UNICEF Funds Collected at Lindenwood

By Wayne Tipton

Mrs. Evelyn Spencer, wife of the president of The Lindenwood Colleges, spearheaded the drive for UNICEF at Lindenwood this Halloween.

Involvement in international affairs is nothing new to the Spencers. Mrs. Spencer has been active in foreign affairs since 1975, when she was inspired and urged by Mary Hall, then dean of the college.

Mrs. Spencer is now a member of the United Nations Board of Directors in St. Louis.

Dr. William C. Spencer, president of the colleges, served as a United Nations delegate to Chile in 1963. While there, he headed a widespread project to wipe out illiteracy in the South American countries. The Spencer family also traveled to and visited 13 other South American countries.

Dr. Spencer is a member of the National Council on Higher Education in the American Republics, and has traveled extensively conducting conferences dealing with issues such as woman's roles, marriage, and population problems.

When asked about her involvement with the UNICEF program, Mrs. Spencer said, 'In 1965, when we were walking down a dirt road in the small Guatemalan village of Santiago Atitlan, we passed a group of Indian women and children carrying boxes labeled 'Powdered Milk, UNICEF.' Their smiling faces told us all we needed to know about the work of this organization.'

Assisting her in the UNICEF project at Lindenwood were Karla Strange and Suzanne Zeller, members of Alpha Lambda Delta honor society.

Alpha Lambda Delta organized teams of students to collect for UNICEF in various parts of St. Charles on Oct. 30.

Official UNICEF collection cartons were also available in a specially marked box in Roemer Arcade all day Oct. 30 and also Halloween day, Oct. 31.

IBIS editorial on the parking situation...

Who's Who Announced

By Lisa Ritter

Seventeen Lindenwood students were honored this fall by being nominated to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Students are nominated for this publication on the basis of academic excellence and their contribution to school and community.

Juniors and seniors are eligible for Who's Who and may be nominated either by a faculty member or by another student. Earlier in the year students and faculty were asked to submit names of people they thought should qualify.

Although given the opportunity no submitted names. After all the names are in the nominating committee discusses and votes on each student.

The nominating committee is composed of members of the administration, faculty and students. This year the committee members were Dean Delaney, Dean Crozier, Dean Hood, Dr. Eckert, Dr. Anderson, Miss Kathy Kochanski and Tom Hayman.

Each school in the program is given a limited number of students that may be selected. Lindenwood's quota was 17. After all the nominating committee's votes are in, the highest scores are given this honor.

Editor Questions Parking Measures

One of the major problems on campus this semester is the parking situation. Not only is security concerned about the problem, but students, faculty and staff alike are affected by the situation.

With the recently released enrollment figures of 1,739 students, it occasionally looks as if enough parking spaces are not available for them, plus faculty, staff and visitors to the campus.

Residents of St. Charles that live on streets surrounding the colleges are dismayed by people that park in front of their homes. Even though one hour parking zone signs are posted, some people are forced to park illegally because they are unable to find an empty space on the designated lots.

It is inconvenient for a commuting student to have to park behind one of the dormitories across campus. Likewise, during the winter months it is almost impossible to drive out of the lot located near the tennis courts.

Parking in the lots near the Presbyterian Church or Commerce Bank also poses a burden on people. The distance of these facilities is so great that it makes a person think he is going to a large university where people have to park a half mile away from their classes.

And speaking of classes... many students have been late to them as a result of not being able to find a place to park their car. That alone seems like a sound reason to correct this problem at an institution constantly trying to improve the educational system of the colleges.

The IBIS is published weekly by the students of The Lindenwood Colleges, St. Charles, MO 63301, Box 670. Phone: 723-7152, ext. 208. The views and opinions expressed herein are the responsibility of the editors and not necessarily those of the faculty, administration or students of the college.

The IBIS welcomes letters and commentary from the Lindenwood community. All letters must be signed; however, names may be withheld upon request.

In order to avoid these inconveniences, people began to park along the campus streets in no-parking zones. This, according to security, was a hazard in the event of an emergency that required the assistance of an ambulance or fire engine.

Therefore, they have blocked off the driveways through the campus with chains restricting the traffic flow. If an emergency vehicle was needed, it could not get onto campus anyway because the streets are chained off. Does this make sense to you?

Trucks attempting to make deliveries are also hampered by the situation because they must get someone to open the blocked off areas in order to perform their jobs.

The IBIS feels that if the security force would enforce the policy of ticket-ing and eventually towing illegally parked vehicles, the problem of blocked streets would not exist.

Closer parking for the commuting student, staff member and faculty personnel might alleviate the unpleasant situation. A logical solution would be to extend the parking lot in front of the Memorial Arts Building east to the gates along Kingshighway. This will more than likely not be done, however, because of cosmetic reasons.

The IBIS would like to hear some comments on the situation from members of the Lindenwood community. If you have any suggestions on a better solution to the problem, please address them to the Editor, Box 670. All letters must be signed; however, names will be withheld upon request.

Parking Regulations Set

In an effort to solve some serious parking problems on campus, a letter with proposed solutions was sent to all students, faculty and staff at The Lindenwood Colleges.

The letter, which was co-signed by Dr. William C. Spencer, president of the colleges, Dr. James F. Hood, provost of the colleges, Doris Crozier, dean of Lindenwood I, Dr. Patrick F. Delaney, dean of Lindenwood II, and Dr. John S. Burd, administrative director of Lindenwood III and IV, contained three solutions to the parking problems.

The first proposed solution prohibits all parking within the inner quadrangle of the campus. Security chains and gates will prevent access to the prohibited areas.

Second, to ease the flow of traffic during the day and evening, the street in front of Cobbs and Niccolls Halls will remain open with no parking allowed. Vehicles passing Niccolls must turn left between Niccolls and Sibley Hall, proceed behind Sibley and between the maintenance buildings to the parking areas. This passageway will be designated as one way, and will be strictly enforced.

Finally, anyone parking behind and beside campus buildings must abide by postings and other regulations as announced.

The letter concluded by asking for full cooperation from everyone to make the campus a safer and more attractive place to live and work.

These proposals went into effect on Oct. 23. Anyone violating any of the restrictions will have their car towed at their expense.

Alumnae Change Bylaws

by Wayne Tipton

The Lindenwood Colleges Alumnae Association voted unanimously last weekend to adopt a new constitution and bylaws. But even more importantly, they changed their name to the Lindenwood Colleges Alumni Association. These events were designed to expand the association's reach and allow representation from all four colleges.

As the change in the name denotes, the association has been comprised of only women since its founding. This has now been changed in order to allow participation from throughout the colleges.

On Friday Oct. 13, the newly named Alumni Association attended a series of business meetings with Dr. William C. Spencer, president; Frank Hetherington, director of admissions; Jeffery Nemens, director of development and public relations; and Dr. James Hood, provost who discussed with them all of the new programs and campus changes.

During these meetings the association pledged to return to their various states and increase their efforts to recruit more students for Lindenwood. They also plan to help the development department in it's annual fund raising drive.

The Lindenwood Alumni Association has a meeting every fall, but this year it was planned to coincide with Parent's Weekend and the Student Center dedication.

One of the highlights of the alumni's visit this year was the appearance of Paulena Nickell, who was the Dean of Lindenwood from 1952-1960. Also, the alumni showed great satisfaction and pleasure to have been asked to take part in the Student Center dedication.

Sixty-five members took part in the luncheon honoring the reunion year classes and the Lindenwood archives committee.

According to Dorothy Barklage, director of alumni affairs and placement, "The Alumni Council expressed a great deal of satisfaction and enjoyment in being at Lindenwood at a time when it was filled with students taking part in an all school event, and they were immensely pleased with this fall's meeting because it included the special significance of the Student Center dedication in which they took part."

Equestrian Wins Trophy

by Greg Zink

Recently a student at The Lindenwood Colleges returned to the colleges with a championship trophy in a special sport.

The student was Becky Rainwater and the sport was equestrian, better known as horseback riding.

Miss Rainwater and a Lindenwood owned horse, Kataema, participated along with 500 other entrants in the St. Louis National Charity Horse Show. The show which was held at Queeny Park Oct. 2 through 7 with all proceeds going to the Kilo Diabetes and Vascular Research Foundation attracted thousands of spectators.

"It was a last minute decision to go," she said. And a decision that was well made. Miss Rainwater won the Open Jumper division after outscoring 7 other competitors in 5 categories.

Riding Kataema, she placed first in the Take Your Own Line and Time First Round categories. She finished second in the Fault and Out and Time First Jump Off categories.

A third place finish in the Touches to Count division, coupled with her total points from the other categories, enabled her to win the championship in the Open Jumper division. All categories involve jumping, speed and accuracy. "In reference to the horse, she stated, 'I've been riding Kataema for a year now and she's a good horse.'"

Miss Rainwater credits her success in the show to the college and the help of her groom Debbie Slaski.

"There's a lot of teamwork involved," she explained, "and Debbie was out there every day helping me out." Miss Slaski took care of the horse at the show.

"I came to Lindenwood because of their excellent riding program," stated

Miss Rainwater, "the program here has really helped me out, especially Mrs. Bittner." Mrs. Fern Bittner is the head of the riding program.

Miss Rainwater is one of 23 members that make up the Beta Chi Riding Club at Lindenwood.

Other Lindenwood students in the club who placed in the show were: Gail Eder, fifth in Pleasure Equitation, 18 years and over; Nancy Stockwell, fourth in Arabian Amateur English Pleasure; Mary Jo Cox, eighth in Pleasure Equitation, 17 years and under; and Emily Johnson, first in the AHSA, American Horse Show Association Saddleseat Medal, fourth in Saddleseat Equitation Championship and sixth in Saddleseat Equitation, ages 14-17.

Triangle Club Admits Men

The Triangle Club, one of the oldest clubs on campus, is an honor society for women in the sciences. However, this year they are going to admit men into the club.

The officers are: President, Nancy Austin and secretary, Cindy Stolle. They have approximately ten members in the club and their sponsor is Dr. Bornmann.

"We're hoping to expand the Triangle Club membership and we're hoping to have more activities this year," said Miss Austin. "We're hoping to go on more field trips related to the sciences, such as Smith-Kline, and Ralston-Purina."

The Triangle Club also sponsored the Ring Toss at the Fair, which grossed about $20.

Lindenwood Has New Costume Shop

by Karen Simmons

Act one, scene one, begins as actors and actresses take their places on center stage. Queens wear their most illustrious gowns while kings wear their noblest robes.

It is said that clothes make the man, in this case clothes not only make the man, but the play. What would a play be like without the proper costumes? What goes into making and coordinating the proper costumes for a production?

Nancy Hieser, supervisor of the costume shop at The Lindenwood Colleges, explained that much altering, cutting, hemming and sewing go into coordinating the appropriate costumes for a show.

Altering involves fitting the clothes on the actor. Some costumes have to be let out while others have to be taken in.

The costumes used in 'Once Upon a Mattress' were rented from Brooks Van Horn costume company of New York since they had little time and money. Tom McKinley, also of New York, designed and coordinated the costumes.

Ms. Hieser commented that another person will be brought in to assist in designing the costumes for 'A Christmas Carol'.

According to Ms. Hieser, Lindenwood has a complete stock from the following plays- 'A Christmas Carol', 'The Emperor's New Clothes', 'Godspell', and 'The Fantasticks'. Some of these costumes were donated to the theater from the community while others are just old clothes that have accumulated over the years.

'Actual authentic clothes fall apart very easily,' said Ms. Hieser. That is why they use clothes from outside sources and actual costumes.

Ms. Hieser said that sometimes the actors and actresses forget that they are working with costumes and accidentally step on the hem or rip a seam. All costumes made of silk are very fragile.

The next question that may arise is where does all of this transformation take place? Last year the costume shop was in the theatre department; this year they have their own facilities.

The costume shop is now located in the basement of Roemer Hall where the Day Student Lounge was previously located. The room itself has taken on a new character. Where tables, chairs and a television once sat are clothing racks, sewing tables and sewing machines.

The room gives one the feeling that he is in Santa's workshop as the little elves are busy trying to assemble toys for all good children, but in this case elves are not busy at work, but students are... transforming costumes.

The atmosphere is busy as the students try to get the costumes in tip-top shape.

The students that work on these costumes are in Ms. Hieser's costume instruction class.

These three students are theatre majors Glen Stevenson, Claudia Stedelin, and Pat Nagle. Ms. Hieser says that hopefully next semester there will be more people in the class.

She also commented that the three students in her class are beginning costume students who are learning through experience. The class offered next spring will be costume history.

The room is spacious, but Ms. Hieser said more storage space is needed. They have four sewing machines, one of which is an industrial machine.

According to Ms. Hieser, two of the machines work well while the other two could stand improvement. For the next production they are going to rent additional machines.

The types of costumes used for 'Once Upon a Mattress' were fairy tale costumes based on paintings by Max Field Tarrish. Historical costumes based on the empire to the romantic period will be used in 'A Christmas Carol'. 'The Miser' costumes will be of the cavalier motif and 'The Diary of Anne Frank' will use costumes from the 1940's.

A play without the appropriate costumes would be like a day without sunshine.

Last Night For Auditions

Tonight will be the last night open auditions will be held for the all-family production of 'A Christmas Carol' at The Lindenwood Colleges.

Auditions will begin at 7 p.m. in Jelkyl Center on the campus and will be open to all members of the community. Anyone wishing to audition should prepare two one-minute monologues, preferably showing a range of comedy and drama.

This will be the second year that the Dicken's classic will be presented at Lindenwood, beginning a yearly tradition.

A cast of approximately 30 men, women and children is needed for the show which will be directed by Wesley VanTassel, director of theatre arts at Lindenwood.

'A Christmas Carol' will run from Dec. 8-22. Reservations can be made now by calling 946-6912, ext. 252 or 724-2004.

Lindenwood Students Become CBS Extras

by Joe Palermo

Claudia Stedelin... on her way to Hollywood.

A number of area residents were needed as extras for the filming of a CBS mini-series entitled 'The Chisholms' in St. Charles last week.

Among the lucky ones chosen were Claudia Stedelin, Ann Clayton and Kevin Collins, students at The Lindenwood Colleges. Miss Stedelin and Miss Clayton arrived on the set at about 6 a.m., Wednesday.

After talking with the director, the two were taken to 'make-up' and to get their costumes.

They had quite an experience working with such stars as Ben Murphy in the Alan Landsburg production. When preparing for the shot, Miss Stedelin said, "We were told who to walk with and where to walk on a specific physical cue."

Those witnessing the filming found out that it is not all fun and glamour.

It took about 20 minutes to set the shot up.

The tracks for the camera dolly to move on had to be laid, the lights had to be set, the movement of the actors, horse-men, wagons and street people had to be choreographed. When all this was done, it took another 15 to 20 minutes to shoot the scene.

About 50 percent of the extras returned to continue the shooting the second day.

When the two days of filming were over, Miss Stedelin was asked how she felt about the experience...

"Discoveries for me were made when observing the process of the art form of film making," she said. "What I experienced in those two days is a gift in and of itself. I'm just glad I had that chance. It's not just acting you learned, it's patience."

Women's Volleyball Ready and Rolling

by Greg Zink

The Lindenwood College's Women Volleyball team opened its season by gaining two come from behind victories over conference rivals.

'This team has the determination to come back,' stated volleyball coach Joy Ebest, 'and that's important for it seems the conference teams are evenly matched.'

The team opened their season on Tuesday, Oct. 10, at Fontbonne College. After dropping the first game to their host by a 15-9 score, Lindenwood came on strong to win the next two by 15-11 and 15-8 scores and take the conference match.

In a repeat performance Lindenwood boosted their conference record to 2-0 by defeating the home team, Lutheran School of Nursing Oct. 12.

Losing the first game 16-14, Lindenwood again came from behind to win the match by taking the last two games by 15-5 and 15-12 scores.

Lindenwood along with 6 other teams make up the St. Louis Small College Athletic Conference. Each team in the conference plays every other team twice.

The 1978 Lindenwood Women's volleyball team consists of 15 players, including four from last year's team.

Besides the captain of the team senior Paula Pettit other returning players are Nancy Stockwell, Rise Gilliom, and Pat McNamara.

Eleven first year players make up the rest of the team; they are: Cindy Reading, Kathy Filitreu, Lynn Rau, Kristi Seitz, Sharon Mills, Laura Wallace, Denise Begrowicz, Adrian Thompson, Valerie Mims, Marquerite Bruere and Kathy Reschetz.

Mola Exhibit on Display

by Nancy Siemer

An exhibition of Kuna Indian molas are now on display in the Harry D. Hendren Gallery of The Lindenwood Colleges through Nov. 22.

The art department has assembled more than 50 examples of mola art loaned by college personnel and collectors in the local community.

Molas are reverse applique textiles used as blouses by women in the San Blas Islands, Panama, where the Kunas live. The exhibition includes blouses made up of two rectangular panels of appliqued materials, one at the front and another at the back.

Unique features of molas are their vivid colors, skilled needlework and their fanciful and varied designs. Subjects of the design range from pre-Columbian motifs to modern jet airplanes.

Many pieces are animal, bird, plant and flower subjects, sometimes recognizable, but often combined into fantastic composites.

The gallery will be open to the public on Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday 12 to 4 p.m., and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m.

For more information, call the art department at 946-6912.

Fair Tests Prove Sex Appeal

by Stacy Taylor

Alpha Lambda Delta sponsored a booth at the recent fair at The Lindenwood Colleges with the tests, 'Ladies, Are You Charming?' and 'Test Your Male Appeal'. The tests were developed to compare and measure comparable traits.

A few of the questions from the women's poll included-

-Can you refrain from being affectionate toward a man when he is NOT in an affectionate mood?

-When not hostess, would you do all you could to enliven a party that was a flop?

-Do you keep yourself definitely feminine and make the most of it?

Two well known personalities on campus participated in the test, Dean Doris Crozier and Sue Fachler.

Dean Crozier missed 11 out of 34 questions which left her with a score of 23. If your score was above 20 you are a very charming person to those who think you are charming.

Sue Fachler, head resident of Parker Hall, also took part in the testing. She missed 14 out of the 34 total points, which concludes she is also a very charming person to those who think she is charming.

Some of the questions that were given to the men were-

-Are you definitely masculine and proud of it?

-In a mixed crowd do you enjoy being the life of the party?

-Do you sometimes use modified cave-man tactics?

Three men on campus that were tested were Dean Patrick Delaney, Mike Halloran and Greg Fachler. Halloran asked to be compared with Dean Delaney to see who had more appeal.

Halloran's score was 25 out of 34; he missed 9 questions. If your score was between 25 and 30 you are above average male in you capacity for intriguing the opposite sex.

Dean Delaney's score was 22 out of er. He is somewhat baffled by the opposite sex but is able to make those he cares to be bothered with feel important.

According to the tests, Halloran has more appeal than Dean Delaney.

Fachler has more appeal than either Halloran or Dean Delaney. He missed only 7 of the 34 questions.

A third test that was conducted was called 'Are You Charming?' No results were available from that survey.

Students Take Part In Planned Activities

The Bowling League is on the backside of its' schedule and the 'Andycaps' are leading the league by a slim two game lead over the 'Have A Heart' team.

Consistent strong bowling by Jack Turnbull and Dave Ferguson have carried their team to first place. When they do falter, Rita Turnbull and Ed Gloyd always seem to bowl above average to carry their team to victory.

Suzie Patterson and Kathy Pennington continue to bowl series and maintain averages that rank in the top six bowlers.

The Car Rally went off without a hitch, at least for the planners. Patty Lotito and Charlie Owens will argue the point after their map blew out the window.

Greg Duchinsky and Lisa Ritter waged a close contest with Matt Kastigar, Phil Lucido and Kathy Brown. Both teams completed the course without penalty points but Duchinsky and Miss Ritter completed the course four seconds faster than Kastigar and Lucido.

Their driving skills won them two tickets to see the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants football game this weekend.

Congratulations to Jette Sanders for becoming Lindenwood's representative to compete in the Regional Backgammon Tournament held in February.

The Student Center is sponsoring a number of events the rest of the semester.

Winners in the contests win the right to compete in the regional tournaments held in February. Interested persons should consult the ACU-I posters around campus for times and places.

Thanks from Mike

Once again the students, staff, faculty, alumni and friends of Lindenwood College have united their efforts, which have culminated in another successful fair.

Although I am unable to mention every participant, I would like to thank all the donors, organizations, individuals for whom without their participation there would have been no fair.

I would like to offer a special thanks to the following people: Annie Anderson, Julie Nichols, Nancy Siemer, Jette Sanders, Kathy Reschetz, Karen Hamrick, Susan Jackson, Pam Traugher, Sue Glenzy, Tommy Hayman, John Storjohann, Kathy Kochanski, Tony Thaxton, Kirk Joslin and Jon Wasson for their continued commitment to Lindenwood.

Thank you to all who made it possible.

What is Dorm Life Like?

by Karen Simmons

The resident students at The Lindenwood Colleges form an important nucleus of the entire college. However, this nucleus is divided into five parts. These five parts are the dorms.

There are two dorms for males at Lindenwood, Irwin and Ayers, and three for females, McCluer, Sibley, and Parker.

What is dorm life like? What are the contrasts between the dorms? What are the characteristics of the people living in each of the dorms?

The "Ibis" will attempt to answer these and other questions about dorm life at The Lindenwood Colleges as this article begins a five part series on each of the dorms at the colleges.

Board Decides on 5-year Plan

By Nancy Siemer

A 5-year comprehensive plan for the development, academic organization and student life at the Lindenwood Colleges was the main topic of discussion at a meeting by the colleges' board of directors and administrators on Tuesday, Oct. 10, according to Mrs. Russell J. Crider, board member.

Mrs. Crider says that a committee will be appointed by Robert Hyland, board chairman, to organize this plan which choose priorities and areas of emphasis at the colleges.

The colleges' budget, a recent meeting with some students and board members and various other reports on matters pertaining to the colleges were discussed at the meeting, but Mrs. Crider, Hyland and Dr. William Spencer, president of the colleges, would not release further details on these topics.

However, Hyland said, "We got some very good reports from the new people (referring to the new department heads and the newly appointed provost)."

The Board members, Dr. Spencer, Dr. James Hood, provost of the colleges, Miss Doris Crozier, dean of Lindenwood I, Patrick Delaney, dean of Lindenwood II, Dr. John Burd, administrative director of Lindenwood III and IV, Jeff Nemens, head of public relations and development, Frank Hetherington, head of public relations and Joe Schwarzbauer, head of financial affairs, attended the meeting.

When one thinks of McCluer Hall, the term "McCluer Women" often comes into one's mind. The approximately 50 young ladies who are living there this semester are proud to be a part of McCluer and most of them would not want to live in any other dorm.

Miss Kathy Reschetz commented, "I like the atmosphere McCluer has compared to the other dorms. I like the way the dorm is built. You feel like each floor is segregated in the other dorms. I really don't feel that way at all about McCluer."

McCluer is the first dorm on the left as you enter the front gates of the Lindenwood campus. Many visitors, at first glance, think that it is a small church.

"I like the big room size," said Miss Iris Cockrell. Miss Janet Stowers added, "I like the rooms, the dorm mother and the fact that most of the dorm is in unity."

Dorms, like any other organization or club, must have some type of unity or structure. The officers of McCluer are Miss Laurie Gill, president, Miss Karen Kohlstedt, vice president, Miss Jane Henry, secretary, and Miss Laura Prather, treasurer. Ms. Teresa Doelger is the head resident of McCluer.

"We still have our teas," Miss Gill said jokingly. "There is a concern McCluer women have for each other. Because we aren't filled to the capacity, there aren't many roommates. We haven't had cause for a standards board for over a year."

"I like being here," said Ms. Doelger. "I like the people that live here. I appreciate the way people treat my son. I also appreciate the fact that people come to me with problems...that they come to me as friends."

One person commented that the student to student and student to head resident rapport is very good.

"Everyone here has a lot of potential to do something by themselves and as a group," commented Miss Prather.

"I dislike the security procedures," continued Miss Denise Sykes. "I like the privacy...you can do what you want to do. I dislike the individuality between the blacks and whites sometimes."

Miss Barbara Weaver added, "I like the smallness of the dorm compared to the other dorms. I really like the fireplace and cooking s'mors (one of her favorite snacks) on the fireplace."

"I love sitting at the desk into the wee hours of the morning to see what is going on," said another student.

The sentiments of most people were best expressed in the words of Jeanne Robinson..."I like the size of the rooms. I like the people who live here. If it came down to switching to another dorm, I would probably leave school. It's not to say anything against other dorms, but to be so close to McCluer after living here so long and not be a part of it would be rough."

Lions Optimistic About Season

by Greg Zink

With the Lion classic just two weeks away, The Lindenwood Colleges men's basketball team continues to prepare for what most of the players say will prove to be an excellent season.

Under first year coach Dan Odom, the team will consist of approximately 15 players including seven of which have returned from last year's squad.

With so many returning players plus the addition of some new promising players, this could be the year for the Lions.

The entire team shares a strong optimism upon entering the season. The following are comments by a few of the players.

Returning Guard, Paul Boschert, 'I think this year's team has the potential of being the best team ever to come out of Lindenwood College. Last year's team was the best thus far, but if we get things going there is no doubt in my mind that we will have a national champion here in St. Charles this coming March.'

'With almost all the starters back from last year's team plus a lot of sufficient depth, coach Odom should not have a problem with the players. The Lions in the past years have had difficulty winning early in the season, but if they overcome that hump this season, look for nothing but good things from the Lions this year.'

Returning Guard, Skip Hale, 'Without a doubt, this year's team has more talent than any other Lindenwood team. If we utilize it there's no reason we cannot easily win 25 games. The main thing will be working together.'

'With several new faces and a new coach, that could take a little longer. I think with the talent and depth on this year's team we have the potential of being one of the best small college teams in the midwest.'

Returning Forward, Stan Lawrence, 'I believe this year's basketball team will be the best team Lindenwood has ever had with four returning starters plus a great group of new players. My goals for the team this year is to win every game. The key to winning this year will be the discipline of the players by the coach.'

Guard, Steve Bastic, 'With the quality of players that the team will have this year, including returning players with experience in the plays that will be run and the new players that have come out, the team should be a refined and winning one. Our height is average and the shooting ability of our guards and forwards will be a large contribution to our winning season.'

'With a positive attitude on the team's part as a whole and with the coaches' part combined, the team will be the most successful in all of Lindenwood sports.'

Former Lion New Assistant

by Randy Schoening

The Lindenwood Lions baseball team, which had one of their best seasons ever in 1978, have announced that former Lions player and graduate Bob Ramsey has been named as an assistant coach for the 1979 season.

Basketball coach Dan Odom will also be coaching the Lions. Norm Richards had been named head coach earlier to replace Lanny Hradek, who did a great job with LC basketball and baseball in his coaching career. Hradek is now with Evergreen Lawns in St. Louis.

Ramsey, a 1978 graduate of Lindenwood and a native of Overland, Mo., graduated from Pattonville High School in 1974. At Pattonville, he participated in varsity basketball and baseball.

At Lindenwood Ramsey lettered four years in baseball and three in basketball. His junior and senior year, Ramsey started at shortstop and lead off for the baseball Lions.

Ramsey has a B.S. in Communication Arts (Radio, TV) from Lindenwood. He, along with Steve Wood and Randy Schoening, broadcast St. Louis Hummers softball this summer. Ramsey is sports director at WRAM-AM in Monmouth, Ill.

He has a wide background in sports, both as a coach and participant. Ramsey has been coaching for eight years, including both girl's softball and men's softball and baseball. He has also been playing organized baseball for twelve years.

'I'm very happy to be coaching at Lindenwood this year', said Ramsey. 'I know almost all the players, and I feel this will help me in my coaching.'

Ramsey will hold fall and winter practices each Monday on the field from 2 till 4 p.m. Everyone wanting to play baseball this spring is encouraged to attend.

'I feel the new field will give us a chance to practice during the fall,' said Ramsey. 'I feel my association with the players will be my biggest asset. I'm looking forward to a winning season.'

Tennis Team Ends Successful Season

by Randy Schoening

Tennis seems to be one of the fastest growing sports in the nation. That trend holds true at The Lindenwood Colleges, as the Lindenwood women's tennis team has completed their 1978 season with a larger roster and schedule than before.

The schedule included matches against Maryville College, Fontbonne College, Washington University and St. Louis University.

The team ended their season with a 2-3-1 record, with a tie and victory over Maryville, a victory over Fontbonne and losses to St. Louis University and Washington University twice.

The women's tennis team carried a roster of 10 in 1978.

'Our top two players this year have been Kim Hudson and Nancy Nunley,' commented Coach Ann Stahlschmidt. 'Melissa Hudson and Pat McNamara also did a great job.' Kim and Melissa are sisters and both sophomores at Lindenwood. Miss Nunley is also a sophomore.

Other players this year were Carolyn McClean, Paige Awai, Nancy Bass, Paula Pettit, Carolyn Wiley, and Shari Prinitz.

When asked about the team's strengths, Coach Stahlschmidt said, 'I think it lies in the larger number of girls that are coming out for tennis. We also have more girls returning to the squad. It makes it very enjoyable when you see girls coming back for second and third years.'

The weakness of the women's team seems to be on court experience. 'I hope to see more girls with prior tennis experience such as high school and tournament play participating at Lindenwood,' she said.

The schedule for the women's tennis team this year has been brutal. Playing teams like Washington University and St. Louis University make it tough to have a winning season.

'We need to play more schools our own size,' she said. 'I hope to schedule some of the junior college schools such as Fontbonne and Maryville. Playing against the big schools gives the girls excellent experience but Lindenwood needs to play on our own level.'

Another problems with scheduling is some schools play tennis in the spring. But she feels fall is a better season for tennis than spring.

'The girls are better prepared for play in the fall because they are fresh from playing tennis all summer,' she noted. 'I also think fall has better weather for tennis than spring.'

One of the biggest problems at Lindenwood athletic-wise is interest. But with the problems of coaching, she said, 'All the girls respect me, and I respect them. We all get along very well and they all give 110 percent. A coach can't ask for anything else.'

She has coached the women's team for the fourth straight year. As a life-long resident of St. Charles, she graduated from Duchesne High School and attended Lindenwood her senior year of college in 1967. She also attended Southeast Missouri State in Cape Girardeau and St. Louis University.

She has been playing tennis for 12 years. Her husband played high school and college tennis.

Coach Stahlschmidt and her husband have played in many are tennis tournaments. She also jogs for recreation.

Coach Stahlschmidt has done an excellent job with the Lindenwood women's tennis team. She seems to understand the college athlete. She had the team's discipline yet she listens and learns from the student athlete.

The Future of women's tennis is looking better at Lindenwood. There seems to be added interest each year. And with coach Ann Stahlschmidt, the girls have a coach they can look up to and respect. As she explained, 'I enjoy coaching very much, I meet many fun people through coaching.'

Enrollment Highest Ever

The final enrollment figures for the fall term are the largest ever recorded at the Lindenwood Colleges, according to Frank Hetherington, director of admissions and financial aid.

In an announcement released Oct. 24, Hetherington reported that the enrollment for all divisions in the colleges-- undergraduate, graduate, full-time and part-time students-- totalled 1,739, which is an increase of 12 over last fall's enrollment of 1,727.

Undergraduate enrollment is down four percent at 1,379 compared to last year's 1,441, but graduate enrollment is up 26 percent at 360 from last year's 286, according to the notice.

The number of new students enrolling this fall is nearly identical to last year, 487 compared to 489. Of these students, 379 are undergraduate and 108 are graduate. Last year, 372 new undergraduates and 117 graduates enrolled.

Although the number of new graduate students is down by nine, the total graduate enrollment has increased because new students enrolled this past spring and summer and are continuing their studies this term.
