth Ellen Olcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Olcott, 1409 Laurel, gave her graduation recital in the oratory department at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., Wednesday evening, April 25. She read the Hubert Henry Davies play, "Cousin Kate," with splendid character portrayal and delineation. She was assisted by Miss Naida Porter, violinist, who played three selections. Miss Olcott looked charming in a dress of black georgette, studded with rhinestones.

Miss Wilma Rhinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rhinehart of this city took part in a recital on Thursday, April 26, at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo. This was one of the weekly recitals given by the music department at five o'clock on Thursdays. Those in this week's recital are pupils of Miss Grace Terhune. Miss Rhinehart sang La Forge's "Estrellita" and "The Answer" by Terry. This is the second recital in which she has appeared. She is also a member of the choir and choral club. Miss Rhinehart is majoring in the voice department.

Annual 'Roemer Day' Observed by Tyler Presbyterian Church

Poor Man's Dollar Worth as Much as Rich Man's, Says Former Pastor.

That the modern church should enlist the support of every member, however poor, was a suggestion appropriate to the current city-wide Presbyterian financial campaign, made yesterday morning by Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, in a sermon at the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, Spring avenue and Russell boulevard, where he was pastor up to 1914. This church annually invites Dr. Roemer to its pulpit, and the church bulletin announced yesterday as "Roemer Day."

"The poor man's dollar is worth just as much as the rich man's," said Dr. Roemer. "There is not proper balance when the man of small means is willing to let the man of wealth carry all the financial responsibilities, while he exempts himself. People of moderate ability are causing the church and society great losses because they fail to use what they have."

Story of Lame Man.

Dr. Roemer spoke from the story of the lame man in Acts 3, who accosted Peter at the Beautiful Gate, asking alms. "The lame man had the good sense to go where he would find sympathy and help. The church has never been the place where unfortunates can discover more sources of helpfulness than anywhere else." St. Peter's reply, "Such as I have," preceded his healing the man's lameness.

"The beggar wanted money. He was doubtless disappointed when Peter told him he had neither silver nor gold. He felt he had wasted his time on him when there were so many others from whom he might have gotten something as they were passing.

"The beggar at the Beautiful Gate is representative of present-day thought that money is the greatest thing to be desired. Money cannot do everything for us. It cannot buy health and happiness. 'Money never made a man happy,' said Franklin.

Lesson of Peter.

"Peter has no apology for his moneyless condition. He has something he believes greater than silver or gold. The Apostle Peter is the figure upon whom the spotlight of the story is turned. He is the hero. Peter gives us the great living lesson, that the glory of Christ can be made manifest by the use of just what we have if we will only use it."

Dr. Roemer presented, among pictures of those who had done their best with "such as we have," the case of "the man with only an oil stove and grit," who built up a chain of sandwich houses and last year cleared $102,000.

"Our greatest danger in viewing life is to overestimate the material, and subordinate or ignore spiritual values. Jesus gave the world not what it asks—ease, luxury and position—but what it needs, a cross."

The speaker cited the "rich, unused possibilities" of the world, and quoted Douglas Fairbanks' motto for the Boy Scouts, giving out by radio: "The worst thing that happens to you may be the best thing that happens to you, provided you don't let it get the best of you."

TOOK PART IN PLAY

Miss Helen Manary, daughter of Mrs. M. C. Manary of this city appeared in a play at Lindenwood College last Wednesday night. The play was "Adam and Eve." Miss Manary was the "father" of the family and portrayed the part so well that even the members of the family seemed quite terrified at her. Miss Manary is a member of the freshman class and has done splendid work in the oratory department this year and has given several interesting readings. Miss Manary is returning to Lindenwood next year to finish her work in this department.

FORMER PASTOR HONORED

ST CHARLES, Mo., (Special)—Students at Lindenwood College belonging to the "Eastern Club," which includes Ohio and the six girls at Lindenwood from that state, joined with the Oklahoma Club at the college in an elaborate birthday party Wednesday night, May 2 honoring the president of the institution, Dr. John L. Roemer, former Chillicothe pastor. Dr. Roemer came to a St. Louis pastorate from Chillicothe, and he went from that pastorate in 1914 to be president of Lindenwood. The college through him received gifts from Col. James Gay Butler, making it possible to erect a number of new buildings. In his incumbency the college advanced to senior rank, and the giving of bachelor's degrees accredited by the standardized college associations. The graduating class this year numbers 43, and this will be the 101 commencement.

The birthday party was in "tulips" decoration, an improvised border of the spring flower crowning the walls of the hall. A large Dutch windmill was a center for the dispensing of refreshments, and each guest received a souvenir from Holland.

As a part of the commencement exercises this year, the last week of May, the college will present "As You Like It" in the out-door amphitheatre. This will be on the evening of May 26, following the crowning of the May Queen who is an Ohio girl, Miss Betty Birch of Toledo.

Sophomore Girls Win in Athletic Carnival of Lindenwood College Staged on Campus at St. Charles

BY TED DREWES.

One of the most closely-contested athletic meets ever staged in this vicinity resulted yesterday when the girls of Lindenwood College in St. Charles held their annual event. More than 100 pretty girls competed in the nineteen different contests, with the sophomores nosing out the seniors by a single point for first honors.

It was not until the final event, the baseball game, was held until the sophomores were declared winners. The score until that event stood, sophomores 60, seniors 59, juniors 55 and freshmen 29. The team composed of sophomores and seniors nosed out the juniors and freshmen, 7-5, making the final score: sophomores 65, seniors 64, juniors 55 and freshmen 29.

There were three outstanding stars of the meet: Marjorie Bright, junior; Lois Borchers, sophomore, and Theresa Neubeiser, junior.

Lois showed her heels to the field in the 50-yard dash and in the 60-yard hurdles. She was expected to win the high jump, but Ruth Bullion, a junior, surprised by winning this event handily.

Marjorie Bright Stars.

Marjorie Bright won the putting contest in golf and, paired with Garnett Thompson, easily proved the class of the tennis tourney. Helen Baker won the golf driving contest.

Miss Neubeiser won in the discus throw and also the basketball throw. Garnett Thompson also showed to advantage in the basketball throw.

The archery event, in which each girl shot nine arrows, proved to be the most interesting one on the program. Katherine Palmer, a sophomore, surprised by winning this event. She had four bulls-eyes out of her nine attempts, the large gallery applauding noisily after every shot.

Jane Everett annexed five points for the sophomores by winning the javelin throw.

The sophomores showed the result of much practice in the angle-worm relay. The girls composing the team were Margaret Gardner, Dorothy Alley, Mary Bachrach, Mary Lucille Williams, Jane Everett and Mar Dix.

The senior team composed of Mildred Henne, Gertrude Webb, Harriet Liddle and Bernice Edwards won the elephant walk. The senior-sophomore team won the obstacle race, while the juniors triumphed in the wheelbarrow event. The seniors won the 400-yard relay, the potato race and the dancing event.

The tug-of-war between the sophomore-seniors and freshman-juniors resulted in a number of skinned elbows and bruised bodies. Instead of stopping when the first girl on the freshman-junior team had been pulled across the line, the winners continued to tug until every one of their opponents had been dragged over the mark.

Athletic Director Eschbacher stated after the final event that yesterday's meet was one of the best in which the Lindenwood girls ever participated. There was a large number of entries and a large crowd on hand.

HOME ECONOMICS STUDENTS PREPARING TO GRADUATE

Demonstrations in Planning, Cooking and Serving Dinner Necessary For Honors.

Women's colleges all over the country are featuring, this week, special menus and special luncheon and dinner events arranged by the members of their home economics classes.

For instance the girls of the home economics department of Lindenwood College. Each of the girls of the class acts as hostess, waitress and helper at a different dinner, three girls co-operating at each party.

The hostess is entirely responsible for her dinner. She plans the menu, works out the color scheme and cooks the viands. The only restriction put upon her is that the price of the meal must be within a reasonable sum, although no definite maximum limit is set.

Among the home economics pupils who received honorable mention in this contest was Beverly Faunt Le Roy, who arranged a green and white luncheon with pink sweet peas and green vines as table embellishments. The following menu was served:

Spring canape
Lamb chops, tartare sauce
Green peas in timbles
Parsley potatoes
Hot rolls
Cucumber boat salad
Cheese straws
Lemon sherbet
White cake Nuts Mints
Coffee

A yellow and white dinner served by Miss Frances Ware was highly complimented by the judges. Yellow tea roses and amber glass accessories and yellow candles carried out the color scheme. The particularly inviting menu follows:

Grapefruit baskets
Crown lamb roast
Asparagus, Hollandaise sauce
Diced potatoes
Hot rolls
Celery Olives
Cucumber jelly salad
Pistachio ice cream
Gold cake
Salted nuts Mints
Coffee

A savory chicken dinner with red and white as the predominant decorative color scheme was chosen by Miss Beatrice Oliphant for her contribution.

Her menu follows:

Crab meat cocktail
Fried chicken
Cauliflower, creamed potatoes
Radish rosettes
Hot rolls
Strawberry ice
Stuffed tomato salad
Wafers
Marshmallow fluff
White cake
Salted nuts Mints

Washington Girl in Lindenwood College Serves Course Dinner

St. Charles, Mo., May 14.—Miss Dorothy Taylor, of Washington, has been one of the home economics students at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., whose class course involved the preparation and serving of a full dinner, unaided as to menu except by a student helper. She entertained three guests at a late spring dinner in the home suite of the economics department.

Her dinner, daintily served with table decoration of sweet peas, constituted four courses and was thought out beforehand so as to be limited to a moderate cost. It follows:

Shrimp Cocktail
Sirloin Steak with Mushroom Sauce
Hot Rolls French Fried Potatoes
New Peas
Asparagus Salad with Cheese Straws
Strawberry Ice-cream
Nuts Mints Coffee

NEWS FROM LINDENWOOD

Miss Charlotte Lehrack, a freshman in the Public School Music department of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri, sang very beautifully in a recital presented by the pupils of Miss Cora N. Edwards one of the voice instructors of the college, on Thursday, May 10th. She sang "Now sleeps the Crimson Petal", by Quilter. Miss Lehrack has taken part in numerous musical affairs at the college. She was one of a group who recently sang at the Presbyterian church at Webster Groves, Missouri, and has sung with groups of girls in many places. Miss Lehrack has a lovely contralto voice.

PORTLAND GIRL HAS IMPORTANT ROLE

Miss George Evelyn Cone, of Portland, has been named for the role of "Phoebe" in Lindenwood College's commencement cast of "As You Like It" for the night of May 26, on the college campus at St. Charles, Mo. The Lindenwood chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity, will put on the production out of doors of Shakespeare's comedy, with a stage setting of the beautiful grove between Irwin and Sibley halls. All those taking the principal parts are members of Alpha Psi Omega or are selected from the oratory department. There will be accompanying music by the college orchestra and choral club, and full costuming of the period.

The play is to be given in the evening at 8 o'clock, after the ceremony of crowning the May Queen, who is Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, Ohio.

Another Arkansas girl taking a part in "As You Like It" is Miss Marjorie Smith, of Siloam Springs, who will play "Amiens."

MUSICAL RECITAL

Miss Silva Snyder, Pianist, in Difficult Program at Lindenwood

Miss Silva Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Snyder of this city, who is finishing her Senior year at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., appeared in her Senior recital in Roemer auditorium at Lindenwood last Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Snyder, Mrs. M. J. Delaney and Miss Madge Wilson, of this city, were present.

Miss Snyder will receive a Bachelor of Music degree at the time of her graduation on May 29th. According to a dispatch from Lindenwood to the News-Plaindealer, Miss Snyder leaves a most splendid record of musical ability in that department of the college. Her recital numbers last Thursday evening revealed a rare versatility of expression and a splendid technique.

Her program numbers, all played from memory, consisted of Prelude and Fugue, D. Major (Bach); Sonata, E. Minor, Allegro Moderato, Andante Molto, Alla Menuetto, Molto Allegro (Grieg); Etude No. 7, C Major (Chopin); Etude No. 14, F Minor (Chopin); Japanese Sunset (Deppen); Uncle Remus (B. Rubinstein); Concerto, D Minor Allegro (A. Rubinstein).

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE CLUB.

Lindenwood College was the place of meeting Monday, May 14 of the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club. The members of the club arrived in the morning, in time for the chapel exercises, and remained for luncheon, leaving in the early afternoon. At luncheon the toastmistress, Mrs. L. D. Bernero, introduced the speakers, Miss Janet Stine, Miss Anna Petri, and the college president, Dr. John L. Roemer. The subjects of their talks were, respectively, "Inspiration," "Fearlessness" and "The Pilot." The retiring president, Mrs. W. K. Roth, introduced the new officers for the coming term: Mrs. Arthur Krueger, president; Miss Janet Stine, first vice president; Miss Aimee Becker, second vice president; Mrs. L. O. Bernero, treasurer; Miss A. L. Petri, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. G. Vogt, recording secretary. There were forty members present, and they were given into the hands of the seniors, who wore their class blazers and escorted the club members to all the new and old nooks and crannies of the campus.

DETROIT GIRL WINS HONOR AT COLLEGE

MISS MARGARET FAGG.

Miss Fagg, of Detroit, has been named for the role of "Celia" in Lindenwood college's commencement cast of "As You Like It" for the night of May 26, on the college campus at St. Charles, Mo. The Lindenwood chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity, is to produce Shakespeare's comedy out of doors.

The play is to be given in the evening at 8 o'clock, after the late afternoon ceremony of crowning the May Queen, Miss Betty Birch, of Toledo, O.

Lindenwood College 101st Class Leaves Institution Tuesday

President Crooks of Alma to Make Commence- ment Address.

Lindenwood College is entering upon its second century of commencement exercises with the four days' program which begins next Saturday. The 101st class will leave the college portals Tuesday, May 29, and it so happens that the class is larger than any other that Lindenwood has ever known, even in the days when young misses "finished" at 15 and 16 instead of going on to four-year college degrees as now. There are forty-three girls who will become bachelors of the arts, the sciences or of music. The commencement address is to be made by President H. M. Crooks of Alma College, a Presbyterian coeducational institution in Alma, Mich.

"Ye Olde English May Day," as it is announced, is the opening celebration. At 5:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon, following classic custom, the May Queen, Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, Ohio, will appear above the brow of the hill at the north end of Lindenwood's natural amphitheater, and will tread the grassy golf links with all her retainers. Pianos and dressing rooms are moved out among the trees for the day and the many sports and feats of skill before the Queen are in verisimilitude to an old-time gala festival of "Merrie England."

Professional Coronation.

While the professional coronation by Schumann and Mendelssohn is being played by the students' orchestra, the junior class, disporting as "pastoral maidens," will bring in the seniors and their daisy chain, and attendants large and small will blaze the way for the queen. Several dainty children of St. Charles will be flower bearers, besides the student maids of the court who are, for the freshmen, Misses Letha Bailey of Neodesha, Kan., and Bobby Wyeth of Charleston; sophomores, Misses Adeline Brubaker of Springfield, Ill., and Gertrude Hull of Butler, Mo., and next to the queen herself will be the maid of honor, a junior, Miss Betty Foster of Arvada, Colo.

A new idea in throning is designed each year, and this one, like the others, is to be a surprise. "Queen Betty" herself is an expert in arts dramatic, as she ranks high as a playwright at Lindenwood, several of her plays which won prizes having been successfully put on the stage. She is under contract, after her graduation next week, to direct a company "out in the world," and has her engagements all set for weeks ahead. Meantime she is writing another play.

The program, therefore, has been studied with unusual care. There will be a "ribbon dance" by milkmaids, and shepherds will be shown "gathering peascods," both numbers having music by Cecil Sharp. Morris dancers will show "bean setting" and an English dance. There will be an archery contest. Foresters will render a Morris handkerchief dance from the English.

There is to be a band of "Roman maidens," dancing to Schumann and Dvorak; gypsies in a Bohemian polka, with music by Ottokar Bartik; merry-makers according to an old French reel; English Maypole dancers, with music of "Bluff King Hal," and the recessional will be "Triumphant Procession" from "Aida," by Verdi. Misses Barbara Eschbach and Gene Gustavus of the faculty will direct the May Day, and the pianists will be Misses Frances Wachter and Allene Horton.

Lindenwood's "Players" are now listed in the national fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. Their production of "As You Like It" Saturday night at 8 o'clock, following the May queen, is one of the most ambitious things the organization has yet attempted. The outdoor stage will be in the open space on the campus between Sibley and Irwin halls. The cast consists of Misses Jane White, Pauline Scherer, Marjorie Smith, Margaret Keesor, Helen Hansman, Lucy Seaman, Marian Crutcher, Ida Hayes, Marcia Wallace, Lucile Kelly, Ruth Bullion, Ruth Lindsay Hughes, Dorothee Meyers, Halcyon Burch, Josephine Bowman, Margaret Fagg, George Evelyn Cone, Ruth Ellen Olcott, Helen Kidd and Marguerite Bruere.

Group of "Foresters."

A piquant group of "foresters" will consist of Misses Virginia Rhorer, Iris Fleischaker, Pauline Brown, Alice Plass, Louise Blake, Euneva Lynn, Esther Schumacher and Lillian Wolf.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the graduates will appear in the full glory of their caps and gowns. The baccalaureate sermon is to be preached by Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church. At this service Miss Grace Terhune of the faculty will sing. There will also be anthems by the college choir, under the direction of Miss Cora N. Edwards. The annual commencement concert by the Lindenwood vesper choir will be given in the evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Senior class day will hold a world of mysteries Monday afternoon, May 28, at 2 o'clock, in Roemer Auditorium. Mrs. John L. Roemer and Miss Gene Gustavus are sponsors of the class. Miss Sue Campbell of Bowling Green is the class president and other officers are Misses Ruth Foster, Bernice Edwards and Frances Stumberg. At night a concert by Miss Margery Maxwell of the Chicago Civic Opera Company will be given. It is expected also that Monday will see a number of private parties in the tearoom and over the campus in honor of the relatives of the students and other visitors.

After the commencement exercises President and Mrs. John L. Roemer will entertain the college and the guests at luncheon.

QUESTIONNAIRE SHOWS APTITUDE OF STUDENTS

Vocational lectures instituted this school year at Lindenwood College have brought out aptitudes in various directions. It was shown in a questionnaire of the senior class, taken Saturday at a luncheon given by the president, Dr. John L. Roemer, and Mrs. Roemer, at the Missouri Athletic Association. Whereas in former years there has been a majority destined to become teachers, and also a large proportion who "don't know what they will do," there are now, in this class of forty-three girls, only sixteen who intend indefinitely to become teachers. Social service has attracted four of the number; four intend to become writers, three on newspapers, three will be librarians, one is to teach music, and three will take up post-graduate studies. Two of the class, whose engagements have been announced, are soon to be married. Only ten are left who have not committed themselves definitely to any career. This class' age averages 22. There are twenty-six who have taken the course leading to the degree Bachelor of Arts, twelve who will become Bachelors of Science and five who will receive the Bachelor of Music degree at commencement exercises at the election Friday, May 25.

Commencement Season Is Attracting Interest of Alumni in College Events

By EVELYN CHANTLER

From St. Charles, Mo., comes news of another college play and commencement, telling of Miss Alice McLean, Tacoma girl. She has the character role of "Scotland" in a musical play in honor of Mother's day, Sunday night, May 13, at Lindenwood college, where she is a student. The drama, which was written for this occasion by Kathryn Platt Walker, a senior, shows "Mother in the garden of home, always waiting to explain what is not clear and to watch over us, asleep or awake." The college vesper choir will sing the musical parts and the "Sandmar" will reveal the "children of other land." Besides "Scotland," there will pass before "Mother," a child of the strains of Eskimo, Indian, Japan, Holland, Spain, Gypsy, Egypt and France.

Lindenwood is approaching its 101st commencement, which will be celebrated May 29. The crowning of the May queen, on May 26, will be followed by an out-door presentation of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," in the ensemble of which every one of the 500 students is to have a part.

LOCAL GIRL GIVES DINNER AT LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

That girls in the "home ec" department of Lindenwood College are learning practical things was shown by the recent dinner in the "home suite" of the department given by Miss Helen Buchanan of this city. This dinner was similar to several given respectively by each girl, unaided, a suitable "company dinner" within a prescribed, moderate cost.

Miss Buchanan's dinner-party included herself and three guests, one a member of the Lindenwood faculty. It was a white and yellow dinner, in Lindenwood colors, and the table decorations were yellow roses. The menu follows:

101st Commencement.

The 101st commencement of Lindenwood College, at which time forty-three degrees and thirty-five diplomas and certificates will be bestowed by the president, Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, is to take place Tuesday morning, May 29, at 10 o'clock, in Roemer Auditorium.

President H. M. Crooks of Alma College, Alma, Mich., will give the commencement address. The Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking of Pilgrim Congregational Church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

In the senior class of forty-three, three graduates are from St. Louis: Miss Gertrude Webb, who receives the B. S. degree, and Erma Meier and Esther Schumacher, each of whom receives the degree A. B. Others making up the class, with their degrees, are as follows:

Bachelor of Music, Marguerite Bruere, Carrie Boschert, Helen Roper, Euneva Lynn, Silva Snyder.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

Miss Frances Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Ware of this city, was hostess at a four course dinner party given at Lindenwood college Wednesday, April 18th. Miss Ware, who is majoring in Home Economics, was required to give one dinner during the semester work. She was assisted by two other girls in the department. Her color scheme was yellow and green, with yellow tea roses decorating the table.

Times, May 25.

While none but the honorary Greek letter sororities are permitted at Lindenwood College, the school is adding these to its roster. The latest is the national affiliation of Lindenwood's English Club, which from now on is to be known as Kappa Beta Chapter of Sigma Tau Delta. This national fraternity was established in 1923, and has now 25 chapters. The president of Lindenwood's chapter is Miss Helen Hammer of St. Charles. Other officers are Miss Mary Alice Lange, Leavenworth, Kan.; Margaret Dyer, St. Charles; Misses Julia Palmer, Kansas City, and Frances Stumberg, St. Charles. The last two are seniors, and will leave with their graduation next Tuesday, but others next year will be chosen according to their ability. The chapter includes the teachers of the English department as charter members, Dr. Alice A. Gipson, Dr. Kate L. Gregg, Misses Chandler, Dawson and Wallenbrock.

LINDENWOOD QUEEN ALSO A TRACK WINNER

By a coincidence which never happened before, the May Queen of Lindenwood College, Miss Betty Birch of Toledo, Ohio, has also been adjudged the highest number of points in the recent track meet of the college, according to totals just computed.

Miss Birch has divided her attention while at Lindenwood between athletics, dramatics and playwriting. She has been so successful in the last that she has an engagement for this summer to tour several states as director of a stock company. Next winter she will direct her own plays, from one of which she has been receiving royalties while still a student.

The crowning of the May Queen at 5:45 o'clock this afternoon (Saturday) will present "Ye Olde English May Day," with typical music and dances. The attendants to the queen are to be Misses Elizabeth Foster, Adeline Brubaker, Gertrude Hull, Letha Bailey and Bobby Wyeth.

Tonight an outdoor production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" will be presented on the campus space between Sibley and Irwin halls.

The baccalaureate sermon tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in Roemer Auditorium, will be made by Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church.

Lindenwood Seniors Hear Baccalaureate by Dr. J. T. Stocking

"What Is Truth?" was the text of the baccalaureate sermon at Lindenwood College, by Dr. Jay T. Stocking of Pilgrim Congregational Church, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Roemer Auditorium before the graduating class, faculty and other students. The president, Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, presided at this service. The college vesper choir sang the anthem, "The King of Love"; the hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," as processional, and "Fling Out the Banner" in recessional. Miss Grace Terhune of the faculty sang from "Pentecost" by Bach, "My Heart Ever Faithful." The choir was under the direction of Miss Cora N. Edwards.

"Pilate's title to fame," said Dr. Stocking, "was this question which he asked of Jesus, 'What is truth?' Many people today, infected by a mild form of atheism, are asking whether, after all, truth is anything that can be found out. This question of Pilate's is the greatest question man can ask.

"There is a good deal about the behavior of this universe that we can know. We know physically it is mathematically dependable; there are certain laws by which we must build our bridges and mix our chemicals. The world is written all over with 'Thou shalt' and 'Thou shalt not.' The universe is also dependable morally. Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. This is not a threat, but the statement of a moral law. 'A man may sin securely, but safely never.' The greatest punishment that can be visited upon wrongdoing is that a person should become the kind of man who can do a wrong; and the greatest reward that comes from noble doing is that one becomes the kind of man that can do nobly.

"Likewise is this universe dependable spiritually. If there is such a thing as spiritual truth, can we find it? If it is meant to inquire whether we can reach finality, saying 'Here is all the truth, and nothing to learn further,' we must answer no.

"It is a calamity for a person when he thinks he has found out all the truth, because he straightway becomes an enemy of the truth; he becomes dogmatic and intolerant, a stumbling-block in the way of progress, a standpatter who looks with abhorrence upon all change."

LINDENWOOD TO ISSUE 44 DIPLOMAS TODAY

The senior class of forty-four ^{three} girls at Lindenwood College presented as a class day program yesterday afternoon, in Roemer Auditorium, "Senior Memories of Four Long Happy Years." The high lights in the students' career were presented, with Miss Virginia Sue Campbell presiding, assisted by the class sponsors, Mrs. John L. Roemer and Miss Gene Gustavus, and by the student officers, Misses Ruth Foster, Bernice Edwards and Frances Stumberg.

This morning at 10 o'clock, commencement exercises will be held in the auditorium for Lindenwood's one hundred and first year. Dr. H. M. Crooks, president of Alma College, Alma, Mich., will give the address.

Degrees, awards and other scholastic honors will be conferred by the president, Dr. John L. Roemer.

St. Charles Girl Wins $500 Fellowship at Lindenwood College

Leads Graduating Class of Forty-Three.

Leading the prize list in the 101st annual commencement exercises at Lindenwood College yesterday morning was a $500 fellowship awarded to Miss Frances Stumberg of St. Charles, who graduated with the degree A. B. in the class of forty-three girls. The award, as announced by the president, Dr. John L. Roemer, was made on the basis of scholarship and of loyalty to "the standards of Lindenwood," and may be applied in graduate study in any university of this country or Europe.

President H. M. Crooks of Alma College, Alma, Mich., gave an address on "The Growth of Personality," placing "personality" as an attribute of the spiritual. Wittily discounting "size" as an essential, he nevertheless said he had been frequently "envious of the men who are 200 pounds heavy and 6 feet tall. Yet Napoleon was only 5 feet 4."

"Take 100 men from any community, dress them the same, barber them the same if that be possible; then take 100 of the greatest men in the nation, dressed in just the same way; put them on a train and scramble them, and at the end of the journey ask anybody to pick out the great ones. Ten chances to one, taking a seasoned, wrinkled chap with marks of hunger on his face they will declare, 'You got this one from the poor house,' whereas he is really John D. Rockefeller, who got that hungry look from indigestion."

Wife's Impression.

The speaker told his wife's impression of Sara Bernhardt as "wonderful, wonderful, wonderful," although his wife had heard "the Divine Sara" make only one speech in French, of which she caught only the words "Panama Canal."

"Do you want to know what charm is?" he said. "Charm is that quality which an occasional man possesses, but which every woman possesses. It is—well, it is that which makes her charming." This indefinable "something," he intimated, is truly described in Bernard Shaw's play telling of the gutter girl made into a court lady, simply by cultivation of speech and voice.

Probate Judge Charles Holtcamp made a talk, bestowing his own prizes for Bible study, in memory of his daughter. As a guardian of orphans, he said, he had been sorry to see thousands of young people under his care neglect the study of the Bible and spiritual matters. The Bible, he said, is "the foundation of our civilization." His prizes went, in the order named, to Misses Lena Lewis, Frances Blair and Betty Jack. Bible prizes given by President Roemer went to Misses Agnes Currie and Marcia Wallace.

More Enthusiasm.

Much enthusiasm was shown for the winning of the athletic scholarship by Miss Lucille Kelly of Grand Island, Neb. Four seniors, Misses Harriet Liddle, Marie McCafferty, Gertrude Webb and Bernice Edwards, won awards of the college athletic association.

The best cook in Lindenwood was announced as Miss Lolabel Black of Lancaster, Ohio, and best in sewing was Miss Alice Buffett of Omaha.

Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly's prizes for dress designing went to Misses Margaret Skoglund, Ruth Sager and Alberta Sievert, and for the best finished dress to Misses Gwendolyn Kimball, Ruth Foster and Helen Rudolph.

The annual art prize of the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club was divided between Misses Viola Wolfert and Jeanette Beeson. Miss Geneva Jorgenson of Kansas City gained the poster prize.

Miss Virginia Rhorer of Greenfield, Mo., won the progress prize in voice, and she sang at the commencement, "The Answer," by Terry. Other music progress prizes were won by Misses Marion Gibson, voice; Shirley Greene, violin, and Catherine Burk, organ.

Two Scholarships.

Two $200 scholarships, Sigma Iota Chi and Eta Upsilon Gamma, were given respectively to two Arkansas girls, Misses Marjorie Smith of Siloam Springs, and Ruth Bullion of Little Rock. Miss Elizabeth Tracy won the scholarship prize among those carrying twelve hours of literary work.

Money scholarships to be applied on next year's work were won by the following juniors: Misses Elizabeth Tracy, Mary Elizabeth Sawtell, Margaret Dyer, Sue Austin, Teresa Bartos, Helen Hammer, Rose Patton, Margaret Maxwell; sophomores, Frances Ware, Margaret Gardiner, Iris Fleischaker, Julia Thompson, Virginia McClure, Eugenia Morris, Mary Elizabeth Ambler, Jeanne Berry, Dorothy Gartner, Grace Stevenson, Frances Dunn, Mary Mason, Violet Meyer; freshmen, Virginia Derby, Jean Whitney, Doris Force, Treva Jane Ogan, Lena Lewis, Virginia Ann Shrimpton, Betty Jack, Mary Shepard, Lorna Burkhead, Dorothy Jackson, Gloria Butterfield, Frances Doak, Eleanor Richardson and Helen Weber.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling of Webster Groves, and the benediction by Rev. Henry H. Marsden, archdeacon of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri.

ST. CHARLES GIRL GETS $500 LINDENWOOD SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Margaret Gardiner of St. Louis Wins the Sophomore Award.

Winners of prizes and scholarships at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, were announced today at commencement exercises. They included Miss Gertrude Webb, St. Louis, one of four seniors receiving awards by the Lindenwood Athletic Association; Miss Margaret Gardiner, St. Louis, sophomore scholarship, and Miss Ruth Sager, University City, second prize for dress designing.

The coveted $500 graduate scholarship was won by Miss Frances Stumberg, daughter of Dr. B. Kurt Stumberg of St. Charles. Among those awarded scholarships for next year were Misses Virginia McClure, Webster Groves; Mary Elizabeth Ambler, Maplewood, and Helen Weber, Kirkwood.

The St. Louis Lindenwood College Club's art prizes went to Miss Viola Wolfert, Belleville, Ill., and Miss Jeanette Beeson, Maplewood, N. J.

Bachelors' degrees were bestowed on 43 graduating students. In addition, 35 certificates and diplomas were distributed. President Crooks of Alma College, Alma, Mich., was the commencement speaker.

Lindenwood Girls Receive Coveted Honors and Prizes

AN IMPORTANT office for next year is settled at Lindenwood College by the announcement at the commencement Tuesday that Miss Mary Elizabeth Sawtell, a minister's daughter from Omaha, Neb., will be head of the student government board. She is a senior, a member of both the English and the Latin clubs at the college, and has been prominent in the Y. W. C. A., besides being one of the editors of the college annual. Miss Katharine Palmer of Clayton will be vice president of the board and Miss Lucy Spence of La Crosse, Wis., the secretary-treasurer.

Among the forty scholarships announced was the bestowal of the $500 fellowship upon Miss Frances Stumberg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. Kurt Stumberg of St. Charles. Her father and grandfather together have held continued membership in the board of Lindenwood for about forty-five years, but in this case her family knew nothing about the appointment, which was given by the faculty on the basis of high grades, loyalty and fidelity to "the standards of Lindenwood." This is the first time in two years that this fellowship has been given.

The seniors, as last year, won the class scholarship for best work. President John L. Roemer conferred the forty-three bachelors' degrees, divided among the arts, sciences and music.

In athletics, the scholarship for distinctive work went to Miss Lucille Kelly of Grand Island, Neb. Four seniors, Misses Gertrude Webb of St. Louis, Harriet Liddle of Des Moines, Marie McCafferty of Butte, Mont., and Bernice Edwards of Joplin, Mo., were selected by the Athletic Association for awards.

The femininity of the college stood out in its "best-cook" prize, which went to Miss Lolabel Black of Lancaster, Ohio, and in a competition for best-kept rooms, honors were given.

There were also six prizes in dressmaking, given by Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly of Kansas City, one of which went to Miss Ruth Sager of University City. The college sewing prize was gained by Alice Buffett of Omaha.

In art, a Kansas City girl, Genevra Jorgenson, won the poster prize, and the Lindenwood College Club prize was divided between a Belleville Girl, Viola Wolfort, and Jeanette Beeson of Maplewood, N. J.

Limes, May 31

Forty scholarships to students were awarded at Lindenwood College Tuesday. Leading all was the $500 fellowship awarded to Miss Frances Stumberg of St. Charles, a graduate of this year. Miss Stumberg had already decided to seek a master's degree at Chicago University, and the fellowship will be applied for that purpose.

Besides substantial awards for athletics, art, music, and various branches of Bible study, there was the gift of the Lindenwood alumna, "Nellie Don," Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly, of Kansas City. Her prizes for dress designing went, first to Margaret Skoglund of De Kalb, Ill.; second to Ruth Sager of University City; third to Alberta Sievert of Ponca City, Ok., and for a finished dress, first to Gwendolyn Kimball of Port Huron, Mich.; second, Ruth Foster, Ironton, Ohio, and third to Helen Rudolph of Atlantic City, Pa.

2 JOPLIN GIRLS GAIN SPECIAL DISTINCTIONS

St. Charles, Mo., June 4.—Two Joplin girls, Misses Bernice Edwards and Iris Fleischaker, received special distinctions at the recent 101st commencement exercises of Lindenwood college here. Miss Edwards was one of four seniors to gain the senior athletic award, bestowed annually by the Lindenwood Athletic Association.

Miss Fleischaker was the recipient of an educational scholarship in the sophomore class, selected not alone for excellent marks on class work, but also for general conformity to Lindenwood's standards of character and conduct. It will be remembered that last year Miss Fleischaker won a prize for "greatest progress in music." This was brought to mind this commencement by the fact that she was selected with Miss Dorothy Gartner of Chillicothe, O., to sing a duet. Their number was "Les Bohemiennes," by Brahms.

Miss Edwards graduated with the degree A. B. She was secretary of the senior class, which contained forty-three girls, the largest number ever graduated at Lindenwood.

IRONTON GIRL WINS CONTEST

Miss Ruth Foster Graduated At Lindenwood College

Miss Ruth Foster, of Ironton, has demonstrated an enviable ability as a maker of dresses in winning one of the prizes in a recent contest at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., among other honors culminating with her graduation, vice-president of the senior class, with the degree, B. S. The particular contest is peculiar to Lindenwood, in that it is instituted by an alumnae, Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly, of Kansas City, who happens to be at the head of a large dress-manufacturing establishment. She gives three prizes each for the best finished dress and the best dress design. Miss Foster's award was in the former class. The dresses had to be completed several weeks before commencement, then were sent to Kansas City, where they were judged by factory experts, entirely independent of the college.

Miss Foster has been president of Lindenwood's Home Economics Club, and she has also been active in the Art Club and the Spanish Club.

Local Girl Wins "Best Cook" Title

ST. CHARLES, MO., June 2. — Miss Lolabel Black, of Lancaster, O., who has just completed her sophomore year at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., is returning home for vacation, with an unusual honor bestowed at the recent commencement. She has received the award as "best cook" in Lindenwood's home economics department. This was won over a considerable number doing similar work, the crowning feature of which was the giving of individual dinners to about four guests, cooked and served by the young aspirant.

Another Ohio girl, Miss Katherine Routzong, of Xenia, received a prize for "best kept room" in Butler dormitory. A third, Miss Ruth Foster of Ironton, O., gained second in three prizes awarded for the "best finished dress", which awards are annually given by Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly of Kansas City, a Lindenwood alumna who is manufacturer of the "Nellie Don" dresses. So it will be seen that Ohio girls are good in the domestic arts.

To another, however, Miss Dorothy Gartner, of Chillicothe, O., was given one of the sophomore educational scholarships.

LINDENWOOD PRESIDENT TO SPEAK AT THOMAS, PA.

Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, left the city last night for Thomas, Pa., to preach the dedicatory sermon tomorrow at the Fairview Presbyterian Church, which was his first pastorate thirty-six years ago. Only a few days after leaving the theological seminary and immediately after his marriage, Dr. Roemer brought his bride to this church. The Roemers remained there until they went to Cleveland, Ohio, thence to Chillicothe, Ohio, and from there to St. Louis.

The New Fairview church building is unique in that it has been provided by the bequest of a former pastor and his wife, the late Dr. and Mrs. Hyde, who left all their fortune for church uses. After the building is paid for, which cost about $50,000, the balance of the legacy is to home and foreign missions.

LOCAL GIRL GAINS TWO HONORS IN MO.

Miss Lena Lewis, of Nelson Hall apartments, who has just completed her freshman year at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., gained two honors at the recent commencement, as announced by the President, Dr. John Lincoln Roemer. She received the much-coveted educational scholarship, granted to a small, selected number from the class, which is a substantial sum of money to be applied on college work next year, which is given for excellence in studies and for general fidelity to the standards of the college in character and conduct. Miss Lewis gained also a prize peculiar to Lindenwood, open to all freshmen, for committing to memory "the greatest number of Bible verses".

The prizes, three in number, are given annually by Judge Charles Holtcamp of St. Louis, in memory of his daughter, a Lindenwood alumna. Judge Holtcamp has presided in probate court for more than 20 years, being guardian to hundreds of orphans, and he said at the commencement that he gives these prizes because he thinks the young people of this age are falling away in their study of the Scriptures. Miss Lewis won first place in these prizes. This was Lindenwood's 101st commencement, and the college is now well into its second century of existence.

The following details concerning an article mentioned of which was made several days ago in The Register-News, have been received from St. Charles, Mo.

"Miss Eleanor Richardson of Mt. Vernon, has gained a college honor as announced at the recent commencement at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., of an educational scholarship. Miss Richardson has just completed the freshman year at Lindenwood and the scholarship comes as a recognition of excellent grades. It also represents, as the president, Dr. John L. Roemer stated, the adherence to high ideals, loyalty to the college and a general excellence of character and conduct. In a class of more than 100 freshmen, Miss Richardson was one of the 14 selected for the scholarship honors.

The two other Illinois girls, Miss Sue Austin of Effingham, and Miss Frances Ware of Jerseyville, came in for scholarships in the junior and sophomore classes, respectively.

This was Lindenwood's 101st commencement, and the week's programme brought back old students from many states and many years.

Miss Adeline Brubaker of Springfield, Ill., had the honor of serving as one of the five maids in the May Queen's court."

Miss Treva Jane Ogan, who has just completed her freshman year at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., was honored at the recent commencement exercises by the award of an educational scholarship. This was given, as announced by President John L. Roemer, not only for excellence and general high marks in all her studies, but also because Miss Ogan supported the high standard of Lindenwood and took part in the life of the college in its various extra-curricular activities. There was a freshman class of over 100 students, and Miss Ogan was one of 14 selected for the educational scholarships. These represent a substantial sum of money, to be applied on college expenses next year.

This was Lindenwood's 101st commencement, and the college is now well launched on its second century. A pretty event of the commencement season was the crowning of the May Queen, Miss Betty Jack, of Toledo, Ohio.

ST. CHARLES, MO., June 12.—(Special.)—Miss Marie McCafferty, of Butte, Mont., who was graduated with the degree A. B. at Lindenwood college was named at the recent commencement exercises as one of four seniors best in athletics, the vote having been given by the college athletic association. Miss McCafferty has ranked high in her studies, and the esteem in which she is felt by her school friends is evidenced by the inscription beneath her picture in the college annual, "Linden Leaves: "You will leave in the heart of your Alma Mater a memory of one who played the game." Miss McCafferty was president of the Rocky Mountain club at Lindenwood in the last year, composed of the students from far western states.

Lindenwood College Girl Awarded $500 Merit Fellowship

Miss Frances Stumberg
Will Attend Chicago University.

MISS FRANCES STUMBERG,
Business Manager of "Linden Leaves," who won the college fellowship of $500.

Lindenwood College's annual, "Linden Leaves" for 1928, may claim a distinction in that its business manager, Miss Frances Stumberg of St. Charles, gained the $500 fellowship of Lindenwood this year. This fellowship, which Miss Stumberg intends to use in Chicago University, working for her Master's degree, is not necessarily bestowed every year. It is an award for unusual merit.

This "Linden Leaves," the first in Lindenwood's second century, has a faint scroll tracery of pale green on its pages, which is in keeping with the original feature, "Trees," which begins the book. The accustomed photographs of campus buildings are displayed so as to exhibit the classic "umbrage" of Lindenwood. Joyce Killmer's poem, "Trees," appears beneath a picture "In Memory of the King of the Campus." This "King" was an elm which had stood for a century, but which last year had to be cut down.

Seniors Featured.

The seniors are pictured in full pages, forty-three in all, each with a legend, and especially long is the screed concerning Miss Virginia Sue Campbell, who achieved what seemed the impossible in being Student Board president and popularity queen also. The juniors, sophomores and freshmen each are pictured in brief.

Then come the "activities," leading by popular choice with "Sports" and the Lindenwood Athletic Association, wherein the Annual editor, Miss Harriet Liddle, was association president. Pictures and personalities are shown to advantage in the seven departments — posture, swimming, hockey, hiking, tennis, golf and basket ball.

Staff Pictured.

"Linden Leaves" staff is pictured individually. Besides Miss Liddle and Miss Stumberg, there are Misses Ruth Bullion, assistant editor; Garnette Thompson, assistant business manager; Elizabeth Kuykendall, literary editor; Kathryn Walker, organization editor, with four assistants, Marcia Wallace, Mary E. Sawtell, Lucille Kelly, Dorothea McCulloh; Betty Baker, art editor, and Betty Birch, humor editor. "Linden Bark," the campus weekly, also comes in for a page, as well as the college Y. W. C. A. and the various clubs, including English, Latin, Spanish, home economics, public school music, commercial, choir, choral, international relations and city and state clubs. A point is made of the fact that quite a number of Lindenwood's clubs have taken on national affiliations within the last year.

There is a finely embellished section devoted to "Queens." The book finishes with "campus life" snaps, a literary department and some clever jokes and cartoons in miniature.

NEBRASKA GIRLS MAKE GOOD RECORD

Miss Virginia Ann Shrimpton, of Ainsworth, was honored at the recent commencement exercises of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., by being designated as one of the 14 fortunate freshman who are receiving educational scholarships. As the freshman class at Lindenwood is composed of considerably more than 100 girls, the honor is distinctive. It represents not only faithful study for the last year, but also a high standard of character and conduct, representing as stated by the president, Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, "fidelity to Lindenwood."

This was Lindenwood's 101st commencement, and the college is now entering its second century.

Another Nebraska girl in the same class, Miss Doris Force of Oakland, and also a junior, Miss Teresa Bartos of Wilber, were likewise winners of educational scholarships. There was distinction also to Miss Lucille Kelly, of Grand Island, who was declared winner of the athletic scholarship for outstanding work in athletics in the last year.

St. Charles, Mo., June 11th—Miss Lorna Burkhead, of Armstrong, who has just completed her freshman year at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., was one of the fortunate ones, at the recent commencement, who received an educational scholarship. This was announced by the president, Dr. John L. Roemer, as an honor given not alone for the excellence of her grades—a certain high mark being necessary in all her studies—but also for the general standard of character and conduct maintained by the recipient throughout the school year. It is a substantial sum, to be applied on her college expenses next year.

There were only 14 out of a freshman class of over 100 who were honored with scholarships, but it so happened that two Iowa girls were selected. The other was Miss Frances Doak, of Winterset.

SUDDEN DEATH CLAIMS MISS LOIS LINZEE

Stricken At Funeral of Grandmother, Passed Away Soon After

Citizens of Du Quoin were shocked early today with the news of the sudden death of Miss Lois Linzee, eighteen-year-old daughter of former Mayor R. S. Linzee and Mrs. Linzee, which occurred some time before 3 o'clock this morning, after only a few hours illness. The news spread rapidly and was received everywhere with amazement and feeling of deep sympathy for the family.

Miss Linzee was stricken while attending the funeral of her grandmother, Mrs. Harriet Linzee, laid to rest Sunday afternoon.

Lois developed a severe headache as she rose to leave the car at the cemetery and her suffering was so intense that a physician was called in the early evening and later a second doctor was called. She continually grew worse, however, and death relieved her suffering shortly before 3 o'clock this morning.

Death is believed to have been caused by a clot on the brain, possibly due to the strain of her little brother's recent illness while she was away at school. Raymond, youngest member of the household, was stricken with appendicitis a few weeks ago and underwent an operation a month ago today. For days his life was despaired of but he finally recovered. Then came the death of the grandmother on Friday evening adding to the strain.

Miss Linzee was a graduate of Du Quoin Township High School, class of 1927, and she graduated with highest honors, listed as one of three students with the highest average for the four years. and her work at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., where she was in school the past year was equally as brilliant.

Returns From College

Among the Port Arthur girls who have been attending Lindenwood college at St. Charles, Mo., the past year is Miss Cora Glasgow, who has just returned to spend the summer here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Glasgow of 444 Fifth avenue.

Miss Glasgow was a member of the athletic association of Lindenwood college and at the athletic meet held just before the close of school she gained a number of points for her excellent swimming. In addition to her athletic honors, Miss Glasgow scored a decided hit in the musical comedy, "So This Is College," staged as one of the closing features of the school activities.

Church Ceremony

One of the lovely weddings of recent date was that of June 30, when Miss Ann Toomey, daughter of Mrs. Peter Mitchell Toomey of 301 South Harvard Boulevard, became the bride of Lieut. Alva Joseph Spriggs, U.S.N., the ceremony taking place in St. Basil's Church at 4 p.m., with Father Meade officiating. It was a military wedding and the bride wore a lovely shell-pink tulle gown, fashioned with tight bodice of satin studded with pearls and long bouffant skirt and slippers to match.

A real lace veil which has also been worn by the bride's mother was caught to her dainty head by a wreath of fresh gardenias and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies with shower of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Toomey assisted her sister as maid of honor in period frock of deep apricot taffeta, trimmed with silver and motifs of French flowers. A large picture hat of hairbraid to match completed the costume and she carried a large bouquet of gladioli of the same shade. The bride completed her schooling at Lindenwood College, finishing school for girls, in St. Louis, Mo., where she was a member of the Sigma Iota Chi Sorority and also of the Phi Theta Kappa, after which she traveled extensively, continuing the study of languages. Lieut. Spriggs, the son of Mrs. William Spriggs of Washington, D. C., was graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, class of 1920, after which he attended Yale for two years, majoring in science. He is now a member of the personal staff of Admiral Pratt aboard the U.S.S. California.

Lieut. Charles W. A. Campbell served as best man, both officers wearing full dress uniforms.

A wedding supper for twenty guests followed at the home of the bride's mother, after which Lieut. and Mrs. Spriggs left immediately for their honeymoon at Hotel del Coronado, later driving to Washington, where the young officer is to be stationed.

They will return to make their home in Long Beach after September 15. The bride was formerly from Denver.

Among the out-of-town guests at the ceremony was Mrs. Robert H. Hey, Jr., sister of the bride, who came on from Chestnut Hill for the wedding.

HONORS FOR MISS BARTOS

St. Charles, Mo.—June 1. Miss Teresa Bartos, of Wilber, has been honored at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., by the award of a junior educational scholarship, giving a substantial amount to be applied on her college expenses next year, when she will graduate. Only eight juniors out of a large class were so honored, the distinction coming not alone because of high marks but also for keeping in line with the standards of Lindenwood and participating in the college extra-curricular activities.

Another Nebraska girl, Miss Doris Force, of Oakland, was awarded a scholarship in the freshman class. There was also a particular honor to Miss Lucille Kelly, of Grand Island, in the bestowal of the annual athletic scholarship.—Contributed by Department of Journalism, Lindenwood College.

Lindenwood Dean Suggests Work Leading to Different Vocations.

A booklet designed to be helpful to the college freshman, with the title, "What Shall I Study?" has been prepared by Dr. Alice E. Gipson, dean of Lindenwood College. Dr. Gipson, in the foreward, indicates the importance of the first years in its vocational trend, and, on the other hand, the confusion which must beset the girl entering college for the first time, in the vortex of miscellaneous studies from which she may choose her groundwork. At Lindenwood certain subjects are required of all freshmen, such as English composition, Bible, physical education, and one hour a week in "Orientation." It is the extras which are puzzling, and these the dean has classified and presented tentatively for different ideas of vocation.

One page gives three possible schedules for an A. B. course; on another page this idea is modified so that the freshman may take special work in oratory or art or music along with the studies leading to the A. B. degree. Specializing in home economics is made easy in another suggested course; or there may be a two-year course in physical education, the proper studies accompanying.

A freshman schedule for a secretarial course is laid out. Other schedules divide possibilities of the music course, and others analyze public school art and oratory. It is thought that while the brochure is primarily for Lindenwood students, it may offer suggestions in general for all college girls in other institutions.

MISS EUNEVA LYNN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lynn of Sparta, Ill., was married yesterday to Arthur S. Goodall of this city at 8 o'clock in the evening in the First Presbyterian Church of Sparta. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory bridal satin. The bodice, cut high at the neck, had close-fitting long sleeves made of silk chantilly lace. The full skirt fell from the hip line in a long train of satin, save for a panel of lace in front. Her veil of tulle, which was banded with pointe applique, was caught to her hair by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were bride's roses arranged in a shower bouquet.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Lucille Lynn, who wore changeable peach and gold taffeta, with satin slippers to match. Her bouquet was of sunburst tea roses.

The bridesmaids were gowned in crepe chiffon in different shades of blue, pink and orchid. They were patterned according to the popular mode, with flaring skirts, short in front and longer in back, dipping in uneven hemline. The skirt and bodice were attached by wide crushed girdles, fastened in front with rhinestone buckles. Their slippers were of silver shade, and they carried long sheafs of spring flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Vola Miller, Miss Emma Moffat, Miss Dorothy Gartner, Miss Mary Rankin, Miss Dorothy Jackson and Miss Elizabeth Stephenson.

Edward Randell was best man and the groomsmen were Charles Hoke, Carl Blank, Bob Heusinkfeld, Dr. R. M. Orr, Mack Wilson and Lee Brown.

The bride was graduated from Lindenwood College. She is a member of Alpha Mu Mu, an honorary music sorority. Goodall is a graduate of Washington University. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and Artus fraternities.

Following a wedding trip, the destination of which has not been disclosed, Mr. and Mrs. Goodall will take up their residence in University City.

An attractive wedding yesterday was the marriage of Miss Euneva Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lynn of Sparta, Ill., and Mr. Arthur S. Goodall of this city, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock last night in the First Presbyterian Church of Sparta. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory bridal satin. The bodice was cut high at the neck, with close-fitting long sleeves of silk chantilly lace, and the full skirt fell from the hip-line in a long train of the same shimmering satin, save for a panel of lace in front. Her veil of tulle, banded with pointe de applique, was caught to her hair in a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried brides' roses in a shower bouquet.

The bride had as maid of honor her sister, Miss Lucille Lynn, who was gowned in a costume of changeable peach and gold taffeta, with satin slippers to match. Her bouquet was of sunburst tea roses.

The bridesmaids were gowned in crepe chiffon frocks in different shades of blue, pink and orchid. Two New Instructors Join Lindenwood Home Ec. Faculty Above is Miss Marie Mortenson who will teach cooking and house-keeping to Lindenwood College girls. Below is Miss Ada Dyer Tucker "clothing" teacher in the Home Economics Department whose instruction will also embrace a knowledge of textiles and draperies.

TWO new teachers, Miss Marie Mortenson for "food" and Miss Ada Dyer Tucker for "clothing" are to comprise the staff of the home economics department of Lindenwood College for the semester which opens September 11. A number of students in this department receive the degree "B. S." in Home Economics every year, so that there is a full course of laboratory and "problem" work which occupies the greater part of two years of the four-year course.

In "clothing" which Miss Tucker will teach, the course of study involves drafting of patterns and making a full outfit, house dress, afternoon and evening gowns, tailored suit or coat, and also the creation of suitable millinery to go with these costumes. The groundwork brings in a study of textiles and fabrics. As one example, last winter a radium exhibit was held by the students, showing the four ways of making this fabric, from beginning to end, also the garments made therefrom, and their relative wear as compared with silk, when subjected to washing.

None of these students will ever stand a chance of being deceived on linen, wool, or silk. They will study the use of draperies as well as the making of clothes, and each one will adapt her "lines" to the best advantage of the human figure to be adorned. Miss Tucker has been professor of household arts at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. Her early home was in Chattanooga, Tenn., and she has degrees from Michigan State University and from teachers' college of Columbia University, New York.

Miss Marie Mortenson, who has the other branch of the home economics department, will step into the full-furnished suite in which Lindenwood girls, before they graduate in "home ec" are each to serve a formal meal of their own preparation to invited guests. Living room, dining room and kitchen with china closet and range and ice-box, are equipped just as they should be in a well-ordered home. In the classroom of "cooking and housekeeping," there are examples of cooking stoves for wood or for gas or electricity. The washing machine and the ironing mangle, the ice-making machine, sinks of modern device, and opportunities with individual sets of cooking utensils are provided. This department often finds practice in furnishing cakes and sandwiches for student teas.

Lindenwood's home economics club is now affiliated with the national Home Economics Association and has therefore dropped its early name of the Euthenics Club.

Miss Mortenson is a graduate of Iowa State College, having also the Master's degree from that institution. She comes from Penn College in Oskaloosa, Ia., where she has been head of the home economics department.

HILLSDALE COLLEGE TEACHER ACCEPTS CALL TO LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

Miss Ada Tucker formerly teacher in the domestic arts department of Hillsdale College but who spent last year at her home in Lansing has accepted a position in Lindenwood college, a girls school at St. Charles, Mo.

Miss Tucker will become one of the two teachers of Home Economics at Lindenwood College. Miss Tucker was up to a year ago Professor of Household Arts at Hillsdale College. Her new post will have to do with the department of "Clothing." This means especially the designing and making of dresses, suits, coats and hats for the student, and the problems of dressing becomingly, whatever one's figure, but it is to take up also a knowledge of fabrics. Linen, wool, cotton, silk and its substitutes are all to be scientifically studied. Textiles used in the household will be considered from various points of view. This department holds two or three style shows through the winter, at which are shown the garments made by the students. Out of the 500 Lindenwood girls, quite a few are looking to the degree "B. S. in Home Economics." "Clothing" is stimulated also by certain annual prizes bestowed by an alumna who is a large house dress manufacturer. She asks for the best design and the best making of dresses, and such models as she may approve are used in her factory for commercial purposes.

Associated with Miss Tucker will be Miss Marie Mortenson, of Oskaloosa, Ia., who will teach "Food."

MISS ESTHER RHODES IS TO TEACH IN MISSOURI

St. Charles, Mo., Aug. 15.—Miss Esther Rhodes, who has been teaching in Mary Baldwin seminary, Staunton, Va., is leaving in order to accept an appointment to teach piano in the music department of Lindenwood college, St. Charles.

This four-year college for girls, which is under the care of the Presbyterian Synod of Missouri, has a large music department, which is housed in Margaret hall, a building named for the late Mrs. James Gay Butler, who with her husband gave personally and endowed the college with about $4,000,000.

The school was founded in 1827 by Major George C. Sibley, U. S. A., and his wife, who was a daughter of Judge Rufus Easton, first postmaster of St. Louis. In May, 1927, under the leadership of Dr. John L. Roemer, formerly of West Virginia, who has been president for the last 15 years, Lindenwood celebrated its centennial.

HOME ECONOMICS

MARIE MORTENSON TO LINDENWOOD COLLEGE, MISSOURI.

Miss Marie Mortenson who resigned as head of the Home Economics department at Penn college has accepted a position in the Home Economics department of Lindenwood college at St. Charles, Missouri.

Home economics there is divided into two departments, one for "food" and one for "clothing." Miss Mortenson will conduct the food division. This involves good housekeeping also, with knowledge of ice chests, cooking ranges, electric, gas and coal, washing machines, and the latest things in sinks and pantries.

For proper experimenting the department provides a suite of rooms, similar to a modern apartment, in which the students entertain at stated times. Before graduating, each girl must have served several meals complete, which she prepared herself, with formality of invited guests.

A considerable portion of Lindenwood's 500 students are looking to the degree B. S. in Home Economics.

Miss Mortenson's work will begin with the fall semester, September 11. With her will be associated Miss Ada Tucker, of Hillsdale, Mich., who is to have charge of "clothing."

ALICE PARKER NEW LINDENWOOD TEACHER

Jefferson City Girl Accepts Position in English Department of College.

Miss Alice Parker, of Jefferson City, has accepted a position to teach in the English department at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, succeeding Miss Josephine Chandler, a Missouri girl who has gone for a year's graduate study in Oxford, England.

Miss Parker comes of an old family, being a Daughter of the American Revolution. She has been teaching in Washington, D. C., at Gunston Hall. Her early training was at the University of Missouri, where she received the degrees B. S. and A. M. She also studied at the University of California, and did special work in Paris, France, receiving a diploma in the Alliance Francaise advanced courses. Miss Parker belongs to three sororities, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Lambda Theta, and Delta Tau Kappa.

Lindenwood College to Have Several New Teachers This Year

Dr. Beulah P. Ennis Will Be New Head Depart- ment of Biology.

With a new head of biology, Dr. Beulah P. Ennis, who specializes in botany, Lindenwood College will pay more attention than ever to its cosmopolitan gardens. These have been added to, from time to time, by gifts from students of former days, particularly by those from California, who have already sent roses and are this fall sending 500 roses of the William Hart variety.

Dr. Ennis has the degree Doctor of Philosophy from Yale, and has been teaching botany at Wellesley for the last three years. Her assistants will remain as last year. One of these, Miss Grace Larson, has been taking vacation work at Cornell University; the other, Miss Cornelia M. Cotton, has been engaged for several weeks in research work in the B. A. I. Experiment Station of the United States Department of Agriculture at Bethesda, Md.

English Department.

A new teacher from Washington, D. C., who has been teaching in Gunston Hall, is added to Lindenwood's English department in Miss Alice Parker. Miss Parker is known in Missouri, her early home having been in Jefferson City. She has two degrees from the University of Missouri, and has also studied in the University of California and in Paris, France. Miss Parker has an ancestry in this country making her a Daughter of the American Revolution.

In two departments the staff will be entirely new. The home economics department will present Miss Marie Mortenson, recently of the faculty at Penn College, and Miss Ada Dyer Tucker, who has been teaching at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. They will teach household cooking and other arts, and the art of clothing one's self.

Physical Education.

The physical education department, enlistment in which is compulsory with all the students, will have as its new head Miss Anne Schley Duggan, B. A. and M. A. She comes from Belton, Tex., which is her home, and from Baylor College, where she has been head of the physical education department. She will be assisted by Miss Marie E. Reichert of New York City, recently a student in Columbia University and the Savage School for Physical Education.

Other New Teachers.

Other new teachers are announced in the departments of music and of oratory. In the former Miss Esther Rhodes of Little Falls, N. Y., will teach piano. She is a Smith College graduate, having belonged to a quite well known music society, the Smith College Cleff Club. She studied under Thuel Burnham and at Utica Conservatory. She has been teaching in the South, at Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga., and more recently at the Mary Baldwin Seminary at Staunton, Va.

A new teacher of oratory will be Miss Marion L. Steeve of Clarinda, Iowa, who has been teaching at Montpelier Seminary, Montpelier, Vt., and is a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston.

A new member of the administration department of Lindenwood in whom the students are obviously much interested is the assistant dietitian, Miss Arabelle Foster, B. S., who comes from the administrative staff of a cafeteria in Kansas City.

Lindenwood will resume its studies September 11.

NEW YORK PIANISTE ON LINDENWOOD FACULTY

Miss Esther Rhodes of Little Falls, N. Y., will come to the music department of Lindenwood College Sept. 11 as teacher of piano under John Thomas, head of the department.

Miss Rhodes has studied piano under Thuel Burnham, and also gained a teacher's certificate from Utica Conservatory, Utica, N. Y. She paid special attention to music while a student at Smith College, where she was a member of the noted Smith College Cleff Club. In the last year she has been teaching at the Mary Baldwin Seminary at Staunton, Va., and prior to that she taught at Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga.

With the return of Dr. Alice E. Gipson, Dean of Lindenwood College, from a summer spent in the Northwest and Canada, registrations are being completed for the reopening of Lindenwood College for its 102d year, on Tuesday, September 11. Among registrations interesting in Missouri are those of Gov. Baker's daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Baker, and her friend who resides in the Baker home, Miss Janice Greene. They will enter the upper classes, as both have had junior college work. Miss Margaret Mauze of Huntington, W. Va., is another entrant.

LINDENWOOD TO HAVE NEON BEACON LIGHT

Lindenwood College will reopen tomorrow with a number of improvements in the campus and buildings. Conspicuous among the new things will be the Neon light soon to be completed, which is to be of such power as to be a beacon light to aviators.

Having newly leased the acreage surrounding the Water Tower of the City of St. Charles, the college is placing the beacon light on the top of the tower. It will spell "Lindenwood College" in letters 3 feet tall, by use of the new invention of vapor charged with electricity and inclosed in glass tubes.

The lease of this ground has been made for thirty years, and it is to be used partly for the enlargement of the college golf course and partly as a show place of trees, shrubbery and roses, which are being planted.

Improvement has also been made by grading the south side of the campus. Ten thousand yards of dirt have been removed, and a low stone wall has been extended 800 feet from the main entrance along the southern length of the campus, matching the limestone wall on the east side.

Butler Hall, the seniors' dormitory, has been redecorated and refurnished. There has also been an effective widening of the interior driveways.

Prof. A. H. C. Fairchild of the University of Missouri will give the convocation address Monday night, September 17

Thirty-five states contribute to the enrollment of 500 students for the opening of Lindenwood College tomorrow.

The students returning will see a greatly improved campus, as the driveways have been widened, giving better parking space and also an enclosed oval of blooming flowers. Chief among the improvements has been the leasing of the five acres surrounding the Water Tower of St. Charles, on which flowers and hardwood trees are being planted. This area gives easy access to the golf links, and enables three more holes to be added to the links. Butler Hall, the home of the seniors, has been re-decorated, and the new library building is in prospect.

The college starts this year with the three main officers of the Student Association chosen in advance. The president of the student board will be Miss Mary Elizabeth Sawtell of Omaha, Neb.; vice president, Miss Katharine Palmer of Clayton, a granddaughter of a widely known Presbyterian minister, Dr. Samuel C. Palmer, and secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucie Spene of La Crosse, Wis.

President John L. Roemer is to give his annual address to the student body on Sunday night, September 16. On Monday night, September 17, the Convocation Address will be delivered by Prof. A. H. C. Fairchild of the English department of the University of Missouri.

Library to be built on the Lindenwood College campus at a cost of about $100,000, immediately east of the administration building, Roemer Hall. La Beaume & Klein, architects.

Lindenwood Library

Lindenwood College has selected a site for its new $100,000 library on the campus immediately east of the administration building, Roemer Hall. La Beaume and Klein, the college architects, have drawn preliminary plans, which call for a Gothic structure with a central tower, in which there will be a clock. The building will face south to the campus driveway, with a frontage of 130 feet, and an "L" will extend north about 90 feet. In the "L" will be the stack room for between 50,000 and 60,000 books.

The reading room is to be situated across the entire front, with lighting from two sides, and will have space for 128 persons. It is hoped to complete the library before next commencement, so that the dedication may be a part of the celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the president, Dr. John L. Roemer.

In the new building the front portion, which is to be the reading room, there will be a lofty, open-timbered ceiling. The basement is to be finished, and there is a possibility of a museum and a faculty room therein, besides rooms for seminars and classes. It is also proposed to build vaults for storage of the archives of Lindenwood. Space in the wing will be set aside for the librarian's office and the cataloging rooms, adjacent to the stack room.

MUCH POLITICAL INTEREST AT LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

Much interest in politics is being taken by the girls at Lindenwood College, who have just come together this week for the opening of the fall semester. It is proposed to have speakers for both sides in the college open forum, and yesterday while the Republicans will be represented a week later, Thursday an address for the Democrats was announced for Thursday morning, September 20, at 11 o'clock, in Roemer Auditorium, by Charles M. Hay, morning, September 27, by Henry S. Caulfield.

The presidential contest as viewed at Lindenwood is more interesting than ever before, as the students are somewhat older than the average in past years, and almost everyone has a vote. There are almost 500 students, and about 65 members of the faculty and administration officers.

president of the college, is to perform the ceremony, which will take place at the Presbyterian church of Vandalia and is to be followed by a reception at the Evans Hotel. Mr. Davisson attended Washington University.

The marriage of Miss Jane Dittmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dittman of Sherwood avenue, Webster Groves, and Mr. Wilber William Goessling, took place last evening at 8 o'clock, in the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Dr. John H. Roemer of Lindenwood College performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and intimate family friends.

Miss Dorothy Dittman, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She was gowned in pink orchid tulle over satin of the same lovely shade. The bodice was close fitting and the full skirt was fashioned in three tiers. She carried pink dahlias.

Miss Dorothy Wray, Miss Cornelia Materne, two bridesmaids, wore frocks made of green tulle over satin. The skirts, the skirt formed of the tulle in circular bunches. Short jackets of chiffon velvet in matching shade were very chic. They carried great clusters of dahlias.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white tulle costume over satin, made long-waisted effect with long tulle sleeves. The skirt, fashioned in tiers of billowy tulle, was wide at the hemline, and formed a long train in back.

Her veil of tulle, worn to a cap of Chantilly lace, was embellished with orange blossoms, and she carried valley lilies.

The bride's mother wore silver gray velvet, made on simple lines, and her corsage was fashioned of orchids.

Mr. Frederick Goessling was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen included Messrs. Robert Carr and Elliot Foster, both of Chicago, and Blair Laughlin.

A reception followed the ceremony and Mr. Goessling and his bride went East on a wedding journey. They will reside at 6330 Rosebury drive.

Present Candidates Knew Poverty Pinch, Says Dr. Roemer

President of Lindenwood College Speaks on 'Upward Call.'

"Abraham Lincoln would not have been the product of plenty; our present candidates for president also are from homes that knew the pinch of poverty," said Dr. John Lincoln Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, last night at the opening college vesper service of the year in Roemer Auditorium. He spoke on "The Upward Call," using the text of St. Paul, "That I may apprehend that for which I am apprehended of Christ Jesus." The students' vested choir sang for the first time as reorganized for the year.

"People who are going to amount to anything in life," he said, "have been going somewhere before they arrived. Achievement is attained by endeavor. The accidental can never displace the intentional as a law of the universe. Man must do his part to appropriate to himself heaven's blessings.

Upward Call

"The upward call of life is the paramount issue of the individual and society. It requires no effort to degenerate; it is a life struggle to achieve. It requires no effort to grow weeds, but constant vigilance to grow healthy, beautiful flowers. The finest art of all is the art of living.

"The school is directing its energies to emphasizing character as the purpose of the classroom. The business world is interested in the personnel of its staff as never before. Character is not subordinated to capability. The political world is not oblivious to the demand for men of good record."

The speaker described the successful efforts of the head of the University of Pittsburgh to adapt students' courses of study to their respective abilities, "helping the student to discover himself."

Dr. Roemer spoke of the Apostle Paul. "Precious indeed was the moment when his life's work was revealed to him.

Direct Call.

"The direct call to service is not peculiar to the Apostle Paul. Godless lives have been changed in just as startling a manner.

"Necessity, 'the mother of invention,' is also the 'great discoverer.' This world owes more to adversity than to prosperity. The fathers were far seeing when they prayed to be delivered from the 'cross' of prosperity. The wise man in Proverbs would have 'neither poverty nor riches,' but food 'convenient' for him.

"Opportunity calls to a sleeping or indifferent world to follow after larger plans of life. An essential to attaining life's goal is to keep everlastingly at it. Mental laws are beyond the power of a referendum. Will plays a great part in the game of life. It is still true that where there is a will there is a way. Emerson defined character as 'a perfectly educated will.'

"The personal equation is the greatest factor in life. Why people fail or why people succeed may be answered by the people themselves. People of superior ability fail; people of less ability succeed. What is the answer? The people themselves."

"Margaret Hall"

Almost Total Loss

Fire Started in Only Frame Building Owned By Lindenwood About 12:00 O'Clock Total and Building Is Almost A Total Loss—All Furniture Saved on First Floor Including Dozen Fine Pianos—Building Used As Conservatory of Music—St. Charles Needs More Fire Protection—Two Fireman Answered Call—No Fault With Work of Fireman But Not Enough Equipment and Men.

"Margaret Hall" of Lindenwood College caught fire about 12 o'clock today and the beautiful building is almost, if not a total loss. How the fire started is not known at this time but from all appearance it caught under the roof and perhaps from a spark from a chimney. The fire department responded to the call immediately but the flames had gained considerable headway in the attic.

The fire appeared to be under the roof, having worked its way through the shingle roof and it did not take many minutes for it to spread rapidly.

The alarm came in during the dinner hour when two of the four members of the department on duty were at lunch. Outsiders assisted the firemen all they could. The first hose was pulled onto the property by one fireman, the other one being busy with the pumper. Many hands soon grabbed the hose. Within a few minutes the second hose as attached to the pump, and later a third hose, but more water was needed. The strong wind blowing made the fire hard to handle.

Furniture Saved

Margaret Hall, better known by some of our people as the beautiful former Prosser Home, was filled with valuable furniture and many pianos were in the building. Willing hands assisted in removing the pianos and other furniture. Perhaps a dozen fine pianos were carried out, several of them Baby Grands. All of the furniture on the first floor was saved and a lot of it was gotten out from the second story.

Those who were trying to save the furniture on the second floor did not give up their work until the ceiling was burning through and fire dropping into the rooms. In one room on the southeast corner of the building there were two fine pianos, one a Baby Grand and a fine upright instrument. A dozen men endeavoring to save the piano did not leave the room until the fire had dropped through the ceiling and caught a lounge afire, and then when the men left they carried the upright piano with them.

Heroic work was done and everybody seemed willing to risk anything to save the valuable furniture in the building.

On the first floor all of the furniture was saved even to the window curtains were carried out by the ladies after the men had removed the heavy articles of furniture.

More Equipment

This fire clearly illustrates that St. Charles needs and must have more fire protection. We must have another pumper and no time must be lost in getting it. We have been fortunate, that is all. Today the object lesson was so plain that even the worst pessimist in town could see that Margaret Hall was burned simply for want of sufficient firefighting machinery. If we had had the second pump the fire would have been stopped in the roof. For some time only two hose were in operation and one of them was used inside of the building and one hose on the outside. Both hose did effective work, but while they were throwing water on the south side of the building the fire on the north side was eating away, and vice versa—we just did not have the equipment to properly fight the fire.

Water Plentiful

There was no scarcity of water in that vicinity as the city has a twelve inch main running along Kingshighway and Madison street in front of the Margaret Hall Building. The firemen in order to get more water attached a hose onto another fire plug and attempted to throw water from the city pressure but there was nothing doing. The stream of water would not reach the edge of the roof of the first story. It was useless.

Superintendent Osiek of the water works told a reporter of the Cosmos-Monitor that the reason they had no pressure from the fire hydrant was on account of the fact that Lindenwood is almost level with the water tower and there is no pressure there. Osiek and a reporter went to the pumper and found three hose attached to it and a pressure on pump of 140 pounds which was about all any pump of the kind could stand. No excuse can be found for not stopping this fire before so much damage was done, except that St. Charles does not have sufficient fire fighting equipment. If we delay this important move much longer we are liable to have a Main street fire some of these days which will do millions of dollars worth of damages and then we will say, just as we say now, unless something is done, "Give us another water pumper."

Heavy Loss

No doubt Lindenwood carried a lot of fire insurance but not enough to cover the loss as a result of this fire. A number of students living in Margaret Hall, rooming on the second floor, lost a lot of personal property.

"Margaret Hall" was used almost exclusively for music and it was well filled with fine pianos and while perhaps a dozen were safely moved from the building a large number on the second floor was lost.

Osiek Brothers Saw Fire

Men employed at H. C. Osiek's filling station on Clay street discovered the fire. At first they noticed smoke issuing from the roof and after watching it for a few minutes and discussing the matter they decided the building was afire and reported

Music Conservatory At Lindenwood Damaged By $15,000 Fire Today Noon

Second Story Of Margaret Hall, $25,000 Frame Edifice, Ruined By Fire, Re- mainder Of Structure Water-Soaked; Cause Uncertain.

Fire ravaged the upper portion of Margaret Hall, music conservatory at Lindenwood College, during the noon hour today and damaged the 14-room two-story frame structure to the extent of about $15,000, college officials estimated this afternoon.

The damage by fire was confined entirely to the second story but the entire lower floor and the contents of the entire building were drenched with water that was forced onto the roof for about two hours.

The structure, built about 35 years ago, was substantial in construction and George W. Prosser, assistant superintendent of the carshops at that time, who erected the building for his own occupancy, employed some of the most expensive material for its interior finish.

In 1912 Col. James Gay Butler, at that time a member of the Lindenwood College directory board, purchased the building from the Prosser estate and a short time later it was given the name of Margaret, in honor of Col. Butler's wife. At his death in 1916 Col. Butler left an endowment of about $3,500,000 to the college and Butler Hall, the college gymnasium and dormitory building, stands as a monument to the benefactor.

Several Pianos Burned

The fire was not discovered until a few minutes after 12:00 o'clock when Miss Cara Edwards and Miss Rhodes, music teachers, left the building to go for luncheon. As they started across the campus they scented the smoke and looked to see the front of the conservatory afire on the roof. They telephoned the fire department and firemen were soon at the scene with the equipment they had.

Ten pianos used for student practice were in the building when the fire broke out and only four on the downstairs floors were saved. Two Baby Grands and four upright pianos on the second floor were destroyed. Those on the lower floor were removed to the campus without any damage.

Classwork Unhampered.

They were taken to Irwin Hall, new dormitory building, where classwork was conducted without any delay in their sessions.

Only a small number of the college students was seen among the crowd and many of them were unaware of the fire on the lower part of the campus. View of Margaret Hall from the college dormitories situated on the opposite side of the campus is obstructed by trees.

Cause Undetermined.

Four teachers of music, Miss Edwards, Miss Rhodes, Miss Gertrude Isidore, and Miss Mildred Graveley, who occupied the building, and various students had made complaints of smelling smoke in the building several days ago, it was said today, and impelled by their warning, college authorities had employed men to make an investigation of the flues, wiring and heating apparatus but no defect was reported. One of the flues had only recently been repaired.

It is believed that a short-circuited wire might have been the cause of the fire and that a small blaze had smoldered in the attic for several hours because of its sudden outburst in several places on the roof. While firemen directed streams of water onto the roof from one side, flames broke through on the opposite side. A brisk breeze fanned the flames so that they rapidly covered the roof before firemen could gain any control. It was about 2:00 p. m. before the progress of the fire was under control and by that time the entire roof was destroyed.

The pump truck which supplied the pressure to force the water onto the building stood on Kingshighway near Butler Drive and proved entirely insufficient to throw enough water to the building. At first, it was learned that too much hose was connected to the pumper thereby reducing the pressure and firemen soon changed the hook-up effectively. A rumor that gasoline supply of the pumper was exhausted was false.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ordelheide resided in the rear part of the building and shared in the property damage by water. Mr. Ordelheide is caretaker for the college property.

Margaret Hall May Be Replaced By $250,000 Building For Fine Arts

New Fireproof Structure Will Occupy Same Site Providing Money Can Be Raised At This Time, Dr. Roemer Says.

Margaret Hall, $25,000 music conservatory at Lindenwood College, which was heavily damaged by fire yesterday afternoon, may be replaced by a $250,000 fireproof fine arts building, providing a sufficient amount of money to meet such expenditure can be raised at this time, Dr. John L. Roemer, president of the college, said last night. An appeal will be issued to the college alumni organizations, and the new structure, according to Dr. Roemer will be built on the site of Margaret Hall. It would accommodate, not only students of music, but those of art and oratory as well, he contemplates.

The conservatory building, which was the only frame structure on the campus, was built thirty-five years ago by George W. Prosser, at that time assistant superintendent of the American Car & Foundry Company here, and in 1912 it was purchased by Col. James Gay Butler, who was then a member of the college directory board. When he died in 1916 during his term as president of the college, he willed the school an endowment fund of $3,500,000 and the 14-room two-story edifice was named Margaret Hall in honor of his widow. Butler Hall, a dormitory building which houses the gymnasium, was dedicated to the memory of the college's benefactor.

The cause of the blaze which started in the upper front of the building is still uncertain, though it is believed that a short-circuited wire may have been the origin. The flames apparently ate through the roof from the inside in several places and spread rapidly over the top of the entire building before they were discovered by one of the music teachers as she started to luncheon.

Committee members representing the board of directors of which Dr. John W. MacIvor of St. Louis, is president, conferred this morning with an insurance adjuster at the college to more accurately ascertain the property damage which is estimated to be at least $15,000.

Six pianos which were in the practice studios on the second floor were destroyed by the fire while four organs were taken from the first floor in safety. Classwork, during the fire, was unhampered and, to avoid excitement, efforts were made to suppress the news until the afternoon class sessions were ended. The hall stood at the east side of the campus opposite the administration buildings and classrooms and was hidden from view behind a large grove of trees.

Margaret Hall will be wrecked and classwork in music will, temporarily, be conducted in Eastlick Hall.

LINDENWOOD GIRLS HEAR CHARACTER TALK AT OPENING

PROF. A. H. R. FAIRCHILD of the English department, University of Missouri, gave some advice to Lindenwood College students in his recent convocation address in Roemer Hall which might extend outside the college walls. With the subject, "Technical Education and Education for Character," he said among other things: "The conceit of the modern college student makes it difficult to impress upon him the fact that he is not only starting a college course when he registers, but he is undertaking a life course. The old saying, 'Born a man and died a grocer,' is far too true today. Everyone is given an equal chance at birth, but the numbers are increasing who fail to take advantage of their possibilities. Happiness is the consciousness of a worthwhile piece of work well done. However, this happiness cannot be obtained through being made to be good, but must come from personal character. A character that is completely fashioned will be devoted to worthy ends."

Mrs. Fairchild accompanied her husband to Lindenwood and they were guests for a day, motoring back to Columbia next morning.

Jefferson's Political Creed Quoted by Hay to Lindenwood Girls

Senatorial Candidate Outlines Real Duties of Citizenship.

Charles M. Hay, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, quoted Thomas Jefferson's political creed to the students of Lindenwood College in an address in Roemer Auditorium yesterday morning. This was the first of several addresses, it was announced by President John L. Roemer, which will inform the girls on the political campaign, by representatives of both political parties. Dr. Roemer said from the platform that he and Hay do not "vote alike," but that he would "call him Senator Hay, just the same," to which Hay responded that he believed the words were "a prophecy."

Admitting it was "the first time he had ever addressed a school of young ladies," Hay said he didn't want to answer questions nor to be "heckled." He talked about the duties of citizenship, comparing government to basket ball, after he had called for a show of hands and found that nearly every girl at Lindenwood could play that game. There had to be rules of the game, he said, and the good citizen obeys rules. "If we are to get along right we must have wise rules."

Illustrates Argument.

An illustration was of St. Louis' former ordinance that automobiles must drive at ten miles an hour. "No one thought of observing it, but since the law has been changed to twenty-five miles an hour it is more sensible and there seems to be a much greater disposition to obey it."

Hay harked back to the days of his childhood in Missouri, when he "thought that people who were not Methodists and Democrats were not respectable." He believed himself broad enough now to allow every man his own opinion in religion and politics. But he urged the college girls to think for herself. "Every girl who goes out with college training ought to be able to do something more than to vote as her husband tells her to."

Peril of Indifference.

"If public government ever falls in America, it will fall because of the indifference toward civic affairs on the part of intelligent men and women. The peril is not the bad citizenship of bad men, but the bad citizenship of good men."

Hay declared the present contest is between "a strong and powerful group who want to administer affairs and those on the other hand who want to use the powers of government to establish justice for all people." He drew a fanciful picture of a banquet of a reported New York group of men who had each made $1,000,000 on the stock market, "eating their porter-house, and I presume sipping their champagne," while there were many others too poor to pay an income tax.

He created a laugh at the close by impersonating an exhorter, Methodist fashion, saying: "Now, you have heard me through, and I will open the doors of the Democratic party, while we sing some familiar hymn."

Church Forum

By Julia C. Underwood

"Marrying parsons" are spoken of here and there in every community. The pastor of the Little Church Around the Corner has far more than the average share of weddings in New York. Perhaps it is some optimistic quality of the minister; who knows? But in each religious denomination there are certain clergymen picked out for these marriage ceremonies not only by their own people but by candidates for matrimony far outside their parish bounds. But none can excel the record of the average president of an educational institution devoted to young women alone. Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer at Lindenwood College is being called every week, and sometimes oftener, for the weddings of former Lindenwood students in other cities, these weddings being frequently fixed for Saturday so as not to interfere with classroom studies. It is said that when any date for outside interests is projected, this college president is in the habit of saying: "Well, let me see if I have any weddings ahead." The same was true of the late Dr. B. H. Charles, long president of the Synodical College. All of which proves that college girls do marry, and they want a clergyman, not a Justice of the Peace, to officiate.

LINDENWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL VIRTUALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE

Margaret Hall Swept by Blaze of Undetermined Origin; Loss
Estimated at $15,000.

Fire of undetermined origin today virtually destroyed Margaret Hall, the 14-room frame structure used by the music conservatory of Lindenwood College in St. Charles. Six of 10 pianos in the building were destroyed and the total loss was estimated at $15,000.

The blaze was discovered at noon by one of the teachers, and although the fire department responded promptly it could not control the flames. Apparently the farm stood near the top of the building.

The hall was named in honor of the wife of Col. James Jay Butler, who left an endowment of $3,500,000 to the school when he died in 1916.

Lindenwood Musical Hall Fire Causes Loss Put at $20,000

Fire destroyed the interior and furnishings of the Musical Hall at St. Charles, Mo., causing damage to school authorities at Lindenwood College today. The loss was covered by insurance.

While students were at luncheon, an instructor walking in the quadrangle, noticed smoke issuing from the roof of the building. An alarm was turned in and the St. Charles Fire Department responded. The fire was brought under control before the students realized what had happened. According to Motley the fire must have been smouldering for some time before it was detected. Many of the personal belongings of the instructors as well as furnishings of the building were removed while firemen fought the conflagration.

LINDENWOOD MUSIC CONSERVATORY BURNS Loss, Estimated at $15,000 to $20,000, Covered by Insurance.

Lindenwood College music conservatory, Margaret Hall, at the campus in St. Charles, Mo., burned at noon yesterday. A complete loss of the building, which is valued between $15,000 and $20,000, is covered by insurance. The cause of the fire has not been determined, but it seemed to start on the roof. One student lived in the building, and another was injured by the fire. Margaret Hall was one of the oldest buildings on the campus, having originally been a residence. It was used as a gift for Lindenwood by the late James Gay Butler, and was named Margaret Hall in honor of Margaret Leggat Butler, his wife. It was a frame building of fourteen rooms, with a number of porches, facing Butler drive. Six pianos on the first floor were removed and some of the furniture. The St. Charles firemen were aided in their work by dozens of volunteers. The pianos on the upper floor could not be taken out, and in a short time the building was consumed. Other quarters were secured even before the end of the fire, and at 1 o'clock yesterday classes in piano, voice and violin were proceeding as if nothing had happened. The movement for a new music conservatory has been agitated at Lindenwood for the last year, and although a $100,000 library hall is now just starting, it is thought that this catastrophe will hasten the plans for a new music hall. This is said to have been the first fire which Lindenwood has known in its 101 years of history.

Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, Kansas City dressmaker, who built up a $2,500,000 business from the $1200 savings account of herself and her husband, Paul F. Donnelly, has joined the Smith-for-President forces as director of a state-wide organization of Democratic business and professional women. Mrs. Donnelly is in St. Louis today to confer with officials at the regional headquarters in Hotel Jefferson.

A graduate of Lindenwood College at St. Charles, Mrs. Donnelly embarked on the business of manufacturing aprons in 1916 and while her husband was away in the army during the war, she expanded her manufacturing enterprise so rapidly that by 1924 her patented aprons were being sold in every state in the country.

In conversation yesterday with Senator Hawes, regional head of the Smith organization, she stated that much of her admiration for the New York Governor was based on his record for active legislation for child welfare.

Another graduate of Lindenwood College, former Judge Lois Dale of Texarkana, Ark., a classmate of Mrs. Donnelly, also has announced herself as an active Smith backer. She is visiting in St. Louis following an auto tour to New York with Mrs. Donnelly, in which they met Gov. Smith at Albany.

Intolerance Flayed by Dr. Skilling in Lindenwood Talk

Webster Groves Minister Expresses No Political Preference to Students.

"Intolerance" as the great ethical and moral issue in the presidential campaign was presented before the students of Lindenwood College in Roemer Auditorium yesterday morning by Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling, pastor of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church and vice president of Lindenwood's Board of Trustees. "It is a very significant fact," said Dr. Skilling, "that those of you who have come to Lindenwood for the first time have come in this presidential year preceding the beginning of a new presidential term. Some of you have occasion to cast your first vote, some are a little younger; but whether you are to vote or not this year, you ought to have your eyes open and your mind open and your heart open, that you may understand at this significant period the things that make for the future."

Touches on Issues.

Dr. Skilling spoke of various political issues, such as prohibition and taxation, but he said that "tolerance and intolerance" is a phase of the campaign more wide reaching than any other.

"It is not a political question alone, but applies to each individual life. The subject of intolerance has run through all history from the creation down to the present time. There is not a period in the world's history when there have not been tremendous evils growing out of the spirit of intolerance.

"What is tolerance? To be tolerant is not to be weak or wishy-washy, but it is the very opposite of intolerance. Intolerance takes a selfish position and will not have any regard for the rights of another. A tolerant person may hold just as tenaciously to a matter that is absolutely right, but that tolerant person will not assume the attitude toward the world that he only is right in all respects.

"The spirit of intolerance has gotten into society. You see it in your little clubs. It is seen in the social and business world. It is seen in churches. It has gotten into political parties."

Commends Newspapers.

Dr. Skilling commended the reading of newspaper editorials, speaking especially of one which had pointed out the singular coincidence that one of the presidential candidates is a Catholic, the other is a Quaker. "It is a good habit to read the papers," he said, "provided you do not spend too much time at it. In the City of St. Louis we have some of the best newspapers in the country."

"In all these things in politics," he said, "there may be intolerance or there may be tolerance, just as you choose. It is the spirit, not the fact that you are holding for something, but the fact that you are holding for it in a selfish way, thinking that no one else ought to think differently from yourself, that makes the harm. By being tolerant I do not mean giving up what is right. Hold to what is right; depart and keep clear from what is wrong."

As tests of right or wrong, Dr. Skilling said: "To do something that hurts or harms another person is wrong; to do something of which you are ashamed is wrong; to do something that is not in harmony with the teachings of Jesus Christ is wrong."

Dr. Skilling expressed no preference for either political party.

Expresses no Party Preference.

In characterizing intolerance as the most wide-reaching issue of the presidential campaign, Dr. David M. Skilling, pastor of Webster Groves Presbyterian Church and vice president of the board of trustees of Lindenwood College, appealed to Lindenwood students yesterday for a spirit of tolerance.

"There is not a period in history," he said, "where there have not been great evils growing out of a spirit of intolerance. It may be seen in society, in business and in religion, and now it is getting into political parties. Whether or not you vote this year, you should have your eyes, your hearts, your minds open, that you may understand at this significant time the things that make for the future."

Mary Sawtell, Omaha Girl, Prominent in Lindenwood Affairs

Newly Elected President of College Student Government Association.

For many years the Student Government Association of Lindenwood College has been the dominant factor in collegiate activities. At the first student meeting recently held in Roemer Auditorium, Mary Elizabeth Sawtell of Omaha, Neb., the newly elected president, introduced the other members of the board. Mary Farthing, Odin, Ill., is the vice president, and Lucy Spence, La Crosse, Wis., the secretary-treasurer of the organization. The newly elected house presidents of each building are: Betty Foster, Arvada, Colo.; Butler Hall; Dorothy Sutton, Little Rock, Ark.; Ayres Hall; Frances Dunn, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Sibley Hall; Helen Henderson, Little Rock, Ark.; Niccolls Hall, and Carmine Lee Neber, Carbondale, Ill., Irwin Hall.

Miss Sawtell is especially adapted to her new office because of the administrative experience she has had.

Last year she was house president of Sibley, and was sent as the Lindenwood representative to the National Student Association at Lincoln, Neb. At this conclave of student government members she learned many new ideas, which will aid her in her work this year. She is secretary of the Latin Club, and president of the Nebraska Club.

Miss Farthing, the vice president, will be head of the House of Representatives, which is composed of the house presidents, and also the representatives which were appointed by the board, as follows: Butler, Mary Alice Lange, Leavenworth, Kan., and Marea Hempleman, Washington, Mo.; Sibley, Clara Nathan, St. Louis, and Margaret Skoglund, De Kalb, Ill.; Ayres, Verna Weis, St. Louis, and Helen Manary, Dodge City, Kan.; Irwin, Cora Glasgow, Port Arthur, Tex., and Jane Tomlinson, Chillicothe, Ohio; Niccolls, Louise Dressel, Jerseyville, Ill., and Elizabeth Malcolm, Beckley, W. Va. Miss Farthing is treasurer of the junior class and president of the Commercial Club.

Miss Spence, the secretary and treasurer of the Student Board, records all the important data of the meetings, and her's is the task of appointing the study hall proctors for each building. The three officers of the board are elected by the upper classmen, the president always coming from the senior class; the vice presidents from the juniors and the secretary-treasurer from the sophomores.

Forty-Third Year of Cote Brillante Church Celebrated

Young people and men were especially recognized yesterday in the celebration of the forty-third anniversary of the Cote Brillante Presbyterian Church, Marcus and Labadie avenues. In the morning, at a service attended by the Sunday school as well as by adults, Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, spoke on "The Message of Youth." At night, Rev. Dr. George Horst of the Presbyterian Board on Men's Work, spoke at a men's meeting. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Robert Rush Biggar, reminded the congregation in a talk yesterday morning that when the church was organized, forty-three years ago, the district was a muddy landscape, without electric lights or paved streets, with a few substantial residences, but many cornfields and groves of trees.

Among the things which parents ought to remember in dealing with youth of today, Dr. Roemer said, is the fact that "a nickel doesn't buy nearly as much as it used to."

Things Are Changed.

"We are surprised when a child comes and asks for a quarter where we used to ask for a nickel," he said, "and we like to tell how far a nickel went when we were young. But things are changed. Everybody must learn to live within his income and as there are so many things he might buy, he must restrain desire. That is an economic problem for the young person of today."

"There is a wonderful change in the young people wanting to make their own living. In the last five years I have been amazed at the advance among the college young women with whom I have been associated, in their desire to do something in life. They are meeting the economic problem by learning how to support themselves."

Dr. Roemer spoke analytically of the excess of criminals nowadays. It is due in part, he said, to the current need for money. Although conducting himself wrongly, the criminal's motive may be to get money and to invent means for getting money.

Tremendous Social Problem.

Socially, he said, young people are obliged to do battle with a tremendous problem. "We do not live in separate houses like we used to, but in apartments, elbowing one another. A friend of mine in New York told me of a building in which 10,000 persons are housed each night. People say that the old home has been destroyed, and they are bowed down in gloom because things are not as they once were."

"Well, the old times are not coming back, and we have got to conform ourselves to present-day life. This present generation, in such close contact with fellow human beings, may learn 'the delightful art of living.' It is a pretty hard art to learn. I suppose in time, when the generation has been brought up elbowing one another, they will better recognize the rights of neighbors and we shall have a more generous, more forbearing, sympathetic people than we have ever had."

"Out in the West End one sees near meal time a great many people with closed baskets bringing from across the street the food to be put on the table in many of the apartments. Maybe you like that kind of cooking, maybe you don't, but that is what is going on. Things are changing. Children have different kinds of homes. The young people have problems to meet, and I think they are meeting them."

LINDENWOOD ADDS ADVISORY COURSE

It Is Designed to Aid
Freshmen in Selecting Proper Subjects.

A new idea has been added to Lindenwood curricula with the adoption of the Freshman Advisory Course. In this system several members of the faculty are appointed freshman advisors and are allotted about ten new girls apiece. These girls are given conferences, one at a time, in which they are informed on the more important topics of interest concerning their course of study, and any misunderstandings are promptly cleared up. If they find that they have made a too hurried selection of their subjects, they are given a chance to change into a more desirable course.

This course does not take the place of the personnel conferences, which are an old established custom and cover a much wider scope than the freshman advisory course. The only advisors in this case are Dean Alice E. Gipson and Miss Florence Schaper. The freshmen are questioned as to their activities before attending Lindenwood, their favorite sports, and, of course, the intentions of their careers after leaving college. Very few have "nothing in mind." Nearly every girl has her pet ambitions in mind and is earnestly endeavoring to fit her courses along those lines.

However, the personnel conferences do not take place until later in the semester, on account of the large number of freshmen. And it is at this point the advisory courses are going to prove their own value. For if a girl is dissatisfied with her course, nothing could be done about it until the time for her personnel conference came. With the advisory course, difficulties can be cleared up in short order.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE TAKES UP CITIZENSHIP

Mrs. Geo. Gellhorn, President of Women Voters' League, Speaks There.

Yesterday morning at Roemer Auditorium the students of Lindenwood College heard citizenship addresses by Mrs. George Gellhorn, president of the Missouri State League of Women Voters, and Mrs. G. Alexander Hope, sponsor of the Washington University League of Women Voters. Dr. Bertha Reuter, professor of history and government at Lindenwood, made an introductory address, and Miss Mary Alice Lange, student president of the College League of Women Voters, presented the visiting speakers.

Mrs. Gellhorn talked of the thrills of citizenship. "What a precious thing," she said, "is this right! It is like a necklace of pearls. It must be cared for, and its real value appreciated by the owner.

"To become aware of our rights, we must understand the problems of the time. First of all, we must understand the necessity of peace. The fact must be made known to government representatives that peace is the desire of the nation. The Kellogg treaty will bring peace by arbitration instead of war."

Mrs. Hope told the students the purpose of the league: "In religion, people begin early to instill its principles. So it is with government. The League of Women Voters gives information as to problems of the time and information enabling you to vote intelligently. In union there is strength. Every one knows that 'women always get their way.' Through this league we can help run our country."

Besides Miss Lange, other student officers of the college league who had seats on the stage were Misses Rosalind Sachs, Jeanne Berry, Mary Mason, Katherine Perry and Jackie Hempelman.

He was commissioner to the Indians in the early part of the last century, and Dr. Abel Henderson has made an exhaustive study of the treatment of the Indians and of fur trading. She spoke recently before the fur dealers in St. Louis.

THE ESSCO LOG

Ziegler-Mecom

A wedding of unusual interest to friends in north Louisiana, due to the prominence of the families, was beautifully solemnized at the First Baptist church, Clarks, Louisiana, Tuesday evening at seven o'clock, when Miss Norine Ziegler, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ziegler, became the bride of Mr. William H. Mecom of Columbia, with Rev. Jones performing the impressive double ring ceremony.

The church was transformed into a bower of loveliness by garlands, southern smilax, feathery ferns and colorful autumnal flowers. Tall cathedral candelabra with their myriad of flaming tapers added dignity to the solemnity of the occasion.

The ceremony was preceded by a beautiful program of nuptial music with Miss Beatrice Skirvin at the organ. "At Dawning" was sweetly sung by Miss Marie Minard, followed by a duet, "O Promise Me," very beautifully rendered by Misses Fern and Elizabeth Parham. During the ceremony "I Love You Truly" was softly played. Lohengrin's wedding march was used as the processional.

The bridal party entered led by the groomsmen, Dr. C. P. Jarrell of Columbia and Mr. J. L. Barry of Lafayette. The bridesmaids were Misses Margaret Lynn and Julia Sherman Mecom of Columbia, sisters of the groom, with Miss Florence Ziegler, sister of the bride, maid of honor. Their lovely gowns were of harmonizing pastel shades of taffeta with matching slippers, each carrying exquisite arm bouquets of pink carnations.

The little flower girls, Misses Fay and Ray Cooksey, were daintily gowned in shell pink georgette and carried Marie Antoinette baskets filled with roses.

The tiny ring bearer, Master Jimmy Harrison, was handsomely attired in a suit of white satin.

The bride, a picture of beauty, was exquisitely gowned in white chiffon over Duchess satin with a single rhinestone ornament. Her lovely fair hair was bound with a coronet of orange blossoms attached to the filmy bridal veil. She carried a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Claude Jackson.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom accompanied by his best man, Mr. Joe Wright Swift of Columbia.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride attended by more than two hundred guests, who were received by the bride's mother, handsomely attired in gray georgette and lace. After greeting the bridal party and viewing the numerous and handsome gifts, the guests were invited to the lawn which was transformed into a scene of beauty by the moonlight and myriad colored lights. In a beautiful improvised arbor the wedding cake was displayed. It was the handiwork of the groom's mother. Small, individual cakes accompanied by punch were served during the hours of receiving.

The bride's going away gown was a charming ensemble of black satin and ashes of roses, with accessories to match.

The bride is a young woman of charming personality and is much beloved by all who know her. She is a graduate of Lindenwood college and a member of Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. The groom is a graduate of Tulane law school and is one of the most promising young attorneys of this section of the state.

After the short wedding trip the young couple will be at home in Columbia where they expect to build a home in the near future.

LINDENWOOD HEARS ABOUT PROPOSED NEW CALENDAR

Lieut. Col. H. Edmund Bullis of Washington, speaking yesterday in Roemer Auditorium, Lindenwood College, in the interest of a 28-day month and a 13-month year, declared the new calendar, due to an additional monthly turnover, would result in an annual profit of $1,000,000,000 for American business men.

Lieut. Col. Bullis set the year 1939 as the time when it is hoped the world will be ready to accept a universal calendar. Many industries have approved the plan, he said, and labor would have the advantage of longer week-ends by virtue of the proposal to have all holidays fall on Mondays.

Students in the auditorium raised questions. Lieut. Col. Bullis was asked when the Fourth of July would fall. He answered that holiday would be transferred to the new summer month, "Sol."

"If George Washington could stand the calendar change in 1752 which moved his birthday from February 11 to February 22, we ought to be able to stand a change now," he said. Christmas under the proposed plan would be on December 23 and Easter on April 15. To equalize an odd day each year, a day between December and January has been set aside as "Year Day."

The Sophomore Class of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, reigned supreme yesterday. The Freshmen were victims of all things and during the day appeared in vari-colored hose. Their hair twisted into braids, only one side of their faces made up, and wearing small anchors tied with rope around their necks.

From flag raising in the morning until a dinner dance at night the "Frosh" were the "goats." At dinner the Sophomores turned from the mighty superiors to gracious hostesses and fellow-students. Each Freshman was presented with a rose and songs of fellowship were sung.

The dinner was followed by a dance in Butler gymnasium. The gymnasium was decorated with Sophomore colors, black and white. The Sophomores wore white dresses and white jackets on which was a large Viking ship. Decorations and activities were followed out in Viking characteristics.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN FUND GAINS $50,000

$250,000 Church Ready for Dedication with Only $50,000 Debt.

Contributions of $50,000 were added to the building fund of the First Presbyterian Church, 7200 Delmar boulevard, at a special service yesterday morning, and this new $250,000 stone church is ready for dedication, with only about $50,000 indebtedness, for which bonds will be issued, running over a period of ten years.

Rev. Dr. R. Calvin Dobson, the pastor, has been assisted in preliminary services by Dr. A. C. Hageman of Philadelphia, who has been conducting meetings at the church for the last week, and who preached and made a financial appeal yesterday. The events of the week have included a dinner for the men of the church, served by the women, on Tuesday night, and a dinner for the women of the church, served by the men, on Friday night.

At yesterday's service the choir was augmented by thirty vested student singers from Lindenwood College.

At the dedication of the church on November 11 there will be a sermon by a former First Church pastor, Rev. Dr. Ralph Davis, who is now pastor of the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church of Chicago. On Thursday, November 15, the congregation's one hundred and eleventh anniversary is to be celebrated.

Dr. Dobson, who for the last seven years has been executive secretary of the St. Louis Presbytery, has been giving part time service to the First Church, but now that the new church is completed, a meeting is to be held next Sunday, at which the officers of the church will recommend to the congregation that Dr. Dobson be called to the full pastorate.

Parties and Other Events

Halloween at Lindenwood College will be celebrated Wednesday. In the afternoon the Alpha Mu Mu, honorary musical organization, will give a tea. Miss Mary Catherine Craven, Miss Clara Bowles and Miss Dorothy Gartner, officers of the society, will assist Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer in the receiving line. Invitations have been sent to members of the faculty and the music students.

On Wednesday night in Butler gymnasium the 1928 Halloween queen will be crowned at a masquerade dance. The college Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring the party under the leadership of Miss Mary Dix of St. Louis. Girls who will assist Miss Dix are Miss Betty Foster, Miss Jean Whitney, Miss Dorothy Fogwell and Miss Dorothy Johnson.

Head of Lindenwood Lays Stress on Duty of Everyone to Vote

Says Elector's Intelligence and Convictions Should Be Sole Guide.

A lesson in the Christian's responsibility on election day was pointed out by Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, in a sermon yesterday morning at the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church on "Personal Responsibility." Dr. Roemer saw in the present presidential campaign "an encouraging awakening of the feeling of responsibility." He mentioned neither candidate, declaring it makes no difference for whom one votes, provided he votes "according to his intelligence and convictions." Dr. Roemer spoke in the absence from the city of the Webster Groves pastor, Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling.

The sermon on "Personal Responsibility" was based on the story in the Book of Acts of the Apostle Peter and the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple. It was shown by the speaker that the Apostle Peter had made a daring discovery in psychology.

Relies on His Faith.

"The apostle had come to an unexpected emergency. He was prompt to meet it. He said, 'Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee.' But his action was not formulated on the spur of the moment. There are moments, it is said, when 'we are what we are when we think we don't have to think.' It was the apostle's conviction that his faith in the Christ was one that ought to meet every emergency of helpfulness. He was not given to worrying about things he did not have, and when aims was demanded of him and he had none, he immediately called upon the resources of his faith to meet the emergency as best he could.

"This story is a study in moral responsibility; where there is a need there is a duty to use every resource we have to meet it. The beggar received not alms, but something better.

"Responsibility is really the great need of the present day, whether one be of little or of great resources. Today we hear the state calling for voters to recognize their responsibility as part of this great government to be interested in the right of suffrage.

Public Is Awakening.

"It is encouraging to note that in the present campaign there seems to be an awakening of the feeling of responsibility that each citizen owes to his country to vote.

"There is a call of responsibility to the church, that men and women should feel it their duty to do whatever they can, with whatever they have to advance the kingdom of Christ upon the earth. The lame man received not what he wanted but what he needed, and the responsibility of the church is to have the same impulse which prompted the apostle to say, 'Such as I have, I give.'"

MISS MALCOLM IS COLLEGE LAWMAKER AT ST. CHARLES, MO.

Miss Elizabeth Malcolm, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Malcom, of Beekley, has been chosen as a member of the "House of Representatives" at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., where Miss Malcolm is a freshman in the college of arts and sciences. In the fall of each year two girls from each of the five dormitories on the campus are selected to represent their hall in what is known as the "House of Representatives." This body is presided over by the vice-president of the student government,

The girls are chosen for their excellence of character and other good qualities. It is their duty to assist the officers of the student government which is the sole governing body of the college. It is considered one of the high honors of the school to belong to either of these two governing bodies.

Miss Malcolm is also very interested in music and is a member of the college choir which recently sang in one of the St. Louis churches.

Campus Tea Room Opened by College 'Home Ec.' Pupils

COOKING a meal fit for a king and sewing a fine seam are every-day accomplishments at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, where "Home Ec." is one of the favorite courses. Miss Martenson and Miss Tucker, the teachers, are trying out some new ideas with good results.

Two senior major students, May Stedelin, Centralia, Ill., and Doris Lehmann, St. Charles, are dealing with real management problems. The campus tea room is open on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 9:30 to 10:15 o'clock. On these nights the two girls are cooks, dieticians and managers. They take turns at the different jobs; the manager doing the budgeting and keeping strict account in her ledger of the things bought and the profits made. The student body is enthusiastic over the new chefs for they are introducing many unusual culinary delights. Variety is the spice of the menus, and everything from chile and hot tamales in cold weather to iced cocoa and date-nut sandwiches on warmer days are served. These same girls also plan the dinner given by different clubs in the tea room.

But in Roemer Hall, on first floor, is the "behind the scenes" operation of the Home Ec. department. The laboratory consists of five unit kitchens—a long room divided into five equal parts with a range, table and stool in each. The embryo cook rules her realm as though she were in her own home. Conveniently near the kitchen is a cunning little apartment of two rooms; a well-furnished dining-room and a small reception-room. In the spring the major students give individual dinners to which guests are invited. The hostess plans her menu and decorations, cooks the food and presides at table.

Many schools are criticized because of their method of teaching only one dish at a time and insisting that the recipe be divided until it is almost unrecognizable. Lindenwood has introduced a new method; that of the unit meal basis. The class prepares a complete meal every time. One week is devoted to the perfect breakfast, another to appetizing lunches. In this way balanced menus are achieved.

Good cooks, though essential, are not the only aim of the department. Sewing is an important division, and also a course in house plans. The freshmen are now learning Italian hemstitching, while others energetically try their hand at making simple garments in the hope that by spring they will be able to design "formals" or join the "millinery class." An incentive to the seamstresses are the prizes offered annually by Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly, a famous Lindenwood student, who is creator of the "Nellie Don" dresses.

"House plans" is fascinating in its scope. It is the course of dream castles which are destined many times to be realities. The plans are drawn on paper, cardboard foundations raised, and the miniature interiors furnished.

Statistics prove that the majority of Lindenwood graduates marry and make happy homes. Credit should be given to the home economics department for these matrimonial successes.

Church Not Pacific in Confronting Evil, Dr. Roemer Asserts

Head of Lindenwood Con- ducts Armistice Day Vesper Service.

"It was a hopeful sign when our two eminent candidates for the presidency of this country emphasized not the greatness of material success, but evaluated more highly spiritual qualities in calculating the nation's wealth and glory," was an Armistice Day comment on the recent election, made by Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, at a vesper service at the college last night, commemorating the anniversary. Lindenwood's vested choir sang hymns of the war, and the national flag was used in decorations.

"It has been charged," said Dr. Roemer, "that the hymnology of the Christian church breathes the spirit of war. Suppose it does. The church is not a pacifist when it confronts the forces of evil. I have no pacifist blood in my veins, if a war is inevitable. The fighting man is the forceful man if his cause is right and no arbitrament is possible.

Bible Is Militant.

"The Bible of the Christian is militant. It demands soldiers in the full armor of God. Fighting spirit is not to be deplored if it is rightly directed. If the peace we seek is the making of 'mollycoddles,' it will not be worth the effort. The peace worth while is the peace that requires strength, not weakness. It is the peace that makes for life, not death."

Dr. Roemer's theme was "The New Hero," of whom he said: "The days of unweaponed warfare may be too much to expect at once, but the time is sure to come, and that soon, when the hero will not be in a soldier's uniform, but will be clothed in the uniform of a militant spirit of righteousness. The soldier's uniform we respect and honor, but as new methods of warfare change and the soldier's uniform differs from time to time, so we expect the great heroes of the future not to be discovered on the fields of bloody warfare."

The speaker compared unarmed nations with unarmed individuals. "The boy without a pistol has no incentive to use firearms to settle his disputes." While admitting that life is always a struggle and "the necessity of fighting to get a place under the sun is not patented by an Emperor of Germany," he saw great hope in Kellogg's treaty. He mentioned the practical side: "Nations are burdened with taxes for wars past and wars yet to come. The unbearable toll of taxes and human lives is arousing the peoples of the earth to try to find some other means of gaining their rights and adjusting differences."

Dr. Roemer described "the most historic railroad car in the world," standing in front of Hotel des Invalides in Paris, France, across which is written, "The car in which the armistice was signed, November 11, 1918." He recalled the world delirium, also the wild manifestation of joy at Lindenwood College, paying a reverent tribute to the Unknown Soldier, above whose grave is inscribed, "He Died for Us," and speaking in gratitude to all "who laid down their lives for the Stars and Stripes."

Dr. Roemer said: "May we, on this tenth anniversary of Armistice Day, dedicate ourselves to honor our living and dead warriors by putting on the full armor of God to fight to a successful issue those insidious forces of evil, within and without, the conquest of which will result in outlawing war, bringing to our fair land an enduring peace."

ART EDITOR IS SPEAKER AT LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

Mrs. Emily Grant Hutchings, art critic of the GLOBE-DEMOCRAT, gave an address, "The Importance of Design in Art," before the students of Lindenwood College yesterday, illustrating with examples of stained-glass windows, mosaics and paintings, both in modernistic and more conservative schools.

"Design is either conventional or naturalistic," she said. "Conventional design is derived from geometric forms, from the kaleidoscope, crystalline formations, snowflakes or metallic or naturalistic forms. Primitive forms of nature, in the oldest civilizations, were stereotyped, as the cloud form of China, the wave form of Persia, the arabesque in Mohammedan countries. Out of the simplest geometric and plant forms the most complex designs may be constructed."

DINNER TO HONOR
ST. CHARLES PASTOR

Occasion Marks Rev. R. W.
Ely's 25th Year with Church.

Rev. Dr. Robert W. Ely is to be honored tonight in the Jefferson Street Presbyterian Church in St. Charles, with a congregational dinner, followed by a program commemorating Dr. Ely's twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor of this congregation. W. F. Achelpohl, who has been an elder of the church for twenty-five years, will preside.

Addresses will be made by Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, and by Rev. W. H. Hoover, pastor of the Pine Lawn Presbyterian Church. Mrs. J. B. Willbrand and Miss Clarabel Wallenbrock will give violin solos. A men's quartet will sing, and there will also be solos by Miss Frances Criswell of Lindenwood College and Edwin Werner.

Dr. Ely was born near Washington, Pa., attended Washington and Jefferson College and graduated from the Western Theological Seminary at Pittsburgh, in 1882. His first pastorate was in South Dakota, from which, after three years, he went to Neosho, Mo. He remained at Neosho eighteen years, doing much work in outlying churches and establishing congregations. He came to the St. Charles church in 1903. Continuing his missionary work, it is often his custom on Sunday afternoons to hold services out in the country, in schoolhouses. He goes twice a month to Lake View School, ten miles out, and once a month to Pleasant Union School, twelve miles away, doing this missionary work without salary. He also holds regular services at the St. Charles County Jail and County Farm.

Dr. and Mrs. Ely were married during his first year in South Dakota. They have four daughters, two of whom have married ministers. Miss Helen Ely is Red Cross secretary at St. Charles, and Miss Dorothy Ely teaches English in the St. Charles High School.

Interclass Hockey Tourney in Progress at Lindenwood College

Prospects of winning a new trophy cup for hockey have caused special enthusiasm for the game most played at Lindenwood College just now. The donor of the cup is Gertrude Webb of St. Louis, a graduate of last May, who figured prominently in the campus games. An inter-class hockey tournament is being played out before the final competition of the Thanksgiving game. So far the freshman team has suffered two defeats, at the hands, respectively, of sophomores, when the score was 5-0, and with the seniors, who won by a score of 1-0.

The sophomore-freshman game was played as follows:

Sophomores.	Position.	Freshmen.
R. Clement	C.F.	H. Duncan
H. Weber	L.F.	M. L. Bowles, Ruth, Dawson, subs.
A. Bloebaum	L.W.	E. Eldridge

Armistice Day Vesper Services At Lindenwood

Dr. John L. Roemer
"The New Hero"

The Armistice Day Vespers program at Lindenwood was given in Roemer Auditorium by Dr. John L. Roemer. His subject was "The New Hero."

"Ten years ago," stated Dr. Roemer, "Armistice Day was hailed as the beginning of a new era; that ushering in of a so-called 'brotherhood of man.' Now, a decade later, our minds are disillusioned, for there has been a constant seething of war spirit. Wars have always begun over trivial disputes. The World War would never had occurred, if only the opposing parties had stopped to talk things over. One of the most important statements ever made by that famous orator, William Jennings Bryan, said in brief that any nation going to war ought to have a year to think matters over, and the inevitable result would be fewer wars and more rational and sane-minded disputes."

The combative spirit of human nature should not be changed or an international mollycoddle would soon be developed. However, an invention that should be made and will be, sooner or later, is a weaponless war. There should be no armaments whatsoever. The Germans, though themselves a super-people, therefore, it was only a natural result that they were defeated in their attempts to conquer the world.

The New Hero will not be clothed in soldier garb, but in the spirit of righteousness. He will wear a helmet of salvation, and carry a shield of faith. He will be thinking, not of destruction, but of construction.

The two greatest enemies of all mankind are selfishness and covetousness. The first is the fight of every nation, and the second is America's in particular, because we, as a nation, are entirely too self-sufficient. If we can't get what we want by asking for it, we go out and get it by force.

Therefore, on this tenth anniversary of the signing of the world Armistice, we join the warriors living and dead in dedicating ourselves and our lives to the new, modern and divine hero.

Lindenwood College Twins Who Think and Look Alike

MISSES LAURA AND LUELLE GUYER of Waterville, Kan., twin sisters and freshmen at Lindenwood College, are so much alike that their Lindenwood companions are in a state of bewilderment over them. A perfect pair of twins they are, looking alike and laboring alike, even to earning the same marks in class work, although this last is believed by some of the students as due, perhaps, to the instructor's inability to discern which is which.

They are taking the same course of study and sit side by side in the same classes. To be separated is a punishment to them. The conversation of one, it is said, could easily be the conversation of the other, and they seem to share one mind.

Miss Laura says that she decided first to let "their hair" grow out, while Miss Luella insists it was she who thought of it first. At any rate, it is no more haircuts for either.

These are the only twins at Lindenwood.

NEOSHO GIRL HONORED

Miss Margery Hazen of this city, who has been attending Lindenwood College for Women, at St. Charles, Mo., has recently been awarded the honor of having an article of her own composition published in the Literary Supplement of the Linden Bark, the campus weekly. The supplement is published monthly, and the girls whose works appear on its pages are certain to be deserving of this reward:

"Going to Lindenwood."
(By Margery Hazen.)

"All aboard!"

"It's leaving! You'll have to get on!"

"Goodbye, everybody! Did I get my bag?"

I run across the platform, and make a quick rush for the steps, guided by hands coming out of the darkness. A steady mounting of the grinding roar of the wheels, and the train is off, leaving all of those dear familiar faces to fade into the blackness of the night.

Through a mist of tears, the natural accompaniment to a departure from home, I see a long, dim passage with heaving green walls before me, suggestive of anything but that which I seek, sleep.

"Right this way, lady, to number five," a seductive whisper breaks in upon my meditations. Stumbling, I follow a massive blur of black and white through the motley collection of shoes, bags, hat-boxes, and indescribables which choke the aisles.

Now a shaky ladder is unfolded for me to mount, bringing from my lips a vehement protest concerned with upper berths and their evils. However, I am immediately silenced by another of those sibilant whispers, and after a perilous climb, find myself perched on the berth, where I huddle up against the wall to avoid falling out.

After a short but desperate struggle with various articles of clothing, I sink back to the smooth coolness of the pillows. Wait! I emit an agonized squeak, followed by a sigh of resignation, as I take from beneath my right shoulder a sharp-edged tin candy box. Rubbing my shoulder, I examine the box, which exudes the tantalizing odor of chocolates that are no more. Once again I lower myself with caution for every inch. I draw a long breath; at last, with the exception of one arm which will not go in, I am settled for three whole hours of sleep.

General Merchandise

Miss Helen Petty of Viola has been highly honored at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Missouri, where she is a freshman. The Linden Bark, a weekly campus newspaper published by the journalism class publishes a monthly Literary Supplement composed of outstanding stories and essays written by members of the English classes. It is to this publication that Miss Petty contributed the following story:

(By Helen C. Petty)

"V. B. Denton, General Merchandise," proclaims the lettering on the windows of the high, narrow building windows smeared and greasy, boasting nothing of art in their crowded, haphazard arrangement. On the right, as you enter, are carelessly displayed cases of sticky candies, wilted cigars, and a sad array of pipes. On the left is a dusty, scarred counter cluttered with several half-unwound bolts of calico. The tier of shelves behind it is filled with more of the gaudy stuff.

The proprietor shambles slowly forward, a huge, unkempt figure, his face covered with a grizzly stubble matching his graying hair and enormous moustache in color and in coarseness.

"What kin I do fer you terday?" he manages to articulate in a lazy drawl. On mention of the article you wish to purchase comes the invariable reply. "We're all out o'thet. We got a order in fer more an' she'll be here 'bout nex' week."

"How are you today, Mr. Denton?" you ask.

"Oh, purty good,' and hitching his thumbs into his stringy suspenders he proceeds to give you his opinion of the weather, of the results of the coming election, of the church, and of the world in general. "Huh!" he says in regard to the church. "This here preacher hain't no sense at all. I heard as he says if ya don't go to church on Sunday ya' wouldn't go to heaven. That hands me a big laugh! Heaven! Ha!" He makes a queer, guttural sound intended for chuckle. "Heaven! Hain't no heaven. Hain't no God. Can't make me believe all that wily nilly. I hain't believin' nothin' I can't see. I'm too smart fer that! Heaven! God! Hain't no such animals!" and he rocks back and forth with mirth at his own wit.

"But," you protest in shocked tones, "who made you? Who made me? Who made this big round world of ours but God?"

"Hah! Round world. That's good! Round world!" A wicked gleam of amusement comes into his dull blue eyes, and he goes into another fit of merriment from which he emerges to give a hitch to his decrepit trousers, a jerk to his frayed, soiled collar, and to remark. "The idee! If this world was round how'd we stay on? No, sir! This world's square as a box. If 'twans't, off we'd go. But speakin' of churches, my wife, she's great on the church. Wanted to give a cake to the bazaar that Ladies' Aid business had. I shut her off on that mighty quick. I hain't got no money to be throwin' to these here preachers so's they kin git up to lie to a bunch of nit-wits that'll believe it."

"But what of the service the church societies give?" you ask. "Service—blah! That for service!"

He snaps his pudgy fingers. "Every man fer his self."

There you have his whole philosophy of life. He lives for himself in his ignorant, selfish world. He has no other god but self, no hope of, not even a belief in immortality. His life is cheap, shoddy, dull like his general merchandise.

Sunday Meditations.

Miss Norma Paul Ruedi, a young junior collegian at Lindenwood, has contributed the following poem, as entitled above, which contains suggestions as to church unity:

Some people think to keep the faith
One must decide to go
Each Sunday to the chosen church
And sit in the same row.

Now, I feel freshened when I change
And worship on one day
With Methodists, and then next time
With Presbyterians pray.

Do not they all tell us the word
That we as Christians love?
And don't they all rank equally
In favor up above?

I think that when God casts his eye
Upon this wrangling earth,
And hears men rant against a sect,
It gives him cause for mirth.

Each church has different ways of preaching
And new ideas to give.
If we select the best from all,
We've found the way to live.

World Saving Power Lies in the Cross, Says Dr. J. L. Roemer

Lindenwood Head Calls It Preserving Power of the Ages.

"The cross is the only saving power in the world," said Rev. John Lincoln Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, at a vespers sermon yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church of Belleville.

"Take the cross from the world," he said, "and the world perishes. When crucifixions give way to ease, the result is flabbiness, worthlessness. If the cross is missing in any life, there is no love that evokes our devotion. The cross is the preserving power of the ages.

"The cross on Calvary is the world's saving power. When the Roman Coliseum began to fall into decay, the people used to take the stones, of which it was composed, to build their own houses. To such an extent was this practice carried that many feared this noble relic of the imperial city would be entirely removed. All efforts to stop the practice failed. Pope Benedict XIV. devised a simple plan. He planted a huge cross in the center of the arena, thereby declaring the building hallowed. Thus the grand edifice was preserved in part to the present.

"All theories and means the mind can devise to preserve the human edifice will fail until the cross is planted in its midst. The state, the church, society have only one need—Calvary's cross. When the gospel without a cross is preached, there is no incentive. Victorious living fails."

Dr. Roemer's subject was "Living in Faith." He reviewed, in contrast, the doctrines of love and of legalism. "When Christ enjoined his followers to love their enemies," he said, "it was more than an arbitrary decree. It was the enunciation of a law of life.

It was the enunciation of a law of life.

"The futility of law as a saving grace was apparent to the Apostle Paul. The legalist of Paul's day finds his counterpart in the world today.

"There are people putting their salvation in terms of law. In the political world the 'cure-all' of our ills is in statutes. Enough laws cumber our statute books to have saved a dozen nations, yet every new ill has the same remedy applied—law."

Quoting Paul's text in the letter to the Galatians, "I live in faith, the faith which is in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself up for me," the speaker showed that Paul was created anew by his faith, and "the means of his elevation was nothing short of the love of God." The cross, too, gave Paul a goal.

No Merit in Speed.

"Directed energy puts meaning into life. Today is a time of going fast, but I often wonder if the great multitudes know where they are going. There is not much speed just to be going. The autoist who keeps his eye on the speedometer misses the beauty of the country he traverses."

The speaker said Paul's faith gave him also a new interpretation of the cross, which in former times had meant but torture and disgrace. "The cross upon which our Savior died is no longer one of shame, but of glory."

Marea Hempelman Into Politics at Lindenwood

Miss Marea Hempelman "stepped into politics" with her election as president of the League of Women Voters of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo. The club, one of the most prominent of the year, sponsored all the electoral activities before and on the day of election. The club was also instrumental in furnishing two speakers for chapel. The officers and other members had charge of the straw vote of the college, providing the voters with realistic polls and ballots.

Miss Hempelman, who will receive her B. A. degree in June, is also in the politics of the Student Government Association of Lindenwood, holding a seat in the House of Representatives.

Class President Four Years of College Life

RUTH BULLION.

St. Charles, Mo., Nov. 24.—For four years Ruth Bullion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce T. Bullion of Little Rock, Ark., has been president of her class in Lindenwood college here, a distinction which no other girl in the 102 years of Lindenwood history, and few in the enrollment of other colleges, has had.

From the beginning of her college days she has showed the powers of leadership. Her class, which soon will don the dignity of Bachelors' gowns, has been rated the "peppiest" since its members learned their way through the maze of college ideas and customs.

Miss Bullion has played a major part in sports, as well as in class politics and general activities.

Lindenwood College Students Contribute Gifts for Children

Thanksgiving Sermon by Pastor of Markham Memorial Church.

"Thanksgiving translated into thanks-living," was recommended in the Thanksgiving sermon at Lindenwood College, in Roemer Auditorium, yesterday morning, by Rev. Dr. George Wales King, of the Markham Memorial Church. As many of the Lindenwood students brought gifts and dressed dolls for the downtown children of the Markham Church at Christmas, Dr. King touched on the social service which every one may do.

"A personal thanksgiving," he said, "soon runs into a social experience. Thanks-living, or the absence of it, is highly contagious. Cheerful words fitly spoken in places where people live and work and have their being, bring brightness where otherwise dark despondency would take up its abode.

"We are continually affecting for good or ill, for gladness or sadness, the lives around us. When it is sunshine in our souls, others share the delight of the genial rays; and when the storm bursts and the floods of anger are unloosed they share those too. The optimist, not the pessimist, is to be envied. It has been said of a well-known character in Pilgrim's Progress: 'Hopeful was just like a cork in the water, always coming to the surface and would not be kept down.'

"I think of the social worker in the homes and habitations of the poor; of the forlorn, desperate situations that must be met; of the resourcefulness required of those who, like our Master, would go about doing good. I think of the romance of social work, when it is only seen from a picturesque viewpoint. And then I think of the quiet confidence, the unflinching loyalty, the tireless interest with which these social workers ply their task. What is the secret? It is thanksgiving translated into thanks-living.

"But someone says: 'One can't be cheerful if one does not feel cheerful.' Quite so! But there is one recipe for cheerfulness that never fails. 'Link up your lives with Jesus, the greatest of all optimists.'

"Those who have done this have found him to be the one true source of lasting joy. All days will be sunny if the Sun of Righteousness shines upon us. Because of Jesus, men have sung songs in prison, braved dangers with laughter on their lips, and greeted death itself with a cheer.

"Make your own inside weather.' It is a good rule to live by. It is gloriously possible to make ourselves independent of outward conditions, whether our lot be hard or easy; whether things be for us or against us; we can have sunny weather in our souls on the dullest day, and a warm heart in the depths of the dreariest winter. Surely this is a thanksgiving that is acceptable unto God."

Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer presided at this service, which was attended by all the students and faculty. Thanksgiving music was given by the college vested choir.

That's Popularity!

MISS RUTH BULLION

She has "it" and then some, for she was class president in her freshman, sophomore and junior years and now, in her senior year, is again head of her class at Lindenwood College, of St. Charles, Mo.

On Schubert Program.

Miss Jane Davies, who is a freshman at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., was a member of the double quartet that sang in a Schubert program at that college last Sunday night. The college choir presented the program which consisted only of Schubert's works. Thursday morning, Nov. 22, a Schubert program was given by the music faculty of the college. In these ways Lindenwood students and faculty observed the anniversary of the great composer's death. The programs consisted of his best and most popular works. Miss Davies is a member of the choir. It is considered an honor to be selected as a member of the quartet.

Lindenwood Holiday Program.

Thanksgiving will be celebrated at Lindenwood College with a continuous program so attractive that none of the students will leave the campus. This is in fact an accepted rule, that everyone at Lindenwood spends the day there, friends and relatives being welcomed as visitors. The first number will be an annual hockey game between the senior-sophomore team and the freshman-junior team, at 9 o'clock.

At 11:30, the Thanksgiving service will be held in Roemer Auditorium. The speaker will be Dr. George Wales King, pastor of the Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church of St. Louis. This will be followed by dinner in Ayres Hall, and then a tea-dance in Butler Hall, with the student government board as host.

A play in the evening will be sponsored by the Y. W. C. A., "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," by Harry James Smith. The cast includes Misses Mary Margaret Poorman, Lucille Kelly, Louise Dressel, Elizabeth Tracy, Marea Hempleman, Beatrice McKellar, Jean Whitney, Kathryn Perry, Ruth Thompson, Garnette Thompson, Evelyn Pierpoint, and Janice Greene.

Four Years President of Her College Class

Miss Ruth Bullion has been president of her class through four years at college

FEW college girls have had the honor of being class president straight through their course, as has Miss Ruth Bullion at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce T. Bullion of Little Rock, Ark., she has been elected anew, each of the four years. This has not been known at Lindenwood before.

"Ruthie" as the girls called her when a freshman, still calling her so although near the dignity of a bachelor of arts degree—"Ruthie" has many facets of popularity. In athletics she ranks 1,500 points, the highest possible. She has qualified in Red Cross swimming tests as an examiner, which badge she wears. Her zeal helped win the annual hockey game. High jumping on field day gained her votes, and she has excelled in tennis and golf, while in basketball she has for three years been on the winning team which gained the Lindenwood cup.

As chapel song leader Miss Bullion rivals Rodeheaver in bringing out the vocal power of Lindenwood's 500 girls, especially in the songs composed new each year for which prizes are offered.

Being tall, she is an adept in taking the role of "the lover" or "the comedy man" or even "the villain" in the Alpha Psi Omega plays of the college.

In more serious work this class president ranks as editor of the annual of 1929, Linden Leaves, a volume ranking high among girls' college annuals of the country, the centennial edition of which, in 1927, gained first award in the Arts Craft guild national competition. She has also through four years been editor in chief of Linden Bark, campus weekly.

More than that, she is on the national council of Y. W. C. A. college organizations, and has been editor since 1926 of L'Atom, the organ of the south-west division of the "Y," taking in Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

PASTOR ASKS IF FAST LIFE KNOWS WHERE IT'S GOING

Take the Cross Away and Death Ensues, Declares Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer At Presbyterian.

Many alumnae and former students of Lindenwood College greeted Rev. John L. Roemer, D. D., president of Lindenwood, yesterday, when he filled the First Presbyterian church pulpit at the vesper services. Dr. Roemer's sermon topic was, "Living in Faith," with the text, Gal. 2, 20, "I live in faith, the faith which is in the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." A statement that human affections sway every impulse in life and are the source of all great achievements was illustrated in modern incident: "Yale students voted Lindbergh the most popular man in all the world today. The flying achievements of the great aviator were the result of his love for aeronautics. Unknown and unheard of, his life was given to the perfecting of his knowledge in aerial flights. He had a good machine. The man in the machine made possible the world reknown of 'We.'

Best is of Heart

"The best that we are, is of the heart. Paul would be lost to history if he had not been moved to action by the love of Christ that overwhelmed him."

Supporting the thesis that "Paul's faith re-created the man," Dr. Roemer said: "Living at the top is man's greatest conquest. This age in which we live makes it very difficult to live in 'the third story' of our being. There is so much in the world that appeals to the 'basement' of man's human structure; so much that appeals to the savage in man that it is difficult to take up permanent residence in the 'third story.'

"Paul's conversion brought him from the lower levels of life to the higher, and the means of the elevation was nothing short of the love of God. The object of our affection determines our dwelling place.

"Paul's faith motivated his life. He had a goal to reach, a purpose to fulfill. Anaemic virtues make us limp and bloodless. Half-hearted people always do things badly. Directed energy puts meaning into life. It knows where it is going." The speaker told the story of the scientist Huxley and his cab-driver, driving furiously as directed, because Huxley was in haste, but who forgot to ask "where"?

Just to be Going

"This is a day of going fast," Dr. Roemer said, "but I often wonder if the great multitudes know where they are going. There is not much speed, just to be going. The golf player who enjoys only counting the strokes loses much of the benefits of the game. He has wonderful stories for the club house as his reward. He is tempted to stretch the truth, we are told, to make a good story if not a good drive. The autoist who keeps his eye on the speedometer misses the beauty of the country he traverses.

"I press toward the mark," cries Paul, 'for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.' 'I count all things but loss that I might gain Christ.'

"The cross is the only saving power in the world. Take it from the world, and the world perishes. When crucifixions give ways to ease, the result is flabbiness, worthlessness. The cross is missing in many lives, and there is no love that evokes our devotion. Take the cross from our spiritual lives, and death ensues. The cross is the preserving power of the ages. The cross on Calvary is the world's saving power."

Girl in Recital.

Miss Lillian Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Smith, 113 South Elm street, appeared in a music recital at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., on Nov. 13. This is the second of the series of student recitals which continue throughout the year. The program consisted of organ solos with the exception of two groups of vocal solos, one of which was sung by Miss Smith. Her selections were "Sylvelin by Sinding" and "Shepherd, Thy Demeanor Vary" by Brown-Wilson. She was the only freshman appearing on the program. It is unusual for a freshman to appear in recitals so early in the year. Miss Smith is a member of the college choir and was one of the group selected from it to sing in a St. Louis church one Sunday earlier in the fall.

Lindenwood Play.

The Thanksgiving play at Lindenwood College, an annual Y. W. C. A. event, will be the comedy, "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," by Harry James Smith, and will be presented at 8 o'clock in Roemer Auditorium, Thursday night.

Miss Janice Greene, resident of the governor's mansion at Jefferson City, and a close friend of the governor's daughter, Miss Elisabeth Baker, with whom she rooms at Lindenwood, is to take a part in the play. She is a junior, and the cast represents the different classes, including Mary Margaret Poorman, Lucille Kelly, Marea Hempleman, Elizabeth Tracy, Beatrice McKellar, Jean Whitney, Kathryn Perry, Ruth Thompson, Garnette Thompson, Evelyn Pierpont, Janice Greene.

The play will top the day, the calendar of which includes a hockey contest at 9 a. m., between the senior-sophomore and the freshman-junior teams; religious services at 11, with sermon by Dr. George Wales King of Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church; dinner at 1 p. m., Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer presiding, and a tea dance for the girls and their guests from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Thanksgiving dinner at Lindenwood College Thursday brought many visitors, and an elaborate menu was served, interspersed with college songs. The families of all members of the faculty who were within easy distance were present, and about twenty graduates of other years came back for the day's festivities, and the Y. W. C. A. play at night. Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer presided and a number of beautiful souvenirs were distributed. Each woman faculty member and each woman visitor received a dainty silver bud vase. To the men were presented artistic cigar holders, and the children who were present received boxes of candy. Pumpkin and floral decorations were used. The souvenir menu card, printed in tri-color, contained announcement of the various celebrations of the day, beginning with an interclass hockey game, and including a sermon and a tea-dance.

Lindenwood's Upper Class Hockey Team
Scores 3-1 Conquest

Lindenwood College Thanksgiving hockey resulted in the Senior-Sophomore team beating the Junior-Freshman team, 3 to 1.

Between the halves there were stunts by pep squads of both teams. The Junior-Freshmen were led by Janie Bixler, and the Senior-Sophomores by Marjorie Bright, "Pep" Perry and Joy Carson.

There was much passing between the half backs and the forward line and a lot of sliding by both teams. Throughout the game the "scoop" stroke was used extensively. Rain fell almost continuously.

Bullion, Sweeney, Garnette, Weber and Kelly starred for the Senior-Sophomores, while Todd, Farthing, Madelyn Johnson, Goodwin and Orr were outstanding for the Junior-Freshmen. Todd, Freshman-Junior captain, made the goal for her team, and Garnette scored for the Senior-Sophomore team.

The lineup:

THE old-fashioned fruit cake is returning with increasing popularity at Lindenwood College through the fact that Miss Marie Mortenson of the faculty of the home economics department is permitting her students to make one-pound fruit cakes at cost. This cost is about 35 cents.

Lindenwood ingredients for a ten-pound fruit cake which is being mixed in bulk and baked individually, the whole mixture costing about $3.45, are: One pound butter, one pound brown sugar, one pound flour, one pound citron, two pounds raisins, two pounds currants, one pound almonds, twelve eggs, two teaspoonsful cinnamon, one teaspoonful allspice, one-half teaspoonful cloves, two teaspoonsful salt, one-half cup liquid.

The class also expects to make plum pudding and to put up fancy boxes of candy. The girl making the best candy will be given hers, while the rest may buy theirs.

ELIZABETH AUSTIN IN LINDEN BARK

Miss Elizabeth Austin, who is attending Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., was among one of the more fortunate writers in the English class, in having her theme "Smoke" appear in the literary supplement of the Linden Bark, which is the weekly campus paper, issued by the journalism class. Each month one of the supplement issues is devoted to the literary efforts of the students who are found most capable by the instructors in English. Miss Austin's theme follows below:

SMOKE

By Elizabeth Austin

"There is nothing like an odor to stir the memory"—just a line from an essay, but suddenly my mind flashed back to another autumn and another day. I could see the heaps of smouldering leaves and smell the pungent scent of smoke as it shifted northward under the cottonwood trees before a fickle wind. And that memory brought visions with it; the fern-summec tree that grew at the edge of the garden. At night, it was like a Japanese etching twisted against a harvest moon, but, now, in the misty gold twilight of autumn it stood companionably close an ash, scarlet sumach leaves contrasting vividly with silvery green. The smoke veered lazily before a rising wind that moaned a bit above the corners of the house as if to presage winter's snow.

Pawhuska Alumna Wins Musical Recognition at Lindenwood; Sings in Saint Louis

To Ethel Mitchell, '28, a student at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri, has come musical honors and recognition not often granted to a freshman in institutes of higher learning.

Wah-Sha-She received Friday a report from the publicity department of the college stating that Ethel was a member of the double quartet which appeared as a feature number on a Schubert program given at Roemen auditorium, on November 25. On Founders Day she was a member of the quartet which provided the music for the college program.

Since she is a member of the Lindenwood College choir, Ethel sang with that group at the First Presbyterian church in St. Louis a few weeks ago. She is also a member of the college choral.

While in Pawhuska high school Ethel was a member of the girls' glee club, the girls' double quartet, and the mixed chorus. She did some solo work, and her instructors said that she showed unusual promise.

In addition to her musical activities she was Girl Reserve president, and consul of the Latin Club in her senior year. She was advertising manager of Wah-Sha-She in 1927-28. She received the medal awarded by the Rolfe McCartney Post of the American Legion to the best all-around girl in the senior class.

Ethel's high school instructors said this morning that they were pleased at the manner in which she was realizing their expectations of her.

THE MENDOTA REPORTER

Miss Elizabeth Larabee, daughter of Mrs. Charles L. Larabee, has had the honor of having some poetry published in the Linden Bark, the weekly campus newspaper published by the journalism class of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri, where Miss Larabee is a member of the sophomore class. Miss Larabee is also a member of her class Hockey squad which has been successful in winning the cup offered by the Athletic Association to the winner of the inter-class tournament. Her playing in the Thanksgiving game was brilliant and fast. Miss Larabee belongs to the Illinois State Club formed of all the Lindenwoodites from that state.

The following poem appeared in the November 20 issue of the Linden Bark:

AUTUMN

By Elizabeth Larabee

Today is Autumn,
The clear sharpness of the air,
The early beauty of the sunset,
The growing bareness of the trees,
The lovely cry of south-bound birds,
These things tell me it is Autumn.
Today is Autumn,
An ineffable loveliness within me,
A remembrance of happy companionship
A recollection of a cozy room
A faint promise lingering in the blue haze,
These things tell me it is Autumn—

MISS CAUGER IN OCTETTE

Chosen to Sing in Special Program at Lindenwood College.

Miss Louise Cauger, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Cauger of Independence, was chosen as one of the two contraltos in an octette for the Schubert Centennial program, given Sunday night, at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., where Miss Cauger is a sophomore. It was an especial honor to be so selected, as the choir is composed of about sixty voice students, and competition for individual parts is keen.

Miss Cauger has also sung solos a number of times at Lindenwood, both in recitals and at Sunday night vesper services.

COLLECTION FOR POOR AT LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

Christmas charities will be administered by students of Lindenwood College to poor families in the neighborhood of the college through funds which were raised from a collection at the annual "white service" last night of Lindenwood's Y. W. C. A. Roemer Auditorium was lighted only by candles. White draperies covered the platform and steps, and each student's gift was wrapped in white.

The vesper choir sang old carols, "Sing We Noel," "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," "While by My Sheep" and a number of others.

Miss Lucile McFadden of Cadiz, Ohio, read "David's Star of Bethlehem," by Christine Whiting Parmenter. Miss Irene Hansen of Preston, Kan., sang "O Holy Night" and Miss Marjorie Smith of Siloam Springs, Ark., sang "The Angels' Song." There were also Christmas songs by the sextet and by a double quartet, with violin obligato.

Lindenwood's class in sociology has been doing practical work in sociology as a part of its studies. On the day before Thanksgiving the class visited the St. Charles County Poor Farm, giving the aged people gifts, as far as could be done, of whatever they wished.

A number of the students are dressing dolls for the Christmas at Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church, at 1614 Menard street.

DR. AND MRS. J. L. ROEMER TO BE LINDENWOOD HOSTS

Dr. and Mrs. John Lincoln Roemer will be hosts to all Lindenwood College tonight at a Christmas dinner, which will be the last of the seasonal festivities at the college, as the holiday vacation begins at noon tomorrow. A Christmas pine tree growing on the campus has been illuminated, following the annual custom, every night this week.

Santa Claus is to appear after the dinner tonight, and Christmas gifts will be distributed. Each of the five dormitories has been decorated in Christmas colors, and on Monday and Tuesday nights there were "house parties" of the groups of students in each dormitory.

Vacation is made longer than was announced early in the season by taking off two school days from next week. By vote of the students, the classes have met on two Saturdays which would have met on the two days next week, so that there will be nothing to make up after Christmas. Studies will be resumed Thursday, January 3.

MISS LYTLE IS HONORED

Miss Joan Lytle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Lytle of this city, and a student of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., has recently been pledged to the Kappa Beta chapter of the national honorary English fraternity, Sigma Tau Delta. The formal initiation has taken place and Joan is a full-fledged associate member.

The requirements for admission to this organization are sufficient in themselves to illustrate the credit deserved for eligibility. The pledge must have an 8 average, twelve hours of college English already completed, one thousand words in print, and at least one contribution to the Rectangle, the organization magazine.

GETS LINDENWOOD PRIZE FOR BEST XMAS STORY

Miss Harriet Lee Hughes of Jacksonville, Fla., has been awarded the annual prize at Lindenwood College for the best Christmas story. Her story is entitled "Candles," and is a tale of inspiration and Christmas good will which came to a tired author.

Honorable mention in the contest was accorded Miss Elizabeth Jeffrey of Topeka, Kan., who wrote on "Christmas shopping in the '80s," a clever narrative of the good sense and generosity in Christmas giving in the days when the student-writer's mother was a child.

Governor's Daughter Gains Fame as Poetess at Lindenwood College

Latest Effort, "The Dawn Will Come," Published in the Linden Bark.

Miss Mary Elisabeth Baker, daughter of the governor of the state, has the honor of having one of her poems published in the December Literary Supplement of the Linden Bark, campus paper of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri.

The Supplement chooses only those contributions which are judged as being possessed of unusual literary merit. Miss Baker is a sophomore at Lindenwood and active in student affairs.

"The Dawn Will Come" is the title of her poem which is reprinted from the Bark:

"THE DAWN WILL COME"

By Mary Elisabeth Baker

Dusk, drab shade and heavy fog;
Darkened clouds; the stars are hid;
Dull, veiled shadows' deepened gloom;

Black phantoms rule; the day is done.

Yet I know—the dawn will come.

Cold steel gray, and silver mist;
Bleak white clouds; the winds are chilled;

Dim spectres whisper, and are gone.

Still I say—the dawn will come.

Soft, fresh smell of dew-kissed earth;

From heaven's door the warm, red sun
