General Education Requirements Change

The college has adopted a revised set of general education requirements which will go into effect for students entering after January 1, 1991.

The revision was adopted to provide more options for students when choosing courses to meet general education requirements. A religion/philosophy requirement was also added.

Students who enrolled before January 1, 1991 may choose to complete the new requirements instead of those in effect at the time of their intial enrollment.

Students choosing this option must complete all of the new requirements. It is not possible to combine some of the old with some of the new ones.

If you choose to complete these new requirements, you must complete a form which is available from the Registrar's office. The only signature needed is that of your faculty advisor. This is necessary so that advisors will be aware of which set of general education requirements you need to complete.

The new requirements are:

ENG 101 and 102 (total 6 hours)

Humanities

Literature-two courses*
Philosophy or Religion-one course*
(total 9 hours)

Fine Arts

Fine Arts-one course*
(total 3 hours)

Civilization

HIS 100-Human Community
Cross/Cultural or foreign language-two courses*
(total 9 hours)

Social Sciences

American History or American Government-one course

Anthropology, Sociology, Psychology, Economics-one course from each of two separate disciplines*

(total 9 hours)

Math/Science

Mathematics-two courses in college-level mathematics*

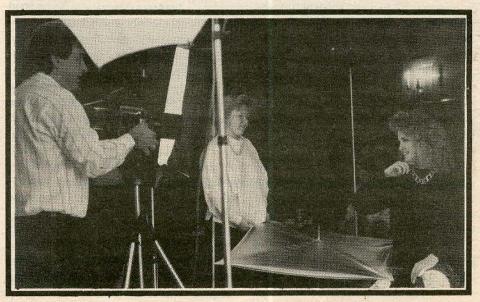

Natural Science-one Physical and one Biological Science course, at least one of which must have a lab*

(total 13-14 hours)

*Courses to be selected from approved lists published in college catalog.

Attention Seniors:

The deadline for Application for Degree is passed!! You must fill out a form in the Registrar's Office to be eligible for graduation. If have not done so, you must immediately fill it out along with a policy exemption form for missing the deadline.

Retention Signals Great Improvement

For an independent college that looked like it might close its doors jwo years ago, Lindenwood College has proven that growth and stability are possible, despite national economic downtrends.

According to the latest report issued by Lindenwood College's Office of Day Admissions, 87% of the full-time resident students returned to live on campus and to attend the spring semester. The overall retention rate for full-time day students (residents and commuters) is reported at 91.8%.

President Dennis Spellmann feels that the retention is a result of creating a unique situation where there is a concern for the success of each student. "We want Lindenwood students to succeed and will make opportunities available to help each student's development", he said.

John Guffey, dean of admissions and financial aid, said that the average ACT score of current students is 21. This is slightly higher than the average scores for students entering colleges and universities in Missouri and across the nation. Guffey feels that LC is admitting students who will graduate and successfully enter today's workforce.

According to admissions, the residential student body is recruited nationally with the broadest base in the St. Louis metro area and Missouri. "We're working with students and families from all walks fo life, including those from middle-class backgrounds who once thought private, higher education was too costly," said Jerry Bladdick, director of admissions.

He feels that more students in St.

Charles, St. Louis and Missouri are choosing LC because of the great campus, new student programs and our emphasis on academic performance.

Persian Gulf War Expert Speaks at Faculty Appreciation Luncheon

by Diann DiMaggio LindenWorld Writer

Lindenwood teachers, administration, and the Board of Overseers listened to a Persian Gulf war expert Monday, February 4, at at the Lindenwood College Board of Overseer's Faculty Appreciation Luncheon.

Major General Henry Mohr, a columnist on national defense for Heritage Features Syndicate in Washington, D.C., spoke to about 60 faculty members in the Heritage Room in Ayres Hall.

Mohr spoke about the United States' military strength and defense systems in the Persian Gulf. To show its appreciation, Lindenwood presented Mohr with a set of bookends.

Dean of Humanities Jim Wilsonsaid, "The faculty members were quite moved by the appreciation expressed by the Board of Overseers."

"I appreciated Mr. Hyland and his gesture in bringing in a speaker with such a long relationship with the military," said Glen Cerny, KCLC general manager.

Applebee's, The Neighborhood Grill & Bar, is just what it claims to be. The new restaurant located on the service road in Regency Plaza near Blockbuster and AMC Theatre is a great place for friends to gather to eat, drink and have a great time doing it.

The atmosphere at Applebee's is very casual. The entire restaurant is open and airy with no division between the dining area and the bar. It is not the place to go for romantic, intimate dining, but it is the place to be if you are in a social mood.

The decc. of the restaurant is postmodern with an array of "stuff" all over the walls and ceilings. If you get tired of socializing there is always something to look at.

The servers all wear polos and jeans and they all seem glad to be there with smiles on their faces most of the time.

The menu at Applebee's includes hot sandwiches, favorite Mexican specialties, salads and some steaks and dinners. The prices range from $3.49 for a burger to $7.99 for steak dinners.

The drinks are reasonably priced. Soft drinks come with one free refill. And they feature a winter drink menu with coffee drinks and delicious dessert-frozen drinks like Strawberries & Cream, which is

One of the servers told us, "We're really happy around here." She was referring to Applebee's two daily Happy Hours from 3-7 daily and from 10 to Close. They feature Buffalo Chicken Wings for 25¢ a piece during Happy Hour along with 1/2 price Nachos and of course, they have special drink prices during Happy Hours.

Students can usually find a good night to eat cheaply at Applebee's. Monday's special is $5.95 sirloin steak dinner. Tuesday's is beef or chicken fajitas for $6.99. Fettucine and lasagne for $4.79 and $5.49 respectively highlight Wednesday nights. And Thursdays feature 1/2 price nachosand Margarita Madness all night. All these specials are available after 5 p.m.

If Lindenwood's Sunday Brunch is just not doing the trick, you could try Applebee's. They have brunch on Sundays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. They serve breads, sweets and traditional brunch entrees as well as some innovative dishes of their own. It is not a buffet; you order from a brunch menue and the prices range from $2.99 to $7.99. You can also order from the regular menu if brunch is not your style.

If you have the time and a little extra cash, Applebee's is a treat that you should give yourself at least once. But, my guess is: you'll most likely enjoy yourself so much that you'll have to go back.

Applebee's is a Real Treat Six Characters in Search of an Author is "Brilliant"

by Bryan S. Audrey LindenWorld Writer

"Truth is stranger than fiction."

E. Hemingway

Well that is not always the case. Lindenwood's production of Luigi Pirandello's, Six Characters in Search of An Author, was brilliant. The play presents the conflict of Illusion vs. Reality. Reality is a severely limited thing and open to false perceptions and distorted illusions.

In this production we have two sets of actors squaring off for control. One set of actors is preparing for a show with the help of technical people and their director. There are interupted by a family consisting of a father, Rodney Whatley, a mother, Jennifer Johanassen, a daughter and a brother, played by Niccole Schleuter and Rob Bingham. There are also two small children who remain mute throughout the production. These six characters thrust themselves on to the stage and interrupt the ongoing rehearsal.

The father insists that they have a grievous drama that needs to be told. However, the characters need an author to lend meaning to their lives. The director, played masterfully by Jim Fruend, is initially upset with their intrusion but come around once the daughters and fathers illicit and amorous affair with one another is brought to light. Niccole Schleuter is absolutely riveting as the daughter. She hits all the right buttons and has as good a night on the Main Stage as this reporter has ever seen.

After a fair amount of cajoling, the director decides to become their author, to shape their truth for the stage.

The script he tries to develop is not received well by the father and the daughter. The family feels that the interpretation that the actors are lending to the production has a false feel to it thereby slighting them in the process.

The real story here is the characters and how their lives have been affected by lust, estrangement, malice and hatred, the building blocks of all of our lives.

Pirandello brings up the point that from the authors pen to the directors whim and to the actors interpretation, a great deal of substance is lost or distorted. Bridging those artistic gaps pushes the two sets of actors to the breaking point.

A wonderfully surprising ending is in store for the viewer. By all means watch this performance. It is both entertaining while exciting stronger over tones that everyone must evaluate in our lives.

You can watch the play on February 28 at 8:00 p.m.. It will also run March 1 and 2 at 8:00 p.m., and there will be a matinee performance on March 2 as well.

Kudos, to Mr. Reeder, Ms. Junker and the rest of the Company on an excellent and enlivening experience.

If you have all the time in the world to do something, it won't happen;

If you find yourself in a hurry in a restaurant, you'll get the slowest waiter, if not the

It was ironic that my former suitemate, Brian, visited this weekend because he and I both have girlfriends who are actresses who also came down this weekend from their respective graduate schools in Illinois to attend the Midwest auditions at Webster U. However, our plans were not to spend time with our better halves while they were working.

Rather, the residents and friends of our room, known as Spanky's Tap, planned to have a big night out with our graduated buddy. We were content to just sit around Friday night, talking and catching up because we knew Saturday night would be our time to howl. Everybody came by to say hi to Brian, even our RD. It was a nice time, but we looked forward to Saturday night.

Saturday afternoon, though, my girlfriend called to ask if she and her friends could come see the play at Lindenwood. Sure, I said. It was a change of plans but Brian would understand.

"We'll be there in an hour," she said. Well, an hour passed and they weren't here. They had taken a wrong turn that cost them half an hour. When they showed, we had about an hour to grab a bite before curtain at Jelkyl. They were starving and wanted a sit down meal, so we decided on a Chinese place on Droste.

Murphy's Law Revised

As far as this place goes, it was busy, which means there were about five tables and a couple waiting for take out. At 7:10 we placed our order, slightly easing the palpable tension that came from wrong directions and lost time.

The five of us chatted for a while, but soon began to wonder where the food was. Our waiter then appeared with part of it—one person's order. He disappeared. He rang someone out. He got water for another table. He reappeared with another person's single order for our table-then left again! The tension nounted as showtime neared. This guy was bringing our meal out one dish at a time!

With less than ten minutes to get to the play we just told the guy to wrap up what he hadn't brought out. As one of our number paid he had the proper guts to tell the waiter how bad his service was. The guy smiled and took the money.

We got to Lindenwood with minutes to spare and settled down to an enjoyable show. But afterwards, my girlfriend and the others couldn't stay long, as some of them had an audition Sunday, so in a haze of mutual awkwardness we all mumbled goodbye. They retreated into the shadows of Roemer parking lot and I shuffled back to my empty room.

Within half an hour my girlfriend called, understandably neurotic about her strange evening; her friends had gone to Hardee's.

Later, I found a note from Brian telling me to come over to Stumberg because they were all still on campus. The Big Nite Out never happened. I wandered over and found people sitting and talking like the night before, but more quietly.

It was actually a welcome change of pace, but as a whole, this Woody Allenesque weekend was remarkably underwhelming. How does Murphy do that?!

Lenten Lectures Will Focus on Peace

"What is Needed For Peace?" is the theme for this year's Lenten Lecture Series, which began Tuesday.

The lectures are to be given for the next three Tuesdays between noon and 1:00 p.m., in the Heritage Room of Ayres Cafeteria.

Speakers will include:

Donna Charron, professor of philosophy at Lindenwood, on March 5.

James D. Evans, professor of psychology, on March 12.

Joseph A. Cernik, professor of history and political science, on March 26.

The first speaker of the series was Rev. Robert R. McGruther, pastor of St. Charles Presbyterian Church and member of the Lindenwood College Board of Directors.

While Lent is a Christian observance, a traditional period of self-examination and reflection in preparation for Good Friday and Easter, the Lenten Lecture Series is not intended solely or Christians. Rather, it always focuses on ome topic of serious concern to people generally, and is meant to be helpful to the entire college community

This year's theme, "What is Needed for Peace?", is suggested by the words of Jesus in Luke 19:42; however, it is not necessary or expected that all speakers will take a specifically "religious" or "spiritual" approach to the topic. Speakers are asked to address this question in whatever way they wish. While the "peace" which is on everyone's mind these days obviously has to do with an end to the war in the Middle East, the speakers may interpret the question in any way they choose.

Speakers invited for this series include a minister and professors of philosophy, psychology and political science in order to aim at a wide variety of approaches to the question.

Black History Month Celebrated with Concert

by Jeanette Baloun LindenWorld Contributor

On Friday, February 22, Young Auditorium was filled with an eager audience who had come to praise the Lord in music, song and dance in honor of Black History Month.

The Lindenwood Gospel Choir presented a concert with the theme "Seek Ye First".

The concert began at 8 p.m. with a welcome and Scripture reading from John Batts, Lindenwood Student Government president, followed by a processional by the gospel choir.

The audience immediately became involved by clapping along with the music and remained enthusiastic throughout the concert.

The choir was under the direction of Jeffrey Rhone and soloists included Dennis Johnson, Jr., Miranda Bryant, Shelley Miller, Otis Booty and Lorna Johnson, all from LC. Also special guest soloists were Sheila Jackson and Valerie Granger performed.

Also, the Legion of Black Collegians Gospel Choir from University of Missouri-Columbia performed a selection.

Appreciation plaques were given at the ceremony to Servicemasters for catering all of the Gospel Choir events, Derek Mosley for arranging all of the music, and Jeffrey Rhone for his continuous support and direction. Certificates of appreciation were given to all of the musicians who participated in the event.

Diane Parker, president of the Gospel Choir, was pleased with the support the Gospel Choir received throughout Black History month. "I appreciate the support from the student body, faculty, and especially Student Life."

The next Gospel Choir concert will be April 7 at the Christ Southern Mission Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Christian Student Union Continues to Grow

by Charlotte Skoien LindenWorld Writer

The Lindenwood Christian Student Union has been continuously growing throughout the semester, and yet many students on campus don't really know exactly what it is.

According to Kelly Johnson, chairperson of the group, CSU provides encouragement for all students, and its main focus is to be lead by Jesus. Johnson also stated that the group is not just for all saved people, it is for all people who glorify God.

The CSU was officially started this semester although it had some position last semester. "We are finally putting movement to it," Johnson said.

She also added that there are presently thirty five members in the group and it is continually growing.

A recent addition to the group is the Barnabas Committee. It is named after a missionary named Barnabas who encouraged others to glorify God.

The purpose of the committee is to provide support for students whether it be a rough time in someones life, such as sickness or depression, or a good time, like a birthday.

Every Christian activity on campus is supported by CSU such as the gospel choir, passing out bibles and discipleship. They have sent flyers in the mail to encourage everyone to participate, even if they are not too involved in religion.

Aside from religion, the purpose of the group is to provide all people with basic common courtesy and a positive attitude. This is done by assuring students that there is someone there for them, by doing simple little things like giving them their smile.

Questions about the Lindenwood Christian Student Union or the Barnabas committee can be directed to Kelly Johnson at ext. 4771.

Lions Have Tough Night in Columbia

by Chad M. Bolser LindenWorld Sports Editor

The Lions travelled to a heavily favored Columbia College for a important game in the conference standings.

Coach Siebels team could have had a chance to clinch third place with an upset on the road.

However, an upset was not meant to be on this particular evening.

The final score, 104-69, reflected what type of a game was played by Lindenwood.

On this night, the usual long range talent of three-point shooting was no where to be found. Lindenwood finished with just four three-pointers on the evening.

"We have to shoot the ball well to win, and tonight the ball would just not drop," Coach Art Siebels said after the game.

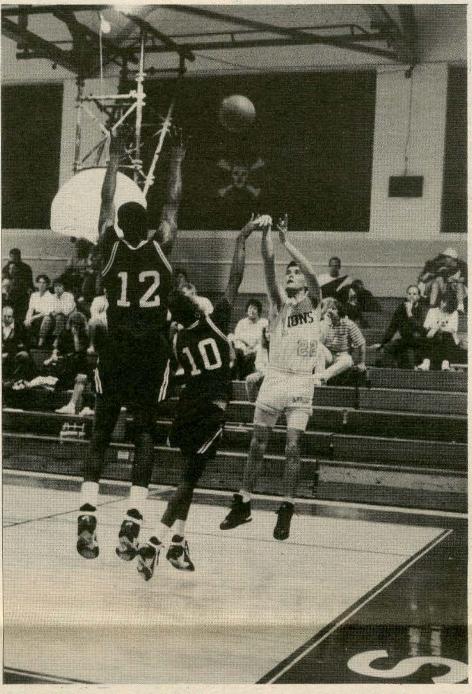

To compound the problem of Lindenwood's poor shooting was an outstanding effort by the Cougars senior guard Thomas Roberts. He scored 31 points.

The one bright spot for the Lions came in the second half as they played even for the last twenty minutes. This was one positive note that they could take into their next conference match-up with Hannibal-LaGrange.

The Cougars upped their record to 23-6 on the season and completed an undefeated conference schedule with eight wins and no losses.

Leading the Lions in scoring were Clint Bolser, who had 16 points, while Derek Garvin and Kevin Tate had 11 and 10 respectively. The loss moved the Lions into fourth place in the conference with a record of 2-5 and 9-11 overall.

Lions Roar Past Trojans Last Home Game: 108-99

by Chad M. Bolser LindenWorld Sports Editor

Seniors Bill Kackley and Jim Anderson were honored in their last home basketball game for Lindenwood prior to the final regular season game with Hannibal-LaGrange.

For these two seniors who have had two successful seasons under Coach Art Siebels, their last home game would turn out to be quite a rewarding evening.

The Lions started slowly but came out roaring after a time-out with 15:05 left in the first half.

Good defense and excellent shooting by the Lions propelled them to a 12 point lead at half-time against the Trojans.

Hannibal, which came into the game with a 10-11 record and averaging 96 points a game, displayed a quick, up and down the floor game plan.

The Lions responded well and continued to shoot the ball well even into the late minutes of the game.

The result was a season high 108 point production from Lindenwood and their tenth victory of the year.

The Lions had five people in double figures.

Clint Bolser had a career high of 36 points including 11 of 12 from the free throw line.

Scott Henke had 14 points followed by Bill Kackley who had 11 and Jody Scott and Dave Schilp both contributed 10.

The Trojans were lead by sophomore Travis Brown who had 32.

This victory gave Lindenwood a first round home game for the post-season conference tournament.

The winner of the tournament receives an automatic bid into the district play-offs.

Lindenwood faces Hannibal once again three days later in the opening game.

Although the Lions have defeated the Trojans twice this season Coach Art Siebels is concerned about facing the Trojans a third time. "It is difficult to beat a team three times in a year, but especially when you play to games so close together."

The winner of the Hannibal game will play regular season conference champion Columbia College in the semi-finals of the tournament.

Lions Move into Second Round of Conference Tournament

by Chad M. Bolser LindenWorld Sports Editor

In athletics, there tends to be great superstition when it comes to game time. Unfortunately for Lindenwood there would be no chance for this, as a scheduling problem moved the Lions off their normal home court of St. Charles High to St. Charles West Gymnasium. This begins the Show-Me Conference Tournament.

The move seemed to effect the Lions early on in the game as they spotted Hannibal a 9 point lead to begin the game.

Once Lindenwood found their range, they could not be stopped with shots that would have made Larry Bird proud.

The Lions trailed by 14 points with nine minutes left in the game. The next two minutes were as good a shooting streak as the team had been on all season. The score went from 14 points down to a 12 point lead for the Lions with just under seven minutes to go in the game. The game ended 102-90.

Although one had to be impressed with the offensive output of the team, the hero of the game was made at the defensive end of the floor. Freshman Scott Henke took on Craig McCoy, Hannibal's best scorer and held him to three points in the last ten minutes of the game.

Leading the victorious club in scoring was Clint Bolser who had 26 followed by Scott Henke with 18. Derek Garvin, Jody Scott, and Kevin Tate had 15, 13, and 12 respectively.

The win for the Lions moved their record to 11-11 on the season and sent them to the second round of the tournament of the Show-Me Conference. Lindenwood goes back to Columbia College for the second round.

Science and Engineering Research Semester Offers Cutting-Edge Research to College Juniors and Seniors

by Cynthia M. Foster LindenWorld Writer

If you are a junior or senior studying computer science, engineering, physics, environmental and life sciences, mathematics or physical science, the Science and Engineering Research Semester, SERS, offers you the unique opportunity to do handson research with some of the nations top scientists at one of six national research laboratories during the academic year.

The U.S. Department of Energy, DOE, is sponsoring a program to encourage undergraduate students to continue their studies in engineering. About 350 students annually receive SERS appointments at one of the participating laboratories. These laboratories include Argonne, located outside Chicago; Brookhaven, on Long Island; Lawrence Berkeley, near San Francisco; Los Alamos, in new Mexico; Oak Ridge, located in Tennessee; and Pacific Northwest, in Washington state.

Participants become members of research teams engaged in long-range, intensive investigations at these outstanding facilities. Fields of study include artificial intelligence, biomedicine, basic and applied chemistry, earth and space sciences, environmental and life sciences, mathematics and computer science, high energy and nuclear physics, reactor physics, engineering, geophysics, waste technology, nuclear medicine, automated inspection/measurement systems, and other areas of science, math and engineering.

While the emphasis of the program is hands-on research, SERS also includes an educational enrichment component. Participants attend seminars and symposiums sponsored by the divisions at their laboratory and have the option of enrolling in a course at a nearby university or college. Students are also encouraged to arrange for the granting of academic credit by their home institutions for the research semester, thus staying on track for graduation.

- According to the National Science Foundation, by the year 2000 the United States will not have enough scientists and engineers to meet its needs. "Our ability to meet the many pressing challenges facing the Department of Energy today and in the future will ultimately depend on the scientific creativity and technical skill of our work force," says Secretary of Energy Admiral James D. Watkins.

To be eligible for participation in SERS, students must have completed the sophomore year at an accredited U.S. college or university and be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident alien. They must be working toward a degree in computer science, engineering, environmental of life sciences, mathematics or physical sciences. A limited number of appointments are also available within six months after graduation for students not enrolled in graduate school. Guidelines suggest an overall grade point average of 3.0 or higher.

While in the program, SERS participants will receive a weekly stipend of $200 per week, housing and travel reimbursement for one round trip to the appointment site.

For more information on the SERS program, contact Donna Prokop, Valentine's Day Dance is a Success!

by Cynthia M. Foster LindenWorld Editor

Approximately 200 people came to enjoy the semi-formal Valentine's Day Dance on Friday, February 15 in Butler Gym.

The gym was a great setting for dancing, eating and socializing. It was decorated with pink, red and white streamers and ribbon-tied helium balloons. A D.J. provided the music and, of course, Photography by Mark was there to capture the night for anyone who wanted his pictures taken.

And those people who werent't interested in dancing found other things to do. Some people just enjoyed the music while having billard or fouz ball tournaments.

enjoyed the music while having billard or fouz ball tournaments.

A 25 foot Subway sandwich could have very well been the highlight of the evening. Other food included punch, chips and cupcakes.

The dance was sponsored by Circle K. Members on the committee were Teresa Dimaggio, Jackie Zaczek, Heather Caudill, Mark Bohnenn, Melissa Braungardt, Lisa Kvislen and Kelly Hamilton and John Mueller was the advisor.

Teresa Dimaggio said, "I thought the dance turned out to be a lot of fun. Everyone seemed to find something to do, even if it wasn't dancing. Overall, I would call it a success."

Armstrong Exhibit Coming to Hendren Gallery

Michigan artist Carol Ruth Armstrong will display her craft in an exhibit at the Harry D. Hendren Gallery at Lindenwood College. The Armstrong exhibit runs April 12, 13, and 14.

Armstrong is a fabric artist and professional quilter. Applique wall quilts are her trademark, and she also designs original patterns, revered for their intricate quilting. Armstrong considers St. Charles to be the start of her evolution as a self-supporting quilter.

Gallery hours for this exhibit are: 6:00-9:00 p.m., Friday April 12; 10:00-8:00 p.m. Saturday, April 13; and 10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Sunday, April 14. Admission is free. The Harry D. Hendren Gallery is located in Lindenwood's Fine Arts Building, off Watson Street in St. Charles.

The exhibit, sponsored by Patches, etc. of St. Charles, also includes workshops with the artist.

Lindenwood Shows Appreciation for Fitness Equipment

by Diann DiMaggio LindenWorld Writer

Lindenwood has expressed its appreciation to a Lindenwood adjunct faculty member in the evening college for his donation of physical fitness equipment.

Jon Murray, a St. Louis businessman and Lindenwood alumni, donated two exercise bikes, a cross-country ski machine, and a stair-step machine to the college.

The equipment is located in the Student Center. To show its appreciation, Lindenwood has hung a plaque in Murray's honor in the fitness room in the basement of Butler Hall.

"Lindenwood has made a lot of great campus improvements and I just wanted to do something to help the students here, " said Murray.

Lindenwood senior Michelle Chambers said she was glad the equipment was there. "I use it practically every morning, " she said. Senior Joe Oertel said, "I'm glad to know it's there, but I haven't really had a chance to use it yet.

Junior Tracy Reed agreed, "I haven't exactly used it yet either. I'm always too busy studying!"

President Dennis Spellmann personally expressed his appreciation of the equipment, "Thanks to dedicated alums like Jon, Lindenwood can provide those important 'extras' to our students. Jon's gift will help benefit the total development of our students."
