The President's Message

Dear Lindenwood student,

Welcome! We are proud that you are a member of our campus community. Exciting things are in store for you at Lindenwood University this year.

Nothing is more important than the success of our students. We believe there is a plan for your life, and Lindenwood wants to help you find it!

You are fortunate to be at Lindenwood during a time of tremendous growth. Another residence hall will be opened, a newly designed athletic stadium, which will seat 7,000 spectators, will be completed and the Lou Brock athletic fields will be ready for the upcoming baseball season. This is a dynamic institution with a rich heritage and a bright future. Lindenwood will stretch your talents and challenge you to become your very best self. Graduation and success in the job market are only part of the plan at Lindenwood. Our goal is to help you develop as a whole person - intellectually, physically, spiritually and socially.

Life on campus helps you as a student: learn how to learn; gain a broad range of knowledge and understanding about the arts, humanities and sciences; obtain social and physical enjoyment through athletic and recreational activities and special events; grow in capacity for work, achievement and leadership; experience self-discovery and personal fulfillment that will serve a lifetime.

Get involved and take an active part in your education. All kinds of opportunities await you during your Lindenwood experience. It is up to you to make the most of those opportunities. The faculty, administration and staff are here to support you the entire way.

We look forward to seeing you on campus. Have a great year!

$3 Million Software Gift Boosts Fashion Design Program

from www.lindenwood.edu

Lindenwood University has announced it will receive a $3 million gift of software from Lectra, headquartered in Paris, France. Lindenwood will use industry-leading fashion and textile CAD software, U4ia and Modaris, in its fashion design program, providing students the opportunity to train in textile design (U4ia) and patternmaking (Modaris).

Lindenwood is the only university in Missouri implementing this CAD software program into its curriculum, said Florence Dewan, a fashion design professor at Lindenwood who worked with Lectra to secure the donation.

Lectra is the world leader in the design and distribution of software and hardware dedicated to the major industrial users of textiles, leather and other soft materials. Lectra's global team of 1,350 employees serves 16,000 customers in more than 100 countries.

"We are grateful to Lectra for this tremendous gift," said Lindenwood President Dennis Spellmann. "And we are excited for our students, who will have the best tools in the industry to prepare them for a career in fashion and retail business industries. Coupling these tools with the dynamic faculty and gifted students promises to catapult our program and help meet the industry needs for the future."

Lectra's national director of marketing, Tim Copeland, said the company was aware of Lindenwood University's respected faculty and its commitment to putting students first in everything it does.

"We are looking forward to a tremendous partnership with Lindenwood University," said Copeland. "Lectra and Lindenwood have a common commitment to excellence. We will all benefit from this partnership; but most importantly, the students will be the biggest winners."

Marsha Parker, dean of fine and performing arts at Lindenwood, said the benefit of the gift was actually threefold.

"It enhances our academic programs, improves employability of our graduates and provides an economic benefit for corporations," she said. "If a May Company, Target or Sears, hires a Lindenwood graduate, they will not have to incur the cost of training that employee in this state-of-the-art software, which is in use all over the world."

Copeland said Lindenwood would receive the software in mid-summer, in time for installation and training prior to the beginning of the fall semester.

Campus Life

Paul Lee

Greetings from the Campus Life office! It is our duty to make sure that you are taken care of once you step on campus that first day of school. Many new things are in store for you.

For example: When it comes to work and learn, in addition to the array of places one can work on campus, juniors and seniors can apply to work in the community service work and learn. These students are partnered with a community-based organization, such as the American Red Cross, and complete 150 hours, just like when on an on-campus location. It's a great way of giving back to the community, as well as completing work and learn hours.

Another opportunity that awaits is the career development services. Under the direction of Dana Wehrli, both students and alumni can use this resource to locate a possible internship, part-time or even full-time employment. Call Dana Wehrli at (636) 949-4806, dwehrli@lindenwood.edu.

These are some of the many services that Campus Life provides to assist you in your college career! If you have any questions, feel free to contact Sheryl Guffey, Dean of Campus Life, at (636)949-4993, or e-mail her at sguffey@lindenwood.edu.

$5 Million Stadium Renovation Underway from www.lindenwood.edu

A $5 million renovation of Lindenwood's Harlen C. Hunter Athletic Stadium began this spring. Completion is expected this fall. The project is expected to employ dozens of construction workers throughout the summer.

The plans call for new bleachers throughout the stadium, and an increase in capacity to 7,000. A special VIP section will include end zone seats. Plans also call for a decorative patio entrance with kiosk ticket booths. A new concession stand will be located beneath end zone seating.

"We have had the best athletic program in the nation for the last two years, and our facilities will reflect that," said Lindenwood President Dennis Spellmann after the LU Board of Directors approved the construction plan.

A new walkway into the stadium will be constructed over John Weber Drive and Boschert Creek. The stadium will be surrounded by ornamental brick and iron fencing to match the architecture of the rest of the campus.

Besides hosting an estimated 70 Lindenwood events annually, the stadium plays host to community charity events and high school athletic events.

Welcome Week

Kurt A. Calvert

Welcome to Lindenwood. We're so excited you're here to grow and learn with us this semester. Following the orientation will be the new student barbecue outside the arena. Food and drinks will be provided free of charge! The opening convocation will be on Tuesday, August 24 at 4:00 p.m. in the LUCC. We hope this week will be exciting for all. Here are some weekly events happening at LU:

Lindenwood Receives Maximum 10-Year Accreditation

from www.lindenwood.edu

Citing enrollment increases, new construction without debt, and “one of the hardest working and dedicated faculties in American higher education,” the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools has granted Lindenwood University the maximum 10-year accreditation.

“We are happy with the outcome,” said Lindenwood President Dennis Spellmann. “But we expected this. Our board, faculty and staff work hard to put students and their educational needs first.”

An HLC team visited Lindenwood recently for an exhaustive week of review and interviews. The accreditation was granted based on observations, interviews with faculty, staff and students, and the university’s own self-study, which was prepared by a 22-member steering committee. Notable items in the HLC team’s 41-page report included:

- The main campus continues to serve the core of the university, being home to approximately 2,700 full-time undergraduates. Intercollegiate sports are a major focus of the university and have proven to be a significant factor in its recent recruiting success.
- Prudent financial management has generated spectacular surpluses of $15-$20 million per year. As a result, the institution functions without debt. The university pours those surpluses back into capital improvements, scholarships, and financial aid for students.
- During interviews the faculty and others applauded the administration for the university’s financial solvency while at the same time generating tremendous growth in new and renovated buildings.
- The university has an organizational structure that is lean at the top, with lines of authority that are clear and unambiguous. The administrative work of the university reports through 12 senior staff directly to the president who is a hands-on day-to-day decision maker.
- Lindenwood is blessed with what is arguably one of the hardest-working and dedicated teaching faculties in American higher education. Students made comments that illustrated the high value they place on the faculty and staff for their effectiveness as instructors and the care and attention they give to students.
- Campus expansion such as in Belleville, IL, the Daniel Boone Home, and the proposed $100 million master plan demonstrate a palpable momentum and commitment to students and to the future.
- Review of their background and face-to-face conversation revealed a board of trustees that understands and implements its responsibility to provide oversight for the university’s future programs, finances and facilities.
- Evidence of increasing university commitment to, and investment, in technology bode well for the university’s continued ability to accomplish its purpose.
- Lindenwood has excelled at enhancing the physical infrastructure of the university. Evidence of this is construction of new buildings, renovation of old buildings, acquisitions near campus and at remote sites, added parking spaces, and efforts to make a beautiful campus even more aesthetically attractive.

Business Office/Financial Aid Information Jayne Slow

The 2004-2005 school year will begin shortly, and we want to not only welcome all new students but welcome back returning students to Lindenwood. To help make school more affordable, Lindenwood has once again frozen tuition and the cost of room and board. Also, to help students afford their education, Lindenwood offers a variety of loan options and payment methods.

There are two types of loans available to students:

- Parent Plus Loans – Credit-based loans that parents may apply for.
- Alternative Loans – Loans that offer students additional funds. These loans are not federally guaranteed. They are credit based and may require a co-signer.

There are two ways in which bills can be paid by students:

- Students/parents may make payments to Lindenwood University (there is a fee).
- Students/parents may request Lindenwood University to direct debit their checking account. For this type of payment, there is no fee.

Lindenwood wants to work with students to make sure that no one has to give up on affording an education. If you have not yet set up a loan or other financial aid for the 2004-2005 school year, please contact the financial aid office at (636) 949-4923. If you would like to set up a payment plan for the 2004-2005 school year, please contact the business office at (636) 949-4967.

Men and Women's Tennis: Game, Set, Match.

At the conclusion of the season, LU men's team finished with an impressive record of 16-4. The women's team finished the season with a good record. Coach Murphy stated, "I was proud of the way both teams played, but at the same time, I am excited about the future at Lindenwood." The men's team this year was led by Medhi Bensouda, the team captain. Helping Bensouda out in the lineup was Pedro Lunardelli and Neal Hopson. "The men were very deep this year, from one through six. This was a strong team that was good throughout the lineup," stated Murphy. The men defeated NCAA Division I and II teams such as SIU-Edwardsville, Universities of Sioux Falls, Wisconsin-Whitewater, and Western Kentucky. The schedule for next year will only get tougher, as they face University of Missouri-Kansas City and Rockhurst on the court. Murphy also expects a superior freshmen class next year to improve the already formidable foundation.

The women's team has a new coach, Brad Heinemann, for the upcoming season. The women are also looking to next year as a chance to prove themselves. The Lady Lions are in the midst of a crucial recruiting efforts to help returning players such as Emily Barks and Lindsay Weiss. "I can't wait for next season," Coach Murphy said. "My goal is to surprise a few people with our brand of exhilarating tennis next spring." Congratulations to all the players involved in the tennis teams, and have a nice summer, tuning your skills for next spring.

Lion's Baseball

Tom Bruce

The Lions finished the season at 35 wins and 29 losses, after battling injuries all season with key players such as Eric Hollinger and John Ehlers, two awesome right-handed pitchers who suffered from tendonitis. Head coach Brian Behrens is pleased with the team's consistency as it is only his first year coaching the Lions. He brought in many recruits; David Arnold proving to be the most promising as he is arguably the best hitter on the team. Another great hitter who had an excellent season is junior center fielder Mike Kraatz. The team has a deep bench and a solid bullpen. Next year's recruits are predicted to make the team even stronger.

IN LU'S ARTS

If you are looking for a way to show your creative side and obtain a degree in the process, then LU is the place to be. Our fine and performing arts department is growing at a rapid pace, providing a better atmosphere for students to flourish. Whether your preference is for drawing, singing, computer animation, acting, fashion, or writing, there is room for you!

The art department offers three bachelor's programs. Students may obtain a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Studio Art. Emphasis can be in general studio arts, multi-media animation, or multi-media graphic and computer art. BFA students must showcase their work in an exhibition during their final semester. Shows are hung in Harmon Hall and the LUCC. There have been wonderful exhibitions over the years. These events draw in crowds of supporters, including faculty, fellow students, family, and friends.

There is also a Bachelor of Arts in Studio Art, which requires somewhat fewer hours than the fine arts degree. A BA in Art History is also offered at LU. Both the BA and BFA may include internships or field study.

An annual juried show is held in the Lindenwood University Cultural Center (LUCC), which provides another opportunity for art students to put their work out for the public to see, and it also gives students a taste of a little friendly competition.

If charcoal or oil is not for you, then perhaps you could try your hand at designing. The fashion design program is available for not only design students, but theater, art, and management students, or any students interested in learning more about fashion design.

The Fashion Club offers additional help and support for students outside of class. These students put together a terrific fashion show every year. Student designs are worn by models and showcased for audiences from the LU community and the general public.

If you still haven't found anything that peaks your interest, don't give up. LU's music department has room for you. Majors are required to participate in large group ensembles, but non-music majors are also encouraged to be a part of the musical community. There are a number of LU bands and choirs. Every semester, beautiful sounds can be heard coming out of the LUCC, when the music department performs one of its many concerts.

Casting call for all aspiring actors or directors; LU's theater department wants you. A theater major can emphasize any number of areas, including acting, directing, and designing. Our theater department is amazing. If you don't believe me, just check out one of the mainstage shows that are performed several times a year, and there is an annual showing of The Christmas Carol. The Harmon Downstage is the place to see theater students' hard work pay off. Student directors and actors perform skits and one-acts that are amazing.

Still not finding anything that suits you? There is still another option for you to choose. Try taking a few of our writing courses, or being a reporter for our very own Pride. The English department offers a writing major for the poet or author at heart. You will learn to write in a variety of different genres. Skills are improved upon, and advice is given on marketing your work.

Is anyone out there looking to make a move on the dance floor? Well, then the dance department is for you! Don't let just anyone tell you about the program. Come to the Dance Program Orientation and hear about it from the professors. Everyone interested is welcome to attend on August 27 in Harmon 209 at 2:30 p.m. See you there!

If you are wanting to show-off your talents in any one of these areas don't hesitate to take a class and see if the arts are right for you. Contact one of the staff or your faculty advisor for more information.

Entertainment At Its Greatest!

Matt Klingler

If you've ever been so much as slightly interested in theatre, you have every reason to attend a show at LU. The repertoire at our school includes such shows as Equus, Man of La Mancha, Moon Over Buffalo, Macbeth, The Good Doctor, The Illusion, Night of the Iguana, Chicago, Footloose, our seasonal A Christmas Carol, and our most recent production, All My Sons. The list goes on.

Each show was done to perfection, and had talent on all sides of the spectrum, ranging from the set design to the director behind it all. All My Sons sticks out in everyone's memories because of its breathtaking plot and its recent life on the Mainstage.

The plot was enough to draw tears, but in order to effectively bring out a plot, a good cast of actors and actresses is needed. This duty was fulfilled by a very talented ensemble of actors. The acting was marvelously accomplished by Lindenwood talents, including actors Jonathan Elkins, Dustin Massie, DeAnna Jarrel, Brooke Soptic, and many more. Every line of dialogue was given careful thought and analysis. The line deliveries were genuine, along with character reactions and relationships. Members of the audience felt as if they were sitting in the family-of-the-play's backyard.

Of course, what is a play without a talented director to put the drama in motion? Professor of Theatre, Larry Quiggins, did an amazing job of bringing the script to life, adding perfect pacing, tear-jerking moments, and a climax to the story that caught everyone by surprise. No audience member left the theater without sobbing at least once! The play was magnificent, and there will be many more like it in the future. For more information on the theatre department, contact Ted Gregory at (636)-949-4966.

Dancing and Entrancing

Matt Klingler

As expected, the dance department delivered another concert worth celebrating! You can never lose when putting your money on the Department of Dance at LU! The dancers are beautifully graceful, the dances are deep and interesting, and the professors have a great passion for the art and expression of dance.

Dance Alive IX was a huge hit! On the nights of April 29, 30, May 1, and the afternoon of May 2, Dance Alive IX hit the stage in the Hyland Performance Arena. Audiences wandered into a world of fantasy, realism, and magic when they took their seats before the show.

The show skyrocketed right from the beginning with a foot-thumping ballet piece set to techno music. As the show progressed, viewers witnessed flowing dancers, stories of the trials of human beings, an exciting piece by the Lionettes, two highly eye-popping tap pieces, three comical modern pieces, a superb variety of heart-pounding interpretational pieces, and a Rockette-style kick-line dance. Laughter and tears both came out during the show. You should have been there to experience it with everyone else. For more information on the dance department, contact Rob Scoggins at (636)-949-4638.

Something to Sing About

DeAnna Jarrell

It's no secret that Lindenwood's fine and performing arts department is one of the best in the region, but few people realize that the vocal music division at LU is also one of the most impressive departments on campus. This year's choral concert proved that, once again, LU music students have plenty to sing about.

Directed by vocal music expert Jim Henry, and accompanied by Donna Pyron, the Lindenwood Chorus performed an outstanding final concert. The chorus, made up of students from every undergraduate and graduate level, presented a variety of music, including an intricate German chorale, a Hebrew love song, an American musical theatre classic, and others. The men were featured in an eight part, lively and funny sailor song, and the women performed a flawless rendition of a simple but lovely prayer.

The choir performance followed a recital of vocal soloists. Music majors have the option to present their best work of the semester in the spring concert. But what is most impressive about the night is that the choir is made up of students from nearly every academic department. One of the great things about the ensemble is that any student may register for the class, regardless of experience or talent. Despite the motley crew of majors, the choir is one of the best trained, and well-balanced groups Lindenwood has ever entertained. Consider joining the choir next Fall. The experience of creating music with such an amazing group is unlike any other, and everyone is welcome.

Fashion Show

Kim Voss

Friday evening, May 7th, if you were not at the Student Designer's Fashion Show, then you missed an exciting evening of entertainment. Twenty-eight Lindenwood students (nine of which are graduating seniors) had designs entered in the competition. At the end of the show, students were recognized for their designs. A certificate of honor was presented to our student designers by Marsha Parker, the Dean of Fine and Performing Arts and Communications.

This year's show included designs in swimwear, children's wear, evening wear, casual wear, and many other themed collections. One of the exciting events this year was the opportunity for fashion students to design some extremely creative garments for the Air France competition, one of the most prestigious design competitions in the world. Many students' designs were influenced by their favorite designers such as Christian Lacroix, Helmut Lung, and Donna Karen. The swimwear, casualwear, eveningwear, and all the collections represented our LU students' abilities to create well thought-out designs. There are many talented designers at Lindenwood University, and they represented themselves exceptionally well at this year's fashion show. If you missed this year's show, be sure to check out next year's show. This annual event is sure to entertain!

J-TERM TRIP 2005

C O S T A R I C A

Learning is Fun at LU

Sarah Stehlin

As you previously read in the February 2004 edition of the Pride, seven students traveled to Guatemala for the foreign culture course during the earlier J-Term session. They returned with improved Spanish speaking and composition skills, and hours of stories to tell. They even received credit for traveling!

Another culture course of this sort will be offered in January 2005. This time students will be traveling to Costa Rica for two weeks, and will have the opportunity to be immersed in the language and culture. (The first week will be spent in Heredia. The second week will be spent in Sámara on the Pacific Ocean.)

Planned activities include visits to historical buildings, museums, and coffee plantations. Students will also participate in the daily activities of Heredia and Sámara. The day long excursions include a trip to San José, and exploration of the Páos and Arenal Volcanoes and the Monteverde Rain Forest.

Students will daily attend four hours of small group instruction with certified professors. Interested students need no previous language experience because PLFM, the language school, accommodates all levels of experience. This will allow each student to learn at his or her own pace and learn as much as desired.

Informational meetings will be held in September, so check the Pride for updated information, or contact Professor of Spanish and French, Nancy Coutier-Davis at ext. 4183 if you have any specific questions. Don't miss this great opportunity to travel and earn college credit.

INTERNATIONAL SPOTLIGHT

This Fall Make Friends from all over the World

Jessica Standefer

The International Club is an organization on campus for anyone interested in getting to know students from around the globe. It features many exciting activities such as the MLK observation and the popular International Festival. Recently, Luis Martinez was elected as International Club President for this upcoming fall semester. Friday, April 30, the International Festival was held in The Connection, which is downstairs in The Spellmann Center. The Club set up at 5:00 p.m. with an array of international foods and a program full of singing, poetry readings, dancing, and students in costume representing their cultural background. If you have any questions concerning activities or events in the fall, or if you're interested in joining, please contact Sue Tretter by email at stretter@lindenwood.edu.

PHILOSOPHY in FILM

All films start at 2:30p.m. in S3020.

Aug 31 Modern Times (Charles Chaplin)

Man vs. Machine! Chaplin's Little Tramp plays an assembly line worker fighting back against the mind-numbing monotony and timeclock rigidity of industrialism.

Sept 7 Lord of the Flies (Peter Brook)

From William Golding's novel, the story of 30 English schoolboys stranded on an uncharted island are left to form their own utopia. Their perfect world quickly becomes a battle of jocks vs. nerds with the future of civilization in the balance.

Sept 14 A Clockwork Orange (Stanley Kubrick)

The film takes aim at the ineffective and inhumane methods often devised by governments to stem criminal behavior, asking what sacrifices we're willing to make to live in relative security. Then there's the trickier question of whether the removal of free will destroys an individual's essential humanity. Does the State have the right to do this, to "kill the criminal reflex"? Would execution be a preferable fate? Finally, Kubrick illustrates the fickle nature of public opinion. Those that laud the government's methods one day revile them the next.-- James Berardinelli

Sept 21 Ghost in the Shell (Mamoru Oshii)

Based on the Manga by Masamune Shirow, and winner of "Best Theatrical Film" and "Best Director" in 1997's World Animation Celebration Awards, this film presents a world caught in the grip of information overload, where artificial intelligence is more than the real thing, and only the Ghost separates man from machine.

Sept 28 Umberto D (Vittorio De Sica)

Umberto is upright, neat, exact, and the cut of his clothes shows that he was once respectable. Now he is a retired civil servant on a fixed income that is not enough to support him, not even in his simple furnished room, not even if he skips meals. He and his dog are faced with eviction by a greedy landlady who would rather rent his room by the afternoon to shame-faced couples.--Roger Ebert

Oct 5 Ikiru (Akira Kurosawa)

The old man knows he is dying of cancer. In a bar, he tells a stranger he has money to spend on a "really good time," but doesn't know how to spend it...It is not so bad that he must die. What is worse is that he has never lived.--Roger Ebert

Oct 12 Cries and Whispers (Ingmar Bergman)

Karen and Maria come to the aid of their dying sister, Agnes, but jealousy, manipulation, and selfishness come before empathy. A profound meditation on death and the meaning of life.

Oct 19 Harvey (Henry Koster)

Jimmy Stewart, in his favorite and one of his best roles, plays Elwood P. Dowd, a harmless man who likes to hang out with his friend Harvey. Harvey, we are told, is a six-foot three-and-a-half-inch tall pooka. When his family has enough of Harvey they have Elwood committed. Dowd explains his situation to his doctor: "I wrestled with reality for 35 years, and I am happy to say I won out over it."

Oct 26 The Ruling Class (Peter Medak)

Peter O'Toole plays Jack, the new Earl of Gurney. Jack thinks he is God. His psychiatrist thinks Jack will be cured by meeting another maniac who thinks he is God. It works. Jack no longer thinks he is God, he now believes himself to be Jack the Ripper. As the Ripper he finds he fits beautifully into the House of Lords, whereas the God of love had no place there whatsoever.

Nov 2 Ordet (Carl Dreyer)

A farmer's family is torn apart by faith, sanctity, and love—one child believes he is Jesus Christ, a second proclaims himself agnostic, and the third falls in love with a fundamentalist's daughter.

Nov 9 Diary of a Country Priest (Robert Bresson)

Based on the novel by Georges Bernanos, the story of a young priest, who upon arrival at his first parish, finds himself alienated from his flock after witnessing an influential count philandering with his daughter's governess. Plagued with health problems that lead to gossip about him being a drunkard, and finding little solace in the advice of his well-meaning mentor, the young man does his best to shepherd the townsfolk even as their disinterest and malice cause him a crisis of faith.

Nov 16 Elmer Gantry (Richard Brooks)

Sinclair Lewis' novel about a shady salesman, Elmer Gantry, who finds his calling as a revivalist preacher. This film is a biting satire on hypocrisy as we see religion become business.

Nov 23 Lilies of the Field (Ralph Nelson)

Sidney Poitier's Academy Award winning performance as Homer Smith, an unemployed handyman living out of his car, who meets a group of nuns when his car breaks down. The nuns believe he has been sent by God to build their chapel, but Homer has other plans.

Trailblazing the Boone Challenge Semester

Sue Tretter

"I feel like I've never seen anything, like I've never lived before," mused pioneering student Jeremy Harmon as he gazed across the Van Bibber property, his cabin on the banks of a stocked pond, and the combine gracefully sweeping up the acres of wheat. The Introduction to American Studies class had just come in from the field where, under the tutelage of student Eric Shoemaker, they collected their wheat with a sickle, separated the grains from the shaft, and ground the grains with stones into flour, the way I was done in Boone's day. Once all the grain is ground into flour, student Jennifer Manning is going to teach the class to make sorghum bread in the stone oven in the summer kitchen. In fact, the day before, the class planted the sorghum crop for next year, which will be boiled down to syrup during Pioneer Days in the fall. Meanwhile, Professor Jennifer Van Houten and Jennifer Manning collecting cherries for a pie.

Jennifer Manning waiting for her bread to bake in the outdoor kitchen.

Sue Tretter delivers her lecture on Creve Coeur's theory of "What is an American," Jefferson's ideas of an agrarian democracy, and Emerson's philosophy of people's necessary connection to nature.

Boone Challenge students have the opportunity not only for "book learning" but also practical knowledge. Graduate student Jennifer Van Houten has been cataloguing, moving, and preserving the Price-Loyals collection handed down from Daniel Boone's son Jesse Boone and his progeny. Under Joe Harl's supervision, students are digging up history in his Archeology class, and through Professor Gretta Maxheimer, students learn the proper way to handle, interpret, and present artifacts. Student Frederick Manning is living the pioneer life with his wife Jennifer in a log cabin, and Eric Shoemaker has involved his family: his wife Carole helped with the Boone Family reunion, and his son Jesse (only 15 years old) has been splitting rails, helping to build the chicken coop (in fact, he is donating his chickens to the Boone Campus), and teaching the class what is it like for a teenager to grow up on a farm. Student Linda Isensee is usually found in the store, ready to give tours, but in her off time, she bakes delicious banana bread and chocolate chip cookies.

Everyone has something to offer. In fact, Jeremy Harmon, a former Lindenwood Lion quarterback, is going to teach the history, rules, and finer points of football so we can play a game of touch football on the vast expanse of the Boone property after we finish our dinner of fried fish (which Dean Maryann Townsend has agreed to teach us to catch) or perhaps fresh chicken and dumplings (yes, we will learn to kill, pluck, and cut up a chicken, and Dr. Tretter will make the chicken and dumplings). Have I whetted your appetite? If so, call C. W. Stewart at (636) 949-4939 or Dr. Tretter at (636) 949-4872 for information on how to join our fall Challenge Semester.

Although this sounds like paradise, all is not bliss, but site manager Pam Jensen, armed with her walkie-talkie, is ever present to solve problems, to arrange group tours, and to add each student's wants and needs to her shopping list.

HOW TO ## Get Involved

Eric Click

Freshman should try to experience as many different activities as possible. Students should try to participate in any event or organization that seems interesting. This method is a great way to meet people and figure out what you like. Key activities are Welcome Week, Homecoming, Spring Fling and Spring Dance. Making the transition to university life can be overwhelming. The key to a successful freshman year is learning how to balance academics and social activities. Check out welcome week. It is the perfect opportunity to get involved right away.

AMERICAN HUMANICS

Leadership Experience

Lindenwood University's American Humanics Student Association prides itself on many traditions. However, our favorite tradition is the "Leadership Experience" that takes place every year before school begins. Last year, about 75 students participated in the four-day 1 credit hour event that was held at the S-Bar-F Scout Ranch near Farmington, Missouri.

The "Leadership Experience" allows continuing students, as well as incoming freshman, the opportunity to participate in an outdoor leadership getaway. This year, students will participate in team-building activities, personal growth opportunities, a variety of outdoor activities, and will hear guest speakers from the public, private, and nonprofit sector of our economy speaking on leadership. We also squeeze in a karaoke night and some free time to meet new friends.

The most rewarding part of the Leadership experience is the opportunity to find one's hidden strengths and putting those strengths to use as part of a team. This is something that our student association strives to achieve through each activity offered at the "Experience". This year's experience will be held August 17-20, 2004 (classes begin on Monday August 23!)

making History Present tense

Jessica Standefer

The History Club is an organization for anyone interested in history as a major or anyone who loves the subject. It provides many services to the university that deal with our heritage and its preservation. In fact, the members recently raised funds for acid free photo boxes. The boxes are an important addition to Lindenwood's History Department and will preserve Lindenwood archive memorabilia such as antique prom dresses and letter sweaters. Also, the new club President is Jenni Ream, Vice President is Keatie Dierke, and Secretary-Treasurer is Jason Roddick. The History Club also shows a historical video the second Monday of every month. If you have any questions about upcoming events or about joining, please contact Mike Whaley at mwhaley@lindenwood.edu.
