COVER: As part of this year's recognition of the "Year of the Professor," Lindenwood College honors N. Jean Fields, associate professor of English and communications, who was selected for the college's Faculty Lectureship in April, 1987. A member of the Lindenwood faculty since 1965, Fields is a popular instructor who has left her remarkable talent upon hundreds of students. She was nominated for the Faculty Lectureship by alumni, students and fellow faculty members. As a part of the "Renaissance of a Great American College," this year's annual report depicts Fields on its cover doing what she does best -- teaching. The cover drawing and design were produced by Paula G. Murray, a graphic artist in the Lindenwood College Printing Center and an undergraduate art student. For more details on Fields and her role in the "Year of the Professor," see page 13.

A limited number of copies of this booklet are available without charge from the Public Relations Office, Lindenwood College, Kingshighway and First Capitol Drive, St. Charles, MO 63301. The college invites your comments and/or suggestions concerning this publication, and it hopes you will continue to contribute your ideas and support to Lindenwood, a Great American College.

The Renaissance of a Great American College

Alumni support increased to 42 percent during fiscal 1986 - the highest in the state of Missouri and one of the highest in the United States. This accomplishment is even more significant when one considers that less than five percent of Lindenwood's alumni supported the institution three years ago.

More donors than ever contributed to Lindenwood during the 1986 fiscal year, creating an historic all-time total in contributions and pledges. In 1982, less than 400 people contributed to the college. During the past year, nearly 5,000 people showed their support for Lindenwood with pledges and contributions.

Lindenwood College raised a record $788,000 during fiscal 1986. This represents a 112 percent performance on the college's fund-raising goal of $700,000. It also establishes a record in the fact that, for the first time in 25 years, the college exceeded its fund-raising goal.

Two semesters of record enrollment were recorded during fiscal 1986. A year ago in the fall, 2,074 students were enrolled - the highest number in the 160-year history of the institution. In spring, 1986, 1,898 students were enrolled - the highest spring enrollment in Lindenwood's history.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

(314) 946-6912

Dear Friends of Lindenwood:

Our Great American College truly is in the midst of a renaissance. Increased enthusiasm and support during the past year have enabled Lindenwood to make significant strides toward achieving its long-term goals.

As this third annual report explains, Lindenwood has witnessed many milestones:

- * higher standards for incoming students
- * increased enrollment
- * balanced budgets, without deficits
- * all-time record support from alumni
- * a record fund-raising year at all levels
- * opening of the Saturday Campus, and more scholarship assistance to deserving students

This impressive list represents just a few of the college's accomplishments.

There is a renewed spirit of excitement on campus. As we strive to develop programs, recruit students and raise money for campus improvements and services, we are working toward a shared vision. That vision is to create a renaissance of traditional ideals, modern instruction and increased resources and facilities. Your support and assistance will make the difference.

With you, we can continue the renaissance at our Great American College. Each of you is the reason for the accomplishments explained in this report and for our optimistic view for the future of Lindenwood College.

It is an honor to be associated with this historic and dynamic institution. I pledge my continuing commitment to Lindenwood College's fine traditions as it embarks upon another phase of the renaissance of 1987. Our future looks brighter each day.

Sincerely,

Robert Hyland, Chairman
Lindenwood College Board of Directors

Lindenwood...the Renaissance of a Great American College

Harvard University, America's first and oldest institution of higher education, is celebrating its 350th birthday during 1986. This means that for 350 years, private higher education has been a part of the American educational and cultural landscape. In the early years of our nation only private colleges existed -- there were no public colleges. Today, American higher education is dominated by public colleges and universities. Out of every ten college students, eight attend public institutions and only two are enrolled in private colleges.

Among America's great private colleges is Lindenwood. During 1987 Lindenwood will celebrate its 160th birthday. We've come a long way since George and Mary Sibley decided to open a residential college beneath a grove of linden trees on a hill outside the Missouri River village of St. Charles. Back in 1827 the St. Charles community was recovering from a loss of status because of the removal of Missouri's capitol.

The state capitol relocated further up the Missouri River on a bluff in an area to be named Jefferson City in honor of President Thomas Jefferson. We like to think that the coming of Lindenwood to St. Charles, just a year after the loss of the state capitol, was an encouragement to the community's forefathers.

Lindenwood developed into a first-class women's college and since becoming coeducational in 1968, has continued to live up to its 160-year-old reputation as a Great American College.

The college year which closed on June 30, 1986, was one in which the renaissance of this Great American College was evident in all areas.

A Renaissance in Academics

The heart and lifeblood of any college is its faculty and students. The administrators and staff are the skelton and muscle of a college. Without them a college would find it difficult to function. But without an intelligent and concerned faculty, leading serious and qualified students in a search for truth in all academic areas, the heart and lifeblood is missing to give mobility to a college's skeleton and muscle.

To Lindenwood's 159th year, a new Vice-President for Academic Affairs/Dean of Faculty, Dr. Daniel N. Keck, was called. Prior to his coming, the faculty had been engaged in a study of the college's general education requirements. Under Dr. Keck's leadership, decisions will be made as to the core requirements for all of Lindenwood's students.

The total academic program has been subjected to close scrutiny this past year. The first steps have been taken to bring all academic offerings, on and off campus, under the overall direction of one office, that of the Vice-President for Academic Affairs/Dean of Faculty. Careful plans were laid for a new academic venture scheduled for Saturdays on campus and called "The Saturday Campus." Planning was completed for 1986-87 to be designated "The Year of the Professor" and Professor Jean Fields was selected as our "Professor of the Year."

Our faculty members continued to provide individualized attention to student academic needs during the past year. Most important, at the end of the year we were convinced by their performance in the classroom that our student population, both traditional and nontraditional, is composed of students with high academic potential.

This Great American College is continuing its renaissance in academics!

A Renaissance in Stewardship

Elsewhere in this annual report you will find financial data that highlights Lindenwood's continued progress toward financial stability. For the fourth consecutive year we finished the year with a balance. Along with most of the nation's small, private colleges, Lindenwood has to practice conservative fiscal management. As a consequence, we are pleased that each year our financial situation does improve. The college will continue to insist that income exceed expenditures, that regular payments be made on its principal and that interest is current on its debt. The college's outstanding short term debt is less than $2 million, and continues to decrease. We are doing our best to be good stewards of our financial resources.

A Renaissance of Administration

A college's constituency -- its boards, faculty, staff, students, parents, alumni and friends -- have a right to demand able administration of the college's affairs. This past year we have moved to solidify our management of the college. Three Vice-Presidents -- George Tilden, Finance; Jerry Rufkahr, Administration; and Daniel Keck, Academic Affairs -- meet with me each week to coordinate the college's operations. Reporting to the four of us are all the college's employees, about 250 full-time and another 100 part time. Within the limits of our financial constraints, we can say that this Great American College is being well run. We do have the usual, day by day, routine administrative problems. But as those problems emerge, we seek their solution as quickly as possible.

A Renaissance of Resources

The real success story of this Great American College this past year has been in the realm of developing our resources. These resources include our alumni, our faculty and staff, our volunteers, and a good perception with the public-at-large.

Elsewhere you will read of the strong financial support the college has received this past year from all these groups. In addition, through donation of time and by word of mouth, all these groups have provided the college with resources that make Lindenwood a stronger institution.

A Renaissance of the Future

What the Renaissance of Lindenwood adds up to is a Renaissance of the college's future. We are convinced that the college is on the threshold of reclaiming its position as one of the nation's fine, small liberal arts colleges. We know we have miles to travel, but we also are convinced that we have begun the journey.

Lindenwood's progress toward fulfillment of its educational mission is possible only because of the Renaissance of support by you who read these pages. We thank you for your confidence, and pledge to continue our efforts to make Lindenwood's story a splendid example of the Renaissance of a Great American College!

The Renaissance of

ACADEMICS

New Academic Leader

The 1985-86 fiscal year witnessed the appointment of Daniel N. Keck, former dean of Carthage College in Kenosha, WI, as Vice-President of Academic Affairs and Dean of Faculty, Lindenwood's second-ranking administrative post.

Selected nationally from among 90 candidates, Keck is in charge of all faculty and academic programs at both the undergraduate and graduate levels in addition to the Admissions Office, Office of College Life, Registrar's Office and Butler Memorial Library.

A 1960 graduate of Miami University in Ohio, Keck holds graduate and doctoral degrees in political science, both awarded from the University of Connecticut. In 1978, he received a certificate from the Institute for Educational Management at Harvard University.

Keck served as dean at Carthage College since 1978. Previously, he was Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the College at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, OH.

One of the priorities Keck has established is the development of a strategic planning process which will look ahead to where Lindenwood College wishes to be in five or 10 years. This will include the preparation of a carefully-constructed mission statement.

A new general education program, the improvement of residential life, strengthened admissions goals and grant development are part of this strategic planning and are among other priorities the new vice-president has established as part of the Renaissance of 1987 at a Great American College.

Saturday Campus

Planning took place during the past fiscal year for a new component of Lindenwood College, the Saturday Campus.

Starting this fall, the program was designed as a means of serving persons for whom day and evening classes are inappropriate or inconvenient with work or family responsibilities.

With a current fall enrollment of 75 at the main campus, the Saturday Campus meets a wide range of educational interests and needs. It is geared for those who want to complete or begin a college degree, and those who want to prepare for career change. It is also for people who want to enrich their lives or become better informed about significant developments in the metro area.

Classes are offered Saturday mornings and/or afternoons for 14-week sessions during the fall semester as well as January and May terms.

Following lengthy research, the program was created to offer a quality and excellence not found in similar programs in the metro area. Currently, nearly 30 undergraduate and graduate courses are offered.

Specific programs include classes in liberal arts, selected from Lindenwood's full range of undergraduate offerings; undergraduate and graduate courses in administration, communications and human resource management, designed for those seeking career advancement; enrichment education classes, offering instruction by distinguished leaders, scholars or visiting artists; and community development education, such as workshops and forums on vital concerns affecting the metro area.

The beginning of the Lindenwood Saturday Campus this fall is another example of the college's commitment to quality education - a renaissance typified at a Great American College.

Increased Scholarships

As part of the Renaissance Campaign at Lindenwood, the college steadily has increased its direct support for scholarship assistance to deserving students.

Last year, nearly $500,000 in scholarship assistance was budgeted and provided to students attending the Great American College. For the current 1986-87 fiscal year, nearly $762,000 has been allocated for scholarship assistance. These scholarship awards are in addition to an estimated $1.5 million in financial aid assistance that will be provided to Lindenwood students.

Nearly 200 residential scholarships were awarded last year, resulting in the attraction of more and higher quality students to the Lindenwood campus. Increased scholarship assistance stems from increased giving at all levels as part of the Renaissance Campaign to secure $1 million annually for scholarships to deserving students.

Nearly 70 percent of all residential students attending Lindenwood receive direct support from the institution through scholarship assistance. In addition, nearly 90 percent receive financial aid assistance at either the state or federal government levels.

As part of its renaissance, Lindenwood College constantly is increasing its scholarship assistance to make higher educational affordable

Accreditation until 1992

Lindenwood received continued accreditation from the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) during the fiscal year for its education programs at both the undergraduate and the graduate levels.

According to Gene M. Henderson, Ed.D., chairman of the Education Dept., undergraduate programs have maintained NCATE accreditation since 1958. The most recent ruling extends accreditation until 1992.

The master's programs were initiated by the college in 1977. "NCATE policy states these graduate programs had to establish 'a track record' before they could be considered for approval," Henderson said. As part of the Renaissance of a Great American College, the recent NCATE review "merited unqualified accreditation for the master's programs, which also will be in effect until 1992," he said.

"Fewer than 40 percent of colleges in the United States that prepare teachers have NCATE accreditation," the chairman explains, "but 85 percent of all teachers graduate from NCATE-approved programs."

"The NCATE accreditation is more than a stamp of approval and a mark of distinction," Henderson said. "It also is a guarantee that students graduating from Lindenwood's education programs can obtain certification to teach in Missouri and all other states that recognize NCATE's reciprocal agreements."

In addition to NCATE accreditation, Lindenwood's education programs as well as all others, are accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the nation's official accrediting body for degree programs.

United University Formed

United University was formed recently at the world headquarters of United Van Lines in Fenton, MO, in a unique program arranged by Lindenwood and the firm.

One of the largest carriers in the world, United Van Lines contracted with the college to provide education to its employees as well as those of other businesses and corporations in the area, including John Fabick Tractor Co. and the St. Louis Assembly Division of Chrysler Corp.

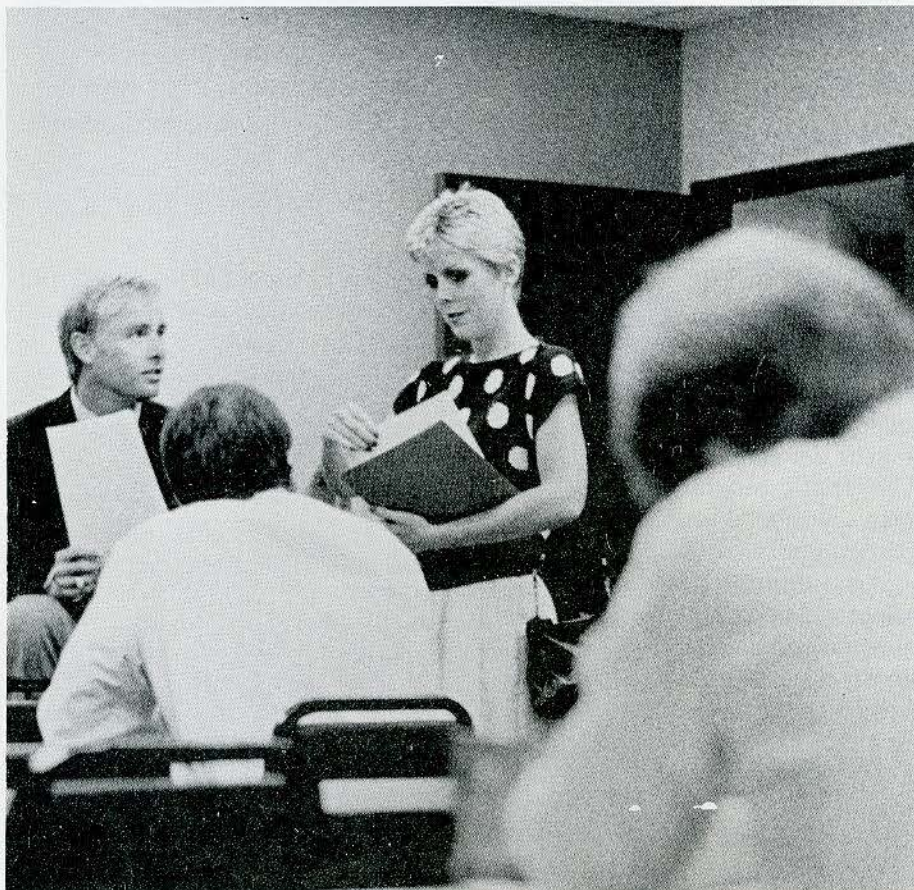

According to Arlene Taich, Ph.D., dean of the Evening College/LCIE, the courses are offered for credit on a quarterly basis at United University, and they can be expanded to meet the individual needs of firms as well as residents in the Fenton area of St. Louis County.

Instructed by Lindenwood professors and United Van Lines management, the courses offered by the college were taken from Lindenwood's undergraduate curricula, but they were tailored to meet the specific needs of employees, Taich said.

'Food for Thought'

Lindenwood entered in a contract during fiscal 1986 with the regional headquarters of McDonald's Corp. in St. Louis County to provide noncredit workshops to corporate employees of the fast-food chain.

Nearly 30 students enrolled in a business writing skills workshop taught by N. Jean Fields, associate professor of English and communications, which stressed business writing and English composition skills, two areas McDonald's said its employees needed.

Off-campus facilities, like the West Port Center, continue to provide service to adult students.

College Enrollments

As part of the renaissance at this Great American College, the preceding fiscal year witnessed two semesters of record-breaking enrollment, the attraction of more qualified students to Lindenwood and a strong emphasis on strengthening and rebuilding the college's residential population.

Last fall, a total of 2,074 students were enrolled at Lindenwood, the highest number in the history of the institution.

In the spring of 1986, a total of 1,898 students were enrolled, the highest spring enrollment in Lindenwood's history.

Although enrollments often fluctuate annually because of changing demands, programs and economic factors, Lindenwood's enrollment continues to show a greater stability through increases in the campus' residential population, in LCIE and graduate programs and through the introduction in 1986 of the new Saturday Campus.

Intensified recruiting and marketing, coupled with greater scholarship assistance, proved successful in fiscal 1985-86 with increases in the number of full-time students living on campus, one of Lindenwood's on-going commitments to increase its residential population.

Perhaps more important than greater stability in enrollment and record-breaking numbers is the higher quality of students who are becoming a part of the Lindenwood tradition of quality education.

The preceding fiscal year showed increases in entrance qualifications for incoming students and in strengthened overall grade-point averages for the student body at this Great American College.

Congress Cites Student

Jill A. Czapla, a senior at Lindenwood, is one of seven students in Missouri to receive the Congressional Gold Medal Award for outstanding community service, personal development and leadership.

Czapla recently received the prestigious award from Rep. Robert A. Young (D-MO) of the 2nd Congressional District. She is the only Gold Medal recipient representing a four-year college or university in the metro area.

To be eligible for the gold medal, students must complete at least 800 active hours in these areas, half of which are in voluntary public service. Among the seven gold medal recipients in Missouri, Czapla accumulated the most in activity hours with a total of 1,232.

Nominated by James D. Thompson, advisor to the Lindenwood Circle K Club, Czapla accumulated about half of this record amount through her involvement in the Circle K Club, the coeducational campus organization hosted by the Kiwanis Club of St. Charles.

Currently serving as president of Circle K, Czapla was involved in many club projects and activities that provided community service to residents of the community, including American Red Cross blood drives, the U.S.A. for Africa fund-raising event and the Campus Out-Reach Program.

U.S. Rep. Robert A. Young congratulates Gold Medal recipient Jill Czapla.

Planning to pursue graduate work after she graduates in May, 1987, Czapla is majoring in sociology and anthropology at Lindenwood as well as English.

Czapla is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Czapla.

Although the awards have been in existence since 1979, Missouri's congressional districts have participated in the national honors only since 1985, and Lindenwood College has been represented in both years. Among last year's recipients of the Congressional Gold Medal awards was Victor T. Avellino, a 1985 Lindenwood graduate currently enrolled at the St. Louis University School of Law.

The Congressional Gold Medal Award, along with the Congressional Medal of Honor for military service or valor in the armed forces, are the only citations given by Congress to outstanding Americans, such as Czapla and Avellino--two outstanding students affiliated with a Great American College.

Commencement Composites

A recent report compiled by the Registrar's Office for the U.S. Dept. of Education provides interesting insight into the 381 students who received undergraduate and graduate degrees at this year's Spring Commencement.

Of the total degrees conferred, 195 were bachelor's degrees, 179 were master's and seven were associate degrees.

Lindenwood awarded 118 bachelor's degrees to women for a 60 percent total and 77 to men for a 40 percent total. At the graduate level, however, the percentages were reversed with 72 to women for 40 percent and 107 to men for 60 percent. Of the associate degrees granted, five went to women and two to men.

According to Registrar Sally Sears, degrees in business account for more than two-thirds of the total awarded. Master in Business Administration (MBA) degrees represent 37 percent of the total degrees granted, and 80 percent of all graduate degrees. Other high categories in addition to business administration include communications at seven percent, education at six percent and visual and performing arts at 5.7 percent.

For an ethnic breakdown, of the 381 degrees awarded, 85 percent went to Caucasians and 15 percent to non-whites.

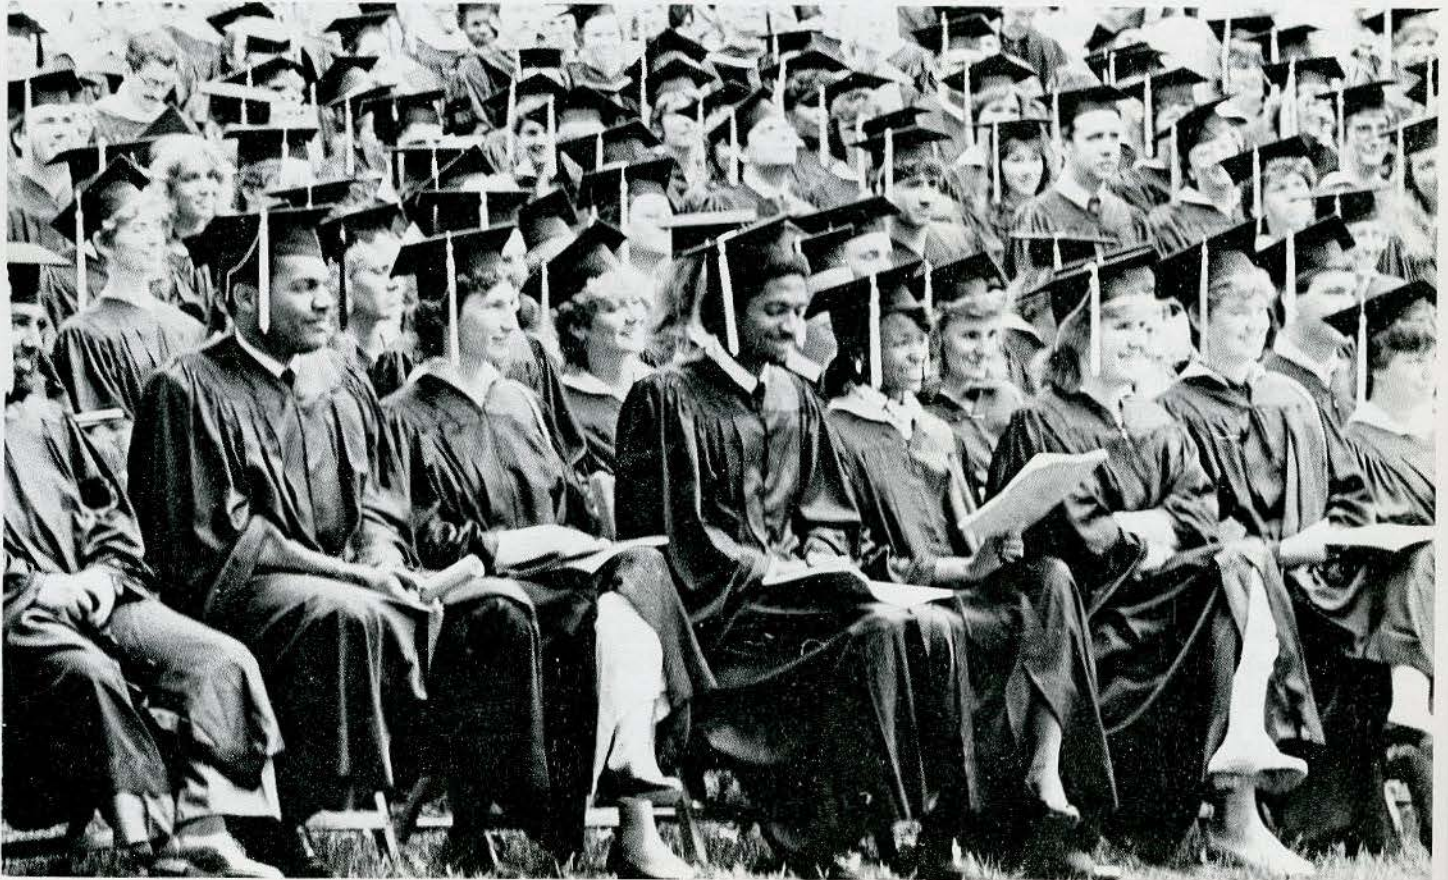

Quality of Students

"Quality and tradition" is Lindenwood's motto, and a tradition of quality continues to be made among the college's student body.

American College Testing (ACT) scores for Lindenwood's freshman class are one of the highest in the area and represent a significant increase above the national average.

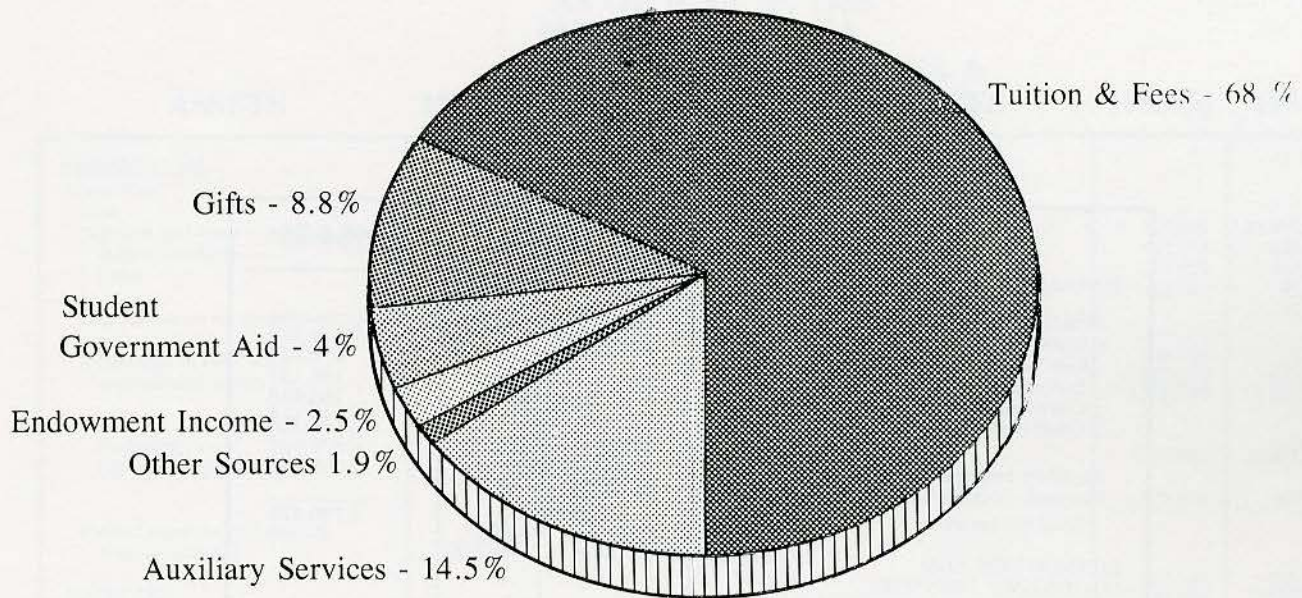

ACT scores for freshmen averaged 21 in 1986 as compared to 19.9 in 1985 and 18.2 for the national average. One of the country's main criteria for entrance to colleges and universities, the ACT is a composite exam in mathematics, English, science and social studies for the nation's high school graduates.

In addition to ACT scores, grade-point averages for Lindenwood students have shown significant increases in recent years, indicating the quality of students is improving at the Great American College.

The Renaissance of

FACULTY

Honors, Awards, Accomplishments

C. Edward Balog, professor and chairman of the History and Political Science Dept., was victorious in his first political bid to capture the Ward 1 seat on the St. Charles City Council.

Jessie S. Bernard of Washington, DC, a former Lindenwood professor and an internationally-recognized sociologist, received an honorary degree at Spring Commencement for outstanding accomplishments in sociology. Bernard, a faculty member from 1940-47, has been an educator for more than two decades and is the author of more than 20 books in the fields of marriage, family behavior, women's roles and American community behavior.

Among those nominated for Emmy Awards in the 1986 local competition of the National Academy of television Arts and Sciences (NATAS) was Peter V. Carlos, faculty advisor and communicationn instructor in the LCIE. Carlos along with Carla Lane, LCIE instructor in public relations, coproduced this year's Emmy Awards which honored the 24th anniversary of the NATAS.

John A. Bornmann, professor of chemistry and physics, was named chairman-elect of the St. Louis Section of the American Chemical Society, the local affiliate of the 1,800-member organization of chemists, chemical engineers, researchers and other professionals.

James F. Hood, professor of history, was honored this year for 25 years of service to the college. Cited for "untiring dedication and service to Lindenwood," Hood was appointed Special Assistant to the President in addition to his faculty responsibilities.

Jeanne Huesemann was awarded the title of professor emerita of mathematics at the 1986 Spring Commencement. Huesemann, who had the longest tenure of any Lindenwood employee, retired this year after serving 29 years on the faculty.

Hans Levi, associate professor of photography, was recognized as the only St. Louis-based photographer/educator listed in a 1986 issue of The Encyclopedia of Photography, an international listing of photographers.

Arthur E. Prell, chairman of the Business Administration Dept. was appointed by the Bi-State chapter of the American Red Cross Board of Directors to serve on the Health & Safety Services Committee. The group is concerned with providing guidelines, direction and leadership in the areas of program content, allocation of resources and relationships with other health-related organizations in the St. Louis metro area.

Michael Castro, associate professor and faculty advisor in the LCIE, had his poetry published in two literary anthologies -- Light Year '86: the Annual of Light Verse and Funny Poems, published by Bits Press of Cleveland, and Nuke Chronicles: Art on End, published by Contact II Publications of New York City.

Nancy J. Polette, assistant professor of education, was the recipient of the Outstanding Contributor to Education Award, an annual presentation by the Lindenwood Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, the national honorary education society. A nationally-recognized authority and consultant in gifted education, she was cited for her "energetic and untiring pursuits of educational greatness for the college as well as the nation."

Martha M. Boyer of Tucson, AZ, professor emeritus of communications arts, received an honorary degree at Spring Commencement for "numerous contributions to the broadcasting profession." A 26-year member of the faculty who retired in 1972, Boyer is the founder of Lindenwood's on-campus radio station, KCLC-AM, and its community FM station.

Diane M. Denney, assistant professor of education, was one of two recipients in Missouri to be awarded a $6,900 graduate stipend from the Missouri Planning Council for Developmental Disabilities. The funding was used for tuition and expenses at St. Louis University where she is pursuing doctoral studies. She is doing a dissertation in special education which could benefit the mentally-retarded and developmentally-disabled populations in the state.

James A. Wilson, chairman of the Communication Dept. and general manager of KCLC-Radio, was elected "Business Associate of the Year" by the local chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

Richard Rickert, LCIE

associate professor and director of the college's Valuation Sciences Program, was awarded an honorary life membership in the American Society of Appraisers (ASA), the Washington, DC-based international organization of appraisers. Rickert was cited for working with the ASA to develop the Lindenwood program and for contributing "to the educational improvement of the appraisal profession." With a national membership of 5,000, the ASA has granted honorary life membership to only five others since its inception in 1936.

Ray U. Scupin, assistant professor of anthropology, is the author of an essay on Thailand which appeared in an issue of Crossroads, an interdisciplinary journal of Southeast Asian studies. The article is one of more than a dozen essays he has written on the economics, politics, ethnicity, culture and religion in Southeast Asia.

Arlene Taich, dean of the Evening College/LCIE, received the "Rising Star of the Future" Award of B'nai B'rth Women. Selected from among 150,000 members throughout the country, Jan Garden Castro, communications instructor in the LCIE, received a $3,500 grant from the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines (CCLM) of New York City for "editorial excellence, innovation and vision" as editor of River Stix, a local poetry magazine. She was among 10 editors selected from more than 100 literary magazines entered in the 1986 annual competition. Castro is the author of The Life of Georgia O'Keeffe.

N. Jean Fields, associate professor of communications and English, has been selected to present the 1987 Faculty Lectureship as part of Lindenwood's year-long recognition of the "Year of the Professor." A member of the faculty since 1965, she has chosen "Humanities in the Age of Information" as the title of her presentation, scheduled April 12, 1987, on campus. Her selection for the lectureship reestablishes a popular faculty event during Lindenwood's focus on the important role faculty members play in liberal arts education. Fields was nominated for the honor by alumni, students and peers. She will receive a $1,000 stipend from the college as well as being honored at a special reception following the lecture, both of which are open to the community. Fields is a popular instructor who has left her talent upon hundreds of English and communications majors at Lindenwood.

The Renaissance of RESOURCES

Alumni Set Record

Alumni are the key reason Lindenwood was able to finish its 1985-86 fiscal year with a record $788,000 in cash and contributions, representing a 112 percent performance on its fund-raising goal of $700,000 established a year ago.

More than $200,000 of the total $788,000 stems from increased giving by the nearly 10,000 Lindenwood College alumni throughout the United States.

The $200,000 is a record amount, representing a $30,000 increase from last year's fund raising efforts of $170,000 in cash and contributions from alumni. It also establishes a 42 percent annual giving record, which places Lindenwood College among institutions with the highest level of alumni support at private colleges and universities in the United States.

The significance of this 42 percent record is even more impressive when one considers that alumni support three years ago averaged less than five percent annually at Lindenwood.

The increase from five to 42 percent in such a short period of time is virtually unheard of at private colleges and universities, college officials state.

The key to alumni response stems from the Alumni Phone-A-Thon conducted in two phases earlier this year. Almost 300 volunteers spent thousands of hours contacting 8,800 alumni throughout the country during the annual fund-raising telephone solicitation. Under the direction of the Development and Alumni Affairs offices, volunteers consisted of Lindenwood students, faculty, staff and area alumni.

As the renaissance of alumni support grows, the commitment voiced in recent years by those who have attended Lindenwood is a visible sign of their belief in the direction this Great American College is moving.

Development Efforts Increase

Fund-raising and development were two key areas crucial to the Renaissance of a Great American College during the preceding fiscal year.

Among highlights of Lindenwood's development and fund-raising efforts, not ranked in any order, were:

- Board Chairman Robert F. Hyland appointed Thomas L. Gossage as Development Chairman for the board's fund-raising committee and for overall college development campaign coordination.

Gossage, senior vice-president of Monsanto Chemical Co., has been cited as "a model board member, one deeply interested in the well being of Lindenwood," said James D. Thompson, a Lindenwood Alumnus who was appointed Director of Development during the fiscal year by President James I. Spainhower.

- An impressive 20 percent increase in total gifts was recorded during the 1985-86 fiscal year.

- Through the efforts of Henry J. Elmendorf of the college's board of directors, major fund-raising increases took place in St. Charles. The community support drive posted a 20 percent increase in gifts and an impressive 30 percent increase in the number of participating donors. Much of Elmendorf's efforts were successful with vital input from the newly-expanded Lindenwood College Board of Overseers.

- Overall, more donors than ever before contributed to Lindenwood College during the preceding fiscal year, and an historic all-time total in contributions was secured. The end result was that the Great American College met and exceeded its fund-raising goal for the first time in 25 years.

- The Lindenwood 1000 Club was established as the college's "premier donor club" based on yearly contributions to Lindenwood. Membership is determined by the total gifts received (Alumni gifts are based on the calendar year, while all other donations are based on fiscal year contributions.)

- The Lindenwood 100 Club honors those donors of $100 and more, up to a yearly amount not exceeding $10,000.

- The college witnessed a greater number of donors providing for Lindenwood through estate planning. Bequests to the college increased considerably.

- Civic clubs and organizations throughout the metro area strengthened their recognition of Lindenwood College through investments. Previous fiscal year total gifts from these groups increased 25 percent from the 1984-85 fiscal year.

- Lindenwood received new major corporate commitments totalling more than $200,000.

- Individual giving by representatives of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors help establish the giving pace with a 35 percent increase in gifts.

- Under the leadership of immediate past Chairman Larry G. Kelley, the Lindenwood College Board of Overseers took on greater and broader areas of community involvement and student recruitment during the 1985-86 fiscal year.

- Volunteers have increased their assistance to the college, as shown in such areas as the Alumni Phone-a-Thon campaigns and the newly-created St. Charles Booster Campaign. Their leadership is continuing to show dramatic results.

- Alumni giving percentages increased to 42 percent - one of the highest in the United States. This increased giving spurred contributions from corporations and foundations that, in turn raised total giving dollars by 30 percent.

- Annual fund-raising campaign drives expanded to include 12 areas of potential contributors to Lindenwood College as the institution continues its renaissance towards the 1990s.

Public Relations

Building upon the foundation established at the beginning of the Renaissance Campaign, Lindenwood's public relations activities this past year have maintained the intensity and diversity typified by a "Great American College."

Continuing its role as a part of total institutional operations, public relations has aided in the renaissance of many Lindenwood successes in the areas of admissions, alumni support, communications, community perception, development, fund raising, media relations and special events.

Positive results are being shown in alumni activities, particularly from such a dramatic increase in support from less than five percent in 1983 to 42 percent this year; through more widespread recognition within the community of Lindenwood's academic leadership; through more positive media coverage of college activities, events and programs; through increased fund raising at virtually all levels of the Renaissance Campaign; and through strengthened enrollment in both traditional and non-traditional levels at the main campus and off-campus facilities in the metropolitan area.

Strengthening perception, improving communications, increasing enrollment, maintaining quality and tradition and attracting more support from internal and external constituencies are the goals of Lindenwood's multi-faceted activities, programs and services that comprise public relations.

The continuation and expansion of these public relations efforts are the catalysts shaping the present and future destiny of Lindenwood's renaissance as a "Great American College."

Board Member Recognition

Henry J. Elmendorf, a member of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors, was the recipient of the first "Sibley Medallion of Honor" in 1986, an award that honors an individual whose dedication to the community has created a strong friendship with Lindenwood.

In citing Elmendorf, President James I. Spainhower said, "(Elmendorf) is a loyal friend who has supported Lindenwood through some very good times and some very rough times. His conscientious assistance and leadership makes him the first recipient of the Sibley Medallion of Honor."

Active in his community, Elmendorf serves on a number of boards, including Lindenwood's governing body, a position he has held since 1982.

Members of the college's boards of directors and overseers have taken an active leadership role in Lindenwood College in recent years. Members have accumulated countless hours in volunteer activities such as student recruitment, committee sessions, fund-raising endeavors and salesmanship for the Great American College.

Continuing Preservation

During the preceding fiscal year, Lindenwood continued efforts to upgrade, restore and preserve campus buildings and facilities as a means of offsetting several years of neglected and deferred maintenance prior to the 1980s.

Among major projects on nearly 100 acres of campus grounds were the insulation of steam pipes affecting all campus structures, the installation of new water pipes, the construction of fences around major trash dumpsters and the erection of new soccer backboards. Nearly $13,000 was spent in concrete work to improve steps and sidewalks on campus in addition to painting the entire wrought-iron fence which surrounds the main campus.

- In residence halls, the college painted and plastered interior areas of Parker Hall and landscaped the grounds surrounding this co-educational facility for 128 students. It also installed new fire doors for safety, a project costing nearly $1,700.

- At Irwin Hall, the women's residential facility for 85 students, maintenance crews and contractors painted the interior, installed new glass fire doors, constructed a suspended ceiling and hung new drapes in many parts of the four-story structure.

- More than $13,000 was spent in repairing the roof of McCluer Hall, the residential facility with a capacity for 92 female students.

- Extensive painting took place for the exterior of historic Sibley Hall as well as for interior meeting rooms. Construction started on a faculty lounge, which will be housed on the bottom floor of the 1865 structure, which is listed in the National Registry of Historic Places.

- New fire pull stations were installed at Butler Hall, a former residential facility which now houses the Admissions and Financial Aid offices and the English Dept.

- Nearly $44,000 was utilized to replace the roof of the Fine Arts Bldg., an expenditure that will lower maintenance costs in future years and lead to an immediate savings in energy costs.

- Maintenance crews constructed a satellite dish room and installed a dish platform station on the roof for improved broadcasting from the college's community radio station, KCLC-FM.

- To provide more modern and efficient facilities for graduate students, the third floor of Roemer Hall witnessed an interior renovation, the installation of central air conditioning and the addition of new fire doors for safety and comfort.

- Other major renovation and maintenance projects took place at Niccolls Hall, which houses the Student Center, and at Cobbs Hall, the Memorial Arts Building and the President's House.

Nearly $45,000 was spent this year to construct a new roof on the Fine Arts Building, which contains modern studios, laboratories and classrooms for the Performing Arts Dept. The new roof will lead to cost savings in maintenance and energy of nearly $1,500 annually. With funds borrowed for the roof construction, the project is included in the $250,000 Capital Funds Campaign recently announced by the college.

Capital Renovation

As a means of further improving campus facilities and historic structures, Lindenwood recently announced a $250,000 capital funds drive to be used solely for renovation purposes.

"The magnificence of our campus and buildings has lost some of its lustre," said President James I. Spainhower. "We're going to insure that our campus and buildings provide the proper environment in which students can study the past, face the future and learn to cope with themselves today."

Designed to raise the funds by June 30, 1987, the campaign will expend funds only for repair and maintenance of Lindenwood buildings and grounds, Spainhower said.

Funds will be spent on sidewalk and step repairs, tuckpointing and guttering, roofing needs, painting and renovation, refurbishing Jelkyl Theatre, construction of darkroom facilities, stabilizing floors in Butler Memorial Library, and improvements in residential facilities and instructional classrooms.

The capital funds campaign is a part of the Renaissance Campaign, a multi-purpose, multi-year funds drive to secure $10 million in cash and pledges.

"These gifts for renovation and repair are 'over and above' gifts to our annual fund," Spainhower said. "Not everyone is in a position to make such an 'over and above' gift, but those who can do so, I hope will."

"Those who can't give now can help in other ways," the president said, "such as giving other assets, providing the names of persons, foundations or corporations that would like to assist in the restoration project or adopting certain projects to fund by alumni classes or clubs."

Spainhower said those who would like additional details on the $250,000 Capital Funds Drive as part of the Renaissance of a Great American College should contact him personally, in care of the President's Office, Lindenwood College, St. Charles, MO

State Energy Grant

The Missouri Dept. of Natural Resources awarded Lindenwood a $102,000 energy grant for the renovation of underground steam lines and expansion joints at the main campus.

The project, completed this fiscal year, is expected to save the college nearly $50,000 annually in natural gas costs for heating campus facilities.

The grant from the state, made possible through the U.S. Dept. of Energy, was a matching one, meaning the college earmarked $51,000 in labor towards the $102,000 project.

Nearly 7,000 feet of underground piping was renovated, which affects all 24 structures on campus. The 100-acre campus consists of 24 buildings, 20 of which are served by a central stem distribution system heated by natural gas.

The grant from the State Dept. of Natural Resources is another cycle in an energy conservation program initiated by Lindenwood several years ago.

Nearly $12,000 is needed to repair decaying and cracked sidewalks found on the Lindenwood campus. The funding is part of $250,000 that will be earmarked to a capital funds campaign for renovation and repair of campus facilities.

"As a 1973 alumnus of Lindenwood, I believe in the special care and attention that a liberal arts education provides to students. The smaller class size, diversity of the students, and the ability to prepare for graduate school assisted my educational progress. Lindenwood works in the best interests of its students," Steve Dieringer, an alumnus.

“When I went to school, Lindenwood was a finishing school. I learned what to do, when to do it and how to do it. We were taught civic responsibility. My Lindenwood training has been a great help to me in my life and in the training of my daughters. This training has been invaluable,” Mrs. “Dyke” Barton, an alumna.

"Constantly motivated by a sense of destiny... combining the spirit of youth with the lessons of maturity...are words that aptly describe Lindenwood today. But, mere words would ring hollow if Lindenwood was not blessed with a team of dedicated people under the dynamic leadership of Dr. Jim Spainhower. The strides made by Lindenwood under the inspired leadership of Dr. Spainhower is a reason for my support of Lindenwood--I am proud to be a part of the Lindenwood team," Robert W. Kroening, a friend.

"My Lindenwood liberal arts education is the conservation of those values that give meaning and purpose to all that I do. Lindenwood taught me how to learn and how to think in an accessible community of prodding, coaxing and nurturing professors. It also taught me to discover myself as a unique human being," Esther J. Muench, an alumna.

"It is a family tradition to attend Lindenwood. As a resident and a business person, I feel that I have a duty not only to support higher education, but more particularly, to support Lindenwood because of its importance to the community and regional area," David C. Baue, an overseer.

“Quality education is a prime requisite for both the material and psychological well-being of a community. Lindenwood is a major contributor of that and, therefore, deserves the support of all those who believe in this point of view.” Clayton Wilhite, a board director.

The Renaissance of

by Thomas L. Gossage
Development Chairman
Board of Directors

Since 1983 friends, alumni, volunteers, and donors of Lindenwood College have worked together for a common goal--to help initiate a college renaissance of ideals, facilities, and resources. Through an expanding base of volunteer support, the Renaissance of our Great American College has begun.

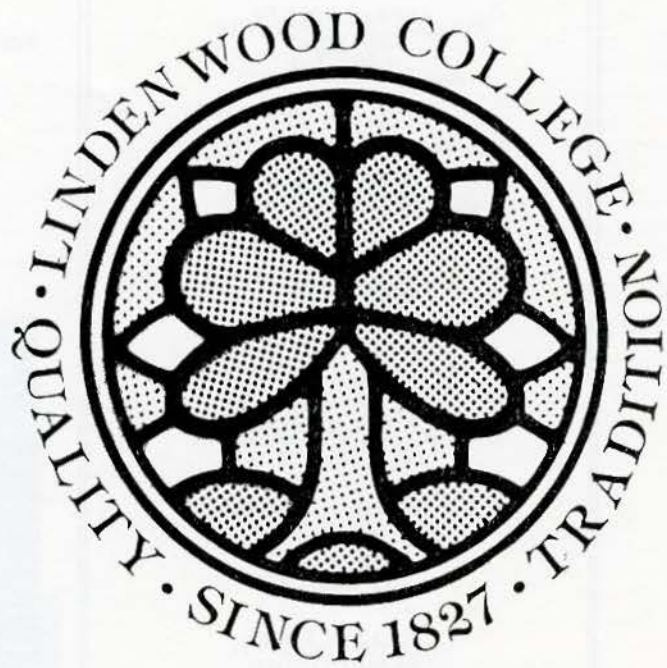

We are now at a crossroads of decision. We have witnessed a great depth of affection and respect for Lindenwood College-- a tribute to its value and the potential of its future. Many challenges await, as do numerous opportunities to achieve our Renaissance goals. The college has a celebrated history and now we have an opportunity to build on its 160-year legacy. The test will be the school's ability to secure increasing support.

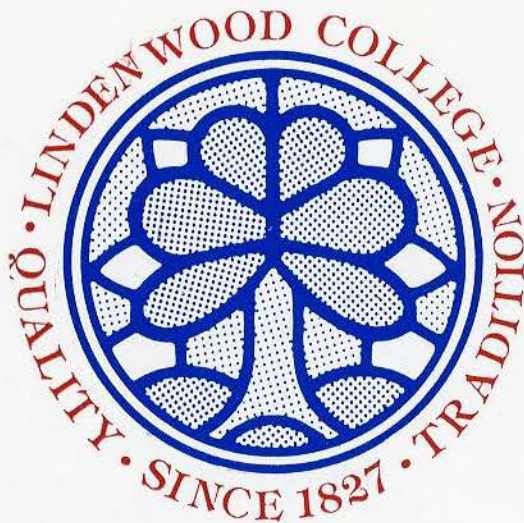

Financial support, obviously, must come from all college constituencies: alumni, parents, board members, overseers, the local community, corporations, foundations, and all our other friends.

Our nation's press is filled with articles espousing the need for human capital or "nurturing" education, liberal arts, and traditional academic standards. These have been central to a Lindenwood education longer than most schools have been in existence. We must challenge ourselves to meet the college's pressing needs for renovated campus facilities, competitive faculty salaries, scholarships to bright and deserving students, and vital endowment funds.

Your involvement has an impact and deeply affects Lindenwood College. Your continuing investments will determine the destiny of this college. Together we have begun our Renaissance, and it is only with all of us challenging ourselves that our Renaissance dream will be realized fully.
