THE COVER

The gay tent of Lindenwood College's Alumnae Day, held on the campus Saturday, May 2, is shown on the cover this issue. Guests were beginning to gather when the photograph was taken. Within one hour's time this was the scene of the reunion luncheon and business meeting. Alumnae Day was a great day to be back at the college—the weather could not have cooperated better.

RELIGION AND CULTURE

By Dr. James Hood

Dr. Hood's chapel address was considered by many students one of the highlights of the year. Notes on the student opinion board contained "rave" notices for his presentation. We are sharing this talk on religious heritage with readers of THE BULLETIN.—Editor.

The majority of college students in the United States today attend state colleges and universities. The overwhelming majority of them have attended public elementary and secondary schools. These public educational facilities have been systematically divesting themselves of religious overtones for a number of years. In striving to be non-sectarian, these schools have become non-religious, almost anti-religious. Walter Lippmann perceived the consequences of this movement almost 25 years ago, when he wrote in an article in "The American Scholar:"

Modern education . . . is based on a denial that it is necessary or useful or desirable for the schools and colleges to continue to transmit from generation to generation the religious and classical culture of the Western World.<sup>1</sup>

Lippmann felt that the result of this was the creation of a "cultural vacuum," in which students were given "no common faith, no common body of principle, no common body of knowledge, no common moral and intellectual discipline."<sup>2</sup> Most college students today have little or no systematic religious knowledge which is on a comparable intellectual level with their knowledge of other phases of culture.

Since the educational facilities used by most of our people have taken little or no notice of religious knowledge, the majority of college students are unaware of the enormous importance of the religious heritage of western civilization. In purging out the religious aspects of our culture, secular education has been forced to present an incomplete view. In other words, schools which are unable to present and interpret the religious aspects of culture are unable to present an accurate picture of the culture in which we live.

The result of this lack of attention to our religious heritage is the increasing ignorance of systematic religious knowledge among our educated classes, a situation which would have been unthinkable a few generations ago. For most American intellectuals, religion is today not considered a respectable field of study, on a par with the "academic" subjects. We all tend to undervalue that which we do not know, and few people today have much real knowledge of religion. This is surely gross superstition — the rejection of religion as an adequate and academically respectable field of study without any real knowledge of it. To ignore our religious heritage is not to destroy it; it is just to remain ignorant of it.

If we ask the question, "Why have we come to ignore and undervalue the history of religion?" then there are several answers to consider.

The first and perhaps the most general is the way in which religious knowledge is given to young people in the traditional church school pattern. This is often the only exposure to religious knowledge for most people. Almost everyone looks back with distaste on this portion of life. The approach was usually puerile; the teachers are normally chosen on the basis of willingness rather than ability. The whole process is usually intellectually childish, leaving young people, who are otherwise intelligent and alert with the impression that religion is concerned with stories about people in bathrobes who speak in clichés. Most students quit attending these classes at the first possible moment, and their religious training often stops there. While their training in other disciplines continues, their religious training atrophies. When, in later life, they compare religion with, say, mathematics, they compare a well-organized high school or college discipline with the underorganized, childish approach they remember from childhood.

The antagonistic attitude taken by many intellectuals also finds its foundation in many features of religion as it is manifested by some left-wing protestant groups. Some of these churches still cling to an archaic literal Biblicalism. The fact is that most churches do not silence the clamor of the old-fashioned "preacher" whose formal education may be non-existent. Many of these "store-front" churches are aware that learning would destroy them, so that they are militantly anti-learning themselves. For many intellectuals, the Scopes trial, after all these years, still symbolizes the hopeless attitude of religion in general.

RELIGION AND CULTURE

Another aspect here is the touchiness of many churches in accepting any searching, scholarly appraisal of their institutional histories and claims. Most teachers of history and sociology know that any discussion of religious belief or history in the classroom more often than not produces an indignant letter from some affronted church. If churches cannot or will not accept the same scholarly criticism sustained by other institutions in our culture, then scholars will retaliate by ignoring religion altogether. In such a case, the churches must accept a part of the blame.

The real tragedy, of course, lies in the fact that, although we ignore our religious heritage, it is still there, and we merely fail to understand it. What do we miss? We miss much in almost every field of academic study.

In philosophy, for example, we study Plato and Aristotle, but we ignore St. Augustine and St. Thomas Aquinas, even though the main impact of Platonic and Aristotelian thought in our culture has come through the filter of Christianity. In literature, we dare not ignore Dante, Milton, or Bunyan, but we wipe away all the background to their work. Students see them in an eviscerated vacuum, dull, boring; in short, religious. The modern dilemma in the interpretation of T. S. Eliot springs from the inability of most critics to plumb the deep Christian content of his verse. It is difficult to see how Shakespeare can be properly appreciated without some knowledge of the religion that Shakespeare knew and took for granted his audiences knew. How can we understand the prose of Carlyle, Macaulay, or Winston Churchill without being steeped in the King James Bible and the Book of Common Prayer?

We send our students to Europe, and they dutifully take themselves to the Sistine Chapel and Chartres Cathedral, and then wonder why these things are significant. We content ourselves in churches with second-rate music, and allow the concert halls to give the only performances of most of the really great religious music. It seems to me impossible to appreciate fully most church music when it is played out of context in concert form. Most religious music is performed today for the music, not the words, but in so doing we ignore the intent of the composer and miss the reason for the existence of the music.

We miss less in the sciences, but we fail to show students that Christianity is a faith, not a science. It is not necessary or desirable to prove it. Religion needs no scientific proof; it is rather that scientists need religion and the humanities to be complete persons.

By foregoing knowledge of religion, we distort and misinterpret our cultural heritage. We deny meaning and purpose to life, and we drain away the vitality of our culture. We make of education a means to greater earning power rather than what it really is, a search for self-hood. We cannot know ourselves without appreciating that significant part of our past and present which has been shaped by historic religion. If the secular schools cannot make this authentic, proper interpretation, then the religiously-oriented schools have an obligation to do so.

Hugo Bauer Gets Grant

Hugo J. Bauer, associate professor of modern languages and director of the language laboratory at Lindenwood College, has been selected to receive a grant awarded by the government of the Federal Republic of Germany to attend the summer seminar of the Goethe-Institut in Munich June 21-Aug. 29. The grant covers round-trip transportation from St. Charles to Munich.

Mr. Bauer, one of a possible 20 chosen from American colleges, was selected by the committee of the American Association of Teachers of German, in cooperation with the U.S. Office of Education and the German Embassy.

The summer seminar is conducted in an effort to demonstrate to teachers of other countries the cultural, economic, and political changes which have developed in Germany since World War II.

Earlier the honors were limited to the elementary and intermediate teachers. During the last two years, however, the German government has augmented the 50 original travel grants, making possible an additional 20 with some being given to teachers at the college level.

Professor Bauer, whose parentage is German, his mother having been reared in Bavaria and his father a native of Wuerttemberg, will be given a concentrated course of study while there. Those in attendance at the seminar will be divided into three working groups.

Professor Bauer joined the Lindenwood faculty in 1947.

Three Get Honorary Degrees at Lindenwood

Lindenwood will confer three honorary degrees at its Commencement exercises May 23.

The college will honor its commencement speaker, Dr. Eric Goldman, with the doctor of laws degree; Dr. Mary Terhune, chairman of its modern languages department who is retiring, with its doctor of literature degree; and the Rev. Robert Rankin, with the doctor of divinity degree.

In addition to receiving the doctor of literature degree, Dr. Terhune has been designated professor emeritus.

Robert Rankin

Robert Rankin, associate director of the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, will have the honorary doctor of divinity degree conferred on him by Lindenwood College at its commencement exercises May 23.

In addition to general administrative duties with the Danforth Foundation, Mr. Rankin carries specific responsibility for the administration of two programs for the foundation, serving as director of the Danforth Associate Program and as director of the Danforth programs in campus ministry. He has guided the planning for the recently announced Danforth Study of Campus Ministries.

Mr. Rankin's professional experience has been in the field of campus ministry. He served in the profession first at Oberlin College in Ohio and later at the Claremont College in California where he was chaplain and associate professor of religion. During 1954-55, while on leave from Claremont, Mr. Rankin was the first executive director of the Rockefeller Brothers Theological Fellowship Program, a project of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund designed to recruit able young men for the parish ministry.

A graduate of the University of Iowa, Mr. Rankin received both his bachelor of divinity and master of arts degrees from Yale University. He served as a vocational counselor at Yale and for two years in the parish ministry. From 1944 to 1946 he served as chaplain in the United Church of Christ (Congregational).

Mr. Rankin is a member of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis White House Conference on Education and in 1962 was chairman of its metropolitan conference on education for culturally deprived youth. He and his wife have four children.

Dr. Mary Terhune

Dr. Mary Terhune, chairman of the modern languages department at Lindenwood College and a member of its faculty since 1926, will be awarded the honorary doctor of literature degree by the college at commencement exercises May 23. Dr. Terhune will retire at the end of the current academic year and will become professor emeritus.

Dr. Terhune, who makes her home in St. Charles at 331a North Fifth St., received her bachelor of arts degree from Western College for Women, Oxford, O., where she was given membership in the college's honor society her junior year. Work on her master's degree was completed at Columbia University, N.Y.

A world traveler, the Lindenwood professor has visited countries in Central and South America, Europe, and Africa. In addition she has toured in Mexico and Canada.

Work for her doctorate was completed at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., where she received the D.M. L. degree. She holds the Diploma de Suficiencia, Centro de Estudios Historicos, Madrid, Spain; further graduate work has been completed at the University of Grenoble, France, in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and at the University of Washington, Seattle.

Dr. Terhune holds membership in the American Association of University Professors, the American Association of University Women, American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, Modern Language Association of St. Louis and vicinity, Modern Language Association of the Mid-West and South, the Alliance Francaise, and Ateneo of Madrid.

Dr. Eric Goldman

Dr. Eric F. Goldman, professor of history at Princeton University, who has been named special consultant to President Johnson charged with "channeling the best thinking of the nation to the White House," will deliver Lindenwood College's commencement address May 23. Dr. Goldman will have the honorary doctor of laws degree conferred upon him by Lindenwood at commencement exercises.

Dr. Goldman, Rollins Professor of History at Princeton, is on leave for his current government assignment. He is widely known as an interpreter of modern public affairs. His career has combined professional writing, public appearances, and academic work.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Goldman has previously received these awards: Library of Congress Fellow, 1947; Senior Fellow, Council of Humanities, Princeton University, 1955; and Guggenheim Fellow, 1956.

In 1962 he was elected president of the Society of American Historians, an office to which he was re-elected in 1963. In 1952 he received the Bancroft Prize "for distinguished writing in American history." This award was presented for his "Rendezvous with Destiny: A History of Modern American Reform." The New York Times critic, Orville Prescott, wrote of the book: "One of the most learned, most provocative, and best written books in a long, long time . . . 'Rendezvous with Destiny' is fascinating."

For three years, Dr. Goldman was a writer for Time magazine, and he contributes both to scholarly journals and to popular magazines. He is a regular reviewer for book sections of New York newspapers. In 1953-54 he lectured in almost all of the countries of Europe outside the Iron Curtain under the auspices of the State Department; in 1956, he was sent to India for the same purpose.

Appearing on major national radio and television programs in the field of public affairs, Dr. Goldman since 1959 has been the regular moderator for NBC's intellectual discussion program, "The Open Mind," which was awarded the Emmy of the New York Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

When at Princeton University, Dr. Goldman teaches a famous course entitled "Modern America." For many years it has been the largest upperclass course in the university, and often he has been voted "best lecturer" by the senior class.

Dr. Goldman's best-known books are "Rendezvous with Destiny," which is also published in a paperback edition, and his most recent volume, "The Crucial Decade, America 1945-1955," which was the best seller of the 1956 season. This book, extended by additional chapters to carry the history through 1960, has appeared as a paper back under the title "The Crucial Decade—And After, America, 1945-1960." Dr. Goldman is also the author of several other books and co-author of a textbook for high schools, "The World's History."

Born in Washington, D.C., in 1915, Dr. Goldman was educated in the public schools of Baltimore and at Johns Hopkins University, from which he received his Ph.D. in History in 1938 at the age of 22. He has taught at Princeton since 1940 and in 1962 was named Rollins Professor of History at Princeton. The same year he was also named a McCosh Fellow, the highest scholarly award Princeton confers upon a faculty member.

AULMNAE DAY—'UNDER THE TENT'

What was Alumnae Day "Under the Tent" like in 1964?

Held May 2, it was a memory-packed and exciting day. Perhaps a letter which Marie Koch Brundige '49, 535 North Edgewood, La Grange Park, Ill. 60528, as class secretary, sent to members of her class will tell you about the event in first-hand style:

"It has been well over two weeks since I attended my first alum reunion—our class's 15th—and I am still bubbling. I had visited Lindenwood on other occasions, but there is nothing like going back for Alumnae Reunion Day! When the day was over, I wished I had gone to the other 14.

"The early morning sun was warm and it promised to be a gorgeous spring day when we arrived on campus. As we drove up the main drive, McCluer Hall entrance had been transformed into a giant bright blue whale—his mouth being the doorway. A sign read, 'Have a whale of a time, alums.' We could hear lively music in the air. We passed Sibley. Each big old pillar had clowns six-feet high painted on them. Their sign said, 'We hope you have fun clowning around again.'

"From our freshman dorm, Nicolls, we heard loud and clear the tune 'Hello, Dolly.' The girls had made a southern belle doll—oh, it must have been fifteen or twenty feet tall. Above her was the welcome 'Hello, Dolly.' Cobbs Hall—where we went to register and have breakfast—was 'Return of the Native' with palm trees, the head of a Zulu maiden—complete with a ring in her nose—and African music.

"We 'signed-in'—such a festive air of excitement. Hesitant inquiries of 'Don't I know you?' and squeals of delighted recognition. Downstairs in the Garden Room we enjoyed an elegant buffet breakfast. The faculty was invited, so there were more happy reunions.

"After our leisurely informal breakfast we had time before 'convo' to look at the other dorm decorations. Irwin girls had a comical pink elephant by the door. A sign overhead asked 'Why was the elephant looking under the tent?'. And below the answer—'To find the alum-nuts.' They, too, like all the other dorms, had gay music playing.

"We walked from Irwin over to Ayres. There were vari-colored streamers from the marquee to the ground—colorful balloons and pennants hung about the entrance. Butler did a take-off on the tune 'Swingin' Safari,' with a desert theme. The Day Students decorated Roemer as a gay circus.

"Convocation began with the invocation and a welcome from President McCluer and Dyke Barton, Alumnae Association President. Alumnae Awards of Merit were made to Florence Bloebaum Null, class of General chairman for alumnae day was Nancy Alvis McClanahan '56, who is Mrs. Sidney A. McClanahan, 818 North Woodlawn Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63122.

1905, to Nancy Montgomery Orr, past president of the Alumnae Association, and to Mrs. McCluer, who was made honorary alum.

"Then followed a panel discussion, 'Know Your Neighbor,' a most unusual and different one from any I had ever heard. There were five women—one was Jewish, one was Catholic, one was Negro and one was Protestant. The fifth was the moderator. Each told about her life, her beliefs, her hopes, and her problems.

"Almost time for luncheon 'Under the Tent.' On the lawn between Cobbs and Nicolls overlooking the golf course was the gay red and white checkerboard tent. The tables were decorated with yellow and white mums. Paintings, done by alums, were hung from the poles for us to enjoy. There were favors for all and a box lunch at each place. The luncheon was catered by the new Mayfair-Lennox Hotel. How fancy can we get!

"After lunch we had a short business meeting—the class secretaries and alumnae council members were introduced, the seniors were welcomed into the alumnae association, awards were made to the best decorated dorms. Irwin Hall, first, won the President's Cup; Cobbs Hall was second. Honorable mention went to Nicolls.

"The new president of the Alumnae Association was introduced. She is Mary Jean DuHadway Craig, a charming gal from St. Louis County.

"After the meeting adjourned, we walked around the campus—enjoying its spring beauty and more reminiscing. Dr. and Mrs. McCluer had invited us all over for tea—a very elegant one as you can well imagine. And all too soon it came time for good-byes.

"All I can say is—I can hardly wait for next year's reunion. This one was great fun."

MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW

Alumnae Day next year will be held Saturday, May 1, 1965. Classes ending in 5 and 0 will be in reunion.

ALUMNAE AWARDS OF MERIT

Three alumnae Awards of Merit were presented at Convocation in Roemer Hall, Saturday, May 2, Alumnae Day. Honored were Florence Bloebaum Null, Nancy Montgomery Orr, and Ida Belle Richmond McCluer.

Mrs. Null was presented by Cornelia Powel DuHadway, Nancy Montgomery Orr by Howard I. Young, and Ida Belle Richmond McCluer by Dyke Steinbeck Barton.

Invocation was given by Dr. Esther L. Johnson, director of the program for preparation of certified church educators at Lindenwood.

Florence Bloebaum Null

Presentation of Florence Bloebaum Null for her Award of Merit was made by Cornelia Powel DuHadway as follows:

I have the honor and privilege of presenting Florence Bloebaum Null, whom I have known and loved these 50 years.

Florence remembers Lindenwood as a child. She played on the campus with Dr. Irwin's grandchildren, Mayme and Orriek McDearmon. At that time there was but one building with a beautiful rose garden, a summer house to the north and beyond that, in the late spring, a field of daisies.

The important interest in her childhood was Tillie, the large colored cook, whose apple butter bread still remains a happy memory. From that time she has always been around. She has seen the college grow into the splendid institution that it now is. Mrs. Null has witnessed the dedication of each building.

She graduated in 1905 and spent another year, 1906, at the college. She has been secretary, treasurer, and twice president of the Alumnae Association. The finances at that time consisted of the $1 per member which each senior paid as membership dues. She also assisted in 1936 in the organization of the St. Charles Lindenwood Club.

President McCluer presided and, along with Mrs. Barton, extended a welcome to those present.

Following presentation of the Awards of Merit, a panel, "Know Your Neighbor," was presented. Introduced by Lillian Nitcher '33, alumnae council member, were: Mrs. Lester Caplan, moderator, Mrs. Leslie Bond, Mrs. J. W. Sonnenday, Mrs. John Joyce, and Mrs. Lee Liberman.

Each member of the panel presented her educational, religious, and social background so that people who "live next door" might be better known. Following this introduction, questions were presented to each of the panelists.

During the years of the junior college sorority, Eta Upsilon Gamma, she served as treasurer, organizer, and was elected national president in 1905. Later when sororities were removed from the college, because it was no longer a junior college, she was instrumental in establishing the Eta Upsilon Gamma Scholarship Fund.

After graduation, Florence Bloebaum was employed for six years in the St. Charles Post Office, and was chairman of the Civil Service Commission during that time. She personally took the St. Charles census for three years. She traveled for Lindenwood one summer.

For many years she was active in the Jefferson Street Presbyterian Church, having served as superintendent of the children's division of the Sunday School. It is with much joy that she now looks upon many of the leaders in the church today and is glad she had the privilege of working with them.

Florence Bloebaum was married to George Null in 1912. They have two daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Lois Margaret, both of whom graduated from Lindenwood, Mary in 1936 as president of her class, and Lois in 1938, winner of the fellowship award.

Mary Elizabeth Liehr is active in church work and community affairs and the mother of two daughters. Lois M. Lane is an elder in the church, teaches English in the high school, and is on the library board. She is the mother of two sons.

"Muffet," as she is known to her close friends, is now sharing in the honor that has come to her husband. In recognition of 33 years of service on the St. Charles School Board, a school soon to be occupied has been named the George M. Null Elementary School.

"Muffet" loves to entertain friends, prepare programs, and enjoys activities in P.E.O. and Literary Club. She assists George, as he is known to old friends, in the grain business he still operates.

ALUMNAE AWARDS OF MERIT

Her Lindenwood experiences and association will be among the happiest of her life. She loves Lindenwood's past and present and shall pray and hope for the future of this college.

Dr. McCluer, it is a privilege to commend to you a kind, loyal and very worthy Lindenwood woman, Florence Bloebaum Null, for the Alumnae Certificate of Merit.

Ida Belle McCluer

Ida Belle Richmond McCluer was presented for her Award of Merit by Dyke Steinbeck Barton, Lindenwood National Alumnae Association president, with the following commendation:

I have the honor to present Ida Belle Richmond McCluer, distinguished and beloved first lady of Lindenwood College.

Because she embodies the qualities of sympathy, tolerance, and understanding which belong to the educated person, Ida Belle McCluer ranks high in achievement with Lindenwood women. They have long considered her an honorary alumna.

Her warmth, dignity, charm, and numerous acts of kindness and of love have endeared her to all Lindenwood women, enriched this community, and spread the light of her character through Lindenwood students and alumnae in all parts of the United States.

Ida Belle was born in Perry, Mo., the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Richmond. She attended Synodical College for Women at Fulton, Mo., and Gem City Business College. On completion of her college studies, she returned to Synodical College where she served on the faculty for two years.

On Sept. 2, 1920, she became the wife of a professor of sociology at Westminster College. She is the mother of Richmond H. McCluer, now chairman of the music department at Winona State College in Minnesota, of whom she is justly proud. She is the grandmother of Richmond H., Jr., and Jean Allison McCluer.

Besides her duties as a wife, mother, and grandmother, Ida Belle has found time to be a member of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, Contemporary Reading Club of St. Charles, and the St. Louis Woman's Club in which she has held various offices. She is an active and devout member of the St. Charles Presbyterian Church, where she has served as a circle leader and as one of the first women elders. She maintains a keen interest in music and attends the St. Louis Symphony concerts, St. Charles Community concerts, and Lindenwood campus recitals.

Ida Belle McCluer is a worthy example of an educator's wife. She has been equally gracious as hostess to President Truman and members of the college staff, to Winston Churchill and to Lindenwood students. She has played the difficult and varied role of a college president's wife well. Her wisdom, her patience, and her moral earnestness have undoubtedly been taxed to the breaking point many times . . . by the press and emotional involvement of campus activity; by the mass migration of alumnae into her home for tea each year; or, perhaps, by President McCluer himself . . . but, always, she has met her numerous commitments with dignity, efficiency, and a smile of patience and tenderness.

Lindenwood, like all Christian colleges, is based on three principles: knowledge, honesty, and service. This, too, is Ida Belle McCluer's philosophy. It would be difficult for anyone here today to measure the breadth of service she has bestowed upon her adopted college.

We are proud to claim her as one of us and feel she justly deserves this honor.

Mr. President, it is a great pleasure and a personal honor to present to you Ida Belle McCluer for the Lindenwood College Alumnae Award of Merit.

Nancy Montgomery Orr

Nancy Montgomery Orr was presented for her Award of Merit by Howard I. Young, chairman of the college's board of directors, who said:

I have the honor to present Nancy Montgomery Orr, a loyal alumna and outstanding public-spirited citizen of Arkansas.

ALUMNAE AWARDS OF MERIT

Although Nancy is a native of Missouri, her home is now the Circle R Ranch in Van Buren, Ark. She is the daughter of a Lindenwood alumna, Edith Smith Montgomery, class of 1912, and the late Harry Montgomery. She was graduated from Lindenwood College in 1935, majoring in Latin and English. On Sept. 5, 1936, she became the bride of Ander Knox Orr, who recently retired as vice-president of the Athletic Mining and Smelting Company of Arkansas.

Since her graduation from Lindenwood College in 1935, Nancy has been deeply and effectively interested in the betterment of her community. The imprint of her ability and competence is evidenced by the many positions of usefulness, honor, and trust which she has held. A woman of extraordinary talent in a wide variety of endeavors, Nancy has contributed much on local, state and national levels in the fields of: Girls Clubs of America, Community Chest and United Fund, Cancer and Heart Funds, Ft. Smith Little Theatre, Community Concert Association, the Ft. Smith Symphony, P.E.O., Ft. Smith Library, O.P.A., Sparks Hospital Guild, the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association, women's association of her church, and countless others. In all of these, Nancy has served as either a founder, executive, or board member. Many of these volunteer hours have come through her membership in the Junior League.

Lindenwood is deeply and intimately aware of her dedication to education, for she has served as a member of the alumnae council, as president of the Lindenwood Alumnae Association, and as alumnae fund chairman. In all of this, her sole concern has been to make Lindenwood a better college through a more effective alumnae association and alumnae council. Her experience as an English teacher in high school and her continuing concern in the field of education have led to her active support of the Ft. Smith Junior College. Through her efforts as a member of the board of trustees, and as chairman of the institution's fund drive, the Ft. Smith Junior College is now self-supporting.

Because Nancy typifies the highest qualities of citizenship and of selfless service to others, because of her deep spiritual convictions, and, most of all, because she is a wise and warm human being, she is eminently qualified to receive the Lindenwood College Alumnae Award of Merit.

Mr. President, it is a privilege to present to you an alumna who symbolizes all of the things for which this award was intended.

Dr. Alice E. Gipson Dies

Dr. Alice E. Gipson, former chairman of the English department and dean of Lindenwood College's faculty for 24 years, died May 15 in Caldwell, Idaho, college officials have been advised.

Dr. Gipson, who received her Ph.D. in English literature from Yale University, was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Tau Delta, and Pi Kappa Mu, as well as the Association of Academic Deans.

Upon her retirement in 1948, the committee on resolutions for the faculty and the administration made the following presentation:

"Whereas, Dr. Alice E. Gipson is retiring from the deanship of Lindenwood College after twenty-four years of loyal service in which she has sustained her position with the utmost dignity, honor, and integrity, she has never betrayed a confidence, she has addressed herself to the problems of the faculty with an instant and sympathetic understanding and wise objectivity, she has upheld the dignity of the faculty and affirmed and preserved their academic freedom, she has raised the standing of the college through her devotion to sound principles of scholarship, and she has been a never-ending source of hope and encouragement to her faculty, and

"Whereas, Dr. Gipson has richly shared with her students her wide knowledge and sensitive appreciation of literature, has taken a personal pride and interest in the achievements of all Lindenwood students, has dealt fairly and generously with them, giving careful attention to individual problems and never sacrificing human values to the rigidity of a system, and

"Whereas, Dr. Gipson has cherished beauty as it is expressed in the creative arts and indeed is a creative artist in her own field, has revered truth as demonstrated in science and philosophy, and has shown tolerance for human frailty and devotion to human welfare; therefore be it

"Resolved, that the faculty express their deep regret upon Dr. Gipson's retirement as dean of the college, their warm appreciation for her inspiring and progressive leadership through the years, and their lasting gratitude for her intellectual honesty, her happy sense of humor, and her indomitable spirit."

CERTIFIED CHURCH EDUCATORS

New tensions in the cold war, civil rights controversies, problems in public and private schools, and personal crises in the lives of adults, adolescents, and children in our culture give us an urgent interest in the role of religion in providing spiritual resources for persons and groups in our communities.

The department of philosophy and religion has been participating for five years in a program for the preparation of certified church educators in order that Lindenwood College may contribute to the ministry of Christian education in our churches. The need to educate leaders who can teach adults, train teachers, youth advisors, and church officers and supervise effective educational programs is urgent. Toward this end, the curriculum of the Christian education major is being re-evaluated and revised.

The discipline known as "Christian Education" stands at the point of intersection between the behavioral sciences and biblical and theological studies. Because of this, the "major" in this field is interdepartmental. Students, during all four years, take courses leading to an understanding of biblical thought and history, theology, philosophy, human development and learning, sociology and physical science. In the junior and senior years, when students begin to "major," they are given four intensive courses in the foundations and procedures basic to the profession of church educator.

Throughout this program, the student will be brought to an awareness of major concerns in the church today: the "renewal" of the church's thought and life, the mission of the laity, and the particular function of professional leadership, ecumenical concerns, and social action. They will explore new developments in adult education, leadership training, and local church organization.

Theory and practice are integrally related in the training of a church educator. During the senior year, students spend a block of time each week serving in a church under the guidance of a trained supervisor. This practical experience is supplemented by weekly conferences with the professor and a weekly seminar discussion group. It is the aim of the department of philosophy and religion to maintain standards for professional competence in Christian education at a level comparable in quality to those in secular education.

The 171st General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. voted, in 1959, to inaugurate a new program in the colleges:

In order to provide an adequate supply of competent assistants for the educational program of the local church, the Presbytery may grant a certificate valid for a period of three years attesting the status of certified church educator to a man or woman who shows evidence of having received a bachelor's degree from an accredited Presbyterian college which offers an approved program for preparation for service in Christian education or the academic equivalent thereof, judged satisfactory in the presbytery.<sup>1</sup>

Seniors with the Christian education major will be encouraged to take positions in local churches directly after graduation. The Presbytery is empowered to certify them for a three-year period. At the end of three years, the certificate may be renewed from year to year provided the certified educator is taking advanced studies satisfactory to the Presbytery, leading to the office of commissioned church worker in education. When the certified church educator accepts a position in a particular church, she serves as an assistant in the educational program. Her responsibilities are specific in nature and are carried out under the guidance of the pastor, or director or minister of Christian education.

Experience with graduates of the college Christian education major indicates a two-or-three year "internship" serves as a strong incentive toward graduate education. Many of our majors will want to go on to a theological seminary after experience in a local church position. At seminary, they will work toward the M.A. degree in Christian education, or the B.D. degree with a major in Christian education. Since students of various religious denominations enroll in this major, the requirements concerning certification and graduate work will vary in different churches.

Lindenwood has an opportunity through the program for the preparation of certified church educators to make a significant contribution to the ministry of Christian education. The department of philosophy and religion stands ready to bring its full resources to this challenge.

Dr. Esther L. Johnson, associate professor of religion, is director of the program.

ALUMNAE DAY

UNDER THE TENT

New Alumnae Officers, Council Members

MARY JEAN DuHADWAY CRAIG

Previously described as "long active in Lindenwood's alumnae work and one of the busiest women in the St. Louis area," Mary Jean DuHadway Craig assumes her greatest degree of responsibility to the college as she moves into the office of national president of the Alumnae Association.

Having received her degree from Lindenwood in 1941, she is the daughter of an alum, Cornelia Powel DuHadway '14. Mary Jean was born in Jerseyville, Ill. Not only did she and her sister attend Lindenwood, but her mother spent several years teaching at Lindenwood following her graduation.

Active in church and community, Mary Jean is an officer of the Presbyterial Board of St. Louis, a member of the Women's Association of Ladue Chapel of which she has been an assistant treasurer and national missions representative, a deaconess at Ladue Chapel and chairman of its workshop on aging, and a volunteer at Children's Hospital in St. Louis.

In addition she has served as a board member of the Ladue Chapel Nursery School, having been its secretary for two years, and as president, in 1961, of the board of deaconesses of Ladue Chapel. Several offices have been her responsibility in the past in the Lindenwood Alumnae Association; she has been a member of the executive council of the Ladue School District; and she has given time as a Sunday School teacher and Cub Scout den mother.

The Craigs live at 22 Countryside Ln., St. Louis, Mo., 63131. Her husband, Gil, is a vice-president of Emerson Electric Mfg. Co. They have four children—Jim, a senior at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Jeff, entering Westminster in the fall, Gary, and Sally, who attend Ladue Public Schools.

SHARLENE AGERTER

After leaving Lindenwood, with Miss Boyer's good training behind her, Sharlene Agerter worked for two years in publicity and promotion at the NBC television station in the Twin Cities. Then somehow she got off the track and went to work at the Tree-Ring Research Laboratory at Macalester College where she has been ever since. In spite of a reluctance to take science at Lindenwood, she is in the middle of doing research in the basic science of tree growth and climate. Photographic work under Dr. Bauer has proved most useful.

Because of a very generous supervisor, Sharlene has been given the opportunity to co-author a number of books and articles in scientific journals. Besides the opportunity of publishing and working under very pleasant conditions, she has been able to spend several summers in Northern Arizona doing field work.

In spare moments, Sharlene managed to take a master's degree in Latin American Studies at the University of Minnesota and attend one summer session at the University of Havana (before Castro). In addition she has been able to do a little traveling, too—spending one summer in Europe, visiting Puerto Rico, and seeing a large portion of Canada and Mexico. One summer shortly after graduation, Mary Kirchherr Shoquist ('53) and Sharlene drove the Alcan Highway to Alaska.

"About three years ago," says Sharlene, "we managed to organize an alumnae club in the Twin Cities and, I am happy to say, we have had some good times together."

"I am looking forward to serving on the council and hope that I will be able to do a good job."

MARGUERITE METZGER HALL

Marguerite M. Hall (Mrs. Neil W.) lives at 2825 Stratford Ave., Lincoln, Neb.

Following two years at Lindenwood, she completed her studies for a bachelor of arts degree at the University of Nebraska where she was a Pi Beta Phi.

Other than three years during World War II while Neil was in the European Theater and Marguerite returned to her native Omaha, the Halls have lived in Lincoln. Neil serves as vice-president of the First National Bank. Their daughter Cathy, husband, and son (grandson "Tony") live in Denver. Just married son Jim is a senior in mechanical engineering at the University of Nebraska.

Like so many others, Marguerite has always enjoyed many volunteer community services—occupational therapy for Red Cross, Community Chest drives, Scouting, judging and teaching dog obedience classes, among others. Currently she is treasurer of the Humane Society. She is a member of P.E.O.

Whether it's a business trip with husband Neil or just a fun vacation, Marguerite has itchy feet and loves to travel. She has been fortunate in being able to see most of this country and Mexico. The summer of 1961 was spent in Europe. The Halls are looking forward to a freighter cruise of the Caribbean next winter.

"I feel privileged in being elected to the council," says Marguerite. "It is exciting and promises to be rewarding. I shall try my best to serve well."

MARIE KOCH BRUNDIGE

After graduating from Lindenwood, I accepted the most lucrative job available—secretary to my father. Shortly thereafter, I began working for my "doctorate." He was a junior at Northwestern University Dental School. John and I were married in April of '51.

This "fellowship" has rewarded us with four "honors"—three fine sons and a darling daughter. And it has enhanced my education considerably. I have my "masters" in three dialects of baby talk; I am working on the fourth. I have successfully passed the course in elephant jokes. My musical appreciation course has been from beginning piano and saxophone through the "Beatles." I have learned the finer points of baseball, basketball, water skiing and ice hockey which all involves considerable "lab" work.

MARY JEAN DuHADWAY CRAIG

SHARLENE AGERTER

MARGUERITE METZGER HALL

MARIE KOCH BRUNDIGE

Recently, I was elected treasurer of our farm "Marjon Acres." This job will round out my education in bookkeeping and agriculture.

My extra-curricular activities include continuing my art studies, growing orchids and roses, antique hunting, dress designing, interior decorating, and reading.

Love bridge, New York City, horses, the Theatre, dancing, and buying "pretties" for Jill-Ann.

In summary I'd like to think that my hobby is being a housewife, my career is being a mother, my avocation is a struggling artist. My goal? Our daughter, Jill-Ann, in the Lindenwood Class of '84.

Drive Begins to Raise $1,500,000 for Science Teaching Center

Lindenwood College's campaign for its $1,500,000 science teaching center got under way following a kick-off dinner Monday night, Apr. 6, at the college.

John M. Black, operating vice-president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., is serving as general chairman of the drive. Vice-chairmen include John B. Mitchell, Mrs. Arthur Stockstrom, Mrs. Horton Watkins, and John M. Wolff.

"Ten years ago the need for this building did not exist," says Dr. F. L. McCluer, president of Lindenwood.

"Today its need is urgent. The number of Lindenwood women who are training for careers in science and mathematics is steadily growing. Enrollment in the sciences has climbed 35 per cent during the last decade; the number of students in mathematics classes has increased 600 per cent.

"Lindenwood needs to expand its plant and teaching facilities. Room is required for additional mathematics classes, new courses in physics, and modern laboratory facilities for chemistry, biology, and botany."

Serving on the campaign committee, along with Mr. Black and the vice-chairmen, are: President McCluer, Charles E. Clagett, Russell Dearmont, Arthur S. Goodall, Wesley L. Johnson, Raymond E. Rowland, Admiral Sidney W. Souers, the Rev. James E. Spivey, Sidney M. Studt, Howard I. Young, Fred H. Doenges, and Glenn G. Thomas.

Invited to attend the kick-off dinner were members of the campaign committee, members of the college's board of directors, and St. Louis area friends of the college who will be participating in the campaign.

Department Assists Foundation

Lindenwood College's department of philosophy and religion, in cooperation with the department of religion at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., has been working with the Danforth Foundation in the preparation of tests on religious knowledge for freshmen and seniors of church-related colleges.

Dr. C. Eugene Conover, Dr. Esther L. Johnson, associate professor, and William Thomas, assistant professor, Lindenwood's department of philosophy and religion, are all participating.

Bernard J. Cooke, S.J., chairman of the department of theology at Marquette University, is directing the work of that institution on the tests.

The tests have been prepared for the Danforth Foundation Commission on Church-Related Colleges and Universities, directed by Dr. Manning M. Pattillo, with Dr. Donald M. Mackenzie as associate director. Approximately one-third of the questions on the two forms of the test are identical.

The tests, to be given to a selected group of the 800 church-related colleges, were administered to seniors this spring and will be given to freshmen next fall.

Results of the tests will be published in a book being prepared by Dr. Pattillo and Dr. Mackenzie as a report to the Danforth Commission on Church-Related Colleges and Universities.

Dr. Johnson Supervises Degree Candidates

Dr. Esther L. Johnson, associate professor of philosophy and religion and director of Lindenwood's program for the preparation of certified church educators, will serve as adjunct professor of San Francisco Theological Seminary in supervising the graduate work of candidates for the degree of doctor of science in theology from the geographic area surrounding St. Louis.

Dr. Johnson assumes this part-time responsibility in addition to her commitments to Lindenwood. She is familiar with this program since she served for four years as a member of the faculty at San Francisco Theological Seminary before coming to Lindenwood. President of the seminary is Dr. Theodore A. Gill, former dean of the chapel at Lindenwood.

Candidates to be considered by Dr. Johnson for this new graduate program attend summer school at the seminary but carry fulltime responsibilities in churches during the remainder of the year while enrolled for correspondence courses.

Club News, Class Notes in Next Issue

News of club activities and class notes from former students, along with Commencement pictures and stories, will be featured in the next issue of THE BULLETIN, Summer 1964.

Class notes have been omitted from this issue since the special number of class notes was a feature sent out to all alums prior to the reunion.

Bishop Cadigan Baccalaureate Speaker

The Rt. Rev. George L. Cadigan, Episcopal Bishop of Missouri, will deliver the baccalaureate address at Lindenwood College Friday, May 22. His subject will be "Some Reflections on Marriage."

Mr. Cadigan, the seventh bishop of Missouri, has served as rector of parishes in Maine, Massachusetts, and New York. A graduate of Amherst College, Episcopal Theological Schools, and Jesus College, Cambridge University, he is alumni delegate to the trustees of Episcopal Theological School and president of its alumni association.

Bishop Cadigan, a member of Lindenwood's board of directors, also serves as a trustee of St. Luke's Hospital, Missouri Botanical Gardens, Episcopal-Presbyterian Foundation for Ageing, St. Louis, the Psychoanalytic Foundation of St. Louis, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital of St. Louis, and the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.

Mr. Cadigan will be host bishop for the meeting of the Episcopal General Convention which will be held in St. Louis in October of this year. He is honorary vice-president of the Evangelical Education Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church. In addition, he serves as a member of the Joint Commission on Ecumenical Relations, of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Honorary degrees have been awarded Bishop Cadigan by Hobart College, Amherst College, and the University of the South.

Born in New York Apr. 12, 1910, Mr. Cadigan received his early education at Mount Vernon, N.Y., and the Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Va. He was ordered deacon in 1935 and priest in 1936.

The Cadigans have four children: Peter, a lieutenant in the U.S. Army; David, a teacher in Thailand, in Bangkok, at Chulalongkorn University, for the Peace Corps; Rufus, a senior at John Burroughs School; and Christine, a student at East Ladue Junior High School.

Choir Has Spring Tour

A spring tour, covering four states with seven appearances, was made by Lindenwood College's Choir under the direction of Franklin E. Perkins. The group sang in Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York.

Later in the spring, the entire 54-voice choir sang at the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., by special invitation. The assembly was in session in Oklahoma City.

Thirty-eight members of the choir left the college Tuesday, Apr. 14, with Cleveland, Ohio, the first stop. The initial appearance of the group was the following day, Apr. 15, at Bay Village High School, Bay Village, O., at an afternoon performance. That night, at 8:15 p.m., the choir performed at Church of the Covenant, Cleveland.

The following day, Apr. 16, an appearance at Shaler High School, Glenshaw, Pa., was scheduled for the afternoon. The next afternoon, Apr. 17, students at a private New Jersey high school, The Hartridge School, at Plainfield, heard the group.

The choir sang for the Sunday morning, Apr. 19, 11 o'clock services at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York. That evening a program was presented at First Presbyterian Church, Princeton, N.J.

The final appearance was at Chatham High School, Chatham, N.J., at 9:30 a.m., Monday, Apr. 20, with the return to campus beginning following that presentation.

Special numbers were performed by a group of 12 girls selected from the choir by special audition. These students form The Choralaires who throughout the year appear before clubs and organizations in the St. Louis area. They also participate in special campus programs.

The choir, before making its first eastern tour, taped four programs of music for "The Protestant Hour," a religious service broadcast and televised over stations KSD and KSD-TV. The first program was presented Easter Sunday morning; the remaining three programs were given the first three Sundays in April.

Included in the programs were: "With a Voice of Singing," by Martin on Easter Sunday; McKie's "We Wait for Thy Loving Kindness, O God," Apr. 5, with Judith Engelhardt, a senior, as soloist; an anthem composed by Mr. Perkins entitled, "Where Shall Wisdom be Found," Apr. 12; and Davis's "Heavenly Father," Apr. 19.

Horse Show May 9

Lindenwood College's second annual horse show, sponsored by the Beta Chi Riding Club, was held at St. Charles County Fairgrounds May 9.

Classes for Lindenwood students only were held at the morning performance. The afternoon and evening sessions were both open competition.

Classes were held for saddle horses, western, Morgans, ponies, hunters, jumpers, walking horses, and equitation—saddle, stock, and hunter seat.

Proceeds from the show have been allocated to the Lindenwood Stable Building Fund.

Fifty-seven Lindenwood students were announced as having made first semester's Dean's List. Eleven, with five of this number seniors, had a straight A average for the term.

Maintaining an A average were: Eileen Dangler, Linda Patt, Paula Bowlin, Freda Dangler, Patricia Sharp, Sheila Reynolds, Claire Armentrout, Gaye Graves, May Jean Gross, Anne Hutchinson, and Mary Stockenberg.

Freshmen who attained a 3.50 to 3.99 average included: Theresa Anthony, Jean Cameron, Amelia Crispell, Nancy Dickison, Janet Engle, Cynthia Graham, Lucia Jahsmann, Pamela Koehl, Carolyn Kusy, Nina Lesh, Barbara Ludwig, Vijaya Malurkar, Karen Mueller, Dale Mulling, Cheryl Ogden, Jill Orthel, Barbara Phelps, Judith Prowse, Frances Scott, Carole Seitz, Randy Steinman, and Diana Wittenborn.

Sophomores were: Susan Biehl, Havala Henderson, Brigitta Ingemanson, Jean Remelius, and Rebecca Trammell.

Juniors were: Lillian Bushnell, John Dinkmeyer, Imogene Elrod, Glenda Gerred, and Jean Grigsby.

Seniors were: Janice Aldersfluegel, Jewell Billen, Bettye Byassee, Mary K. Carrothers, Joan Dykema, Judith Engelhardt, Mildred Hines, Judith Huntington, Shirley McKee, Treijke Meijer, Margaret Rayon, Sue Snyder, Avis Spooner, and Marianne Theil.

Dr. John B. Moore, co-chairman, department of economics and business, Lindenwood College, was invited to be a major participant in the First Regional Consumer Conference of the President's Committee on Consumer Interests at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in April.

Invited by Esther Peterson, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, Dr. Moore served as evaluator and reporter for the panel on "Shopping for Health." "By filling this key role you will contribute substantially to a better understanding of consumer information problems and be of aid to our over-all effort to advise the President on consumer matters," said Miss Peterson in her wire from the White House inviting Dr. Moore to participate.

Carolyn Ledford, new president of the Student Christian Association at Lindenwood College, hails from Kansas City, Mo.

The daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph B. Ledford, Carolyn together with officers of the association attended a spring planning retreat May 1-2 at Holiday House, a part of the Episcopal-Presbyterian Thompson Retreat Center. Remaining officers were presented to the student body in April.

Three representatives from the Lindenwood College faculty attended the 15th annual meeting of the American Association of University Professors at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel Apr. 10, 11.

Dr. Hazel Toliver, chairman of the classics department, and president of the local chapter at the college; Mrs. Lynn Dillon, assistant professor, English, and secretary of the local A.A.U.P.; and Dr. John B. Moore, co-chairman of the department of economics and business, who was recently elected vice-president for 1964-65 of the Missouri State Conference of A.A.U.P., were in attendance.

Dr. Moore also attended the 1964 meeting of the Assembly of State and Regional Conferences held in conjunction with the Fiftieth Annual Meeting.

The Bishop's Company, of Burbank, Calif., appeared in highlights from George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" at vesper services, Apr. 12 in the Lindenwood College Chapel.

This unusual production highlighted Joan's career on the battlefield and in the French court, her trial, her execution — probing the interaction of human nature—a thought-provoking insight into our world today.

Dr. Clifford R. Keizer, chairman of the chemistry department at Lindenwood College, attended the spring meeting of the American Chemical Society in Philadelphia, Tuesday, Apr. 7, where he presented a paper.

His paper, "A Summary of Work Done in Indonesia — Problems and Progress," was a contract team approach to chemical education at the Bandung Institute of Technology. It was presented in a symposium on international chemical educational activities for the division of chemical education at the spring meeting.

Marianne Sawyer, a junior from El Dorado, Kans., was elected vice-president of the student body at Mar. 10 elections.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D. Sawyer, she is a speech major with an emphasis in theatre. She has been serving as house president of Cobbs Hall this year.

Patricia Sharpe, a junior from Manitowoc, Wis., has been elected chairman of Lindenwood College's honor board.

Pat is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Sharpe, 918 N. 12th.

Dr. B. Davie Napier, professor of Old Testament criticism and interpretation at Yale Divinity School, was guest speaker for the annual Religion-in-Life week at Lindenwood College Feb. 2-5. He delivered four addresses on the contemporary significance of stories from Genesis, gave an informal talk to the students, and met for informal question periods during his visit.

Dr. Napier's first address, entitled "The Garden," was given at vespers Feb. 2. Feb. 3 he spoke to the students on "The Brothers." His third address in the series, "The Flood," was delivered Feb. 4. Professor Napier's concluding address was presented Feb. 5 on "The Tower."

His informal talk to students Feb. 4 in the Fine Arts parlor concerned "The Old Testament Prophets and their Relationship to the Present."

Recently appointed Master of Calhoun College, one of Yale's 12 residential colleges for undergraduates, Dr. Napier will assume his new duties July 1, 1964.

An ordained minister of the United Church, he was born in Kuling, China, the son of missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. A. Y. Napier. He came to the United States at the age of 15 after having attended American Schools in Nanking and Shanghai, and the Canadian Academy in Kobe, Japan.

Dr. Napier, a graduate of Howard College, received his bachelor of divinity and Ph.D. degrees from Yale University. Wesleyan University awarded him the honorary doctor of divinity degree in 1961.

On the Yale faculty since 1949, Professor Napier spent part of the summer of 1953 and all of the academic year 1954-55 in Heidelberg, Germany, on a Fulbright Act exchange grant doing research on form-criticism, and on Old Testament interpretation. A month in the spring of 1955 was spent in Palestine visiting several current archeological "digs" and participating briefly in the activities of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem.

From 1944-1946, he was minister of the University Church, and chaplain and chairman of the department of religion at Alfred University. He went to the University of Georgia in 1946 as university chaplain and chairman of religion.

As part of Religion-in-Life-Week, an exhibit of religious art, loaned to the college by the Metropolitan Church Federation of Greater St. Louis, was shown in the college's art gallery in Roemer Hall.

Wehmer Goes Abroad

John Wehmer, assistant professor of art at Lindenwood College, sailed from New York Feb. 15 aboard the Italian liner "Vulcania" for Naples via Lisbon, Gibraltar, and Barcelona.

On leave of absence from the college, he went directly to Rome, where he planned to live until May, doing some painting as well as sightseeing. "I really want to gather ideas in sketches and paintings which I can use in my studio upon my return," the artist stated.

He is taking along some of his wood block prints to show gallery people in Europe and may exchange some for those of other artists.

Mr. Wehmer plans to travel to Athens, Greece, Switzerland, Germany, France, and Holland before returning home in August.

Social Chairman

Rose Lyn Zanville, a Lindenwood College junior, was announced as the college's new Social Chairman at the Feb. 1 mixer. She will serve in this capacity until that time next year.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mac C. Feldman, 6337 Bandera, Dallas, Tex., and of the late attorney Robert Norton Zanville, Toledo, O.

She is a student counselor in Cobbs Hall, a representative member of the Honor Board, serves on her dormitory house staff, and is a member of the Student Curriculum Board. She also does volunteer work at the Boys Club, St. Charles, Mo.

An English major, Miss Zanville plans to graduate in three years and attends Southern Methodist University during the summer sessions.

She was graduated from the Jesup W. Scott High School, Toledo, O, in 1962 where she was selected by her classmates as "All-Scott Girl." She was active in student council, editor of her school paper, and a youth reporter for the Toledo BLADE.

Attend Politics Conference

Walker S. Edwards, associate professor, political science, Lindenwood College, and five Lindenwood College students attended a conference sponsored by the Missouri Center for Education in Politics at Westminster College Apr. 25.

Conference theme was "Politics and the News Media," and the faculty and students attending from colleges and universities throughout Missouri heard addresses by Howard Streater, the new News Director for Channel 2, KTVI, and James Engelhardt, cartoonist, Post-Dispatch.

Lindenwood College students who were present were: Nancy Amazeen, N. Hanover, Mass.; Barbara Sell, Bay Village, Ohio; Gail Stiefel, Greenwich, Conn.; Cheryl Ranchino, Herrin, Ill.; and Mary Stockenberg, St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. F. R. Morton Joins Faculty

Dr. F. Rand Morton has accepted appointment as professor of Spanish and chairman of the department of modern languages at Lindenwood College, President F. L. McCluer has announced. He will assume his duties in September, 1964.

He replaces Dr. Mary Terhune who is retiring at the end of this academic year.

Dr. Morton has been serving as head of the language laboratories at the University of Michigan while doing research for the last five years in the teaching of foreign languages under a major grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

At Lindenwood, he will apply the new approaches which he has developed through research. His method is a combination of programmed learning and language laboratory work, wherein each student proceeds at her own rate in a self-instruction program under the guidance of the professor. In addition, students will meet with the professor for a lecture once a week, in general linguistics, applicable to any of several languages.

Expected to take 200 to 300 hours, depending upon the progress of the individual student, the self-instruction program does not require previous knowledge of the languages. Following this work, the students will be able to understand and speak the language with the fluency of a native of seven or eight years of age. The next step introduces literature courses in the new language.

The college's language laboratory was installed in 1961 and has been under the direction of Hugo Bauer, associate professor of German.

Dr. Morton, before joining the faculty at the University of Michigan in 1958, was assistant professor of Spanish literature, University of California, for three years; teaching fellow, romance languages, Harvard University, 1951-54; and teacher in institutions in Mexico and Santiago de Chile, 1947-1950. While in the latter position in Latin America he conducted seminars in the teaching of English as a second language.

Dr. Morton was responsible for the development and supervision of an experimental intensive course in spoken Spanish at Harvard University. He also developed and supervised language laboratory courses in the lower division at the University of California.

The author of numerous books and monographs, two of his most recent publications are a second revised and enlarged edition of "An Experimental Programmed Audio-Lingual Self-Instructional Course in Spoken Spanish: Program Prime," published in January, 1964, and "The Instrumentation of Second Language Learning," scheduled for September, 1964, publication.

His wife is a concert pianist, having performed internationally under the professional name of Reah Sadowsky. They have one son, Randy, 12 years old.

Dr. Russell Crider on Lindenwood Board

Dr. Russell J. Crider, St. Charles physician and surgeon, has accepted an appointment for election to the board of directors of Lindenwood College, President F. L. McCluer has announced.

Dr. Crider was nominated at the February board meeting to fill a vacancy on the advisory board. His election will be submitted to the Synod of Missouri of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. for approval at its June meeting; he will assume his responsibilities at the next board meeting.

Dr. Crider, a graduate of Washington University, served his internship at Barnes Hospital and took his junior year of medical training at Freiberg University in Germany.

An elder in the St. Charles Presbyterian Church, he holds membership in the American College of Surgeons and on the American Board of General Surgery.

He has been on the surgical staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, since 1948; he served as president of the Boys' Club board of directors and the Retarded Children's Association of St. Charles County, and currently is a member of both boards of directors.

Dr. Crider recently appeared as a panel member on the Family Life Education program series sponsored by the Family and Children's Service and the Board of Education, St. Charles.
