Dear Dr. Gage,

In appreciation of your high ideals, your jovial and tolerant Christian spirit, your understanding and keen insight, the wealth of educational experience you have brought to us and our college, and your sincere devotion to its best interests, we dedicate to you the 1942 Linden Leaves.

The Lindens

The linden symbolically shelters the whole college—Sibley Hall, the oldest of all the buildings; Ayres, which carries the name of its builder; Butler, first of many buildings added by Colonel James Gay Butler; Niccolls Hall, named for Dr. Samuel J. Niccolls, for twenty-five years president of the Board of Directors; Roemer Hall, named for the late president, who for twenty-six years guided the destinies of Lindenwood; Irwin Hall, named for Dr. Robert Irwin, president of the college from 1880 to 1893; the library, named for Margaret Leggat Butler; the Lillie P. Roemer Fine Arts Building, built by Dr. John L. Roemer as a memorial to his wife; and lastly the beautiful home of our new president, Dr. Harry Morehouse Gage.

The Oaks

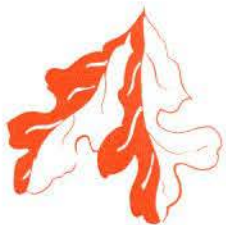

We are proud of the members of our administration and faculty and we are grateful to them not only for the wealth of knowledge that they have made accessible to us, but also for their sympathetic understanding, their splendid cooperation in everything we undertook, and their careful guidance in our academic work through four glorious years. As sturdy, dependable "oaks," they have shown endless patience, strength, and tolerance. Students of Lindenwood—our administration and faculty!

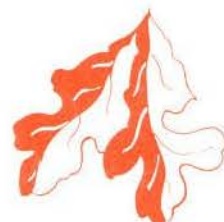

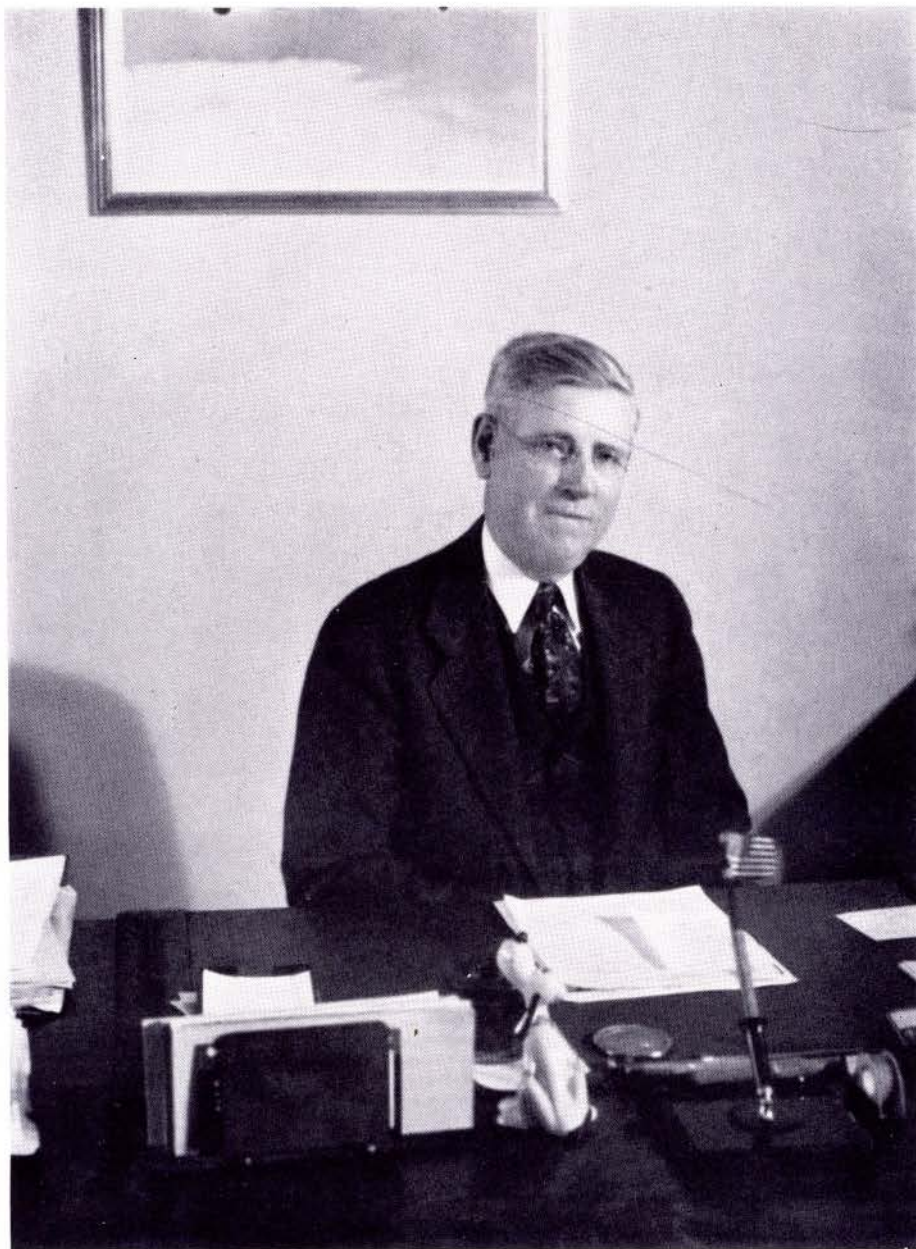

DR. ALICE E. GIPSON

Lindenwood is known and respected all over the country for its outstanding academic curriculum. Students here are offered an excellent variety of courses and opportunities that make for a well-rounded pattern of life. For this we are indebted to Dr. Alice E. Gipson, our academic dean, whose sincere graciousness, far-reaching wisdom, appreciation for the individual, and conscientious interest in all that Lindenwood stands for have made her an outstanding counselor and friend to Lindenwood women.

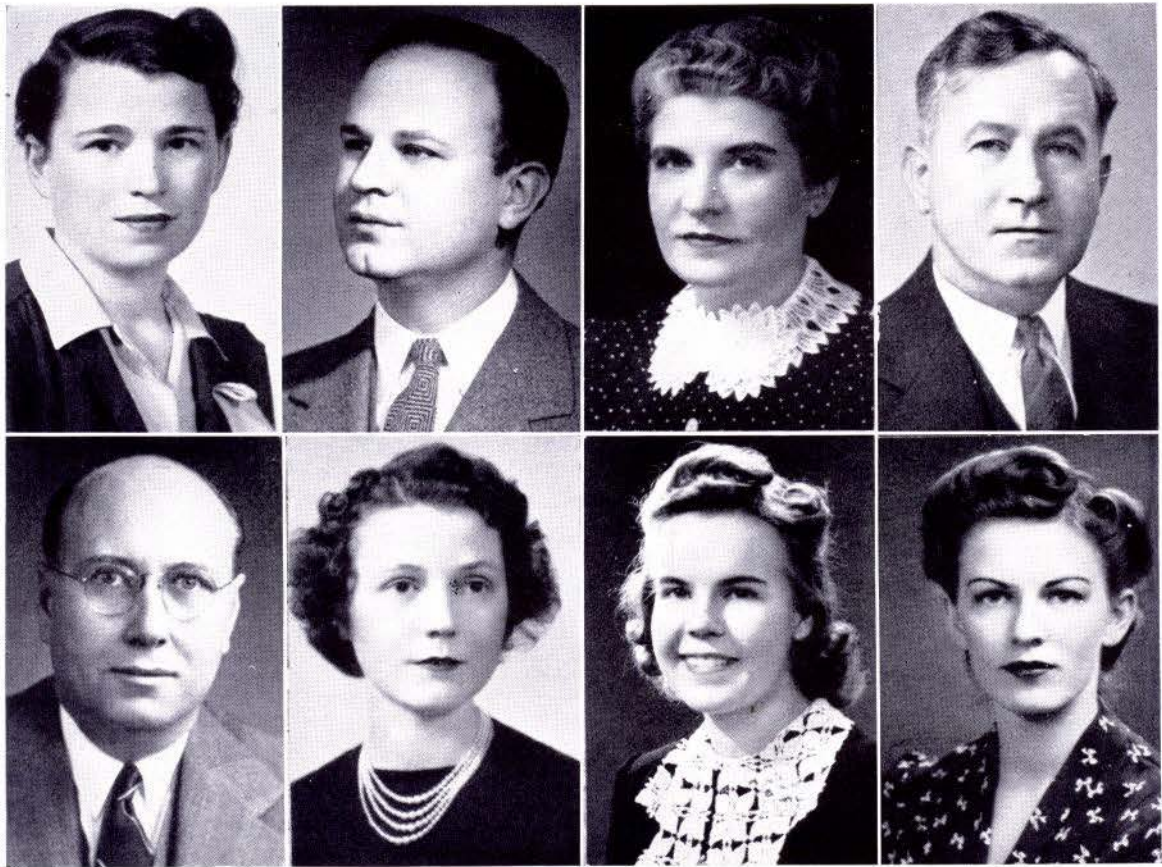

DR. FLORENCE SCHAPER

Always humming with activity is the office of student guidance and personnel of which Dr. Schaper is the director. An alumna of Lindenwood, Dr. Schaper is always working with the high ideals of the college and the interests of the students in mind. Her ability to win the confidence of Lindenwood girls is only one of her amazing qualities. Under her able supervision, students may be tested for recognition of special skills and vocational interests.

MR. GUY C. MOTLEY

One of our first and one of our best friends on campus—this gentleman has never failed us. In all our four years here, he has always been ready to lend a helping hand—to arrange for our train tickets, to find our lost baggage, to plan for our transportation into St. Louis. His pep and vitality, his patience with us, his eagerness to make us happy here (and how well he has succeeded!)—all these things we shall never forget. Our hats off to you, Uncle Guy!

Student Council

The Student Council of Lindenwood is the governing body concerned with the welfare of the students. The officers are elected by the entire student body, and the remaining members are elected by their respective classes. The purpose of the Student Council is to develop wholesome, democratic self-government on the campus, and to ameliorate campus situations that may arise, by discussion of campus problems in their meetings.

This year the Council sponsored two formal date dances, the Book Exchange, and informal teas at the opening of the school year.

Residence Council

The Residence Council is composed of the elected presidents and secretaries of each residence hall and their staffs. It discusses problems concerning dormitory life and campus citizenship and makes suggestions for solving individual hall problems, thereby bringing about harmonious college "homelife."

Special activities of the Residence Council this year included Friday afternoon informal teas, or "Fun Hours" for the entire student body, informal teas during examination week, and an all-college formal date dance on March 28.

The Young Women's Christian Association is a campus organization to which all students belong. Its purpose is to stimulate religious activity by means of lectures and book reviews on current and religious topics, by sponsoring the college conference on Religion in conjunction with the Student Council, and by sponsoring student worship services. In the fall, the Y. W. is in charge of the "Big Sister" movement, which assists in freshman orientation. In October, the Association sponsors a style show and the Hallowe'en dance, at which the freshman Hallowe'en Queen is crowned. The social service committee collects money and clothes for the needy and dresses Christmas dolls for the children at Markham Memorial.

And Acorns

We, the students, find Lindenwood a place in which to grow like big oaks from acorns. Interwoven into our life at Lindenwood are familiar scenes. We meet in the most popular spot on campus for the “pause that refreshes” We swarm to the post office, classrooms, offices of the administration in Roemer Hall Those of us who crave the outdoor life turn to the golf course, riding stables, and tennis courts We live in the dormitories where some of our finest friendships have been founded.

Seated: Wettstone, Dillman, Pollock
 Standing: Mathias, Henss, A. Taylor, Traylor, Cannon, Merrill, Schrader

Senior Council

We were freshmen in the Silver Jubilee year. Now, in our last days together, we, as seniors remember: when we were introduced to the school singing "We are the Freshies" on Founders' Day in the fall of 1938 . . . our first class activity—a barbecue at Blanchette Park . . . the leadership of Mary Alice Hudson . . . the freshman prom: a romantic spring night spent dancing in the atmosphere of a colonial mansion surrounded by pickaninnies and cotton . . . the yellow jackets we wore as sophomores . . . hayrides, hayrides, hayrides, and then for variety—a hayride . . . an able class-president, Marion Wettstone . . . ribbing the Student Board on fun night . . . the Tuxedo Junction prom, where even the lamp posts had rhythm . . . the mighty juniors . . . so thrilled at sitting in the balcony for the first time at chapel . . . and one hundred per cent strong behind Captain Chappie . . . even when she pledged two dolls from each of us without our knowledge . . . the class that furnished the queen and both attendants in the popularity contest . . . impersonating the faculty on fun night . . . "Hail to the Yellow" . . . the fun of planning to go to the football game at Columbia—and not going . . . Katie Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story" . . . the juniors in hysterics at Chap's announcement that Katie had gone ahead to save a table at Garavelli's . . . the thrill of selecting the May Queen for the seniors . . . deciding where to have the prom . . . waiting for every one to arrive at the Chase . . . receiving our yellow and white ribbons from the seniors on Class Day . . . waking up one September morn to find dignity on our doorstep labeled "Please use." . . . Dr. Dawson's taking us motherless seniors under her wing . . . President "Coo" Dillman . . . trying to balance the budget . . . Senior Council meetings in "Coo" and Carol's room . . . the engagement rings . . . faculty and seniors powdering noses together before the formal dinner on November 17 . . . patriotic books for menus . . . and on to the fall play in formals . . . the box supper picnic for our sister sophomores in the gym . . . the Carnival . . . Fuzzy Wettstone as the daring soubrette of the '90s . . . ooh la la . . . Polly Pollock, the wild woman . . . Dotty Meyers, the green-faced snake . . . Gypsy Rose Stallings . . . audience participation . . . Dodo and Queb, two escaped bartenders . . . scaring ourselves to death in the chamber of horrors, formerly the shower room . . . the Christmas breakfast in the club rooms for the juniors . . . Santa Claus Davenport . . . trying to find out the plans for the prom from the juniors . . . Sneak Day . . . did we put one over! . . . Class Day, willing our all to the juniors . . . May Day festivities with Ruthe Shartel waving the scepter . . . tables for seniors . . . beginning in September to practice being snatched out of line at commencement, and then making our grade points anyway . . . the final day: marching under the lindens for the last time . . . taking snapshots and memory pictures of each other in our caps and gowns . . . the last good-bye.

And so we, the class which tried for four years to give a faculty party and never succeeded, remain faithfully yours,

Junior Class Officers

We began our junior year with a great feeling of dignity. We lunched in the tea room—legally at last—and were careful to take our twelve o'clock "per" every month.

To honor our sister class, the freshmen, we set aside a day, pinned yellow chrysanthemums on them, sang for them, and wished for them a happy four years at Lindenwood.

On Valentine's Day we gave a dance for the school and decorated the gym with red hearts. Each girl found her name on a heart.

Virginia Veach of our class was in the court of the St. Louis Flower Show.

Then came the exciting May Day election. We chose Ruth Haines, our class president, as Maid of Honor to the Queen, and Carol Bindley and Virginia Veach as junior attendants.

We gave the seniors their last dance—the Junior-Senior Prom. When Class Day rolled around, our senior friends pinned the school colors on us and bade us carry on. It was thrilling but sad.

It was all in all another year of good times at Lindenwood—another year to tuck away among our pleasant memories.

To the seniors of '42 we say:

"Be good and may all good things be yours!"

Linden Leaflets

L. C. lassies primped all day
When Art Jarrett came to play.

Susie, sitting on the bed,
Knits one, purls one, throws the thread.

She sets each wave and pins each curl,
A habit with every L. C. girl.

A whiz on the piano—a Kentucky drawl—
One of the prettiest girls in Niccolls Hall!

Popcorn, cakes, 'n cheese, and pickles
Inside three freshies over in Niccolls.

Take your pick: they're all in sight
Which will Ginny write tonight?

We arrived on campus this year all excited over being sophomores! The time has passed too quickly, but we have had loads of fun. Just before the Christmas vacation began, we all sang traditional carols in the frosty air at midnight. Later we tramped back from serenading Mr. Motley to hot cocoa and cookies in the club rooms.

In January, we drafted all the seniors to a Defense Party in "Butler Barracks". During the evening Dr. Dawson, the senior sponsor, led an impromptu drill, and "Coo" Dillman won a prize of defense stamps with her unusual rendition of "Hold Tight" (with variations). The "mess call" proved to be a popular event on the evening's program.

On March the seventh, we sponsored the first informal all-school dance of the year.

The year's activities ended with our Prom on May the second. We invited our "bests" for the occasion and all crowded around the wishing well in the center of the gym to wish—oh, you know what!

We want to thank our sister class, the seniors, for the two years we have had with them, and to wish them "the best of everything always!"

'Bye,

Freshman Council

From the moment we entered the gates of Lindenwood on that memorable day in September, we freshmen have felt that "we belong." Perhaps it was our first sight of the beautiful campus—maybe it was all the friendly faces that made us glad to know that this would be our home for the next nine months.

We'll never forget the helpfulness of our big sisters during those first few bewildering days—we tried to show our appreciation by giving a wiener roast down at the ovens with our big sisters as the guests of honor. That was on October 17th. By November 15th we were well enough in the swing of things to give our first dance—the Freshman Mixer. It was a great success!!

Because we were anxious to do our part in the civilian defense plans of the college, we sponsored defense recreation classes—open to all the students.

There have been some of the members of our class of whom we have been especially proud—our president, Barbara Larmer; our vice-president, Peggy Proctor; our secretary-treasurer, Betty Lou King. Dixie Poynter reigned as Hallowe'en Queen. Her attendants were Janice Hohtanz and Elizabeth McCabe. We chose Jacqueline Schwab and Elizabeth McCabe as our freshmen attendants to the May Queen.

We've loved Lindenwood sincerely and you can take our word for it that we'll be here in 1945, fewer in numbers perhaps, but greater in spirit!

The Fruit of the Lindens

The linden berry hangs from its separate leaf on the branch of the linden. It is nourished by the same root as the linden leaf, but it is independent in its existence. The organizations of Lindenwood reserve that same independency. They are stimulated and encouraged by the intellectual life of the college, but their freedom in purpose may lead them to larger and broader fields.

Alpha Mu Mu

Alpha Mu Mu is the underclassmen sorority of the music department. It was founded in May 1918, by Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer and Mr. Leo C. Miller. To be eligible one must be a music major, have an S or better in that major and an M or better in other studies. This year, members of the music faculty were asked to participate in the meeting. The highlights of the year were the tea, given in cooperation with Mu Phi Epsilon and Delta Phi Delta in the fall, and the informal party, given in honor of the music faculty, in the spring.

Who's Who

Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges listed eleven students as representatives of Lindenwood in 1941-42. This group, the largest to be selected from our student body, was chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and qualifications for entrance into the business world. A biography of each student appears in the book.

The seniors listed in the book are: Margaret Cannon, president of the Poetry Society and Advertising Manager of the annual; Ruth Dayton, president of the student body; Harriet Dillman, president of the senior class; Dorothy Felger, president of Pi Gamma Mu; Jane Henss, president of Alpha Sigma Tau; Doris Nahigian, president of Beta Pi Theta, Alpha Psi Omega, and Big Sister Chairman of Y. W. C. A.; Grace Quebbeman, president of the Y. W. C. A. The juniors are: Kay Anderson, president of the Missouri State Athletic Association; Doris Banta, president of the International Relations Club; Ruth Haines, junior class president; Dixie Smith, president of the choir.

"On the Alert"

By participating in defense work, the students of Lindenwood College dedicated themselves this year to the freedom and victory of their country. Early in January the Lindenwood Civilian Morale Service was organized:

The students showed enthusiasm all year for Red Cross activities headed by Dorothy Felger. First Aid classes met with Miss Reichert every Wednesday and Friday. Those who successfully completed these classes were then eligible for the Motor Ambulance Corps. A number of girls, led by Virginia Mackay, spent their free time sewing and knitting.

Miss Staggs of the Home Economics department conducted a Food and Nutrition Course, while Doris Gruer and Bertha Jauch assisted in defense work by teaching a Home Nursing class every Tuesday and Thursday evening. Under the direction of Mr. Stine, about fifty students planned and participated in a musical revue, designed to entertain soldiers in nearby camps. Another outstanding activity was the Recreation Defense Training Program, sponsored by the freshman class and directed by Mr. Alfred Wyman of St. Louis. Its purpose was to teach skills basic to community recreation in a total war. In an effort to enlist the entire school in defense activity, each hall selected fire wardens, air wardens, and messengers. Students contributed books to the Victory Book Campaign, and, in addition, throughout the year, the girls bought defense stamps and bonds in order to show their loyal support to their government and the American Way of Life.

Truly Lindenwood College, in President Gage's words, is "on the alert."

A lesson and goal of life portrayed at the topmost point of our beautiful library—the owl symbolizing deep wisdom, the parrot, knowledge; and books, truth.

Athletic Association

The Athletic Association is an organization open to any student. The only requirement is the assembling of 125 points through various tests of athletic skill and through participation in some sport. The chief purpose of this association is to foster an interest in sports and to make a more complete program of athletic activities.

During the year the Athletic Association sponsored swimming meets and various sports tournaments. The program of activities also included ice skating parties and picnics. At the end of the year the girls who had earned the required number of points received numerals and letters.

" . . . The Lindenwood College Children's Theater of the Air presents another in a series of radio plays, written and enacted by members of the radio classes at Lindenwood" has been the familiar opening announcement from Station KFUC, introducing the bi-monthly broadcasts of the Lindenwood players. Under the personal direction of Mr. Stine, this group throughout the year selected well known children's fairy tales and adapted them for radio. Some of the more familiar stories chosen were "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Hansel and Gretel," "Sleeping Beauty," "Cinderella," and "The Ugly Duckling." The group is indebted to Pat Potter who, at piano, supplied musical background for all the broadcasts.

The students of the radio classes consider themselves fortunate to have had this practical experience in radio work. They will remember with pleasure the happy and exciting moments of each broadcast.

Choir

At six-thirty every Sunday evening, when the accompanist this year, Evelyn Wahlgren, strikes the chords for the processional, the Lindenwood choir, in its navy blue and gold robes, marches in to take its place on the platform. Miss Gieselman, director, leads this vesper choir in hymns and anthems. The choir presented special programs this year, the Christmas and Easter concerts and the spring secular concert. Besides singing here for vespers, the organization sang at a number of different churches in St. Louis and the surrounding territory.

Commercial Club

Any student taking at least two commercial subjects and interested in office work as a vocation may belong to the commercial club and have the advantage of special meetings devoted to interests of the business woman.

The two most important business meetings were held in February and March. In the first the Fashion Counselor of Stix, Baer and Fuller, Mrs. Mary Spencer, spoke to the group on correct office attire. In March, Mr. I. O. Royce, of Purina Mills, told the members what would be expected of an office woman.

Social activities of the club this year consisted of a Christmas tea, a theatre party, and a picnic.

Encore Club

The Encore Club is an organization whose function is to carry on the traditions of Lindenwood. In order to gain membership in this club a student must have a relative who previously attended this college.

This year completed the third year of the Encore Club. The membership has increased from sixty-eight girls to eighty-three. Each girl who becomes a member is a tie between the college days of long ago and the college days of the present.

The members of the club were hostesses to the guests on Founders' Day when Dr.

Harry Morehouse Gage was inaugurated as our new president. The club also had several informal meetings during the year.

The pin of the Encore Club, a representation of the Lindenwood gateway, symbolizes a spirit of welcome.

Future Teachers of America

Future Teachers of America is a national organization. It is affiliated with the National Education Association, and its members hold membership in that institution. By virtue of their membership in the N. E. A., all members receive the "Journal of the National Education Association," and a wealth of other books and pamphlets pertaining to education.

This year F. T. A. members attended some sessions of the Missouri State Teachers' Association which met in St. Louis in December. They conducted three discussion programs featuring vital problems in education. They had two distinguished speakers on the campus—Mr. Thomas J. Walker, editor of "School of Community," and Mr. Lloyd W. King, State Superintendent of Public Schools in Missouri. They closed their year's work with a tea honoring the teachers of the St. Charles schools who have helped in Lindenwood's teacher education program.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club is an organization on the campus to promote a better understanding of world happenings today. Students who have attended two consecutive meetings are considered members. This year, the club sponsored several speakers on current affairs and has also collaborated with the League of Women Voters in organizing and managing Red Cross activities on the campus. During the month of May, the club sent delegates to the Mississippi Valley International Relations Conference, held in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The key-note topic of the session was consideration of the economic and intellectual problems that will arise out of the present war. The International Relations Club is one of the campus clubs that helps keep Lindenwood actively attuned with the times.

League of Women Voters

The Lindenwood College League of Women Voters attempts to promote among college students an interest in governmental problems and activities. It also strives to prepare girls for League work in their own communities when they finish their college education. Emphasis is therefore placed on the responsibilities of educated women for leadership, particularly in local communities and in civic activities. In order to reach as wide a group as possible, membership is open to any member of the student body.

The national emergency dictated the interests of the League this year. After a welcoming tea for the entire student body, to acquaint new girls with the purpose and work of the League, the most important project was that of organizing, in cooperation with the International Relations Club, the Lindenwood Red Cross chapter. The programs have centered about the role and functions of women in government today and about the peculiar responsibilities of women during the present war. The Lindenwood League also cooperated with other state college Leagues in making the state convention at Columbia, Missouri, a successful and inspiring one. The president of the state convention this year was Mary Jo Shepard, president of the Lindenwood League in 1940-1941.

Linden Bark

The year 1941-1942 saw the Linden Bark (remodeled last year) turning out an edition promptly every two weeks. The staff members of this newspaper belong to the Missouri College Press Association, and each year they attend a conference of the association. Last year at the conference held in May, the staff won four prizes. Other college papers frequently reprint articles from the Bark.

Since each fortnight a different member of the staff serves as editor, each person receives varied experience and practice.

Some of the novelty features of the Bark this year were: a Romeo Contest judged by Dorothy Lamour, the Hall of Fame column honoring prominent upper-classmen, Cotton Cannon's delightful "All Bark and No Bite," and a special April Fools' Day edition done in yellow and black. Literary supplements, published throughout the year, contained the work of the students of the college.

This year the Bark reflected the patriotism of its staff and of the college in special features and news stories on the war.

Linden Leaves Staff

"Go to Dieckman's Saturday . . . Please turn in your write-up . . . Annual sale Thursday . . . Copy due tomorrow . . ." Remember? The 1942 Linden Leaves staff, in response to time, pressure, and several deadlines, worked busily, happily, and heartily to produce an annual that would record one year in the history of Lindenwood College so that the students would not forget the "unforgettable."

Betty Jacoby Gibson, the editor, planned the book, supervised, and coordinated the work of the staff, and edited copy. Judy Moore, Ruth Haines, and Janey Rasdal, assistants to the editor, wrote, typed, announced, indexed, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera—everything that every one else wouldn't do.

Ruth Schrader headed the business staff: she sold annuals and paid bills—what a headache! Her assistants were Jeanne Harmon, Doris Banta, and Ellen Schumacher.

Cotton Cannon sold ads, ads, and more ads, composed the advertising dummy, helped write copy, and made herself pretty generally useful at all times. Assistants in advertising were Louise Olson, Charlotte Ching, Rita Lauterstein, Helen Hemphill, Polly Woolsey, Marianne Fauber, and Jane Swalley.

Doris Nahigian, literary editor, wrote copy, which Edna-Mary Jacobson typed.

Barbara Jane Goldenberg contributed write-ups; Cotton wrote the material for the "Linden Leaflets" page.

Credit for the delightful art work goes to Annamae Ruhman whose assistants were Adah Louise Parkinson and Bette Lou Tatum. Mary Kay Kohlbray drew posters to publicize the annual.

For informal photography the staff was fortunate in having Lucy Graham (just a freshman but up-and-coming!) and Louise Mallory. Betty Merrill, Barbara Larmer, Bettie Mudd, Mary Aldridge, Betty Lu Godfrey, and Gloris Crosby helped these two girls obtain their pictures of student life. Many other girls contributed to this section of the annual.

Lucile Quernheim headed her organization staff until (bless their hearts!) they did exactly what they were supposed to do—gathered all the club copy, identified the club members, and had the finished material O. K.'d by the sponsors. These girls were Peggy Lindsay and Marjorie Vanderlippe, Betty Myers and Esther Farrill, Doris Gwin, Barbara Murray, Jean Esther Morris, and Mary Jo Morrill.

In all of these things, in all of the planning and scheming done by the staff members, they were "aided and abetted" by their sponsor, Dr. Gregg.

But really the ones who did the most work we haven't yet listed, for, you see, they're too many to list. The ones who really made the yearbook are the ones of whom it is composed—the students.

And so we give it to you—the 1942 Linden Leaves!

Miniature Melodists

The ensemble, Miniature Melodists, is composed of students who voluntarily give their time to work together so that they may function at needed moments in campus activities. This ensemble group provided music at plays and teas on campus. It provided dinner music in the college dining-room. At times the ensemble made public appearances in St. Charles.

Another small group, the vocal ensemble, participated in activities on campus and gave programs elsewhere. This sextet gave a concert at Westminster College and at Rolla and sang for the national teachers' convention in St. Louis. Its members are Dorothy Bailey, Mary Emma Kanady, Bonnie Myers, Dixie Smith, Dalcyce Stewart, Marion Wettstone, and Evelyn Wahlgren, pianist.

The Lindenwood College Ensemble

The Lindenwood College Ensemble, under the direction of Miss Isidor, is an organization open to any girl who is capable of playing an instrument and of sight reading music. Rehearsals take place twice a week. The choir and orchestra combined give a Christmas and a spring concert. Student soloists are featured at these concerts.

Poetry Society

Anyone interested in poetry is eligible to Lindenwood's chapter of the National Poetry Society, an organization which wishes to stimulate interest in the appreciation and writing of poetry. The requirements for membership are an acceptable piece of original verse or a critical paper. At the beginning of each year, the society sponsors a contest among potential poets on the campus. Free membership in the club, the prize awarded the winner, was given this year to Ann Ferraira. Others who submitted acceptable poems were invited to join.

The National magazine of the society, College Verse, publishes poems of an unusually high quality, contributed by student members from all over the country.

Meetings in the Library Club Room are spent in informal discussion, criticism of the members' poetry, and the study of famous contemporary poets.

The purpose of Tau Sigma is to study the dance and its accompanying arts—costume, music, and drama. Any student who dances in one public performance and who is elected by the unanimous vote of the active chapter is eligible for pledging. The Linden Blossoms

“She walks in beauty, like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies;
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes.”

—Byron

In the fall of the year Lindenwood paid homage to thirteen lovely maids and their queen in a gala Hallowe'en celebration. In February the students chose their Popularity Queen and her court. Following this, in May, came the crowning event of the year—the presentation of the senior May Queen, her Maid of Honor, and her eight attendants, two chosen from each class.

News Item—

Today in St. Charles, Missouri, two cabs collided with disastrous results. When the wreckage had been pulled apart and away, authorities discovered the bodies of forty-three Lindenwood students. It seems they were all on their way to the Strand Theatre.

When college authorities were questioned about the matter, they shook their collective heads sadly and remarked, "We knew it would happen one of these days . . . a very sad thing, indeed. However, with defense rationing on, forty-three less mouths to feed will be quite a help!" They were happy about the whole thing.

'Nother News Item—Associated Press . . . New York, 1950: Miss Louise Olson, famed flutist, today astounded the musical world and the critics gathered in Carnegie Hall when she performed the most difficult musical feat known to man. And she did it on the flute, yet!

In the presence of some of the most famous musicians of our time, tiny, poised Miss Olson grasped her flute firmly, (first cleaning it off carefully with a large red bandana) assumed a fighting stance, and successfully played . . . a hemi-demi-semi-quaver!

There was a moment of impressive, amazed silence, and then applause such as the old Hall had never heard echoed and re-echoed through the auditorium. Miss Olson's feat has been proclaimed "The greatest musical accomplishment of all time." The small but mighty musician is a graduate of Lindenwood College, she admitted after a strenuous third-degree session.

"It Can't Happen Here, or, Well of All Things!"

Time: A sunny afternoon, May 15, 1960.

Scene: "The Cupboard" on Lindenwood Campus. Two emaciated old women are seated at the middle table, looking strangely familiar. It looks like—no, it can't be . . . but it is! Swarr and Potter, straight from the Broadway opening of their new play (they collaborated, of course), "The Maize is Chartreuse."

Potter: Well, isn't this whimsical of us! To think we actually made it to our old Alma Mater's reunion—

Swarr: Yes, and who is that coming up the walk with that multitude of youngsters? . . . Chappie, old dear! Come over here. Where's your husband?

Chappie: Oh, he's sorting leaves for the W. P. A. . . . How are you, kids? Guess whom I just bumped into! "H" Dayton. She seemed to be hiding behind a 'cello case! A hangover from college days, no doubt. And Kids! (lowers her voice to a loud shout) I think that Matt was inside the 'cello case! Well, g'by. I'll see you two later. I'm taking a few of the excess children, here, up to the Zoo lab for experiments.

(As she goes out, she collides violently with a beautiful and fur-bedecked blonde. Heavens, it's none other than Monica Blake, Hollywood's latest "Bombshell"! On closer examination, we discover two things about the beauty; she has two eyes, after all, and she looks vaguely like the little Carol Bindley we knew . . . once.)

Potter: Fine! Marvelous to see you again! Who's that slinking in behind you? Oh,
I guess it's just a student here . . . poor little thing . . . pay no attention to her.

(At this psychological moment, a cab stops in front of Roemer, and some nineteen or so middle-aged women leap out and make a mad rush for The Cupboard. The first to fall in the door is Harriet Dillman, carrying a microscope under one arm, and a guinea pig under the other. Right in her tracks follow five whooping Valkyries, singing at the top of their lungs—we don't have to tell you, it's Bailey, Wettstone, Donavan, Smith, and Jean Esther Morris. No sooner have they bounced into the back room and the noise has somewhat subsided than another minor tidal wave flows through the door. The first face to appear clearly is that of Evelyn Wahlgren, who seems to have a piano slung casually over her shoulder. Draped over the piano is—of all people—little Jerry Oppenheimer, pounding the ivories a-la-Chico Marx. Through the legs of the piano, we glimpse an amazing couple, talking and gesticulating wildly. It's Ruthie Haines and Professor Albert Einstein, discussing their latest book on the theory of Astronomical Phenomena. Marge Vanderlippe drifts in next. We notice that her hands are utterly ruined—probably the years of housekeeping for Dick have left her in this deplorable state. You remember Dick! (Marge is talking rapidly to an apparition in a plush velvet suit)—why, shades of Mrs. Sibley—it's Bonnie Campbell Kerns Jespersen-Thistleridge Winterbottom Brown.)

Marge: Darlin', you look like a million! What did you say, dear? (Then, in hushed tones). . . . Why, of course you know Banta won't be here. It's too dreadful for words. She's serving time in a jail down in Mexico now for trying to start a revolution. It seems she thought the peons were being denied their rights as citizens. Why, dear—don't you remember? It was way back when we were still worrying about HITLER.

(The room has become suddenly crowded. People are fighting for air. Bodies are strewn all over the tables—(yes, we said over, not under.) Two prostrate figures are stretched out by the fireplace, trampled on by unheeding feet. Yes, you guessed it—Potter and Swarr, passed to their final resting place on the sacred soil of their Alma Mater. The reunion was a howling success!)

A pretty girl with pigtails
Comes tripping down the stairs,
And we know she's but a freshman
'Cause she wears her socks in pairs!

Her hair is brushed and shining,
Her saddle-shoes are clean,
And we know she's just a freshman
'Cause she's still so nice and lean!

She's just a little codger,
And she doesn't know the score
By next year she will have learned
The upperclassmen's wily lore.

You Need Not Give Up

GOOD TASTE

In the coming months and years all of us will give up, temporarily, more and more of the fine quality to which we have become accustomed.

But this does not mean that we need relinquish our sense of good taste. It simply means that we must exercise greater ingenuity in the selection and use of the materials and facilities at our disposal.

In printing it means that paper and materials will be limited in quality and variety, and there will be fewer new type faces developed. Thus, the true art of the capable printer will become more important: his superiority will be emphasized by the ingenuity with which he creates works of beauty in spite of these limitations.

In selection, arrangement and spacing of type; in painstaking presswork; and in artful combination of available papers, inks and materials, the capable printer will find the means to inspire a greater demand for his services among those who appreciate finer things.
