Mohammed Ali, Visiting Professor at Lindenwood

Mohammed Ali, from Afghanistan, is a visiting professor on Lindenwood's campus this semester. He has been a professor of history at Kabul University for the past 41 years.

Mr. Ali, whose family name is Malwandi, was born in Ra-

Food Committee Takes Complaints

Because of complaints about the food service, a dining room committee has been formed. Representatives from each dormitory meet with Miss Mary Ripslinger, foods director, to work out suggestions from the student body. Practices approved are posting menus, offering a choice of mustard or mayonnaise for sandwiches, serving meat with eggs, and placing containers for vinegar and salad dressing on the tables.

The committee will compose new dining room regulations and courtesy rules which will be presented at dormitory meetings.

Eddie Rogers, Sibley Hall, is chairman of the committee. Other members are Palge Graening, Ayres Hall; Penny Harrison, Butler Hall; Jane Seck, Cobbs Hall; Sue Conde and Sue Johnson, Irwin Hall; Judy Brown, Niccolis Hall; Elizabeth Gwinner, McCluer Hall; and Joyce Baxley, Parker Hall.

waipindi, is married, and has six children. He has received his M.A. from Punjab University, has studied law, received numerous honors and awards, and has written many books, both in Afghan and English.

A Fulbright grant was awarded to Mr. Ali, which enables him to visit some of the educational centers in the U.S. When asked how he liked the U.S. he replied, "Having been a student and teacher most of my life, I naturally feel at home when I come to a seat of learning."

Another statement he made concerning our country was, "I have been hearing and learning a lot about your wonderful country and the progress you have made in all walks of life. Overriding everything, however, is the character of your nation, your nobility, your vitality, your hospitality, and your incessant efforts and sacrifices to uphold the cause of human rights and freedom."

Mr. Ali came to the U.S. in order to both learn and teach, and hopefully strengthen the cultural ties between our two countries. "Our cultural relations with your country, though a thing of recent development, is based on sound foundations and is being developed day by day. I can assure you that we Afghans have nothing but affection for your fine qualities."

Upon his return home, Mr. Ali plans to write a book about his experiences in the U.S., with emphasis on education.

Karl Wolfram Sings Before LC

Karl Wolfram, a native of Berlin, and lutenist-singer of Germanic folk songs, will present a program at Lindenwood College Chapel, Tuesday, Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. Wolfram, who has won acclaim throughout Europe and America as a revivalist of the art of minstrelsy, accompanies himself on an old ivory lute, a thearbo (a lute-like instrument with 17 strings) and a vielle (radleier), a rare stringed instrument which was common in the 10th and 15th centuries. His repertoire includes songs and epoch ballads, some of which were "rediscovered" by him.

Freshmen Honors, Future Plans

The Admissions Office reports that of the 823 students this year, 277 are freshmen. The freshman class is not as large as last year's due to the great number of returning upper-classmen.

Nineteen of the freshmen were honored at a convocation held Sept. 22 in the chapel. Four of them were valedictorians of their high school class: Diane Singer, Mary Ann Stein, Carla Stevens, and Gwen Woods.

The rest of them ranked in the upper five per cent of their class: Rebecca Achelpohl, Linda Brown, Jan Buckingham, Karen Diehr, Vickie Dohrman, Gail Driver, and Mary Enley. Also included were Kathleen Gardner, Gail Gross, Brenda Johnson, Lee Keever, Ann Klein, Jean Maxey, Sally Quillian, and Ann Schaberg.

Geographically, 38 states and 11 foreign countries are represented at LC with the majority of the students coming from Missouri and Illinois.

A larger number of Lindenwood students are expected to return to the campus next year, thus prohibiting more high school seniors from being accepted to LC. It will also be necessary for the Admissions office to be more selective of the class of '67.

A student is considered as an individual. Mrs. George Brezius, director of admissions, stated "the ones who have a chance of succeeding and contributing to Lindenwood College are the girls chosen." She added that the admissions committee, composed of Dean Homer Clevenger, Miss Mary Lichter, Miss Lula Clayton Beale, and two faculty members, considers everything. There are no absolute rules; an applicant is judged on her ability to perform and become a part of the campus.

Inauguration Of J. A. Brown October 20

The inauguration of John A. Brown, jr. as the 15th president of Lindenwood College will be held Oct. 20.

A convocation for the students and faculty will take place in the Lindenwood College Chapel at 10 a.m. The topic of the convocation will be "The New Student." Several speakers, including Rev. Theodore A. Gill, will express their views on this subject.

The formation of the Academic Procession, faculty members, the administration of Lindenwood College, and invited guests, will be held at the Howard I. Young Hall of Science at 1:30 p.m. and at 2 p.m. the Inaugural Ceremony will begin. Following the Inaugural Ceremony will be a reception in McCluer Hall.

Classes have been cancelled for Thursday, so that students may attend all inaugural activities.

Parent's Day, Saturday

Parent's Day, Sat., Oct. 15, will begin with registration in the Residence Halls and Day Students Room. Later there will be a coffee hour followed by a convocation in the Lindenwood College Chapel. Pres. John A. Brown will be the main speaker at the convocation.

A luncheon for mothers and daughters and women of the faculty, administration, and staff will be held in Ayres Dining Room, while the fathers of students and men of the faculty, administration, and staff have a luncheon in Fellowship Hall.

Other activities of the day will include a horse show, an open house in the Academic Departments and Administrative Offices, tours of the Science Hall, dinner, and an open house held at the president's home, for parents and students.

Miss Mary: Right or ?

There is a new attitude this year about the dining hall food.

Some of the meals have been real disasters and we have been too eager to blame them on Miss Mary. She has told us that she wants to bring us "the finest quality of food possible in institutional feeding" and we are sure she is trying her best, but certain conditions alter her ambitions.

There is a shortage of student waitresses and kitchen staff. Inadequate equipment and salesmen's products that fail to live up to their promises are also responsible for Miss Mary's difficulties.

Even with these major problems, Miss Mary is trying to improve the quality of our meals. This year fresh vegetables have been served for the first time on L.C.'s campus. A Friday night buffet will be held from now on which will allow you to select your choice of meat, fish, or other specialties. Jean Suppers will be serve-yourself from four separate lines.

As a result of the complaints concerning portions of food served at meals and the balance of the meals, a food committee was formed with representatives from each dorm to help solve the problems of the dining hall.

After discussing the issues with the students, the food committee and its chairman offered suggestions to Miss Mary. It was agreed that menus will now be posted, meat will be served at breakfast more often, and old favorites such as Five-Cup and L.C. Salad will be served.

As to other complaints, Miss Mary has explained why certain procedures have been changed.

Catsup and mustard are now served in individual packets because it is more sanitary. Miss Mary also stated that certain members of the administration have asked her to do all she can to encourage students to come to all of the meals. This is why paper plates have not been available in the dining room.

There are still complaints that portions are too skimpy. Although the blame has been placed on lazy waitresses, we do not feel that this is the case. Sometimes there is not even enough of a dish for eight people to have a small serving of it when it first gets to the table and this cannot be

Library Closed, Minds Closed

As a result of a few worthwhile complaints and a rather hurried decision, the Lindenwood library now has a new rule: the library will be closed during the chapel services and all convocations whether they be day or night.

The originator of this idea had been approached by a few student librarians who said they were losing points because some convos overlapped into their working hours. A valid reason for the rule.

When the rule was suggested to another member of the administration he agreed to it with enthusiasm. Unfortunately, his reason for enthusiasm was a little off.

This gentleman had decided that because the college had spent a lot of money to bring these cultural events to Lindenwood, and because we were expected to attend, leaving the library open would only be an invitation for us NOT to go!

We were rather aghast at the thought of being forced to attend convocations. After all our point system does allow us some freedom of choice. Hoping this leader would change his mind, we posed two questions.

"What if we need to use a reserve or reference book for next day's class?" He replied it was silly if we couldn't work out time around the convo. Besides, it profits all of us to go to them.

"Well, last year, was there a problem of girls missing too many points because they had spent their time in the library?" Neatly evading this question, he answered, the question didn't come to me last year; it came this year.

After considering several solutions to the situation, we can now only offer the one we think is best and hope the proper people take note.

First of all, we would like this gentleman to realize cultural responsibility cannot be forced on the student body. It is up to each and every the fault of the waitress.

We realize that Miss Mary has problems, so, before you criticize, take them into consideration. But, we also realize that some of these problems can be solved. Whoever is to blame, let us hope that our dining room situation is not ignored.

Editor's Note: This opinion was received shortly before the paper went to press. It is not a part of the Bark's editorial, but has been placed here, as it is directly related to the editorial.

MISS MARY

Her job is to divide fishes and loaves among complaining and hungry girls. Poring through kitchen guides and nutrition manuals, she works late to find foods to feed feminine appetites. Pushing loose, worrying strands of greying hair back in its place, she, in an exhausted and concerned breath, inquires about the quality, quantity, service and preparation of her meals. Never finished with her job, she continues filling requests, writing orders, checking budgets, reading the latest dietary reports. Most important she recognizes that the basic need of an alert and aggressive mind is a healthy functioning body—and it seems that many of us forget this and overlook her conscientious efforts.

girl which event she will attend, and if she prefers to use the library facilities rather than listen to a string quartet, then, as a free individual she should be able to.

Concerning the library hours themselves, we are happy to note that the library now remains open through the lunch hour. With this in mind, we do not object so much to the closing of the library from 11-11:45 on Tuesdays. Besides, this is a small part of one day out of five, and one would assume students could work around it.

However, the evening is a different matter. Day students who do not need as many points and married students who don't need any must be considered. Evening is perhaps their only opportunity to use the books in the library. If it is closed what are they expected to do?

We suggest the library remain open during convocations. Student librarians who work at this time could be given the point. After all, desk receptionists receive them when they work during night convos.

We might also add that from now on the administration consider all sides of the coin, not one: what benefits one person may be a hindrance to another. And concerning the other matter, we'll just let that ride for the time being.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As members of the student body not on the Bark staff, we feel that the paper representing our school, its activities, and its students, is lacking in several areas.

The absence of certain columns concerning students and what they do have been noticeably missed.

Specifically, we are of the opinion that some facsimile of "Bangles and Beaus" and "Campus Scenes" should still be included in the Bark as items of human interest and light humor.

The newspaper should represent all phases of campus life . . . there is more to college than news of academic affairs; therefore, there should be more to the college newspaper pertaining to individual students and impromptu action on the campus.

Above all, we don't feel publication of this sort of material is mere nonsensical trivia, but part of the way we live at Lindenwood.

The Campus Peephole

Pres. John A. Brown and his wife attended a tea Sat., Oct. 1, given by wives of faculty members.

Mr. Brown attended the dedication of the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library and the cornerstone placing at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., Oct. 6. Among other guests attending the ceremonies was Dr. Franc L. McCluer, former president of Lindenwood College.

New Orleans was the center of activity Oct. 12-14 for the American Council on Education. Pres. Brown attended this meeting, the topic being College Teaching: Aids and Impediments.

While in New Orleans, Mr. Brown attended the conference of the State Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

Pres. Brown gave an informal talk about his views on education at a dinner meeting at Thompson House, Oct. 7. This meeting was given by the wives of Presbyterian ministers of St. Louis.

The auto-instructional spoken language programs in French and Spanish had their first real test last spring and this past summer. The 53 Lindenwood students who finished the courses in French and Spanish last June, and who took the objective Language Proficiency Test prepared by the Modern Language Association of America, achieved an average grade which placed them in the 65.5 percentile with regard to language proficiency. The average national norms for this test are 50.2.

During the past summer, Becky Heine, a student at St. Charles High School, and Liz Hug, a student at Missouri State Teachers College in Kirksville, Mo., were employed to work through the Spanish Program as experimental subjects. Parts of the program which had seemed difficult to Lindenwood students last year were re-written to make them easier.

Liz and Becky began the program on June 16 and finished it on Aug. 26, having worked a total average of 215 hours. Both said they enjoyed it and did not find it difficult. Neither had had Spanish previously.

A unique course in Television Production is being offered by the Lindenwood Department of Speech this semester. Through special arrangements with KMOX-TV and three unions connected with the television industry, L.C. students are allowed to produce, direct, and tape a 60 second and a 20 second public service announcement for the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis.

Mark Russell of KMOX-TV has made this course possible and helps the class when they go to the KMOX studio once every two weeks to learn about the cameras and other equipment they will need. For two and a half hours the twelve students practice the skills they have learned in classwork here at Lindenwood.

When their public service announcement has been taped, it will be shown on KMOX-TV. Each member of the class has submitted one or more ideas.

Local public school teachers are participating as cooperating teachers in the Teacher Education Program, sponsored by Lindenwood's department of education.

Three workshops are held for local teachers and college supervisors. During these meetings, they analyze the roles of student teachers, cooperating teachers, and administrative staffs of public schools. In the third workshop, the discussion centers around the progress of the student teachers in such areas as their professional relations with the students and the faculty.

Lindenwood students participating in this program as student teachers are Kathy Bell, Nancy Gibbs, Julia Goodell, Kathy Hollandsworth, Karen Hutchinson, Pat Jenkins, Pat Jungers, Diana Keys, Mary Leonard, Elaine Mensendiek, Bonnie Pearsall, Anita Reid, Marilyn Rhoades, Ann Stahlschmidt, Sue Sullivan, Jane Weigang, Martha White, and Cathy Wynn.

A number of courses in the Philosophy and Religion Department are being taught by visiting instructors. Dr. Richard F. Tombaugh, assistant professor, is teaching the ethics course this semester.

Rev. Robert L. Epps, visiting instructor, is teaching Introduction to the Old Testament. Logic will be taught during the second semester by Mr. Edward E. Ferguson, also a visiting instructor.

A new course, Contemporary Religious Thought, is under the direction of Dr. William W. Thomas, associate professor of philosophy and religion.

Dr. Eugene Conover, dean of chapel, will initiate a course called Introduction to Morality and Ethics, a philosophy course for freshmen, next September.

A gaschromatograph was presented to Lindenwood for Young Hall by the Monsanto Chemical Company, with the help of Dr. Donald Willis, assistant professor of chemistry.

The machine's purpose is to make the analysis of liquids easier by reducing the time involved in the process. A sample of the liquid to be analyzed is placed in an oven-like enclosure and a graph records the elements present from vapors given off by the solution. By interpreting the peaks on the graph a complete analysis of the sample can be made.

Sociology of Metropolitan Regions and Social Welfare Institutions are the two new courses offered to students by the Sociology Department at Lindenwood this term.

Sociology of Metropolitan Regions is still in the planning stage as Dr. Robert Schmidt, chairman, hopes to increase the utilization of the St. Louis area to provide a better understanding of social relationships effected by culture.

During the second semester, the course, Social Welfare Institutions will be introduced into the curriculum. The purpose of this course is to procure an understanding of the reasons behind the development of welfare institutions during contemporary times. This course is also geared to clarify and orient social work activities.

Art films will be offered to Lindenwood students by the Social Council on Saturday afternoons. The first film, Ingmar Bergman's "Seventh Seal," will be shown Oct. 22. Following each film a member of the English Department will hold discussions concerning the movie and coffee will be served. The discussion of the first film will be held by Miss Jean Fields.

The following series of films will be presented:

Jewels and Gems	November 5
The Guest	February 11
Smiles of the Summer Night	March 18
Richard III	April 15
I'm Alright Jack	May 13

Dr. Eugene C. Conover, dean of chapel, has announced the names of vesper and chapel speakers for the latter part of October.

On Oct. 11, Rev. Dr. Robert Pierce, minister of the Chicago Temple, will make his third consecutive visit to Lindenwood for a part in the chapel program.

Rev. Webster Kitchell, minister of the Unitarian Chapel in St. Louis, will speak on Oct. 18.

On Oct. 25, Dr. Jack Elliot, professor at Concordia Theological Seminary in St. Louis, will be a chapel guest.

Rev. Dr. Sherman W. Skinner, minister of the Second Presbyterian Church in St. Louis, and member of the Lindenwood Board of Directors, will speak at the Vesper Service on Oct. 30.

Extensive improvements were made in Roemer Hall and the library during the summer and early fall of this year. The third floor of Roemer Hall was remodeled to accommodate the Department of Economics and Business. Improved light, flooring, and seating facilities were installed.

Improvements on the third floor level of the library were completed last winter and have been in use since spring. Construction of additions to the library are scheduled to begin the first of next year. When complete, the new additions will accommodate three times the present number of books.

Dr. Homer Clevenger, dean of Lindenwood, and Dr. John Moore, co-chairman of economics and business, participated in the presidential inaugural ceremonies of Franklin H. Littell, the 22nd president of Iowa Wesleyan College, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, on Oct. 8.

The offices of the Department of Economics and Business have been moved to the second floor in Roemer Hall. This year the members of the department have their offices and new furniture.

After purchasing an expensive calculator, the business department found that it did not do its job—that of squaring roots. The calculator will have to be repaired.

Here's Bott and Gloria

by Susan Matlock

"Wonderful, wonderful Copenhagen!" This is a well known song which describes the old Scandinavian city. Henriette (Bott) Petersen thinks it is a pretty special city.

Bott, as she prefers to be called, is a native of Copenhagen and a freshman at Lindenwood. This seventeen-year-old brunette is especially interested in Danish History. She adores museums and old landmarks. Her favorite historical landmark is Fredriksbourg Palace, once the residence of Danish royalty.

Proud of the Viking heritage, she expressed surprise at the fact that many Americans don't know that Greenland, colonized by Danish Vikings, is actually a part of Denmark. "It was the Danish Vikings that conquered England," she remarked.

The Danes have a great sense of humor. They find the American tourist very amusing. Bott explains, "The tourist can often be seen driving around Copenhagen, his head out of the window of a car or taxi and a camera to his eye. He only sees the city through the lens of a camera. Perhaps in an hour or two, he will be doing the same thing in Sweden."

"I must tell you something funny about the guard," she said as she displayed an impressive color postcard of the state-ly Danish Royal Guards. "You can not see them in the picture, but there are four policemen placed at the front and the rear of the military column at all times whose sole purpose is to protect the Royal Guard from tourists."

Bott says that she finds Danish boys on a whole more mature and less sports oriented than American boys. She loves our "candlelight" tradition, the custom of men walking on the outside of women is very confusing to her. "I keep running into my escort," complains Bott.

Like most Danes, Bott comes from a closely knit family. Her relatives are very curious about her life in the United States. "My mother asked if I could see any cowboys from my window," she grinned.

A native of Larnaca, Cyprus, Gloria Jacovou now resides on the Lindenwood campus. At seventeen, the foreign exchange student comes from the Mediterranean island's fourth largest city.

When asked what surprised her most since coming to this country, the dark eyed freshman replied without hesitation, "I believe I was most impressed with the friendliness of Americans." Her main interest is the study of other cultures and customs. "That is why I am here," she said. Gloria was delighted to discover that L. C. students are just as interested in her country as she is in the U. S.

Greek courting customs in Cyprus are very different from those practiced at Lindenwood. There is no such thing as a date. Groups of boys and girls go places together.

For a parent to allow his daughter to accompany a young man anywhere alone is unheard of. Then how do you know who the couples are? "We stare a lot," says Gloria. "Perhaps that is why we Mediterranean people have such large eyes."

A favorite haunt of the Larnaca young people is a strip of sea shore called Phinicoupe of The Palm Trees. Every Sunday the boys and girls flock here to spend the afternoon walking up and down the strip hoping to catch the glance of that very special person, reports Gloria.

Calactysmos, a religious holiday, is a festive time for the people of Cyprus. There are many kinds of games, delicious food such as kebab and of course music and dancing.

Gloria is accomplished in her native folk dancing. She holds practice in Greek folk dancing at 10:00 a.m. in Niccolls recreation room every Wednesday. She hopes everyone who is interested will feel free to drop in.

These foreign students are just two of the ten who are studying at Lindenwood as freshmen this year and who have received foreign scholarships.

These girls are screened very carefully before they are accepted to Lindenwood. The Institute of International Education in New York reviews all foreign applicants and makes suggestions to the college based on the type of student LC has specified.

By doing this, accepted foreign students are capable of handling the work and leading the life which is present on our campus.

CLUBS THAT MOVE WITH YOU

PAC

Contrary to popular opinion PAC, Public Affairs Club, is not a herd, it is a sales gimmick promoting a perishable product called information. This year, a full calendar of programs is "for sale"—every Tuesday night, 7:30-8:30 p.m., Fine Arts Parlor.

You, L.C. consumer, are welcome to attend any or all that interest you even if you are not a member. This month there was the informal International Student Open House. Five new foreign students on campus introduced themselves and displayed something from their native land. Gloria Jacobou showed slides from her native Cyprus; Maria Martinez and Evelyne Rey taught Mexican and French folk songs. Erna Schmacher spoke of her native Switzerland and the refreshments served were from different countries. Daraka Kiattinat demonstrated music from Thailand. But most important, there was the chance to meet and talk informally.

The next event for October will be the political rally, Oct. 25, in Young auditorium. Leaders in the two major political parties from the St. Louis area will define the county offices involved in this year's election. Among these are County Judge, County Collector, Clerk of the County Court and Circuit Court, treasurer, auditor, and prosecuting attorney. PAC urges anyone who takes their voting privileges as seriously as an American citizen to attend. We hope this rally sheds light on any shadows you have about elections.

If PAC and its service is still unclear to you, ask your dorm or day student representative. PAC's product is available, but only through your active support can it be "purchased" as a service.

Young G.O.P.s

The Young Republican Club of Lindenwood College held its first meeting of the year Sept. 26 at 6:45 p.m. in the Fine Arts parlor.

The following officers were elected: Vicki Shultz, chairman; Linda Firestone, vice-chairman; Mary Boyer, corresponding secretary; Paige Graening, recording secretary; Karen Walker, treasurer; Sue Brobyn, membership chairman; and Polly Sowa, publicity chairman.

Barbara Bellis, Mary Boyer, Linda Brown, and Pat Ruth were chosen to represent the club at the first executive board meeting of the Missouri College Republican Committee held Oct. 1 at Stephens College. They submitted a notarized membership list and the club became a charter member of the Missouri Federation of Young Republicans.

Dues are $1 and can be paid by Nov. 1 to the dorm representatives. They are Paige Graening, Ayres Hall; Karen Ross, Butler Hall; Mary Lou Tyne, Cobbs Hall; Margo Musgrove, Irwin Hall; Karen Walker, McCluer Hall; Patty Uren, Niccolls Hall; Sue Brobyn, Parker Hall; and Linda Firestone, Sibley Hall.

SCA

"The Role of the Student on Today's Campuses" will be discussed among Dr. Sibley, Dr. Schmidt, and Rev. Meyers, on Thursday, October 13. S.C.A. will sponsor the discussion and question-answer period in Young Hall Lounge at 7:30 that evening. As this is a subject of concern to all, we are expecting a good crowd.

The Student Christian Association is again recruiting girls who wish to volunteer their services to various charitable organizations in the St. Charles and St. Louis areas.

At the Emmaus House, girls are needed to help with therapy for the feeble-minded and the mentally-retarded. See Liz Fleming for further information.

The Voluntary Improvement Program needs girls to help teach basic reading and arithmetic to people who are trying to get their high school equivalency certificate. These people are very enthusiastic and willing to learn. See Becky Thaler for information on the program. It is held on Sundays from two to four and transportation to St. Louis is provided.

The Salvation Army needs girls to help with the recreational games sessions held for children from six to 14.

If you want to work for a hospital, you must contact the Red Cross on your own.

Recruitment for all SCA projects goes on all October so everyone interested can be involved.

Encore Club

Encore Club, a service organization, held its first meeting Oct. 4, at the Women's Parlor in the chapel at 11:45 a.m. Members of the club are girls whose relatives have attended Lindenwood. This year, 112 girls are eligible for membership.

Members arrived Sept. 9, to greet new students, show them around the campus, and help with freshman registration. They are now helping send out brochures for the Alumnae Fund. They will work with Mrs. Nancy McClanahan, the Alumnae Secretary, and serve as hostesses during Parents' Day and Alumnae Day.

The club was active several years ago, and was reactivated by Roxanna Young last Spring. The officers are Jean Lundy, president; Michele Fitzpatrick, vice-president; Jean Schuttenberg, secretary-treasurer; and Bernadette Jackson, historian.

New York Ballet

Fifteen members of the aesthetics class, accompanied by five modern dance students, will travel to St. Louis on Oct. 13, to attend a performance of the New York Ballet Company at Kiel Auditorium.

Poetry Society

Poetry Society has announced its annual membership contest. Lindenwood students who are interested in joining Poetry Society may submit one or several original poems on any subject to the Sense and Es-sence box in Mr. Feely's office. These poems should be typed and signed with a pen name on both the poem and an attached envelope which must contain the poet's real name. If more than one poem is submitted, the same pen name should be used. Deadline for the contest will be announced soon. First place winner will receive a year's free membership in Poetry Society.

Beta Chi

Beta Chi, Lindenwood's riding club, will present a square dance on horseback for Parents' Day, Oct. 15. Members of the club will also demonstrate various types of riding, including forward seat, hunt seat, and stock seat.

On Oct. 21-23, several Beta Chi members and riding class students will go to Kansas City for the American Royal Horse Show.

Try-outs for new Beta Chi members will be held from Oct. 25 through Oct. 29. They consist of written, as well as practical tests.

Philosophy Club

The Philosophy Club will meet on Oct. 12, at 7 p.m. in the Seminar Room of Roemer Hall. Dr. DeLores J. Williams, assistant professor of political science, will be guest speaker.

Orchasis Tryouts and Pledging

Orchasis pledging and initiation took place in Young Lounge on Thursday evening, September 29. Seven girls were initiated and another eight became pledges for the first semester. Girls who became members of Orchasis are Anne Benscoter, Marty Gaffney, Mery Ellen Heslop, Sally Nield, Linda O'Dell, Betty Whitthaus, and Ginny Wolf. Orchasis pledges for the first semester are Pat Bartock, Harriet Gipson, Dorothy Goodspeed, Linda Iorio, Marma O'Dell, Laura Platt, Carla Tolbert, and Connie Webb.

For tryouts the girls were asked to do seven exercises and learn one dance which was shown to them by members of Orchasis. Judging by Miss Stoerker, officers of Orchasis, and senior members was done on the basis of points. All the girls were judged on their dancing ability.

Tryouts will be held again at the beginning of the second semester.

Dr. Talbot Finds Ant

Dr. Mary Talbot, professor of biology at Lindenwood, accidentally discovered a new species of ants while doing a population study on Monomorium minimum ant colonies on the Edwin S. George Wildlife Reserve near Ann Arbor, Michigan this summer.

Dr. Talbot says that this new type is known as a "degenerate social parasite," that is, it lives in the nests of other ants, only producing males and females and depending for existence on the hosts.

To make certain her discovery was true, Dr. Talbot wrote to Dr. Marion R. Smith, director of the National Museum in Washington about her discovery and it was tentatively verified that she had discovered a totally new species of ants which is to be described and classified in a scientific periodical in the future.

Artist Exhibits Woodcuts

Mrs. A. E. Kingsbury, now completing work for an M.F.A. degree at Claremont Graduate School, is exhibiting some of her woodcuts in the Roemer Art Gallery at Lindenwood College through Oct. 22.

These woodcuts, some in color and others in black and white, bear such titles as "Three Figures, One Dead," "Stages in the Growing Up of Little Anne," "The Ocean is Filled with Flowers that Betray Me," and "Self Portrait of a Pseudo God."

Mrs. Kingsbury is a graduate of Wisconsin State University.

8 LC's Tryout For TV Program

Eight Lindenwood students, seven girls and one boy, participated in the T.V. tryouts which were held at Webster College on Monday, Sept. 19. No one who tried out was selected but Pam Szabo was commended on her performance and was encouraged to try out again this spring.

It is not too early to arrange for your transportation home for the Thanksgiving vacation.

What's New With the PS?

The point system for campus events, chapel, and vespers has undergone some changes for the 1966-67 school year. This was decided upon because of the request of last year's students to differentiate between the number of points received by the freshmen and sophomore classes and the upperclassmen.

The decision was also made because the administration committee and the student leaders felt there was no certain difference between 1 and 2 point events. All events are now 1 point.

The freshmen and sophomores still receive the same proportion of reduction in points and the junior and senior classes receive a greater reduction.

B. Armstrong Get Tickets In France for The New Way A Year's Study

Barbara Armstrong, studying in accordance with the Lindenwood junior year abroad program, was admitted to the programme of the Institute for American Universities in Aix-en-Provence, France for the 1966-67 academic year. Barbara is an Art History and French major.

The Institute is designed for American undergraduates who wish to study abroad and have credit transferred to their universities. Aix-en-Provence is located in Southern France, 17 miles north of Marseille.

The deadline for buying tickets for all cultural events shown in St. Louis is within 10 days of the event. Place your money inside an envelope, with your name, the specific name of the event, and the date of the event on the outside. This envelope is to go to Miss Odell. The ticket for the event will be placed in your mailbox, but you must pick up bus tickets by noon on Friday in Miss Odell's office.

It is possible to attend any cultural program in the St. Louis area. If 4 or more students would like to take a cab in to an event, you must see Miss Odell 48 hours in advance. This procedure is so that the entire student body can be notified in order that others will have the opportunity to attend the event.

Rugby on Back Campus

The Clayton Rugby Club defeated the St. Louis U. Rugby Club eight to five in a game held Oct. 1 at 4 p.m. on Lindenwood's archery field. The Clayton team is semi-professional and will go to Canada later this month to play.

Lindenwood Students Attend Playday at Missouri University

Eleven Lindenwood students participated in a Sports Day at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Oct. 1.

Michael and Candy Shelton, Lindenwood students, were finalists in the swimming meet and established new speed records at the University of Missouri.

Michael, a junior, who swam the 50-yard butterfly in 30.1 seconds, broke her own record of 32.2 seconds set last year.

Setting a record of 35.6 seconds in the 50-yard backstroke was Candy, a freshman.

Other Lindenwood swimmers participating in the preliminaries were Elise Donaldson, Elizabeth Fleming, Susan Good, and Mary and Cathy Falcone.

Pam Herrick, Laura Page, Linda Palermo, and Gail Slemmer played in the non-competitive tennis doubles matches. Forty women students from seven area colleges participated in the swimming meet. Colleges represented in addition to LC and University of Missouri included Central Missouri State, Culver-Stockton, Southwest Missouri State, William Woods, and Stephens.
