TELEVISION TO AIR 'SIBLEYS OF LINDENWOOD'

"The Sibleys of Lindenwood" is the title of a documentary to be aired by First Capitol Cablevision to St. Charles County residents, August 24 and 26, on Channel 22. The 6:30-7 p.m. presentation was written and produced by Florence Barboro of St. Louis, a junior at Lindenwood. It traces the history of the oldest women's college west of the Mississippi and portrays the life of its founder, Mary Easton Sibley.

Mrs. Barboro, who expects to receive a B.A. degree next May, is majoring in communications with an emphasis in mass media. The documentary stems from a class project for a course in script writing for television and the cinema taught by Jean N. Fields, assistant professor. In cooperation with First Capitol Cablevision, her original five-minute script on the Sibleys was lengthened several times and filming was extended to reach the final 30-minute presentation.

Mrs. Barboro spent nine months producing "The Sibleys of Lindenwood." In addition to writing, editing, filming and musical accompaniment, she spent many months researching the Sibleys and the history of the 155-year-old Lindenwood College for Women.

In addition to the August 24 and 26 cable television airings this week, "The Sibleys of Lindenwood" will be shown to visiting alumni during Lindenwood's annual Alumni Weekend, October 15-17.

PILOT GROUND SCHOOL COURSE SET

Have a friend or neighbor that is interested in becoming a pilot? Have he or she contact the Office of Continuing Educational Services which is sponsoring a course in private pilot ground school instruction, September 14 through November 16, from 7-10 p.m. on Tuesdays.

The course, 36 hours of instruction in a 12-session comprehensive ground school, will provide a background and understanding of flight theory. Instruction will prepare participants for the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) "Private Pilot's Written Examination." The course also will prepare women for "copilot" status if their husbands are pilots.

In a cooperative arrangement with Lindenwood, the St. Charles Flying Service, Inc., will provide one hour of free flight instruction for those completing the course. The course also will cover the principles of flight, air traffic control, meteorology, radio navigation, aircraft operations and specific topics and questions covered on the FAA's written exam for a pilot's license.

The course will include a field trip to the St. Charles Flying Service hangar at the St. Charles Municipal Airport, the use of FAA illustrations and audiovisuals, course attendance by FAA representatives and the possibility of guest appearances by aerospace and airline pilots from the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

The course will be taught by Walter C. Hanneman, president of American Business Micrographics in St. Charles and a professional pilot for nearly 20 years.

The cost for the 36 hours of instruction is $285 plus $35 for the student manual. Registration is limited, so if you know of someone who may be interested in attending, have he or she contact Barbara Ludwig at extension 207.

OFFICE RELOCATION TO COBBS HALL

The Department of Business Administration has moved from the second floor of Roemer Hall to the first floor of Cobbs Hall as part of the David E. Babcock Center for the Study of Modern Business. The recently-renovated facilities house the offices of Robert W. King, department chairman; instructors Robert L. Hulett, Anne C. Perry and John Ruyter; and Marilyn Leach, administrative assistant.

LEISURE LEARNING COORDINATOR NAMED

Barbara L. Ludwig, former program coordinator at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's Division of Extension & Continuing Education, has been named the coordinator of Lindenwood's Leisure Learning programs.

A 1967 graduate of the Lindenwood Colleges, Miss Ludwig holds an M.A. degree from the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, where she majored in adult and continuing education. She has studied at the University of Heidelberg in Germany, and she is certified to teach German in grades seven through 12.

Prior to her appointment at the University of North Carolina in 1978, she has served as a curriculum specialist and a graduate assistant at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; as an intern and instructor at Southeast Community College in Lincoln, NB; as a credit manager for the Nebraska Department of Labor's Administrative Office for Unemployment Insurance; as a junior and senior high school teacher in Nehawka, NB; and as a bindery supervisor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Love Memorial Library.

Miss Ludwig is a member of the National University Continuing Education Association, the North Carolina Adult Education Council, the Adult & Continuing Education of Nebraska and the American Association of Teachers of German.

Assuming the new position earlier this month, she replaces Jane Pace, who resigned the coordinator's position in May.

LISTEN TO (AND) 'QUIT COMPLAINING'

KCLC-FM Radio, 89.0 on your dial, will air a new program dealing with a holistic approach to health and health care problems beginning October 12. Titled "Quit Complaining," the three-minute report will be broadcast on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the evening news broadcast, which airs daily at 5 p.m.

According to Emil Wilde, KCLC station manager, the continuing series will cover many facets of physical, mental, psychological and primary care health issues and health care topics. Interviews will be conducted with a variety of health care practitioners and professionals, including physicians, psychologists, nurses, dentists and osteopaths, Wilde said.

"Quit Complaining" stems from a longer series of health care reports aired on KCLC-FM earlier this year. The program is part of several educational and community service programs scheduled to be broadcast this fall by the 1,500-watt campus radio station.

MYSTERY THRILLER TO OPEN THEATRE SEASON

Frederick Knott's mystery thriller, "Wait Until Dark," will open the 1982-83 theatre season, running September 23 through October 2 for seven performances. The play, written by the Englishman who frayed the nerves of theatregoers around the world with his suspense-melodrama, "Dial M for Murder," had a 11-month Broadway run in 1966.

According to Variety magazine, "This is a killer-diller-thriller that should keep audiences busily gnawing their fingernails for many months Its situations and incidents are shrewdly colorful, enthrallingly believable at the moment and, at the finale, highly exciting."

"Wait Until Dark" will be directed by Edward T. Herenden with set design by Mel Dickerson, both of the Department of Performing Arts.

Other productions for the 1982-83 season include Joe Orton's "What the Butler Saw," running October 21 through November 6; Charles Dickens' classic, "A Christmas Carol," running December 3-18; Cole Porter's musical classic, "Kiss Me Kate," running from February 24 through March 12; and, for the final production of the season, Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," running April 14-23.

For further details and information on individual and season tickets, call the Department of Performing Arts at extension 218.

JOHN MOORE SERVICES HELD

Services were held August 17 at the St. Charles Presbyterian Church for John B. Moore, Ph.D., professor emeritus of economics, who died August 13 at the age of 72. A resident of St. Charles, Dr. Moore was chairman of the Department of Economics at the time of his retirement in 1975, having served 25 years on the Lindenwood faculty.

Dr. Moore held an A.B. degree from Westminster College and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Missouri. He was a member of the President's Economic Advisory Council and the Photographic Society of America. He is survived by his widow, Barbara A.; a son, Richard A. of El Paso, TX; and two grandchildren.

SPEAKERS' BUREAU QUESTIONNAIRE

Another questionnaire is included in this issue of "Communique," and faculty and staff members interested in joining the Lindenwood Speakers' Bureau are asked to complete it and return it to the Office of Public Information.

Expected to be launched this fall, the Speakers' Bureau will solicit civic and community groups in St. Charles and St. Louis counties to see if they are interested in having a faculty or staff member as a part of their programs. Information received from the questionnaire will be used for internal and external public relations purposes and to correctly match the speaker, engagement and group.
