Changes in Access Missouri funding unlikely, officials say

Ashley Christopher Staff Reporter

With a little more than a week left in the current legislative session, several state lawmakers have said two bills proposing changes to Access Missouri funding likely won't pass for now.

The bills, filed in February by both the House and the Senate, support Gov. Jay Nixon's proposal to decrease the maximum grant for students at private universities and colleges and increase the award for their counterparts attending public institutions.

As the grant stands, private university students are eligible to receive up to $4,600 a year. Public university students can receive up to $2,150. Nixon proposes setting the limit for both at

Student flees country after violent dispute

By Jordan Lanham Co-Managing Editor

A Lindenwood student who fled the country last month has been charged with two felonies after authorities say he severely injured another student by beating him with a baseball bat.

Police said that late on April 18, at 900 Parkcrest Drive, Fazull Muhammed, 21, of Bangladesh, beat Punit Mehra, 22, of India, initially leaving him in critical condition and hospitalized.

Capt. Patrick McCarrick of the St. Charles Police Department said that the suspect and victim argued over a woman, who is also a Lindenwood student.

McCarrick said this kind of violent crime is unusual for Lindenwood students. "I can't recall another case like this, where one student was seriously hurt by another," he said.

McCarrick said that Mehra sustained life-threatening injuries, but "the prognosis looks considerably better now."

After the incident, the suspect and friends drove Mehra to the hospital, police said.

When Mehra was admitted, McCarrick said that the emergency department staff called the police department. Officers talked with the suspect and several witnesses in the hospital lobby.

Muhammed was charged with first-degree assault and armed criminal action.

"After he was arrested, he was subsequently released pending formal charges, and after that he fled the country," McCarrick said.

Dean of Students Terry Russell said that the woman left the country as well.

Since Muhammed is from Bangladesh and has left the country, officials do not expect an extradition. The United States doesn't have an extradition treaty with Bangladesh.

Russell was notified by campus security after the incident. "Typically with the handbook, if you're caught fighting it's a dismissible offense," he said.

Russell said that Muhammed was dismissed from the university and appealed the dismissal.

Dr. John Oldani, vice president for student development, denied the appeal and Muhammed was given time to get his belongings off campus.

Police said that because Muhammed is charged with a class A felony, there is no statute of limitations and they can prosecute him if he's ever caught.

If convicted, Muhammed could face up to life in pris-

Mehra suffered swelling and bleeding on his brain as well as injuries to his legs and torso.

His mother flew in from India to visit him in the hospital, McCarrick said.

Terry Russell said Mehra had surgery to remove clots from his brain and is still under a doctor's care. He was released from the St. Joseph Health Center on April 28.

School officials urge students not to panic about spreading virus

By Hiroko Furuhashi Staff Reporter

As the cases of swine flu continue to increase, mostly in Mexico, Lindenwood University has established a new committee to deal with any outbreak on campus.

University officials stress, however, that no cases have been detected and students shouldn't panic.

The virus is being transmitted through human contact. "That is why it is important to wash your hands frequently with soap and water," said Paige Mettler-Cherry, an assistant professor of biology at Lindenwood.

The newly established Lindenwood Pandemic Committee is also encouraging students to wash their hands frequently, Dean of Students Terry Russell said.

In preparing for a possible outbreak of the virus, also known as H1N1, the committee is working with the City of St. Charles and area hospitals.

Mettler-Cherry predicts that Missouri will end up having cases. "Hopefully, for Lindenwood, we can get through finals before we see any cases on campus," she

Last Thursday the committee distributed posters with information about the virus to dorms and campus buildings. "Our primary goal is sending out accurate and necessary information to the students," Russell said.

Meanwhile, last week the World Health Organization (WHO) raised its global influenza pandemic alert level from phase 4 to phase 5, indicating a pandemic could be imminent. As of Friday, the WHO reported 109 confirmed cases, with one death, in the United States.

"The general risk of swine flu is that it is an entirely new strain," and so the human immune system doesn't have a history of fighting the virus, Mettler-Cherry said.

Still, she said, "the cases

here in the U.S. are actually fairly mild."

While the Associated Press has reported the number of cases in Mexico reached 2,498 last week, with 159 deaths, the WHO reported 26 confirmed infections in the country, with seven deaths.

Connie Farrow, a member of the Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri, said she thinks the organization's lobbying over the past few months has been instrumental in keeping the bills from passing.

"ICUM's strong lobbying efforts have been critical in protecting Access Missouri funding for students at independent colleges and universities," Farrow said.

She said she also thinks the letters, calls, e-mails and personal visits to lawmakers by members of the Keep Me In College Coalition helped the group's efforts.

Last month, private university students, including Lindenwood students, joined together to present their opinions to the Higher Education from friendly senators and Committee in Jefferson City. Each student was given three minutes to testify against the proposed changes.

Evans said the bills' opponents, including Lindenwood, "have received assurances representatives that they will be on the lookout for furtive attempts to gain passage of the proposed legislation

In addition to monitoring legislative activity, the independent colleges are continuing to build the Keep Me In College Coalition. There are now more than 5,000 members. Farrow said.

"We anticipate that opponents will try again next year to alter Access Missouri awards," she said.

"A strong and active coalition reinforces to state legislators and policy makers that we are committed to protecting Access Missouri funding and will be a force to be reckoned with should they decide to change it."

Everybody's heard of the Son of Sam, Jack the Ripper, and the Boston Strangler. Well, earlier this month we were introduced to a new brand of murderer: the Craigslist killer.

Boston University medical student Philip Markoff is accused of using Craigslist to lure a woman into a hotel room and to murder her. Is this popular website prone to attract creeps, or is this incident only an aberration?

Craig Newmark, "Craig" behind "Craigslist", started the online classified become one of the biggest web sites out there, attracting over 42 million people in the month of March alone.

But lately the news has been littered with stories of homicides that can be attributed to the web site. In New York, a man was stabbed to death after responding to an ad under the "casual encounters" section. In Minnesota, a woman was shot to death after responding to a help wanted ad.

Craigslist is a very beneficial web site that will probably be around for awhile. These horrific incidents are more than likely an abnormality, but it's kind of depressing that there's now this new way for sociopaths to scheme. Be careful out there.

Some of you may have noticed the army of bulldozers, excavators, dump trucks, and construction workers at the back part of campus and wondering what is happening. Well, we are having a new student commons built, and Harmon hall will soon be the new school of business building.

But as Lindenwood gets bigger and builds new things, what does this mean for us?

I don't think the saying, "bigger is better," is always true. It is easy to get lost at a big school like Mizzou, and I don't want that to happen here at Lindenwood.

Ido think some good change may come with Lindenwood growing. Hopefully the visitations hours will become more lax or preferably be lifted entirely. Possibly, coed housing could become a reality, but keep in mind; both of these restrictions actually make it easier to study and earn better grades.

There are some questions that I have in mind as expansion continues, "Will it be harder to get into Lindenwood University as it becomes larger, will the Lindenwood community still be as close knit, or will I still feel like I am valued here at Lindenwood?"

> I like small community appeal of Lindenwood and how if I am not in my lecture, the professors notice, unlike at larger Universities where one student absent in a class of 300 isn't a blip on a professor's radar.

I really do feel like I matter when I am here and not just some student who pays a tuition bill every semester.

Although I will be glad when the new student center is built and I can go swimming in a pool where I don't have chlorine in every orifice of my body, I hope that Lindenwood will be able to stay a small University committed to its students.

These flowers are just two examples of the many floral arrangements available for purchase as gifts for Mother's Day on this Sunday, May 10.

Mother's Day gives flowery gifts

By Diane Kenley Contributing Reporter

With finals approaching, don't forget Mother's Day is Sunday, May 10.

Annual flowering plants make beautiful gifts for mom that last all spring. Whether choosing a hanging basket or bedding packs to plant, key factors to remember are the light conditions in mom's garden and her green thumb abilities.

If mom has a sunny spot, howstuffworks.com suggests a hardy flower that can take the sun, like petunias, zinnias, geraniums, marigolds, pansies, and some begonias.

The most common colors of all flowers mentioned are reds, pinks and white. Any additional colors are listed.

Petunias, zinnias and geraniums have large blooms and handle full sun the best, says wilsonbrosnursery. com.

With trumpet-shaped blooms, petunias have the widest range in color including purples, yellows and even blues, a rare find in live flowers. Zincome in yellows and oranges. Geraniums grow clumps of blooms on taller stalks.

Abby Deibel, assistant manager of Flowerama in Florissant, recommends gerbera daisies, with large, cheery blooms, also available in yellow and orange.

But if mom likes yellow and orange, marigolds are a great pick available only in those shades. Be aware of the strong scent though, says Deibel.

If feeling indecisive, Deibel suggests a color bowl, which contains a mixture of flower types and colors for sun, no planting required.

Needing partial shade, pansies can look like little faces, and also come in yellows, purples, and blues. Wilsonbrosnursery.com says, "Bronzeleaf" (dark leaf) and "Dragonwing" (winglike leaf) begonias are also partial shade choices.

If mom plants in full shade, impatiens work well, with a wide color selection including corals and oranges, says wilsonbrosnursery.com.

For an exotic look, try New Guinea 314-837-3250.

nias resemble small daisies and also impatiens-one of the best sellers from last year, Deibel says-with larger blooms and tropical leaves.

> Greenleaf (light leaf) or Tuberous (rose-like) begonias do better in shade, and Tuberous also come in yellow and orange, according to wilsonbrosnursery.com.

> Lobelia is a full shade option with small flowers, says gardenguides. com, and comes in the uncommon dark blue.

> If mom has more of a black thumb than a green one, a fresh cut flower vase is an alternative to plants. With luck, Deibel says, cut flowers can last about a week.

> Another low maintenance idea is cacti, only needing water about once a month, and they can be found in unique rock terrariums for display inside, says Deibel.

> Any local florist or garden center should carry annuals and be able to help with selection.

'Memphis in May'

By Kelley Milner Contributing Writer

While students wrap up the school year, junior Emily Milligan decided to take a weekend away to ease the stress.

"I have been so busy all year, I just need a break for a few days," Milligan said. As a stress-breaker, Milligan decided to travel to Memphis, Tenn., for the "Memphis in May International Festival."

The festivities last all month, so finishing classes and finals before heading south is an option. But Milligan picked the first weekend of May for her visit to take part in the "Beale Street Music Festival."

More than 60 live performances of blues, rock, gospel, alternative and soul music were on five different stages throughout the weekend. Top acts included "Jack's Mannequin," "311" and Elvis Costello.

For more information on Memphis activities this month, go to www.memphisinmay.org. Some events cost; for example, last weekend's "Beale Street" prices ran from $28.50 to $63.50, depending on number of tickets bought and how early tickets were purchased.

My Take

When it's all been said and done

As the 08-09 year comes to a close, it seems fitting to do a vear-in-review column. Because of the colossal amount of success this university has had, this may be a daunting task. But here goes.

Several highlights punctuated an extraordinary season. Both the men's and women's ice hockey squads brought home national championships (within three days of each other). Football battled to within a play of the national title game.

Men's volleyball took home its first national crown. Shooting sports won their sixth straight title, and men's wrestling took their third straight.

Oh yeah, and men's water polo also won their third consecutive championship in the fall. And synchronized swimming performed extremely well it its first year of existence. And both track and field teams won their conference championships.

And so did women's lacrosse and roller hockey...

Wow. That's just an abbreviated list of LU's athletic honors this year. I can't do this; it's just not impossible to write about everything. It's a futile mission. Honestly, one column isn't sufficient to explain it all.

But that's what I love about Lindenwood. With 43 varsity sports (and 46 next year, with men's/women's weightlifting and synchronized skating beginning play), there is never tles?

Micah Woodard Sports Editor

a shortage of sports news. And more often than not, it's good news.

I've thrown together 16 different sports sections for 16 different editions this school year, and yet I feel there was so much that I didn't/couldn't

There's a reason for that, though. The athletics Web site claims that Lindenwood has "the largest collegiate athletics department in the United States," and I'm certainly not going to dispute it. Just not enough space in a newspaper.

But that's the beauty of LU. There are a plethora of sports offered. Some of these programs are extremely rare for goodness sake, LU is one of four colleges in the nation that offers scholarships for table tennis.

But anyway, I digress.

Props to all the coaches, athletes and trainers on a successful 08-09, and here's to an even better season next

The Lady Lions golf team won its 10th consecutive Heart of America Athletic Conference (HAAC) championship Tuesday, Apr. 28, at the Indian Foothills Golf course in Marshal, Mo.

The team shot well as a whole. The Lions shot a team total of 329, and their number three and four golfers shot seven strokes under their closest counterparts leading to a team score six shots under second place finisher Avila University.

Marcella Ax of Lindenwood tournament to break 80; Ax shot a 76 to take first place on the 18-hole event.

Also for the Lady Lions, Claudia Rojas (82), Katrina Walker (83), and Grace Weber (88) finished in the tournaments Top 10. All three shot 88 or under on the day. Rojas finished sixth, Walker took seventh and Weber tied for tenth place in the HAAC conference championship.

Also on the roster, Tiara McWhorter shot a 112 at Indian Foothills Golf course.

The Ladies, ranked No. 25, take the victory at the conference and an invitation to the NAIA National Championship to be held in Rapid City, was one of three golfers in the S.D. from May 12-15.

Won, two, three for cyclists

By Zak Hafner Contributing Reporter

The Lindenwood cycling team pulled a hat-trick with three wins in Wisconsin April 18-19.

Sophomore Owen Belton took first in the Men's A criterium race, freshman Alex Bowden sprinted to victory in the Men's B road race, and freshman Zak Hafner won the Men's C road race.

The tremendous weekend added to a great first season with Adrienne Murphy as the new head coach.

"It was great to be able to make a smooth transition from Coach (Darren) Marhanka to Coach Adrienne as the new head coach." team member Francis Hamre said.

The cycling team was started in 2007 as a club sport by Marhanka. He pushed the program to become a varsity sport last year.

Marhanka recruited riders of all skill levels, from Australia to Mis-

With the cycling team's continued growth, it became too much for Marhanka to manage as a coach and professor, leading to the hiring of Murphy as full-time head coach.

Murphy has coached various levels of cycling teams for 10 years and has been racing for more than 15 years; she has been a professional mountain biker and was also a category 2 road

Murphy said that the Lindenwood team really came together at the end of the season.

This week, the team travels to road racing nationals May 9-10 in Fort Collins, Colo., for the first time to compete against other collegiate teams from across the country.

The team has already made appearances at Cyclocross and Track Racing Nationals but has yet to attend Mountain Bike Nationals.

In Colorado, the team will compete in a road race over 80 miles and a criterium race over 30 miles.

"The best hope for the road race lies with [Nicholas] Chevally. If we can get him over the climbs he should stand a fair chance in a small bunch sprint," freshman Tim Norris said.

"Chevally will be well supported through the whole race by Belton, while myself and [Francis] Hamre will play our cards early," Norris said.

Belton said, "Altitude may play a part as well but everyone is affected differently."

Belton, Norris, Chevally and Hamre will represent Lindenwood University in the Colorado competition.

Track teams win conferences

By Aisha Foster Staff Reporter

The Lindenwood men's and women's track and field teams dominated the 2009 Heart of America Athletic Conference (HAAC) Outdoor Track and Field Championships May 1-2, as both squads won their respective conferences in the meet at Fayette, Mo.

Head Coach Paul Wright was confident that his teams would perform

"This year, the women's team was the strongest in team history, so I expected them to be very competitive," Wright said, adding that the men's team also did well, winning by an even greater margin than last year.

According to the athletics Web site, the two victories gave the Lindenwood cross country/track and field programs a sweep over all six HAAC titles in 2008-09, the third time Lindenwood has accomplished that feat and the first since 1998-99.

SCOREBOARD

The men's outdoor title was the 10th all-time for the program and its sixth straight. The women's outdoor championship was the ninth for Lindenwood and the second straight for the Lady Li-

The Lady Lions scored 321 points. finishing 171 points ahead of runnerup Baker. The Lions scored 264 points, 134.5 more than runner-up Central Methodist. Wright was named the HAAC Women's Coach of the Year.

Lindenwood won a total of 17 events at the HAAC championships. Celia Mboua and Jackie Barkechir each won a pair of events. Mboua was the queen of the jumps by winning the long and triple jumps, while Barkechir was the top women's distance runner with victories in the 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter.

Other women's winners were Angela Krausz in the hammer, Lisa Hughes in the shot put, Yasmina Elkasmi in the 1,500-meter and Francine Simpson in the 100-meter.

Individual men's winners were Deji Adebayo in the long jump, Michael Torie in the discus, Kevin Huggins in the high jump, Jevon Claxton in the 400-meter, and Nicholas Yegon in the 800-meter. Lindenwood also won four relays in the men's and women's 4x800 and 4x100.

Wright said that the team spirit in the competition was high and the athletes supported each other in their respective events. "They really impressed me. I even think the other teams were a bit jealous of us," he said. With the national championships scheduled May 21-23, Wright hopes to keep the momentum going.

of the game and ran with it."

By Alex Jahncke Asst. Sports Editor

After a phenomenal regular season of 16-2, Lindenwood's men's lacrosse team continued their success last weekend, May 2-3, winning two games to claim a fifth straight GRLC champion-

"I think [we] expected to win the title. We took control of the game and ran with it," Head Coach Troy Hood said.

"We knew they (Illinois) would be tougher, but we are at the point that we expect to win."

On Saturday the Lions won the offensive player of souri and won 12-5. They put the final touches on their er of the year. championship Sunday when they beat Illinois 12-8.

"They (the awards) mean we are doing our job. I think that Lindenwood Bazansky netted seven goals is great at attracting talent. I think we are also good at developing the talent we have. That is a compliment to all the coaching staffs for all the sports here," said Hood.

Next Tuesday, May 12, will start the MCLA National Championship Tournament, which runs through May 16. The Lions will play Sonoma State University.

They have yet to to get past the first round of the tournament, but their mentality is unaffected.

"Our goal is to win the first game. We are going to take it one game at a time," Hood

"We can't look ahead. I think our team understands that. We have to give our best efforts."

Band 'An Horse' to play STL

By Diane Kenley
Contributing Reporter

Not many bands get their names from debates about grammar, but "An Horse," the indie rock duo from Brisbane, Australia, did, says music website spin.com.

Kate Cooper, who lends guitar and vocals, says a neighbor made her a sweatshirt displaying the phrase after a long discussion on the correct article to use.

When Cooper formed a band with friend, drummer and singer Damon Cox, the name seemed to fit.

"An Horse" just finished a U.S. tour with "The Appleseed Cast," playing their last show Saturday, April 25, at Record Bar in Kansas City.

The venue held fewer than 100 guests, but the crowd was passionate as they cheered and sang along to songs from "Horse's" debut album, "Rearrange Beds."

How "An Horse" broke into the music world is another unique story.

According to an interview with spin.com, they gave a demo to Sara Quin, of indie band "Tegan and Sara," at a December 2007 show in Brisbane.

Quin quickly became a fan and asked them to open for "Tegan and Sara" on their 2008 U.S. tour.

Soon after, "An Horse" gained Australian and American record deals and produced "Rearrange Beds," available in the United States in early March this year, says spin.com.

Later that month, they performed single "Camp Out" on "Late Night with David Letterman," and participated in the annual South by Southwest music conference in Austin, Texas, says the band's official website, anhorse.com.

Rolling Stone's Nicole Frehsee said, "With drummer Damon Cox, Cooper turns the band's debut into relationship post-mortem ...The agonized detail recalls the best of Nineties altrock."

"We're coming to St. Louis in June," Cox said.

Recently posted on the band's MySpace page, they will be playing Sunday, June 21, at 8 p.m. at Off Broadway Night Club in the Lemp District

Tickets are $10 and available at offbroadwaystl.com.
