Lindenwood College Tops In Placement

Over the past two years, 97 percent of Lindenwood College students who participated in the College's job placement program were placed in jobs or graduate school within three months of graduation.

"Lindenwood's remarkable placement record is due to the Talent Accomplishment Program (TAP) that begins as soon as a student is admitted to Lindenwood," said Brian Watkins, director of student development. "We work with every student to develop a running resumé that includes their work and service experiences, and their record of leadership activities. The result: a profile of a well-rounded liberal arts educated graduate that is culturally literate and extremely marketable. This is the kind of person employers tell us they want to hire."

"A college should measure its success by the success of its graduates," said Dennis Spellmann, president. "We work with every student in the program until they are placed in a job or graduate school. We are not aware of another school in the country that can match our record of success."

Eighty percent of Lindenwood's graduates receive job offers at or before graduation, as reported in the 1995 Peterson's Guide to Four Year Colleges. According to the guide, Lindenwood's job offer rates leads a majority of the nation's private colleges:

College/University	Job Offer Rate
Lindenwood College	80%
DePauw	70%
John Carroll	66%
DePaul	65%
St. Ambrose University	61%
Butler	60%
Illinois Wesleyan	57%
Lehigh	57%
Amherst	55%
Gustavus Adolphus	50%
Notre Dame	50%
Northwestern	40%

"Many of these colleges did not report any data for job offers," said Spellmann. "We actually track our students to see how they're doing in the first year after graduation."

The TAP resúmes are available in the LioNetwork Catalog, published annually each spring by Lindenwood College. For more information, contact Watkins at extension 4976.

Student Workers Honored

Congratulations are also in store for the 146 students selected for the Fall 1994 LindenLeader List. These students were nominated by their Work & Learn supervisors based on their performance of their work assignments. Stu-

Communications Students Attend Broadcasting Convention

by Angie Miller

Members of the Lindenwood chapter of NBS/AERho (National Broadcasting Society) attended the Annual Mideast Regional Convention in St. Louis last month. The event was held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel. This year's theme: "Striving for Success." Students representing colleges from several states were in attendance.

Jamie M. Byrne, national president of NBS/AERho, gave the opening speech on Friday. Larry Leggett, public affairs director of WGRL/WRMS in Indianapolis, was the keynote speaker.

Saturday morning, students attended a series of industry panels which acquainted members with professionals already successful in broadcasting, including Jean Jackson of KSDK-TV, Mike Roberts, KMOV-TV; Suzi Schrappen, KPLR-TV; Scott Strong, WVRV-FM and KPNT-FM, and Lindenwood alumnus; and Cindy Dooley, KLOU-FM.

Rick Erbach, executive producer for KTVI-TV, was the keynote speaker at Saturday's dinner banquet. He gave a compelling speech on success and not being afraid of failure.

"I enjoyed the entire convention, but probably the most enjoyable part was Rick Erbach's speech, because it was so motivational," said Lindenwood student Kerri Christensen.

The NBS/AERho chapter at St. Louis Community College at Florissant Valley hosted the event. "I was really impressed with the way the Flo Valley chapter organized the convention. They did an excellent job," said Greg Harmer, president of the Lindenwood chapter.

Lindenwood members of AERho are now looking forward to the national convention to be held in Atlanta in the spring.

Safety Service

by Christine Angelo

Many students choose to attend Lindenwood College because it offers a safer atmosphere than larger universities.

Lindenwood is a safe campus; however, security and maintenance are taking yet another step to make the campus even safer. Next semester, the College will provide an escort service for students who do not want to walk across campus alone at night.

Tim Wilson, director of maintenance work and learn, and recent LC graduate, feels this service is important. He is now the head of the program. "We want to provide a safe feeling for students in night classes and assist security in any way we can," Wilson said.

The service will consist of about 10 work and learn students, who will be stationed at different parts of the campus, such as at the doors of buildings. They will wear red and yellow jackets to be easily recognized. The program will work with security to expand the safety of the campus; it will be especially helpful for students who walk to their cars or dorms after night classes.

Wilson added that regardless of the size of the campus, students must always take precautions for their personal safety. The escort service is yet another way for students to do this.

Stress Busters

by Angie Chazelle

Finals are upon us, and many students are experiencing stress. Here are a few tips on relieving this stress:

Time Management

Set a schedule and deadlines to accomplish all your tasks. Budget your time and break down larger tasks into smaller tasks. Stick to your deadlines!

Sleep

Get plenty of rest. The amount of rest a person needs is determined by that individual. You know when you're tired, so let your body rest and relax.

Eating

Eat well-balanced meals. Your body needs all the strength it can get during finals week. It's easy to go on midnight junk-food raids, but try to balance your snacks with healthy meals.

Break-Time

Give yourself a break! After accomplishing a task, take a small break. Give yourself time to reorganize your thoughts and you'll save time in the long run.

Relax

Take a deep breath. Do some stretching exercises. A tense body is more susceptible to stress than a relaxed body.

Attitude

Be positive! Keeping a positive attitude will help you accomplish all your goals.

Reward

Finally, reward yourself by doing something you enjoy doing after accomplishing a task. You deserve it, go ahead!

Student Profile: Jackie Niemeier

by Angie Chazelle

Jacqueline Niemeier, senior at Lindenwood College, does not have the typical internship. Niemeier works for the Missouri Division of Youth Services. The Missouri Division of Youth Services is an agency authorized by law to provide care and treatment to youth committed to the agency by Missouri juvenile courts.

Niemeier is Mentor and Intensive Case Monitor for the Division. A mentor is a volunteer for the Division who visits a youth in the facility. A mentor may continue to help the youth even once they are returned to their home community. An intensive care monitor works with multiple cases of delinquents once they are released from the facility. Niemeier is basically a role model for delinquents who are detained in a facility. A mentor is a friend, teacher, and confidant to a youth. Niemeier not only interacts with the youth but also with the youth's family and friends. The relationship between the mentor or intensive care monitor can be a life-long relationship if desired.

The kids that Niemeier works with usually have been through some type of turmoil. The youths are placed in the Division for offenses such as alcohol or drug abuse, gangs, and truancy. Niemeier gives help to the delinquents in education and employment. She talks to the youths to figure out why they're having problems, and then she tries to resolve it. She helps them become re-socialized, and she encourages them to turn away from their past problems and become involved in healthy activities. "Sometimes they (the youth) are a challenge, but you try to accept them because nobody ever has before," says Niemeier.

Many of the delinquents that come from the juvenile courts come from abusive homes and relationships. Niemeier says that through this job she has learned what her biggest blessings really are. "After working with these kids and seeing their home life—I pray for them," says Niemeier.

The opportunity in the Division has taught Niemeier more than any course work could have taught her. She has learned hands-on about Psychology and Criminal Justice. She says, "Working with these kids has changed me more than it's changed the kids."
