Fire at Lucky's Leads to Campus Blackout

by Bryan S. Audrey
LindenWorld Contributor

A St. Charles landmark died Wednesday evening, February 5. Lucky's Liquor & Sporting Goods was destroyed by fire.

According to Mark Ehele, information officer for the St. Charles fire department, a call came in at 10:30 reporting smoke coming out of the west end of the building housing Lucky's and The Computer and Copier Store.

Unit 9420 of the city's fire department was dispatched. They responded and then called for additional units. St. Charles County, Pattonville, and Cottleville fire departments responded.

In all, 12 vehicles and 50 firefighters were needed to battle the blaze. Fighting the fire was complicated by the fact that high voltage wires had to be shut down, causing a blackout on campus for about an hour. Another problem the firemen ran into was that Lucky's also contained live rounds of ammunition, some of which went off. No people were injured.

The fire was brought under control within an hour. However, they could not stop the fire from spreading to the adjacent computer store. Eventually, both stores were engulfed in flames.

The fire was put out at 2:00 a.m. Thursday morning. Damage to both stores and the structure was estimated at 500,000 dollars.

Thursday, February 6, the fire was being investigated by the state fire marshal and investigators from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms. As of that time, there was no report from either agency on the exact nature of the blaze.

During the fire a crowd, estimated at 200 by local police, gathered to watch the fire. Police also shut down all four lanes of traffic on First Capitol Drive due to the fire.

One fire fighter was injured. Gary Bird, 28, was taken to St. Joseph's Health Center in St. Charles and was being treated for a strained back.

Lucky's has been a mainstay for the community and Lindenwood for thirty-three years. It did more than serve the needs of people--it was also a gathering place of sorts for local hunters. During any season, you could walk into Lucky's and strike up a conversation with the group of colorful characters gathered there.

The owner of Lucky's, Tom McKinzie, presided over the group of men gathered there. He was always quick with a new joke or advice concerning weapons or bourbon.

McKinzie said he was shocked by the fire since he had just locked up the store shortly before the fire was reported. He also said that he would be all right if his insurance held up.

As far as this reporter is concerned, I wish McKinzie the best for the future and hope he can restore Lucky's to what it once was--a hub of sporting lore and friend to the students of Lindenwood College.

Greek System on the Way to Lindenwood

by Amy Crangle
LindenWorld Writer

Greek life is well on its way to Lindenwood College. The efforts to bring a Greek system to the campus were started last year by Tim Wilson, a student at Lindenwood. This year, he was joined by fellow student Jamie Dimbeck. Together, they decided to actually initiate the process and get the ball rolling toward Greek life.

Wilson and Dimbeck are receiving help from Susan Dunton, a Lindenwood faculty member and former dean of students at the University of Connecticut. She contacted NIC (National Interfraternity Conference) to find out what to do to begin the process. Professor Bo Hagan, a former ATO advisor, and Coach Jeff Driskill, a Lambda Chi from Mizzou have also offered their help. Lindenwood students who are members of fraternities and sororities from previously attended colleges will also be of great assistance.

President Dennis Spellmann has played an integral part by supporting the efforts of Wilson and Dimbeck. He plans to help out by providing housing for the fraternities and sororities.

Immediate plans include a meeting of prospective national fraternities and sororities. No date has been set. Wilson has sent out information to these organizations and is awaiting replies.

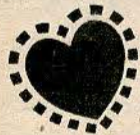

Student response to the possibility of Greek life has been generally positive. "Students are a little wishy-washy because they haven't seen any proof," says Wilson. "But everybody's excited about it."

It is the general consensus of Lindenwood students that the social life on campus is somewhat lacking, if not non-existent. Wilson feels that a Greek

Welcome to the 90's style of valentines. Valentines are the expression of affection through messages and gifts to loved ones on Valentine's Day.

Today, we celebrate Valentine's Day with modified changes. Fate doesn't control our destiny or choose our mate. It seems that we send valentines that are more comical than sentimental.

Newspapers everywhere print valentine messages. They range from serious to corny or traditional to original.

However, this year, Valentine's Day isn't the only romantic holiday. Since it's leap year, February 29 also has romantic overtones.

Leap year is known as "Ladies' Day." According to ancient customs, it is the one day in four years that a woman can propose marriage.

This custom began during the Middle Ages. In 1288, the Scottish Parliament enforced a law about leap year. The law read: "For (each) year known as leap year, any maiden lady shall have liberty to bespeak the man she likes."

If he refused to make her his wife he was fined one pound, "except...he can make it appear he is betrothed to another woman..."

So, the big question can either be asked on Valentine's Day or Leap Year Day. Anxious bachelors just won't be able to answer their phones until midnight on February 29.

system would benefit students. "I think there's a lot of people at this school just reaching out for something...it would keep people from going home on weekends."

Wilson hopes to be ready for rush this fall, but knows that realistically it may not be until the following spring.

STAND BY YOUR MAN!

If Bill Clinton really had an extra-marital affair with Gennifer Flowers, should he drop out of the presidential race?

"Absolutely."

John Drolette

"No, I think certainly people on the outside may view that as undesirable, but deep down I don't think that's the real issue on why we should vote for somebody."

Celia Curl

"No, I don't think they should go and dig up your personal life."

Deborah Morganfield

"No, he didn't prove he didn't have an affair, but it has nothing to do with his ability to be president. The only bad thing about it was he should have made a stand, which the president has to do at some point in time. He failed to do that, but I think it was only because of the subject matter."

Wes Tucker

"No, he shouldn't because every other presidential candidate has a skeleton in the closet. If that's all he's done, more power to him."

Pete Sims

"No--just what is a close sexual encounter anyway?"

Anonymous female

"No, because Republicans are better known for doing worse."

"I feel that a candidate's personal life has no bearing on how he will perform in office."

Kaye Whiting

"No, because there has to be some kind of breach between their public and personal life. People need to live in the 90's and not the 50's."

Stephen Meyers

"Yes, because he was stupid enough to date a bimbo with a name starting with G."

Victoria Smith

"No, because I don't think it really matters. If a man is a good political leader, then his affair really doesn't matter."

Alisa Baumer

"I figure if they are letting David Duke run and he's a member of the K.K.K, then why can't Clinton run for having an affair. Everyone else is having affairs. It doesn't look good but, it's a status quo."

Michele Chambers

"I think everyone should have their own private life, I don't think that his private life should keep him from running."

Michael Johnson

"Yes, but only because he knows he's not going to win so why waste the money. Actually, it really doesn't matter if he has or hasn't. It was "said" that he did, therefore in the public eyes he did."

Erica Whitelaw

"No, I don't think so. Somebody wants to make up something about him--that's their problem."

Berry Copridge

"He may as well drop the race because he's not going to win. He'll just be wasting his campaign money."

Tracy Reed

"If you would cheat on your wife and lie to co-workers, what type of personality are you reflecting to the voters?"

Elizabeth O'Driscoll

"No, because something of this magnitude should not affect his decisions as a politician."

Joe Oertel

"Personally, I wouldn't vote for him. We all have made mistakes that we are not proud of. Our personal or our private lives don't reflect on how we do business. On the other hand if he's going to be a role model he has to show some morality."

On January 19, Linden Scroll inducted the largest group of students since the beginning of the service honorary organization. Debbie Woodruff, president of Linden Scroll, started the ceremony with all new members signing a book dating back to March 10, 1955. This is the date the organization began.

Twenty-six students pledged: "We, the members of Linden Scroll are bound together in a society whose purpose is to promote college loyalty, to advance the spirit of service and fellowship on campus, to promote and maintain standards of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, and to stimulate the intellectual development of the college students."

Woodruff said she would like to see more students join Linden Scroll. To join, you must have a 3.4 grade point average. Seniors in their last semester or quarter aren't eligible.

The next induction will be in May. If you are interested, or want more information, call Debbie Woodruff at 878-1342.

INSIDE ENTERTAINMENT

by Alisa Baumer
LindenWorld Entertainment Editor

Production is underway on the movie, "The Bodyguard" starring Kevin Costner and singer Whitney Houston. Houston makes her big-screen debut in the picture about a former Secret Service agent who becomes involved with the actress/singer he has been hired to protect from a fanatical fan. Rumor has it that the two stars have some hot chemistry between them. We'll have to wait to see the screen sizzle when "The Bodyguard" comes to theaters later this year....

Speaking of Kevin Costner... now that "Dances With Wolves" has launched South Dakota-mania, Kevin and his older brother, Dan, are planning to build a $35 million conference center, resort and casino on 85 acres in Deadwood, South Dakota, where the brothers already own the thriving Midnight Sun Casino. The idea is to attract all who are keen on the "Old West" theme- and rich enough to pay to stay there....

Will Julia Roberts ever have a leading man for her next movie, "Renegades?" First Julia and Mel Gibson were to star in the movie, but Gibson has taken a year off from films to spend time with his family. The next man to star with Julia was her former fiance, Kiefer Sutherland, and well, everyone knows what happened between them. The field for co-stars is wide open--even Roberts' current beau, Jason Patric, is being considered for the role. Stay tuned....

George Lucas, producer of the "Star Wars" and "Indiana Jones" film series, will receive the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award at next month's Academy Awards Ceremony. The honor is given to a creative producer whose body of work "reflects a consistently high quality of motion picture production." As a writer, director, and producer, Lucas also has been responsible for such films as "American Graffiti" and "Willow." Previous recipients include Darryl F. Zanuck, Walt Disney, Billy Wilder, and Steven Spielberg. Congratulations....

Claims were recently made accusing the New Kids on the Block, the popular singing group from Boston, of not doing their own singing. Greg McPherson, a music teacher at the University of Massachusetts and the group's former music director, claims that brothers Michael Johnson and Maurice Starr, the New Kids manager, are the real voices in concerts and on all the New Kids albums. The group's recording engineer, Phil Greene, insists that the New Kids do their own singing on their albums and in concert. What do the Kids themselves say? They state that their tours have been "totally live"....

More New Kids news... The New Kids on the Block took time away from their Australian tour recently to appear on "The Arsenio Hall Show" to dispel the claims that they do not do their own singing. The group sang several songs live, including their new song "If You Go Away," and talked about the claims. As for solo projects that have been in the making, New Kid Jordan Knight said that the members of the group were considering doing solo projects, but they got together and "decided that a new New Kids on the Block album would be better."

Singer Michael Jackson has announced that he will take to the World Tour circuit this June. He said, in a press conference recently, that the tour--his first in four years--will support a charity he has founded that will benefit children and the environment. The tour will begin in Europe and travel to Asia, Australia, and Latin America. No plans have been announced for a U.S. tour as of yet.

Driskill Named New Football Coach

by Rik Maxedon
LindenWorld Sports Editor

The Lindenwood football team has gone through its first coaching change.

Jeff Driskill was announced as the team's second head coach. The announcement came January 20 and surprised very few among Lindenwood brass. After former coach Dave Schroeder stepped down to pursue other coaching ventures, Driskill was the immediate choice.

Driskill had been the Lions offensive line coach since the inception of the program at Lindenwood. He also worked as recruiting coordinator and as football sports information director. Driskill also was a player and coach for five years for a St. Louis semi-pro team called the Riverboat Gamblers.

Driskill does not plan to change the team's offensive philosophy to a great degree. He said that they will stick to a run based attack. He did say, however, that they would throw a little bit more than last season. They may have to throw a bit more than planned. That's because star tailback Adam Saperstein is toying with plans of a transfer to a NCAA Division I school.

Driskill plans to bring two new assistants for next season, one on each side of the ball. The defensive side has already been taken care of; that spot will be filled by Keith Newcombe. Newcombe was the defensive coordinator at Langston University (Oklahoma) last season. The Langston defense was in the top ten in both rushing and total defense. The coach on the offensive side has yet to be determined.

Possibly the biggest benefit for the team in having Driskill as its head coach is that he is the one who recruited them. "At one point, these guys were all recruited by me," Driskill said, "It was the best decision that could have been made because of consistency."

It is logical to think that the person who recruited the players on this team had an impact on the student's decision to come to Lindenwood. That impact probably was based on respect or admiration, something that can be built on.

Lindenwood has yet to land any recruits for next season because the signing period for major colleges just passed. Driskill does plan to meet with some athletes in the next couple of weeks.

Lady Lions Are Conference Champs

by Stacey Worley
LindenWorld Contributor

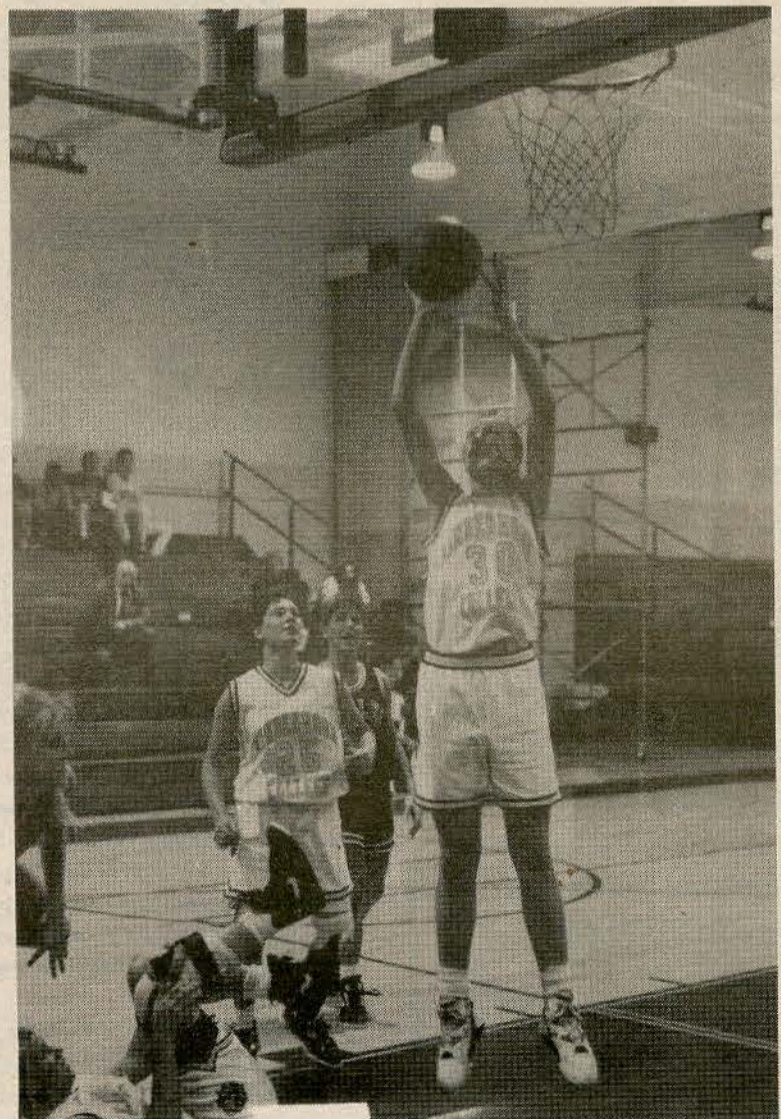

The Lindenwood Lady Lions basketball squad recently clinched the conference championship by beating Harris-Stowe State College 68-56 on February 5. By winning that game, Coach Steve Crotz and his team have the first ever conference crown in Lindenwood's history by either a men's or women's basketball history.

"Hopefully, we are back on the winning track and are peaking when we need to be," said Crotz. "I am very happy for the team and their championship. I hope we maintain the same focus for the remaining part of the season."

The Lady Lions will have to play extremely well to qualify for district play. The Lions are in District 16 and play such as powerhouses as Emporia State, William Woods, and Rockhurst College.

Their first step in qualifying for post-season play is to win their conference tournament, which is played February 13 and 15 at McKendree College. If they win the tournament and the rest of their remaining games, the Lady Lions should find themselves preparing for post-season play.

The Lady Lions' last home game of the season is February 22 against Principia College at 5:30.

Dear Lindey

Feeling down and out with no one to talk to? Seems like friends are few and can't be trusted? You have so many questions and not enough answers. You can't ask your parents because it's too personal. Asking your professor is out of the question. You ask yourself, who can I talk to? I'm here to tell you that your worries are over. I know exactly who you can talk to. Me!

My name is Lindey and I'm here to help. I'm a student just like you, except I know how hard it is to find a friend you can trust. Remember, I'm not judgmental and I like you for being you. All you have to do is believe in me and I'll believe in you.

Just write me a letter concerning your problems. Your problems could range from relationships to bad study habits. Make sure you sign the letter with an anonymous name. I'll respond as truthfully as I can. I will not lead you wrong. If I'm unsure of your concern, I'll respond by stating so.

Please, help me help you. Address your letters to The LindenWorld and drop them in the campus mailbox in the basement of Roemer Hall. I look forward to hearing from you.

Always loving,
Lindey

"Summer and Smoke" Cast Announced

Bryan Reeder, the play's director and associate professor of theatre, has high praise for the featured actors. "Both actors possess the mature skills necessary for what some have called the two most demanding roles in contemporary dramatic literature," Reeder said.

Other members of the cast include: Brian Bauer, Jesse T. Bean, Gina Bon, Judi Bruce, M. Sean Carl, T. Jeffery Cox, Valerie Heck, David Lampe, Nicole Schlueter, Danielle Smith, and Stephen Williams.
