Behind the Trees . . .

A Note From the President

Recently I received a copy of the 1913 Linden Leaves from a graduate of that year who is now living in California. She wanted the college archives to keep her 1913 Linden Leaves so that friends of the college in years to come might know Lindenwood as it used to be.

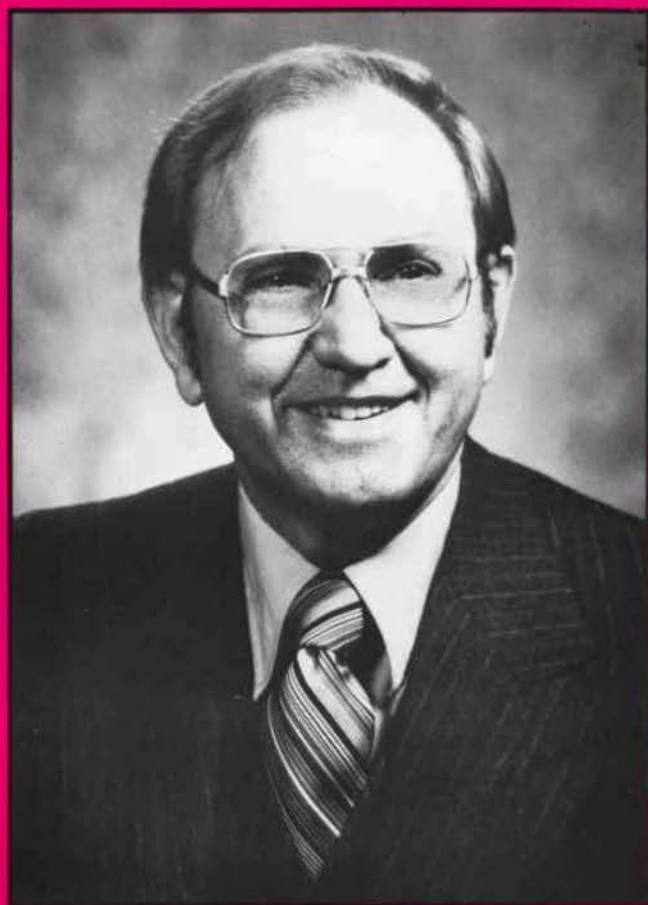

As you read the pages of this year's Linden Leaves you will be reading about Lindenwood as it was in 1986-87. Hopefully, the educational experiences provided for the students this year, the social encounters, and the many other experiences students have during a year has prepared them for service beyond the beautiful trees that grace this campus.

For 160 years, Lindenwood College has occupied a central spot in the hearts and minds of students who have studied beneath the Lindens. Each year we graduate more and more students to move beyond the confines of this campus. We do so in the conviction and with the hope that the experiences which they have here prepare them well for what they are to become.

As you read these pages and are reminded of this year in Lindenwood's history, may their content inspire you to serve yourself, your nation, and your God with diligence and dedication.

Sincerely,

James I. Spainhower
President

I chose Beyond the Trees as the theme for the 1986-87

yearbook. For the past couple of years we have focused the Linden Leaves yearbooks on the beauty of Lindenwood College — in the trees, the buildings and the history of the campus. Although these are very important aspects of our college, I'd like to take a turn towards the students and that which they do for this college, for the campus; therefore I dedicate this yearbook to the students of Lindenwood College, for it is their spirit and involvement which fill these pages with the memories of 1986-87.

Homecoming 1986

Homecoming rained out? This year due to the flooding at the downtown riverfront, the Homecoming Dance location was switched to the National Bowling Hall of Fame.

Midway through the evening the Homecoming Court was announced:

Freshmen — Tim Turner and Courtney Austin, Sophomores — (not pictured) Brad Bonty and Jan Heaman, Juniors — Mark Hopper and Brenda Eisenbeis, and the Senior King and Queen — Eric Reinsfelder and Bonnie Hoessli.
