PROJECT MINIBUS HELPS FILL TRANSPORTATION GAP

Through the leadership of The Lindenwood College Alumnae Association and the generosity of alumnae, parents, and friends, a twelve passenger minibus began operation this term to help bridge the transportation gap between the suburban Lindenwood campus and urban St. Louis.

In typical volunteer fashion, the alumnae have collected more than 1,000 books of S & H green stamps and hundreds of dollars in cash to pay for the bus. Mrs. Robert Bruere of St. Louis, leader of the project, expects the bus to be fully paid for by mid-November. Operated by mature student drivers with Missouri Chauffeur licenses, the bus runs on a regular schedule between the campus and St. Louis educational and cultural centers. The minibus may also be chartered by groups of students for trips to events of special interest.

OCTOBER, 1969

ENROLLMENT INCREASES

Enrollment at The Lindenwood Colleges climbed this fall with the opening of Lindenwood College II, the new coordinate college for men. A total of 660 students registered for classes this term, an increase of 65 students more than the fall term of 1968.

Lindenwood II began its first year of operation with 118 men enrolled at all levels. Of the total 21 are sophomores, 14 juniors, and 3 seniors.

The students in both colleges represent 32 states and 13 foreign countries including Afghanistan, Denmark, Greece, Hong Kong, Iceland, Japan, Lebanon, Peru, Thailand, Turkey, Costa Rica, England and Scotland.

McCLUERS ESTABLISHING NEW HOME IN FLORIDA

Franc L. McCluer, President Emeritus of Lindenwood College, and his wife, Ida Belle, will move to Sarasota, Florida, next month upon completion of their new apartment fronting on Sarasota Bay. The McCluers plan to visit friends in Missouri during the spring and fall months each year as they travel between Sarasota and their summer home in Michigan. Dr. McCluer is currently serving as vice moderator of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

IS YOUR NAME AT LINDENWOOD?

The distinctive programs and outstanding academic facilities of The Lindenwood Colleges have been made possible through the years by generous private contributions from individuals, groups, churches, corporations, and foundations.

The importance of private philanthropy to the growth and progress of our private colleges is as important today as it was in the days of the Sibleys, the Butlers, and the Roemers. Buildings still remain to be named, and program centers can perpetuate a family name for generations to come.

Among the current capital needs of Lindenwood College for Women and Lindenwood College II are:

Equipment for the Computer Center — More than $150,000 is needed to provide new equipment and to expand the services of the colleges' computer center to keep up with present and future program needs. The center itself may be named at the request of a donor and the concurrence of the Directors of Lindenwood College.

Books for the Library — The library now has the shelf space to expand its collections in areas of particular concern to today's students. The growth of the Center for the Undergraduate Study of Mathematics and the Center for the Study of Communication Arts requires increased library resources. Two primary needs are the acquisition of back issues of periodicals and the purchase of microfilms containing material now out of print. Memorial and commemorative bookplates can be placed in gift volumes.

The New Fine Arts Building — Construction grants and loans from federal sources made it possible for Lindenwood to construct a long-needed fine arts building to help implement its lively programs in the humanities. Gifts are needed to complete the financing of the building and to provide needed equipment. Gifts may be made to name a particular area within the building or to name the building itself.

Scholarships and Professorships — Gifts to the endowment to provide named scholarships and professorships have long been made by individuals who believe in the importance of the educational programs of our private liberal arts colleges. As increasing costs make scholarship assistance necessary for larger numbers of students, gifts in this area take on renewed importance.

Bequests — Many capital projects have been funded through bequests from Alumnae and others who have taken this means of providing for the education of future generations, and at the same time provide a living memorial to the beliefs and values of previous generations. For further information on named-gift opportunities, please write the President of The Lindenwood Colleges, St. Charles, Missouri 63301.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS ESTABLISHED

Three new scholarship funds have been established at Lindenwood College for Women through gifts to the endowment of the college. The NANCY DRURY HARDY SCHOLARSHIP FUND has been established by bequest of Mrs. Caroline Hardy Riordan in memory of her mother who graduated from Lindenwood in 1876. The income of the fund will be available to students from the State of Illinois regularly enrolled in the college. Preference is given to "students who may be expected to make worthwhile contributions to community life in the communities in which the student will reside following graduation." Financial need is a consideration, but not the controlling factor in awarding scholarships. The first scholarships from this fund will be awarded to students for the 1970-71 academic year.

The MARY F. AND BENJAMIN E. JELKYL SCHOLARSHIP FUND has been established by gifts to the college from Mr. Ross Jelkyl in memory of his parents.

The PEARLE AIKEN-SMITH SYERS SCHOLARSHIPS have been endowed by the bequest of Mrs. Pearle Aiken-Smith Syers to assist students interested in the communication arts. Mrs. Syers was a student at Lindenwood in 1895 and and went on to become a prominent college professor and dean.

NEW DEVELOPMENT DIRECTOR

Edward C. Krehmeyer has been appointed to the new post of Director of Development for The Lindenwood Colleges. Mr. Krehmeyer was formerly National Director of Alumni Campaigns for Washington University's Seventy by 'Seventy Program. In that capacity he helped organize and supervised the fund raising program among alumni in the major metropolitan areas throughout the United States. Prior to coming to the St. Louis area, Mr. Krehmeyer was employed in Chicago. He has a Master's Degree in Social Work, and during his fifteen years in the Chicago area he was employed in social welfare research and planning activities. His last position there was Director of Research and Statistics for the United Charities of Chicago.

THREE JOIN ADMISSIONS STAFF

Joan Chapman, a 1969 graduate of Lindenwood College; Thomas Comer and Ronald Mills have joined the staff of The Lindenwood Colleges' Admission Office. Miss Chapman, an English major from Wellesley, Massachusetts, served as an intern in the Admissions Office during her senior year at Lindenwood. Mr. Comer is a native of St. Louis and a graduate of St. Louis University. A high school English and history teacher, Mr. Comer has also spent two years in the Peace Corps. While in the Peace Corps, he was chairman of the history department of a secondary school in Sokoto, Northern Nigeria. Mr. Mills is a graduate of Ball State University and received his Master of Arts degree from Indiana University. Prior to joining the Lindenwood staff, he taught history at Webster Groves High School.

SEVEN COLLEGE CONSORTIUM MEETS URBAN NEED

A cooperative program for meeting the educational needs of disadvantaged students is being developed by the Seven College Consortium with the help of a $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation for a two-year period. Participating institutions include Fontbonne, Lindenwood, Maryville and Webster Colleges in metropolitan St. Louis, Westminster College in Fulton, Tarkio College in Tarkio, and Park College in Kansas City.

John Anthony Brown, president of The Lindenwood Colleges, is president of the Seven College Consortium.

John R. Mueller has been named executive director of the Seven College Consortium with offices on the Lindenwood campus.

Mr. Mueller is a graduate of William Jewell College and holds a Master's Degree in International Law from the George Washington University. He recently returned from two years with the Peace Corps in South Central India. The staff of the Seven College Consortium will coordinate efforts of all seven member colleges in recruiting, admitting, and retaining black and other minority group students. The program will include a series of workshops and training conferences for faculty and staff members of the participating colleges, assistance in the development of curriculum materials, the employment of additional professional counselors, and the development of a fund-raising campaign to provide scholarships for minority group students. "The Ford Foundation grant program does not provide scholarship funds for needy students, but is designed to stimulate other sources of direct student aid," President Brown explained.

"The small liberal arts colleges in this country have historically trained responsible business and community leaders in far greater proportions than many other sectors of higher education," Brown declared, "and we believe that the small colleges can contribute significantly to the improvement of communication between the minority and majority sectors of our society."

PROFESSOR HOOD HONORED

Dr. James F. Hood, chairman of the history department and Associate Dean for Special Academic Programs at The Lindenwood Colleges, has received the Bishop's Award for distinguished service to the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Missouri. The award was presented by Bishop George L. Cadigan at the 130th Convention of the Diocese in St. Charles October 17th.

ONE MAN SHOW

Recent paintings and drawings by Arthur Kanak, associate professor of art at The Lindenwood Colleges, are on exhibit this month at the Painters Gallery, 386 North Euclid in St. Louis.

Parents Day provided a kaleidoscope of activities celebrating the opening of the new fine arts building.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE FATHERS CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Mr. Elmer H. Baker, controller of the Smith-Scharff Paper Company in St. Louis, was elected president of the Executive Council of The Lindenwood Fathers Club during Parents Day activities on the campus this month. He succeeds Mr. Albert H. Froemling, president of the Madison County Savings and Loan Association in Granite City, Illinois. Mr. Baker is the father of Berte, a sophomore Biology major. Other officers elected by the Council are Dr. Kenneth Collier, Dean of Men at Ball State University, vice-President; and Mr. David A. Umsted, an insurance agent and land manager in Pontiac, Illinois, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Collier is the father of Mary Anne, a junior mathematics major, and Mr. Umsted is the father of Mary Ann, a junior elementary education major.

The Fathers Club is planning a symposium on "Changing Family Patterns and Behavioral Trends in the Student Community" in conjunction with the annual Father-Daughter Banquet, Saturday, February 21, 1970.

Lindenwood Professor James F. Hood lectures to history class at Webster College via telephone.

TELEPHONE BECOMES COLLEGE TEACHING TOOL

An amplified telephone system has been installed on campus with the help of a Title III grant from the United States Office of Education to provide greater teaching resources for the Lindenwood Colleges in cooperation with Fontbonne, Maryville, and Webster Colleges. The device makes it possible for an entire class to carry on a discussion with a faculty member or an entire classroom on another campus. Students at Fontbonne and Maryville regularly listen in on lectures in Lindenwood's widely acclaimed Common Course. Outside speakers can be brought into a classroom electronically from a telephone anywhere in the world. Senator Birch Bayh used the telephone system to talk with students at the four colleges during the recent Vietnam Moratorium day from his office in Washington, D. C.

FCC COMMISSIONER TO SPEAK ON CAMPUS

Kenneth Allen Cox, controversial member of the Federal Communications Commission, will be the guest of Lindenwood's Center for the Study of Communication Arts on Friday, November 14. The commissioner will speak to students and faculty members and tour the facilities of the colleges' radio station, KCLC-FM.

Mr. Cox is a native of Kansas and a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Washington, where he received both his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws degrees. He received his Master of Laws degree from the University of Michigan where he also taught on the law school faculty. In 1961 he joined the staff of the FCC as chief of the Broadcast Bureau and was named a commissioner in 1963 by President Kennedy.

FACULTY MEMBERS ENTER COMPUTER AGE

A series of faculty seminars on Computers and Computer Applications has been organized by Lindenwood's Computer Center Director Aaron Konstam. Designed to help faculty members understand and utilize the technology of the twentieth century in their own disciplines, the voluntary program is receiving enthusiastic response from faculty members.

COLLEGE RECEIVES AWARDS

Publications of The Lindenwood Colleges have received awards this year from two national organizations. Five examples will be on exhibit in November at the Spanish Pavilion in St. Louis as part of the annual Art Directors show.

EXPANDED BOOK STORE PROVIDES MORE SERVICES

Remodeling of the bookstore and post office on the lower level of Roemer Hall has provided a greatly enlarged area for increased book store services. The entire area has been treated as an arcade with shop windows opening onto the hallway.

A. C. STALNAKER ELECTED TO LINDENWOOD BOARD

Armand C. Stalnaker, president of the General American Life Insurance Company of St. Louis, has been elected to the Board of Directors of Lindenwood College. The board held its first meeting of the academic year October 24 on the campus in St. Charles.

Stalnaker holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Cincinnati, the master of arts in economics from the University of Pennsylvania and a Ph.D. in personnel psychology from Ohio State University. He taught business organization and was Commerce Placement Director at Ohio State before joining Prudential Insurance Company in 1950. He has been affiliated with General American Life since 1963, serving as an administrative and executive vice president before his election as president in January of this year.

Stalnaker is a member of the boards of the YMCA of St. Louis and St. Louis County, the Convention Board of Greater St. Louis, the Health and Welfare Council and the Committee for Environmental Information.
