Building Fund Campaign Announced

"Within three years, we want to have our annual support basis at $2 million annually. We are on target now and want to address the college's serious problem of building renovation," said Edward D. Watkins, vice-president for institutional development.

In announcing Lindenwood's current building fund campaign, Watkins said the college is looking for major contributors - minimum donations of $10,000 or more - to secure $3 million for badly-needed building restoration and repair.

As part of the college's Renaissance Campaign to secure $10 million in pledges and contributions, the $3 million has been broken down into historic eras in the college's history - $500,000 for Sibley Hall, $1.5 million for buildings constructed during the administration of John L. Roemer, $500,000 for buildings erected during the presidency of Franc L. McCluer and $500,000 for new facilities as part of the Renaissance Campaign and the administration of James I. Spainhower.

"We are doing something most colleges and universities don't do," Watkins said, "for we are trying to preserve our heritage."

Buildings and residence halls to be addressed include Sibley, Ayres, Butler, Niccolls, Roemer, Irwin, Butler Library, the Memorial Arts Building, Cobbs, McCluer, Parker and Young halls.

Roofing repairs constitute much of the total sought while remaining funding will go to window repair, air conditioning, electrical work, heating and plumbing renovation and structural maintenance.

"Our buildings, as much a part of our heritage as our academics, need constant care and renovation," Watkins said. "Today, we must all envision ourselves as responsible for being the modern day patrons of the Lindenwood Renaissance. But, a true Renaissance will not happen at Lindenwood until we complete our $10 million goal," he added.

The $3 million sought for building repairs and renovations is in addition to the college's current fund-raising drive to generate $800,000 each fiscal year for operating expenses, both of which total

$100,000 Goal Set

Following last year's highly successful Alumni Phone-a-Thon, Lindenwood College's Development and Alumni Activities offices have scheduled a two-phase phone-a-thon for 1985.

The first phase will be held February 15 through March 13 and will be concentrated on alumni in southern states. Volunteers consisting of alumni, faculty and staff members hope to contact 2,500 alumni during the four-week drive.

After a one-month "rest" for volunteers, the second phase of the fund-raising endeavor will be conducted April 23 through May 30, concentrated on alumni in northern states.

AT&T 'Reaches Out' with LCIE's Touch

Nearly 9,000 employees of American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T) Information Systems will be eligible during the next two years for undergraduate or graduate education at the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE) through a unique program jointly approved by the two organizations.

Under terms of the program, the LCIE will offer individualized instruction that is tailored to meet specific needs of AT&T Information Systems employees in the metropolitan St. Louis area. The college will provide on-site instruction at several AT&T sites as well as at LCIE facilities in Clayton and west St. Louis County in addition to Lindenwood's main campus in St. Charles.

According to Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of the Lindenwood Evening College / LCIE and one of the organizers of the program, an estimated 400 AT&T Information Systems employees are expected to take part in the program during the next two years.

The LCIE will offer a bachelor of science degree in business administration at the undergraduate level and the Master's of Business Administration degree at the graduate level.

'RABBITS, KEEP OUT!' — After learning rabbits were eating the tomato garden of President James I. Spainhower, preschoolers at the college's Campus Lab School produced a book with some suggestions for the president and his green thumb. Ideas ranged from planting cherries rather than tomatoes and hanging an inflatable rabbit in the garden to "not planting tomatoes at all," the suggestion submitted by most students which sources say Spainhower is considering next season. Shown with the president and their book are, from left, Amy Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Mills of St. Peters; Jessica Schurter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Schurter of St. Peters; and Jeff Marietta, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marietta of St. Charles.

Lindenwood College has revamped its adult education programs to provide greater services and opportunities for adults in the metro St. Louis area. Details are on page 5.

Major gifts of $25,000 or more from the estate of Miss Aimee Becker, a 1908 alumna; the May Stores Foundation; the Monsanto Fund; the Presbyterian Church, USA - Synods of Mid-America; Southwestern Bell Corp.; and Mr. and Mrs. Willard J. Walker of Springdale, AR, have enabled Lindenwood College to complete its most successful fund-raising drive in history. For a 14-month tabulation of all donors, see page 6.

Nominees are sought for the 1985 Alumni Merit Awards, an annual presentation of the college's Alumni Council to outstanding individuals. See page 8.

And, as a means of providing greater news to and about alumni, this issue's "Class Notes" section has been expanded to provide two pages of information about Lindenwood College alumni. See page 9.

Address Correction Requested

president's message

by JAMES I. SPAINHOWER

We have made something new out of something old at Lindenwood!

How many of you alums remember the president's table? I am told that it was once the custom for students to alternate turns eating with the president in the dining hall. Many alumnae have expressed their appreciation for that opportunity because it allowed them to get to know the president of the college on a one-to-one basis.

The more I thought about that tradition, the more wonderful it seemed. But, I had difficulty in visualizing how the tradition could be restored, given our cafeteria-style of serving and the staggered schedules upon which students now eat. Our academic dean, Dr. James Hood, came up with an idea on how to revive the tradition. He suggested I invite 10-15 students to eat with me at lunch once a week, and by the end of the year, every student could have his or her turn at the president's table. This fall we resurrected the tradition with the "Legacy Luncheons" in our new "Legacy Room." The Legacy Room is located in Ayres Cafeteria and its walls feature the pictures of former presidents of Lindenwood, former board members and others who have figured prominently in the grand history of the college.

The response from the students has been extremely positive and I am enjoying the opportunity of getting to know Lindenwood students personally.

It occurs to me that there is another area in which Lindenwood can make something new out of something old. I am referring to the old buildings on our campus — buildings that have meant so much to so many for so long a time. We need to take these historic buildings, many of them in need of dire repair, and make them appropriate for the needs of Lindenwood today.

As I walk around this campus, beneath a canopy of leaves and limbs which grew from seedlings planted by our college's ancestors, I am struck with a reverence for the insight of our forebearers. What vision and good taste had those who governed our college in years past!

This fall, I was privileged to meet with one of those who gave so much to the college in years past, Mr. John Black of Corona Del Mar, CA. Black served as member of our board of directors for many years, and for several of those years, was its chairman. It is because of the insistence on quality by people like Black that we have such fine buildings on our campus today.

Unfortunately, some of the buildings erected at the turn of the century, when John Roemer served as president of Lindenwood and Col. and Mrs. Charles G. Butler were the college's benefactors, are not in such good condition. As I walk by Sibley Hall, a building of stately grandeur with magnificent pillars on its inviting porch, I can't help but be concerned about the building's future. Although considerable renovation on Sibley was completed a few years ago, it houses an electrical system which needs rewiring. We had to cease utilizing Sibley as a residence hall because the electrical circuits are unable to adapt to today's student needs. Hi-fi stereo systems, hair dryers, radios and other gadgets that are a part of modern life, are too much for the old wires in Sibley.

Located next to Sibley is Ayres Hall, originally constructed at the turn of the century and re-named Jubilee Hall in honor of the college's 75th anniversary. I am sad because Ayres is closed. The building remains structurally sound, but the interior must be renovated extensively before it can be used as a residence hall.

Adjacent to Ayres is Butler Hall, a building constructed in 1914 and sadly, in worse repair than Ayres. Although we are still using Butler, it requires a new roof and renovation on all three interior floors.

The remaining buildings constructed during the Roemer years: Roemer Hall, the Margaret Leggat Butler Memorial Library, Niccolls Hall and Irwin Hall are all in sound structural condition, but each needs extensive renovation. In total, we estimate that over $3 million will be needed in order to restore these buildings to first-class condition, thereby preserving our legacy from the past.

When I look at the buildings constructed during the years of Franc McCluer, I find some fine buildings that are basically in good condition and do not require much renovation. McCluer Hall is a beautiful residence hall and the Howard Young Science Building continues to serve the needs of our science department as

We're Looking for Another Col. James G. Butler

"We need this generation's Col. Butler—a person of vision would like the satisfaction of having a major influence upon our Renaissance Campaign..."

James I. Spainhower
President

Col. James Gay Butler, a St. Louis industrialist, served on the college's board of directors and is one of the greatest benefactors of Lindenwood College.

During the 1930s and 1940s, Lindenwood College was able to build what many referred to as the "Wellesley of the West" primarily through the generosity of Col. James G. and Margaret Butler. The gifts from the Butler family totaled nearly $4 million, a sum which is equivalent to more than $25 million in today's economy.

During the Butlers' lifetime, Ayres, Butler and Niccolls halls were built. Funds from the interest from the Butler estate led to the construction of Roemer and Irwin halls, Butler Memorial Library, the Gables and Eastlick Residence.

We needed Col. James G. and Margaret Butler then. Certainly, we could use them now.

Since we started looking for another Col. Butler, we have raised more than $1 million and concluded the college's first successful fund drive in its 158-year history. In addition to increasing annual alumni giving from five to 25 percent this year, Lindenwood has increased all levels of its support - from faculty and staff to the board of directors and overseers, the St. Charles area community, the metropolitan area and corporations and foundations.

But, we still have much to do - and we need to find new sources of support to do it. We're determined to keep a balanced budget and not to shift funds from our academic and student scholarship programs to special projects, such as badly-needed building renovations and for the expansion of new facilities.

We need this generation's Col. Butler - a person of vision who would like the satisfaction of having a major influence upon our Renaissance Campaign and upon the future development of this historic college as well as to the generations of students who will graduate to serve a society that needs them.

Are you that kind of person - a man or woman willing to make a major and significant investment in Lindenwood College? If so, please call or visit our beautiful and historic campus.

Funds Sought for KCLC Power Boost

Nearly $9,000 in cash and contributions were raised this fall for Lindenwood's community radio station, KCLC, and its proposed power increase.

Funding from the one-week campaign will be used to increase power of the 1,500-watt station to 25,740 watts, a proposal approved recently by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Money will be earmarked for the purchase of more modern station equipment, for operating expenses and for the expansion of broadcast facilities, said James A. Wilson, KCLC general manager and a member of the Communications Dept. faculty.

Last fall's fund-raising drive was the second of five scheduled during an 18-month period. The first, held last spring, generated nearly $12,000 in cash and contributions for the radio station.

Installation of new equipment and facilities to boost KCLC's signal to 25,740 watts must be completed by August, 1985, according to the FCC approval. More than $100,000 will be needed for new equipment such as an antenna, transmitter and transmission lines as well as installation costs, Wilson said.

The increase in power wattage for KCLC, 89.1 MHz on the FM dial, will mean the radio station can reach a much larger audience and have a greatly-improved signal for listeners in St. Charles and St. Louis counties.

To move closer to its funding goal, KCLC plans its third funding drive this spring.

Founded in 1969, KCLC is a community service of Lindenwood College and is the principal radio station in St. Charles County. It broadcasts educational, cultural and public service programs as well as Associated Press news, local sports events, Christian music and award-winning bluegrass and jazz music.

As one of Lindenwood College's key instructional tools, KCLC is operated primarily by students and volunteers, reaching an estimated audience of nearly 50,000 listeners in Missouri and Illinois.

Alumni and supporters of the college who want to aid KCLC or find out more about the radio station should contact Wilson at (314) 946-6912, extension #262. All contributions to the station are tax-deductible.

KCLC BROADCAST REHEARSAL — Jim Wilson, KCLC general manager, supervises communications students Wilma Henrichsen, left, and Stacy Prell, seated, in a broadcast rehearsal for the station's fund-raising drive held this fall. Funding from the tax-deductible contributions raised during the six-day drive totaled nearly $10,000, and will be used to increase the power of the 1,500-watt station to 25,740 watts, a proposal approved recently by the Federal Communications Commission.

President Receives Appointment

President James I. Spainhower has been appointed by the Missouri Chamber of Commerce and the Missouri State Teachers Association to the newly-formed Missouri Education/Business Partners, a group designed to strengthen business and educational cooperation in Missouri.

According to Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond, "The purpose of the partnership program is to encourage leading Missouri educators and business officials to work together to improve the quality of life in our state by strengthening public education."

As the only college president in the state appointed to the group, Spainhower will represent the education factor on the partnership's board of directors.

"Schools and businesses can work together to meet mutual needs and reap mutual benefits," said organizers of the group. "American education needs American business to help educate our youth. American business needs graduates with quality educations and skills. Together, both communities can insure a higher quality of life for us all," they added.

Goals of the Missouri Education/Business Partners parallel closely with Lindenwood College's mission statement that places a key emphasis on the traditional liberal arts program and work-service orientation.

A former state representative and state treasurer in Missouri, Spainhower has a lengthy history in higher education and has served as Lindenwood's 18th president since January, 1983.

KCLC WEEK — St. Charles Mayor Melvin G. Wetter presents a proclamation to Leah Hollenberger, operations coordinator at KCLC, citing the radio station during its recent fund-raising event. The proclamation also recognized KCLC for its community service and for its proposed power increase which will further benefit residents of St. Charles and adjacent communities. Mayor Wetter also serves as a member of the college's board of overseers.

well as other academic disciplines. The Fine Arts Building, constructed during the administration of John Anthony Brown, is a beautiful structure that reminds us of the continuing concern for quality preserved by the leaders of this college in the 70s.

Our problem is that we don't have the money to do the things we ought to do with these buildings. The response of alumni and friends of the college to our annual giving appeals has been nothing short of miraculous. In one year, our gifts have more than tripled over what they averaged during the previous 10-year period. The number of alumni contributing to the college has jumped from less than five percent to almost 30 percent. These regular contributions to our annual giving program are the lifeblood of Lindenwood.

But, our needs are greater. We must have people with the ability to give $50,000, $100,000 or $1,000,000 step forward and help us with our building needs. In years past, people like Col. and Mrs. James Butler, Andrew Carnegie, H.B. Watson, for whom Watsons Lodge is named and others have given large gifts. In our generation, there are surely those who have been blessed with assets that they want to share with an institution such as Lindenwood which works with the youth of today.

I am convinced that in Lindenwood's constituency, there are those who are so grateful to God for how He has blessed their lives that they are willing to share those blessings with others through a major gift to Lindenwood. We will invest those gifts in something old and make something new, good, fine and upright for the literally hundreds of students who are receiving an excellent education beneath the linden trees today.

First Annual Report Is Published

For the first time in its history, Lindenwood College recently published The State of the College, a 24-page magazine that tells the current status of the institution.

Designed to be an annual publication, the magazine is being distributed to nearly 5,000 contributors who have pledged their support to the college, including key alumni.

Prepared by the college's Public Relations Office and printed by its Publications Dept., the magazine contains a message by President James I. Spainhower and reports from the President's Council, key administrators and faculty representatives.

Included is a report on the college's academic program from James F. Hood, Ph.D., acting Dean of Faculty; a summary of current adult education by Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of the Evening College and Lindenwood College for Individualized Education; a report by Jerry Rufkahr, vice-president of administration, on the college's physical plant, the stadium, conferences and meetings, capital improvements, security and auxiliary services; a report on alumni activities by Esther Fenning, coordinator of alumni activities; an update on the college's public relations, advertising and marketing programs by Randy L. Wallick, director of the Public Relations Office; a detailed report on student recruitment by Miriam King-Watts, dean of admissions; a report on student retention and the Consolidated Advising Program (CAP) by Randi Kapp, director of the college's CAP Center; and an update on college life and student activities by Allen M. Schwab, Ph.D., dean of the Office of College Life.

Much of the editorial contents for The State of the College were supplied by Edward D. Watkins, vice-president for institutional development, and Lawrence C. Elam, vice-president of finance.

Watkins' report included a review of the college's development and fund-raising activities, an update on the institution's 18-month fund-raising campaign launched in 1983 and the status of the current Lindenwood Renaissance Campaign that is designed to generate $10 million within the next three years.

Included in his report were graphs showing the $800,000 goal for 1984-85, and a comparison of giving of the last two 18-month periods. One of these graphs, which visually show the accomplishments and direction Lindenwood College has taken in recent months, are reproduced in this issue of the Linden Word.

Elam's report addressed the college's financial situation, including financial statements that show its percentages of revenue and expenditures, a comparative condensed balance sheet and a comparative statement of operations, as of June 30, 1984, that were approved by the auditing firm of Ernst & Ernst.

A limited number of copies of this magazine are available free of charge by writing to the Public Relations Office, in care of Lindenwood College, First Capitol and Kingshighway, St. Charles, MO 63301.

Carney Scholarship Is Formed

KMOX-AM Radio and CBS, Inc., have made a significant contribution to Lindenwood College for the establishment of a scholarship in memory of Jack Carney, one of the country's best-loved radio personalities.

The scholarship fund will provide tuition reduction to deserving students at both the undergraduate and graduate levels who want to study communications at Lindenwood.

Carney, 52, whose program was aired weekday mornings on KMOX-AM in St. Louis, died November 27 of an apparent heart attack.

He frequently aided communications students and faculty at the college as well as its community radio station, KCLC-FM. Carney recently donated nearly $10,000 in radio equipment and albums from his private collection to the campus station.

His radio career began in 1951 in Tucumcari, NM, and expanded to radio and television positions at leading stations in Atlanta, Boston, Dallas, Galveston, Milwaukee, New York City and San Francisco. He joined KMOX-AM in 1971, according to Robert F. Hyland, general manager of the station and regional vice-president of CBS, Inc., who announced details of the scholarship.

KMOX and CBS's contribution will be combined with other tax-deductible donations to establish a permanent scholarship fund in Carney's memory.

The funding is part of a $500,000 goal Lindenwood College expects to raise during fiscal 1985 as part of its Renaissance Campaign to secure $10 million in cash and contributions. The $500,000 is available for scholarship awards to deserving students to help offset the cost of higher education.

Last year, the college awarded nearly $554,000 in scholarships, consisting of about $124,000 from endowed sources and $430,000 in direct support that was generated from tuition donations, and other revenue.

This amount of scholarship awards represented one of the largest in the college's history and was a drastic increase from the $271,000 in scholarships that was awarded the previous fiscal year. Last year's record amount also was in addition to nearly $1.5 million Lindenwood provided in

College Revamps Adult Education

Adult education programs at Lindenwood College recently underwent a dramatic change. Once regarded as separate entities, the adult programs were combined and coordinated in order to serve students better.

According to Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of Lindenwood Evening College and the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE), the reorganization of the adult programs has prompted more student interest and gained national recognition.

In a recent publication of "The State of the College," Lindenwood's annual report for 1984, Taich cited that "one-quarter of all adult Americans intend to complete schooling beyond high school within the next two years," and that "58 million adults currently are enrolled in formal learning activities."

Because of increased interest in higher education by non-traditional students, Lindenwood College developed the first of its adult programs with the inception of its Evening College in 1972. The college comprises baccalaureate programs specifically designed for adults who are unable to participate in conventional day time programs.

In conjunction with the adult programs offered in Lindenwood's Evening College, Taich said that additional programs are needed to respond to requests by corporate executives for the need to retrain their employees on a periodical basis.

According to reports, U. S. companies invest more than $30 million annually on the education and development of its workforce. In order to meet growing corporate demands, Lindenwood introduced its Master's of Business Administration (MBA) program into its Evening College format.

In 1975, Lindenwood College introduced its LCIE program, thus providing another aspect in its adult educational programs. The LCIE recently received accreditation by the North Central Association as "an innovative model for adult programs of its kinds."

"In the last decade, we (Lindenwood College) have refined and expanded our adult oriented studies to include several baccalaureate and master level graduate programs," Taich said. Lindenwood currently provides year-round educational services at several sites beyond the St. Charles campus. These sites include Clayton, St. Louis-Mansion House, West St. Louis County at Westport, Manchester and St. Charles County at Wentzville. "LCIE has more master's programs than any other adult evening

"LCIE has more master's programs than any other adult evening college in the area." -Taich college in the area," Taich said.

The recent merger of Lindenwood's LCIE and Evening College programs offers many advantages. According to Taich, the joint venture helps to coordinate the college admissions department and helps contain admission costs, provides more availability of programs for students and offers more individualized programs.

"Combining the Evening College and LCIE programs make education individualized for each student according to their academic and personal needs," she added.

Lindenwood's Community 'Gifts'

As its gift to the St. Charles community, Lindenwood College presented its second Annual Christmas Walk, December 9 from 4-6 p.m.

The two-hour event attracted more than 500 persons and featured a variety of entertainment and festivities. The walk began at Roemer Hall, where guests were greeted by Lindenwood College President James I. Spainhower and student tour guides. After a brief walk to Butler Memorial Library, guests enjoyed the 10-ft. decorated Christmas tree, festive decorations and performances by the Niedner Handbell Choir of Immanuel Lutheran Church, St. Charles.

The walk continued with a visit to the Roemer Memorial Arts Building where performances by recorder artists Georgia O'Brien and Julie Switzel were featured.

Visits to campus residence halls were another featured attraction of this year's walk. Decorated by Lindenwood students, the three dormitories competed for a prize for the "most festive residence hall."

Two of the scheduled stops included Christmas carols performed by the Lindenwood Women's Ensemble, under the direction of Nancy Fleming, assistant professor of music.

The walk concluded at historic Sibley Hall where Christmas story-telling by Nancy Polette, assistant professor of education, was scheduled in Sibley Parlor. Adhering to tradition, the parlor featured a Victorian-decorated Christmas tree, toys and turn-of-the-century decorations. The parlor was designed and decorated for the holidays by John Wehmer, professor of art at Lindenwood. Gene Henderson, chairman of the Lindenwood College Education Dept., directed the Lindenwood Brass Quartet from the porch of Sibley Hall.

Visits with Santa Claus concluded this year's tour. Located in Sibley Chapel, Santa received visitors while parents participated in the free refreshments at the wassail bowl.

In addition to the walk itself, a "Christmas Shop" by Lindenwood art students also was featured in the Fine Arts Building on the campus. Sponsored by the Lindenwood Art Dept., original art, pottery, prints, stained glass and fine gifts were available for sale. Free refreshments also were offered.

The walk was held in conjunction with the matinee performance of "Peter Pan," and the Madrigal Dinners, both sponsored by the college's Performing Arts Dept.

"Peter Pan," directed by David Hoover, production stage manager at Lindenwood, starred Wes Morgenthaler in the title role. Morgenthaler, a native of St. Louis and junior at Lindenwood, is majoring in performing arts at the college.

Sets for "Peter Pan" were designed by Tom Owen with costumes created by Niki Juncker, assistant professor of theater.

The festive Madrigal Dinners, sponsored by Lindenwood College in conjunction with the Lindenwood Chamber Singers, were scheduled December 7-9 and 14-15. The annual event is held in the Memorial Arts Building on the college campus.

The dinners are designed as authentic recreations of Elizabethan feasts and feature traditional decorations, costumes and a gourmet meal with entertainment provided by the Chamber Singers. The program was comprised of musical selections by the Chamber Singers, entertainment by various wenchers, jesters and stewards and dancing. The Chamber Singers are directed by Fleming.

The annual event has become a tradition at Lindenwood. In addition to directing the Chamber Singers, Fleming compiled the Madrigal Dinner script and selected the group's music. Musical selections included in this year's performance consisted of traditional Christmas carols, madrigal pieces and arrangements in Latin and German.

Stick It On!

Want to cover that outdated "Mondale" or "Reagan-Bush" bumper sticker on your car with a contemporary one showing your support for Lindenwood College?

Then, get a "I Love Learning at Lindenwood College" bumper sticker free of charge from the college's Public Relations Office.

The 3x11½-inch bumper stickers are self-adhesive, removable and designed especially for today's plastic bumpers as well as chrome-plated ones.

Produced as a marketing, admissions and public relations tool, the bumper stickers contain black lettering and a red heart on a white background, suitable for most vehicle colors.

The bumper stickers, which normally sell for $1 each at the Lindenwood College Bookstore, are available for a limited time free of charge from the college.

Serving You

Board of Directors

(Editor's Note: As a part of increased communications by Lindenwood College, this issue of the LINDEN WORD continues its column, "Serving You," to acquaint readers with the outstanding individuals who comprise the college's board of directors and board of overseers. Board members will be selected at random and featured in upcoming issues. This issue features Robert J. Baer, president and chief operating officer of United Van Lines, Inc., and Peter N. Brown, president of Four Seasons Lakesites.)

Robert J. Baer, president and chief operating officer of United Van Lines, Inc., of Fenton, MO, is serving his second year as a member of the college's board of directors.

A lifelong resident of St. Louis, he has undergraduate and graduate degrees from Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville. Baer is an adjunct member of the faculties of Webster University and Maryville College in St. Louis, serving as a scheduled instructor of management.

Prior to joining United, he served as executive director of the Bi-State Development Agency in St. Louis where he was responsible for administration and management of the Regional Public Transit System, the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, a general aviation airport and other projects related to progress and economic development of the metropolitan St. Louis area.

Throughout his 19 years of public service, his accomplishments have focused on planning and implementing management programs designed to provide better service to both public and private sectors.

In addition to his board role at Lindenwood College, he serves as a director on the boards of a number of local and national organizations, including Mercantile Commerce Bank, the Thomas Dunn Memorials Adult Education Program and United Van Lines-Canada, Ltd., in Ontario, Canada.

He also is a board member, member of the executive committee and secretary of the Household Goods Carriers Bureau in Arlington, VA, and a director of the American Movers Conference, also headquartered in Arlington.

Board of Overseers

Peter N. Brown of Lake Ozark, MO, president of Four Seasons Lakesites, the parent development company of Four Seasons-USA, is a newly-elected member of the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers.

The 21-member board is an advisory body to the college's board of directors. Members, several of whom have voting rights on the board of directors, serve for three-year terms.

A native of Northbrook, IL, Brown is a 1967 graduate of the University of Denver with a degree in business administration. Listed in last year's edition of WHO'S WHO IN REAL ESTATE, he is a licensed real estate broker in Missouri and an independent fee appraiser.

He joined the Four Seasons-USA organization at the Lake of the Ozarks in 1970 and has held a variety of positions, including director of operations, director of real estate and president of Four Seasons Shores Realty. He was appointed to his present position with the firm in May, 1983.

Brown has been involved in a variety of civic and community activities in the Lake of the Ozarks area. General chairman of last year's Lake of the Ozarks Governor's Cup Hydroplane Race, he has served as a board member of the Lake Ozark Association, as secretary and a charter member of the Bagnell Dam Board of Realtors, as a member of the Fund-Raising Committee of the Lake of the Ozarks General Hospital and co-chairman of the Fund-Raising Committee for the School of the Osage Outdoor Track and Field project completed in 1983.

Married, Brown and his wife, Susan L., have three sons.

Students Benefit from Scholarships . . .

By RANDY L. WALLICK

"I just can't believe it," Tammy L. Edmondson of St. Charles said after learning that she was one of two Lindenwood students to each receive nearly $5,500 in academic scholarships and computers.

"It was only last night that my boyfriend and I were talking about finances, and I wondered how I was going to afford next semester's tuition and if I may have to drop out and take another part-time job," said the Lindenwood sophomore.

Edmondson along with Susan A. Eppers of Lake St. Louis each received an academic scholarship valued at up to $2,800 and an Eagle Spirit Portable Computer, valued at nearly $2,700, in a joint promotion involving the college, KYKY-FM Radio in St. Louis and ComputerLand of St. Louis.

Edmondson and Eppers, a graduate student, were selected as the top winners in the promotion that was open to students who wanted to continue or begin undergraduate or graduate studies in communications at Lindenwood.

To enter the joint promotion, students were asked to write briefly why they wanted to improve their skills, enhance their careers or better prepare themselves for tomorrow's world by obtaining a communications degree at the St. Charles-based liberal arts college.

The communications scholarships are named for well-known St. Louisian John Auble, former cohost of KSDK-TV's popular "Newsbeat" program and currently a columnist for the ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT and former announcer for KY98 Radio.

Each student also will receive the computer, furnished by ComputerLand of St. Louis in Maryland Heights in conjunction with B&W Distributing Co., Inc., of St. Louis.

Nearly 30 new and returning Lindenwood College students submitted essays and applications for the awards.

The joint promotion was arranged through the college's Public Relations and Admissions offices in cooperation with the participating sponsors. Entries were judged by Lindenwood's Communications Dept. faculty with the final selections determined by Auble.

The daughter of Shirley Lyons of St. Charles, Edmondson is a 1978 graduate of Ft. Zumwalt High School who transferred to Lindenwood this fall after two years at St. Louis Community College at Florissant Valley.

Eppers has an undergraduate degree in communications from the Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE).

The joint promotion was a first venture for the three contributing sponsors, and one of the first times Lindenwood College has teamed with private enterprise. The college as well as ComputerLand of St. Louis, B&W Distributors and KY98 Radio each said it was well received and a successful promotion.

According to Gary L. Hendren, vice-president of marketing for B&W Distributors and a supplier to ComputerLand of St. Louis, "We're honored to be a part of the John Auble Scholarship program. Our participation is attributed to our admiration of Lindenwood College's progressive philosophy of quality education, community involvement and the ability to recognize the individual needs of its students," he said.

and Eagle Computers

With a scream of happiness, Mrs. John Davenport of St. Peters acknowledged that she was the winner of a $2,700 Eagle computer during a drawing at the recent Lindenwood Collegefest, an open house for college-bound students, parents and the community.

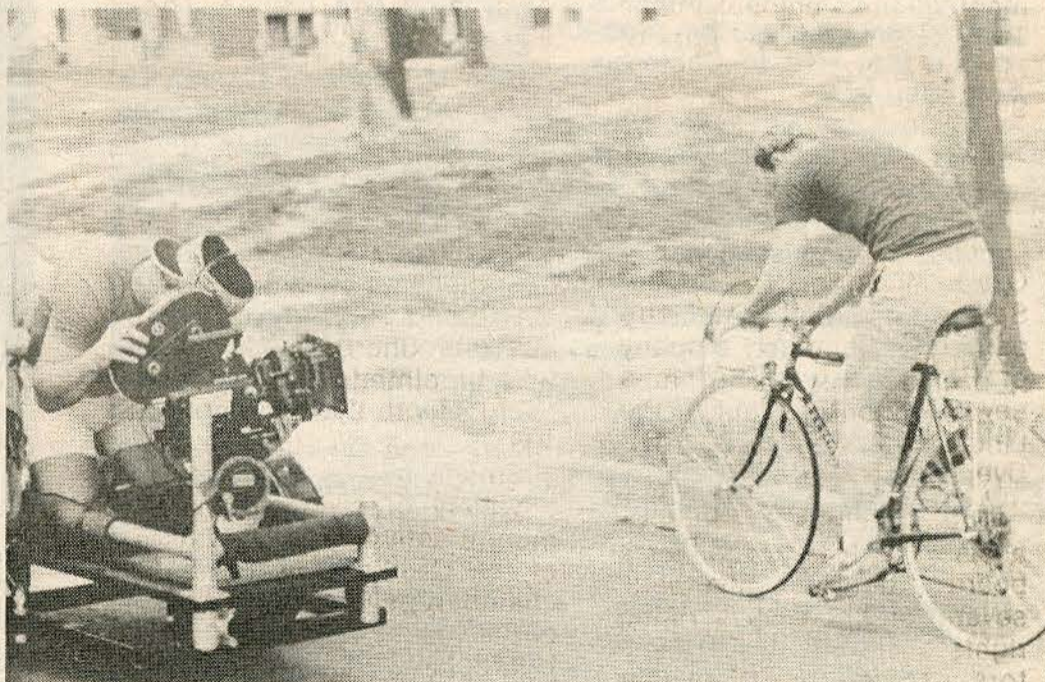

A prospective student who hopes to pursue an undergraduate degree in business administration, Mrs. Davenport won the computer after her card was selected by KYKY-FM Radio personalities Guy Phillips and Mike Wall from among several hundred entries.

The Eagle Spirit Portable Computer was furnished by ComputerLand of St. Louis in cooperation with B&W Distributors, Inc., of St. Louis.

Mrs. Davenport, who plans to use the $2,700 computer when she enrolls at Lindenwood in the spring, is employed as a sales representative for Witte Hardware in St. Louis.

Held in conjunction with St. Charles' Oktoberfest and the college's annual Alumni Reunion Weekend, the Collegefest attracted several hundred visitors to the St. Charles campus. The three-hour event on October 6 featured a variety of events and activities to provide benefits and information about an education at Lindenwood College.

Lights, Camera, Action!

LINDENWOOD GOES HOLLYWOOD — The college campus utilized last summer when a Warner Bros. film crew began work on a feature movie scheduled for release nationally in December. The film, "American Flyer," is based upon a script written by Steve Tesich, best known for his 1981 box-office smash, "Breaking Away." It is directed by John Badham, whose credits include such movies as "Blue Thunder" and "Saturday Night Fever." The feature film concerns the relationship between two brothers, one of whom is a Wisconsin physician and the other, a college student, who believes he may be dying from an hereditary disease. Similar to "Breaking Away," the film's plot centers upon the student's participation in a bicycle race and the circumstances surrounding the event. A self-contained unit of about 125 Warner Bros. personnel spent three weeks in St. Louis and St. Charles filming scenes for the "American Flyer." At left, a film crew prepares a motorcycle and a sidecar to shoot scenes of the bicycle race, shown at the right. This footage was taken on the campus and could be edited into the final version of the film to be released before Christmas. (Photos by Paul Binder, audio-visual coordinator at Lindenwood College)

Nominees Sought for Alumni Award

The Lindenwood College Alumni Activities Office is seeking nominations for the 1985 Alumni Merit Awards, an annual presentation of the college's Alumni Council.

At its recent fall meeting, the council voted to present two awards during the 1985 spring commencement - one for outstanding support of Lindenwood College and the other for outstanding professional achievement.

Both are scheduled to be presented during special ceremonies at the spring commencement, scheduled May 18 at the St. Charles campus.

Last year's recipient of the award was Gerald A. Gayer of Cupertino, CA, a 1979 graduate of Lindenwood with a master's degree in business administration. Gayer serves as Manager of Quality Assurance for Monsanto Electronics Materials Co. in Palo Alto, CA.

One of five alumni nominated for the prestigious award, Gayer was chosen for his service to Lindenwood College in recent years, primarily for volunteer service as a member and former secretary of the Lindenwood College Alumni Council from 1980-83. He also was credited with supporting the college, financially and through student recruiting efforts in California.

Previous recipients of the award have included Tanya Yeldell Mallory of Chesterfield, MO, a 1969 graduate and a member of the college's Board of Overseers; Virginia R. Trent of Ladue, MO, a 1952 graduate and director of public relations for the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology; Patricia Bailey of Washington, DC, a member of the Federal Trade Commission; and Diane Stanley of Washington, DC, an officer for the U. S. Information Agency.

Merit award nominations should be sent before February 1 to the Alumni Activities Office, Lindenwood College, First Capitol and Kingshighway, St. Charles, MO 63301. Persons submitting nominations should include their address, telephone number and year(s) of graduation or attendance, if applicable.

Further information on the awards can be obtained by contacting Esther Fenning at the Alumni Activities Office, 946-6912, extension #317.

President Travels Westward To Visit with Key Alumni

Lindenwood College alumni in San Diego, San Francisco and Los Angeles had the opportunity to meet James I. Spainhower during the president's first visit to California last fall.

His four-day visit to the West Coast provided him with the opportunity to meet a number of alumni and to promote the college's Renaissance Campaign.

Receptions in Spainhower's honor were hosted November 14 at the home of Martha Radford Delmon of Walnut Creek, CA, a 1962 alumna, and on November 15 at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Radley of Chula Vista, CA. The Radleys are the parents of Chrystal Chestner, a senior at Lindenwood majoring in business administration.

On November 17, Spainhower was the guest of the Southern California Alumni Club at a luncheon in Long Beach, CA, hosted by Miss Arminta Harness of Manhattan Beach, CA, a 1949 alumna.

During the California trip, the president also had the chance to visit Mr. and Mrs. John M. Black of Corona Del Mar, CA. Black is a life member and former chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors.

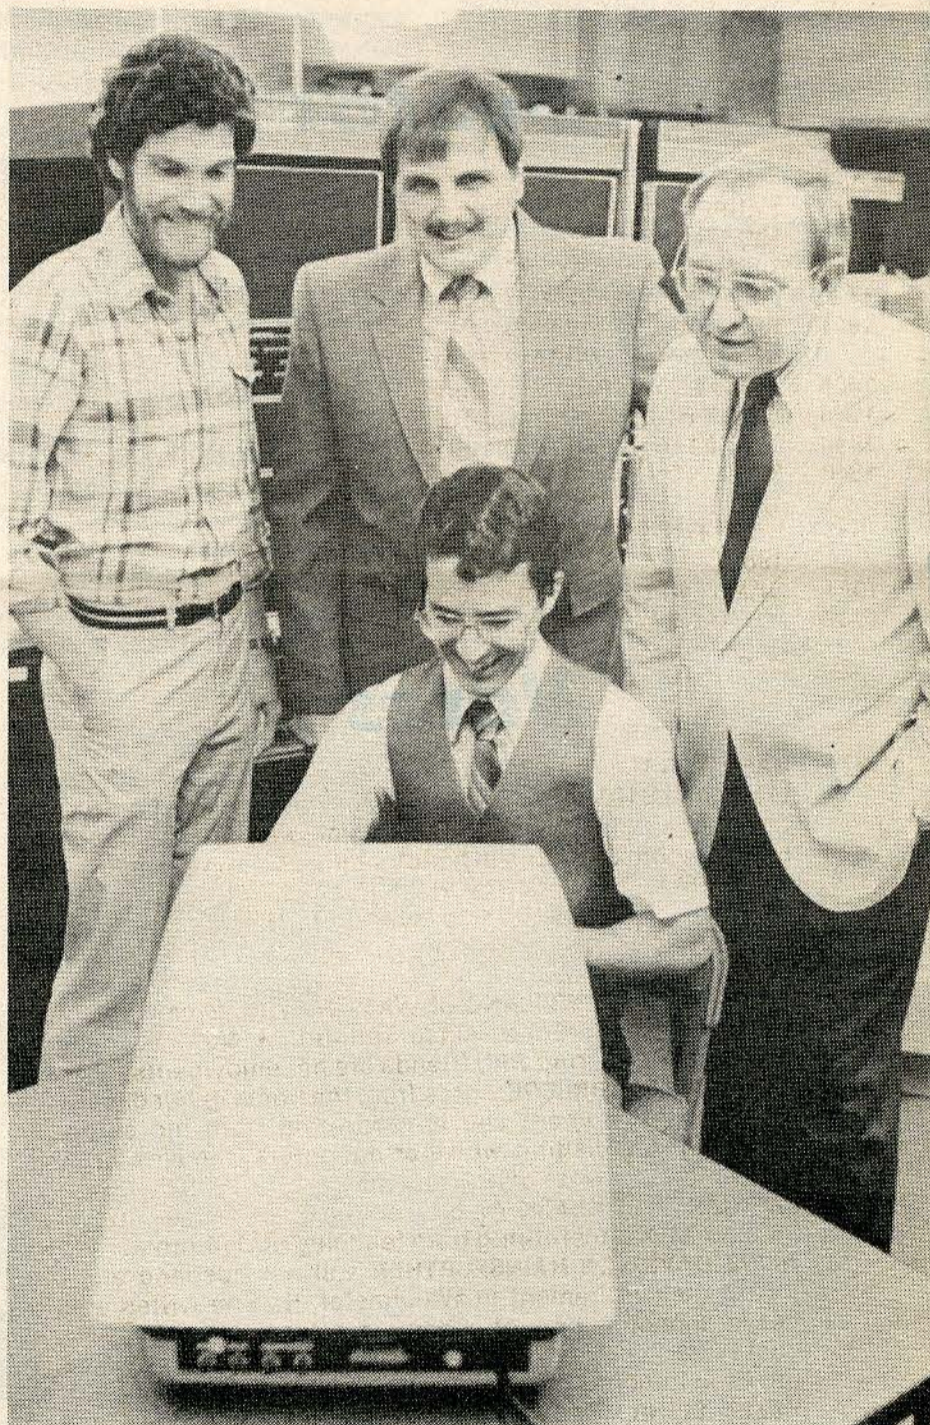

Spainhower also had the opportunity during his visit to Los Angeles to meet Helen Chesbrough Kinell of Santa Barbara, CA, and, while in Pebble Beach, CA, to meet with Mary Jean Du Hadway Craig, Patricia Bremer Compton and Sally Buchanan.

The trip was the first for Spainhower to visit Lindenwood alumni living in California. The president reported great enthusiasm in California for Lindenwood College.

ALUMNUS HELPS LINDENWOOD — Lindenwood College has benefitted from the donation of more than $100,000 in computer equipment by Union Pacific - Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. of St. Louis and the commitment of a 1974 alumnus. Credited with obtaining phased-out equipment from Missouri Pacific is Tom C. Jones of St. Charles, a systems analyst from the firm and a 1974 Lindenwood graduate. Shown viewing one of the new terminals with Robert Ferry, seated, director of the college's Computer Center, are, from left, John F. Dooley, assistant professor of computer science and coordinator of the Computer Sciences Program at Lindenwood; Jones; and Lindenwood President James I. Spainhower. The computer equipment has been obtained from several Missouri Pacific sites in the midwest that have installed more sophisticated and automated equipment for railroad operations.

Correction

A typographical error appeared in last summer's issue of the Linden Word concerning the correct spelling of the late Eileen Lonergan Baron of Simsbury, CT.

Lindenwood apologies for the error.

NANCY J. POLETTE, assistant professor of education, is the author of Books and Real Life, a guide for gifted students and teachers published this fall by McFarland Co., Inc. The 117-page book contains topics used in developing problem-solving and decision-making experiences for children in grades one through nine. A member of the faculty since 1970, Polette is a nationally-recognized author of more than a dozen books and numerous articles on children's literature and gifted education.

CYNTHIA SCHIERMEIER, a senior business administration major, is the recipient of the first annual Circle K Club Scholarship, funded by the college and the Kiwanis Club of St. Charles (Noon Day). Her $500 scholarship was presented to Lindenwood by WILLIAM B. SCHAEFER, immediate past president of the Kiwanis Club. It was matched by institutional funding from the college to provide $1,000 to Schiermeier, who serves as president of the 22-member Circle K Club.

KAY J. HOFFMEISTER, former head teacher and assistant director of the Campus Lab School, has been named director of the school. A 1967 graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia, she has a master's degree in education from Lindenwood. The school's program for gifted children is one of the few like it in the United States, and it was recently cited for excellence by the National Association of Gifted Children.

RAYMOND U. SCUPIN, Ph.D., assistant professor of anthropology, is among 40 individuals in the country recently accepted as a Fellow in the American Anthropological Association, a Washington, DC-based national organization of anthropologists, educators and scientists.

GARY L. COWGER, plant manager for the General Motors Assembly Division in Wentzville, MO, and a member of the college's board of directors, will serve as one of five vice-chairmen for the Missouri Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, a group representing nearly 3,200 businesses throughout the state.

PHIL EDWARDS, director of off-campus facilities in St. Louis and St. Louis County, is one of 16 individuals in Missouri named to the Governor's Crime Commission Task Force on Boating Safety. Formed recently by the governor, the task force is charged with formulating recommendations on how state laws should be strengthened to reduce drunken boating and to increase boating safety in the state.

MARIGAY SHEBLE has been named Director of Work Service programs for the college. In charge of nearly 250 students, she supervises the college's leadership service programs, internships, practicums, part-time employment, work-service programs and cooperative education. She is a 1983 graduate of Lindenwood who served previously in the Development Office.

ALAN CADY, full-time adjunct professor of biology, recently presented a seminar to the entomology-biology faculty at the University of Missouri-Columbia. The seminar stemmed from research he conducted on cliff-dwelling spiders for his doctorate, which he will receive in December from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

PHYLLIS JACOBSON, former faculty member at Lindenwood, died last September in Kansas City. She taught at the college from 1965-67, and was a physical education specialist for the St. Charles Public School System from 1967-68.

WALTER L. METCALFE, JR., vice-chairman of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors, recently donated a regulation-size pool table and complete accessories to the college. The slate-top, wooden table and game equipment have been installed in the Student Center in Nicolls Hall and are available to all students.

BARRY W. FREESE, former director of financial aid at Hagerstown (MD) Business College, has been appointed to the Lindenwood Admissions Office as a counselor. Freese, who attended Point Park College in Pittsburgh, graduated from Lindenwood in 1975 with a bachelor's degree in communications. Following graduation, he served as an admissions counselor at the college from 1975-77.

KAZIMIERA M. EZVAN, Ph.D., a former data processing instructor at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, has joined the Business Administration Dept. as an assistant professor of data processing. A native of Poland and a French citizen, she is a 1978 graduate of the Technical University of Wroclaw, Poland, and a 1983 graduate of Southern Illinois with a doctoral degree in academic administration.

EDWARD D. WATKINS, vice-president for institutional development, is among 53 people chosen to participate in Leadership St. Louis, a program designed to acquaint those in leadership positions with issues and problems facing the metro area and to train them to take an active role in the solution of such problems. Funded by the Danforth Foundation, Leadership St. Louis has trained nearly 400 leaders from public, private and volunteer institutions since its inception in 1976.

Newly-elected officers of the Lindenwood chapter of the American Association of University Professors are RICHARD RICKERT, Ph.D., LCIE faculty advisor; Vice-President JUDITH MCMAHON, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychology; Secretary BECKY GLENN, LCIE faculty advisor; and Treasurer HANS LEVI, assistant professor of photography.

NAN SIEMER has been named News Director for the college's community radio station, KCLC. A former news director for WITY Radio in Danville, IL, she served previously as a reporter for WELS AM-FM Radio in Fredericksburg, VA, prior to joining Lindenwood. A 1980 graduate of Lindenwood, Siemer has received broadcasting awards from the Associated Press Virginia Broadcasters Association, the American Bar Association and United Press International. She also is the recipient of the Lindenwood Journalism Award and a Falstaff Foundation Scholarship from the St. Louis Journalism Foundation.

MARTHA M. BOYER, emeritus professor of communications arts and the organizer of KCLC Radio, would like to have alumni and friends contact her at her new address - 500 E. Rudasill Dr., Tucson, AZ 85704.

Lindenwood College for Individualized Education (LCIE) alumni CAROL LAKR, MARGE GOODWIN and TIMOTHY WRIGHT have been elected president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Missouri Art Therapy Association of St. Louis. In addition to these elections, LCIE alumni LORRAINE BRIGGS, MARY ST. CLAIR, MARGE GOODWIN and P.J. FURRER have been named to chair various committees within the association.

Joint LCIE, AT&T Program

Primarily designed for working adults, the LCIE is one component of Lindenwood College that offers individualized, interdisciplinary studies in a vast number of programs leading to undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Playing a significant part in the decision by AT&T to select Lindenwood was the recognition recently given to the LCIE by the North Central Association of Colleges & Schools (NCACS), the official accrediting body for colleges and universities in the United States.

In a 34-page accrediting report issued earlier this year by an NCACS evaluation team, the association said, "... the work in LCIE can serve as a model for this kind of alternative education program for other institutions of higher education."

The report also stated, "It is very clear that everyone ... who is connected with this (LCIE) program is committed to making it a quality educational endeavor that meets the needs of its students in an effective manner."

"In addition to its uniqueness of delivery and format, LCIE also has developed some unique majors, notably art therapy and valuation sciences," the NCACS said.

According to Taich, "AT&T Information Systems recognized the LCIE's format and method of delivery and also noted that undergraduate and graduate degrees can be tailored to the individual needs of its employees, such as in data processing."

Currently, nearly 100 AT&T Information Systems employees have enrolled in the LCIE program, which will begin January 8. They will join nearly 315 other full-time LCIE students to receive instruction provided by faculty advisers and adjunct professors on the LCIE faculty.

In addition to LCIE instruction, employees also can receive on-site individual and group career planning services provided by Lindenwood College's Consolidated Advising Program Center. Services will include tutorial academic assistance, career planning and personal development "to provide a comprehensive, full-time program," Taich said.

"AT&T Information Systems evaluated several colleges and universities in the area and then selected the LCIE because of its method of delivery and its ability to tailor a program specifically to meet the needs of its employees," Taich said.

Building Fund

$3.8 million of the $10 million goal.

Broken down, the $800,000 will consist of $360,000 from corporations and foundations, $140,000 from alumni, $80,000 from the St. Charles community, $76,000 from the Lindenwood College Board of Directors and Board of Overseers, $15,000 from faculty and staff contributions and $129,000 from other sources.

Much of this funding will be earmarked for scholarship awards to deserving students as a means of strengthening and expanding the college's traditional-age residential population.

Upon successful completions of the $800,000 goal for three years, totaling $2.4 million, and the $3 million goal for building renovation and restoration, Lindenwood will announce plans for securing funds for construction of its $5 million Renaissance Cultural Center, the final phase of the Renaissance Campaign, Watkins said.

Further information on the campaign can be obtained from the Development Office.

Phone-a-Thon

According to James D. Thompson, major funds coordinator for the college, "We will be telephoning Lindenwood alumni in the northern portion of the country as well as those in the south who we were unable to reach during Phase 1. We hope to reach an additional 3,000 alumni during the four-week period," he said.

A goal of $100,000 in pledges and contributions from alumni is planned during the two-phase phone-a-thon.

"We have to maintain our recently-increased percentage of alumni contributions in order to qualify for multi-year corporate donations," said Thompson, a 1980 alumnus. "A great consensus of spirit is building to support our Renaissance Campaign, and each one of us will need to pledge whatever we can to make our renaissance a reality," he added.

Phone-a-thon efforts will be coordinated by Thompson while volunteer activities will be directed by Esther Fenning, a 1977 alumna and director of alumni activities for Lindenwood. Chairmen of this year's event are Jeri Herhold Stine of Chesterfield, a 1970 alumna, and Ann Hodges Pal of St. Charles, a 1965 alumna.

More than 5,000 alumni were contacted last year in the college's most successful telephone fund-raising event in its history. In addition to raising $100,000 in cash and contributions from alumni throughout the United States, Lindenwood managed to increase its level of alumni contributions from five to 25 percent, a remarkable achievement in a short period of time, Thompson said.

Carney Scholarship

financial aid assistance to its students.

According to Edward D. Watkins, vice-president for institutional development, Lindenwood is increasing its amount of available scholarships as a means of strengthening its residential population, which last year resulted in a nearly 95 percent increase in the number of students living on campus.

In addition, he said, the college has increased its average scholarship award from $200 to $1,200 per student, an amount that makes Lindenwood highly competitive among other private colleges and universities in the metropolitan area.

Tax-deductible donations of $500 or more can be established in memory or recognition of a person and earmarked to the $500,000 funding goal as part of the Renaissance Campaign, Watkins said.

Further information on the Carney Scholarship as well as other scholarship possibilities can be obtained by contacting Watkins at the Lindenwood College Development Office, (314) 946-6912, extension #338.

Encore!

Lindenwood College was represented when "The Buck Stops Here," a musical drama based on the life of Harry S Truman, began a five-performance run last fall at the Smithsonian Institute Theatre in Washington, DC.

Based on the life of the former president from Missouri, the play is conceived from the book by Norman J. Fedder with music and lyrics by Richard A. Lippmann. First produced in New York City, the play was staged in the nation's capital by the National Truman Centennial Commission for America's 100th anniversary celebration of Truman's birth.

The play featured set design by Mel Dickerson, assistant professor of theatre at Lindenwood College; costumes by Niki Juncker, assistant professor of theatre; and lighting design by Keith Polette, adjunct instructor of speech.

Lindenwood students involved in the production included Ed DeLeal, a 1984 alumnus; Michele Spears and Lisa Olliges, juniors majoring in performing arts at Lindenwood; Tom Meurer, a senior performing arts major; and David Hoover, a graduate student at Lindenwood.

A Gift of Real Estate?

Have you taken a look at your real estate holdings lately and wondered how you could increase your income from them during this period of recession?

Do you have some land you have been trying to sell but can't—or, at least, not without considerable monetary loss to you?

Are you looking for a way to make money while helping the Lindenwood College?

We have just the help you need. Lindenwood can now accept gifts of real estate.

We can help you realize additional income through an outright gift from you or through a "life estate contract".

We want to help you market your real estate and to make it profitable. May we hear from you?
