Dear Mr. Motley,

The students of Lindenwood College feel that it is a great honor to be able to dedicate to you our 1941 LINDEN LEAVES. For almost twenty-three years you have been associated with Lindenwood and have literally given your life to the welfare and happiness of its girls during that time. This year your outstanding abilities have been more than ever in evidence as you have directed Lindenwood in the interim between presidents.

Your fine character and personality command our respect; your willingness to help every girl, no matter what her problem, your tolerance, your sincere devotion, your generosity make us love you.

We realize that your life is centered in Lindenwood, and that your thoughts are concerned with the progress of the college. We deeply appreciate all of the services you have rendered us and the school. We do highly commend you, Mr. Motley, and wish that we might better express our appreciation and love for you.

Sincerely,

All the Students

GUY C. MOTLEY
College Secretary and Acting President, 1940-1941

DR. JOHN LINCOLN ROEMER

Having served twenty-six years as President of Lindenwood College, Dr. Roemer, after a short illness, died on August 9, 1940. Twenty-six years as benefactor, father, friend to thousands of girls. Twenty-six years as financier, educator, spiritual leader. Twenty-six years of fervent good wishes for us—our happiness making his the greater. Twenty-six years of becoming what he is today—the greatest tradition of modern Lindenwood.

Keen eyes, an engaging smile, a robust stride, an impatient frown, a rare wit, a charming naturalness of manner in any situation, an active interest in every student and in her ability to get the most from her college studies—that is Dr. Gipson.

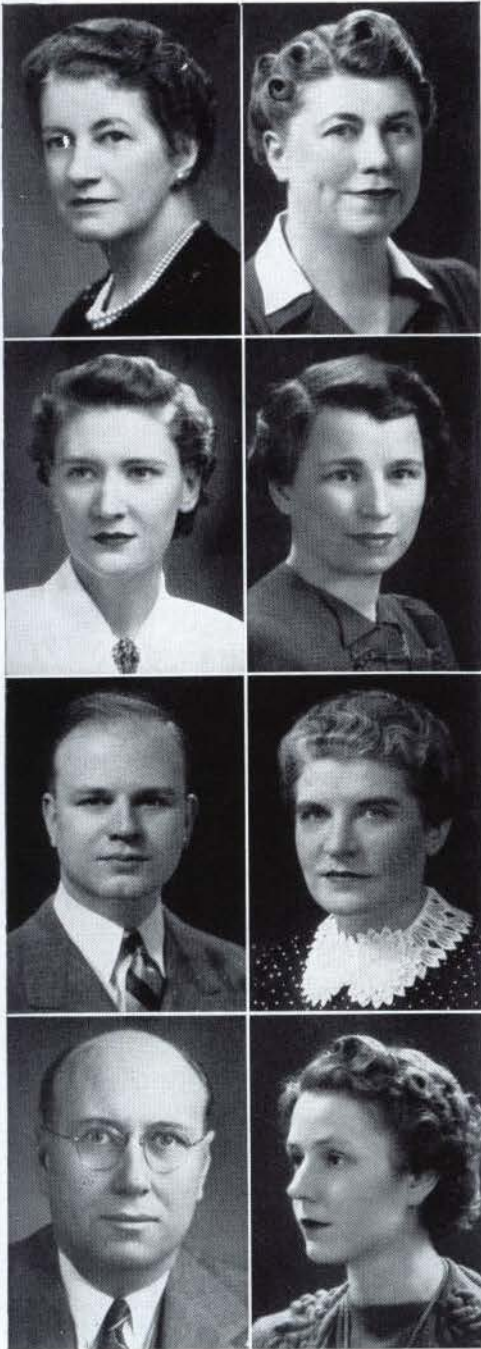

It is Dr. Gipson who has raised the scholastic rating of Lindenwood to its present height, and it is she who by a firm but tolerant direction sees that an intellectual superiority is maintained.

FLORENCE W. SCHAPER, Director of Student Guidance and Personnel
B.S., M.A., Ph.D.

Energetic, tactful, altruistic, restless, blessed with excellent judgment and a knack for winning the confidence and friendship of girls—that is Dr. Schaper.

It is Dr. Schaper who has worked unendingly to better the regulations for student life on the campus of her Alma Mater, and it is she who has collaborated with the Student and Residence Councils to give us our present smooth-running Lindenwood Democracy.

STUDENT COUNCIL

MOORE, LEE, JEFFERSON, EDMINSTER, GREEN, CRAWFORD, WEBER, KOHLBRY, THISTLEWOOD, HAINES

The Student Council is the governing body of Lindenwood, concerned with the welfare of the students. The officers are elected by the entire student body, and the remaining members are elected by their respective classes. The purpose of the Student Council is to develop wholesome, democratic self-government on the campus, and to ameliorate campus situations that may arise by discussion of campus problems in their meetings.

This year the Council sponsored with the Y. W. C. A. the College Conference on Religion, gave two formal date dances, and a series of informal teas during final examination week, and sponsored the Book Exchange.

The Lindenwood Young Women's Christian Association, to which all students belong, gives bi-monthly programs, including book reviews and lectures on current and religious topics; sponsors the "Big Sister" movement, the Style Show, and the Vesper Council, instrumental in planning chapel services.

This organization also collects a Thanksgiving offering for benefit of the needy, dresses dolls for Markham Memorial, distributes presents to the aged at the County Home, and gives aid to the underprivileged children of St. Charles. This year, the Y. W. C. A. cooperated with the Student Council in sponsoring the College Conference on Religion.

LIFE A

ANN RAYBURN, Senior

This blue-eyed lassie with a southern accent is from Dixon, Kentucky. Not very interested in becoming a B. W. O. C. (Big Woman on Campus), Ann is tall, blonde, and greatly admired for her pleasing disposition. She dislikes: fads, loud colors, things unrefined; she likes: poems, notebooks, home economics, well-groomed men, swimming, and arranging flowers, colors, and materials artistically.

HARRIET DILLMAN, Junior

Twinkling brown eyes that close when she smiles belong to Harriet, whose ambition it is to become a laboratory technician. Her home is in Waveland, Indiana. She likes especially: golf, friends, biological specimens, red roses, chic clothes, and her nickname, "Coo."

OUR LAST WORDS:

Sarah Phillips wrote "We're the Class of '41," and we stood in front of the Founder's Day group in the dining room to sing it—281 Freshmen. We had a lot of class spirit the older girls said. Dr. Dawson did that; she has always made our activities so much fun that they have seemed easy.

We still have it—the spirit.

From the time we organized the first class council in 1937, it has been "We." That first May Day we gave the juniors adorable little nosegays.

SENIOR OFFICERS

HELEN DONDANVILLE, Vice-President; GERALDINE WACHTER, President; JACQUELINE MORRISON, Treasurer; EVELYN BRADLEY, Secretary

Sponsor: DR. MARION DAWSON

The next year we asked the whole school to a free carnival in the gym—soda pop, cracker jack, confetti, an orchestra. We've given one annually since. Funny the things you remember—Bid Baker as the side-show barker in the first one; Ruth Faucett, more than once the fat lady; Gerry Rasdal as the wild woman; and all our baby pictures strung on the wall to be identified.

Now it is 1941. We still have our class council—and our spirit, of course. Thank you for these four years, Lindenwood? We certainly do!

TO QUOTE THE JUNIORS:

As a class our first activity of this year consisted of stampeding into the balcony (only tearing the bannister and a couple of rows of seats from the floor in the process) to pick out chapel seats and assume the position of dignified juniors. Whereupon we lost part, and in some cases all, of our dignity in an invasion of Blanchette Park for a picnic with our sister class, the Freshmen. We froze noses, burned fingers, dropped hot dogs, uttered screams; and that terrific event was over. The Freshmen haven't liked us since.

Then a tea was planned, but we didn't have the tea; we decided to go to Columbia to a football game, but we didn't go to Columbia; we decided to go in to the American Theater to see Katherine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story," and believe it or not, we went! It was wonderful. Then came the Junior all-college date dance. We lost weight, curled hair, grew finger nails, and borrowed formals. We heard sweet music, drank punch, damaged feet; and that terrific event was over. Just before Christmas the two-dolls-from-each-junior situation arose and we lived through that amid the merriment of our fellow students.

After Christmas 'till the night that the gifts were given to the seniors, 'till May Day and Class Day, 'till the Junior-Senior Prom at the Chase, we spent the time frantically getting ready for them. Aside from broken spirits, shattered nerves, and gray hairs, we enjoyed these events.

And so to the end of a perfect year. It has been swell. The only puzzling thing is why we didn't go on a hay ride.

FROM THE SOPHOMORES:

"Dictionaryly," sophomore is derived from words meaning wise-foolish. Though the Class of 1943 are in doubt as to definitions, they are sure that they like Lindenwood. To prove it, they inaugurated early in the fall Sophomore Loyalty Day and presented a chapel program, songs by Blitz and Dixie in the dining room, and a bonfire at night. They hope it will become an annual affair sponsored by the sophomores.

Christmas Caroling was something they'll never forget—crisp winter air, tears at Silent Night, delicious cookies and cocoa served to them by Eastlick Hall, and the last ring around the big Christmas tree before they went in.

Hoping and praying for cold weather that came at the last minute, they presented for the school a snowball date dance in January, and the next month instigated the "Lindenwood Revue," a hilarious stage show around the theme of school days. Each class participated along with members of the faculty, showing Lindenwood then and now, seriously and humorously.

In April, they invited their "bests" to the Sophomore Prom, and danced beneath daisy petals saying, "He loves me. He loves me not." On May Day they carried the Evergreen Chain, their chorus added harmony, and two of their fairest, Lois Selby and Becky Rath, attended the Queen.

To say goodbye in May to the Seniors, their sister class, they all galloped around the campus on a scavenger hunt and picnicked on hamburgers and buns down on the golf course.

THE FRESHMEN SAY:

We obviously came, we certainly saw—Lindenwood has conquered us all.

There were 257 freshies this year—an eager group of girls with talent and enthusiasm. Our capable president, Paddy Price, and our able class sponsor, Miss Eva Englehart, provided the needed leadership, and we are grateful to them. We thank the upperclassmen for their gracious "Hello's" and the welcome they extended.

Our activities have been various. On Freshman Day we knocked ourselves out doing that chapel program, and no doubt enjoyed it even more than the audience! The dinner-dance we sponsored in February was thrilling and never-to-be-forgotten; for at last we were doing something on our own for the rest of you. We hope that our final effort, the Freshman Prom, will be given annually by the "green ones" who come after us.

You've laughed with us, and we've loved you for it. Some of us may not come back, and some of us may be seniors in 1944. But all of us have lived and loved this year sincerely.

—JEANIE SWARR.

TO COLLEGE FOR KNOWLEDGE THEY CAME

Those students who attain superior scholastic records are rewarded by membership in the various honorary organizations of their chosen fields. It is pleasing to note that so large a number of the girls on campus have earned the name scholar.

This year Lindenwood has four representatives from the senior class in the now well-known publication, Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. The book contains a complete biography of each student.

Alpha Mu Mu is the honorary music sorority for underclassmen. It was founded by Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer and Leo C. Miller in May, 1918. A student must be a music major, have at least an S in her major, and no grade lower than an M to qualify for membership.

At this year's meetings the members of the music faculty were invited to participate on the programs. Alpha Mu Mu cooperated with Mu Phi Epsilon and Delta Phi Delta in giving a formal tea for the music students and faculty. The members attended "La Traviata" on April 24. The highlight of the year was the informal dinner for the music faculty.

It is the purpose of the members of the organization to apply their integrated knowledge to the solution of social problems.

This year, the Lindenwood chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, besides conducting its regular meetings, sponsored a Pan-American exhibit and chapel program, presented its annual award to the student highest in the social studies, and gave a tea for fellow-students in the social science department.

LIFE AT

"Brunie's" unusual hobbies are china dogs and unfamiliar dictionary words. She is a small brunette whose eyes snap with vitality and droll humor. She lives at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. Quick and able as a student in the commercial department, she likes: football games, dancing, knitting for Britain, and men who are Esquire, but not blasé.

FLORENCE BARRY, Freshman

At almost any hour of the day Florence can be seen emerging from the swimming pool—a true outdoor girl with radiant complexion. She likes: rhumbas and congas, good plays, phonograph records, education, comparing people's hands, driving, Margaret Sullivan, Ronald Colman, and Chicago, her home town.

Among the activities this year were a chapel program for the awarding of numerals and letters, a picnic and ice-skating parties. A team was sent to Warrensburg in May for the Missouri Women's Sports' Day.

The chief purpose of this association is to foster an interest in sports and to make a more complete program of athletic activities.

Beta Chi sponsors a horse show every spring at the Lindenwood paddock. Students taking riding compete in the event, and members of Beta Chi do exhibition riding and jumping. Members of Beta Chi also participate in intercollegiate competitions and appear in the St. Louis horse shows, both fall and spring.

Social activities of the club consist of hayrides and breakfast rides several times during the year.

ENCORE CLUB

The Encore Club, formed last year, has been active in receiving and welcoming girls to our campus. To qualify for membership in this "Come Again Club," a student must have had a relative enrolled at Lindenwood at some time in the past.

The object of the club is to foster the idea that if one member of a family attends Lindenwood, others will be sure to follow.

The club is sometimes called upon to act as escorts showing visitors about the campus.

There are sixty-eight members in the organization this year.

In the spring the League acted as hostess to the annual convention of Missouri College Leagues.

The International Relations Club is open to any member of the student body. Faculty and student participants in the programs this year have centered their interest around world activities in relation to the American scene. This year, the organization sponsored weekly radio broadcasts over Station WTMV. Students wrote and presented the scripts.

LINDEN BARK

The LINDEN BARK is published every other Tuesday during the school term by members of the Journalism class. Celebrating its twentieth birthday this year, the paper experienced a thorough modernization.

Innovations made by the 1941 staff include: a new name plate and streamlined headlines, the "Hall of Fame," "The Linden Bark Quiz," the "Club Corner," a "Romeo Contest" and a side-splitting April fool issue. "Cotton" Cannon's column has been a feature much enjoyed for the past two years. LINDEN BARK is a member of the Missouri Collegiate Press Association.

"Annuals are out" is the cry! Girls group eagerly around the door of Room 7 as the freshly printed volumes pour across the desk. This is the picture of the finished product, the moment of satisfaction that some forty people have worked seven months to achieve. The day the 1941 annual board was announced, six of its members rushed to the editor to find out what they could do to help. That typifies their attitude this year—always energetic, co-operative.

The editor, Mary Jean DuHadway, planned the book, made assignments, and "pushed." Ruth Faucett, assistant to the editor, directed picture-taking, helped mount underclass prints, and was a demon-worker at innumerable detailed tasks. Betty Maude Jacoby, assistant to the editor, typed copy (a terrific job), and was uncannily present and helpful in "dead-line" moments.

Helen Meyer, business manager, made the contracts, sold annuals (over 400 of them), paid bills, kept accounts, helped mount pictures, and made up the faculty-student index. Her helpers were Ruth Schrader, crack annual saleswoman, and Dorothy Keyes, who was a vital member of the picture-mounting crew.

In advertising, Margaret Barton, manager, and the girls who helped her, brought in more ads than ever before. Those girls were: Adelaide Wilke, Carolyn Ivey, Marillyn Appelbaum, Elizabeth Crossman, Marjorie Dildy, Marie Stumberg, and Betty Myers. Margaret also compiled the advertising section of the book and made up the advertising index.

We owe the excellent art work to Anna-mae Ruhman, and to Mary Kay Kohlbry, who assisted her by doing the backgrounds for the division page letters and the senior panels.

Many were the nights that Evelyn Bradley called together her organization staff and said: "Girls, we have all the students in club pictures to identify;" or, "You are to ask each sponsor for a write-up;" or, "These organization pictures must be O.K.ed and returned by Friday." The girls who carried out these orders so beautifully were: Genevieve Kniese and Vera Jean Douthat, Seniors; Betty Merrill and Harriet Dillman, Juniors; Esther Farrill, Carol Robinson, Rena Eberspacher and Lucy Jane Hadley, Sophomores; Marjorie Bernard, Jeanie Swarr, Jennie Mildred McRae, and Jane Manuel, Freshmen.

Doris Nahigian and Harriet Thistlewood took the pictures and gathered the material for the "Life at Lindenwood" pages. Hardly a sunny day passed that Harriet Dalton and Mary Helen St. Clair weren't using their cameras in the interest of the snapshot section. Lucile Quernheim hounded the seniors for their activity lists; and Margaret Chapman and Betty Lillibridge are said to have gained several pounds laughing at the humor they wrote.

Although not officially staff members: Jacqueline Morrison gave us the informal phrases about our faculty and administration; Martha Weber wrote the letter from the student body to Mr. Motley; and Miss Stookey arranged her pictures in a page of dances from last year's Middle American Fiesta.

All 171 pages Dr. Gregg advised, checked, O.K.ed, and made unforgettable by her inimitable comments.

Now you have it . . . "Annuals are out."

L. C. SENIORS, '41

(With apologies to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and the senior class)

Under the spreading linden leaves,
The seniors sat four years,
The seniors, mighty minds had they
That were between their ears;
And the knowledge that they gave L. C.
Will last for years and years.

Their hair was up, or down and long,
Their faces cleansed with cream;
Their brows were plucked a thin dark line,
They faked what they did seem;
They looked the whole world in the face—
A modern Adam's dream.

Week in, week out, from eight till five,
The practice rooms did ring;
You could hear the music-majors bang
Away on Bach and swing;
The Niccollites this clang drove mad,
They picked up books to sling!

L. C. SENIORS, '41—(Continued)

And freshmen coming from their halls,
Looked in at classroom doors;
They loved to see those brilliant girls
At academic chores,
Holding their textbooks languidly,
Sleeping with muffled snores.

Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing,
Onward through school they went;
Some of them finished spry and gay,
Others decrepit and bent;
Some for knowledge still did crave,
Others to love gave vent!

"Thanks, thapks," they shout, "dear Lindenwood,
For the lessons thou hast taught;
Thus at our flaming forge of life,
Degrees—they must be wrought;
We'll always think of you, L. C.,
Where we 'gainst wisdom fought!"

EXPERTS DEFINE LOVE

"According to an old adage, love is that which if there wasn't any, there would have to be something else in its place to make the world go 'round."—Dr. Garnett.

"Love is just like a daffodil, opening up in the spring."—Dr. Dawson.

"Probably there is an inkling of truth in one man's definition of love—'Love is an internal, infernal, everlasting itching in the heart that cannot be scratched.'"—Mr. Ordelleide.

"Love is the affectionate feeling toward those you desire to be near."—Miss Ostner.

"How can there be a general definition of such a phenomenon? Some things, though, are common to all cases. Even the most unhappy ones have a great deal of beautiful joy and wonder. And even the happiest cases usually have a touch of grief and worry. Maybe the man was right who said, 'Love is a season ticket for a round-trip ride on the shuttle train between heaven and hell.'"—Dr. Betz.

"Love is a feeling that usually knocks you off your feet and makes you wonder what hit you. It makes everything seem wonderful, and all the world is yours (if you want it). It's a marvelous institution!!!"—Miss Black.

"Love is a cardiac delusion."—Mr. Clayton.

"Love is that inescapable fatality which binds two people until death do them part."—Dr. Harmon.

"Love is something very, very beautiful, very steadying. That is, in some cases—in other cases, it is anything but steadying—most devastating."—Mrs. Gardner.

“Ideal love is a co-valence—a mutual attraction, sharing and sharing alike. Then there is love which is co-ordinated valence—this is one-sided love. And thirdly, electrovalence love exists, but this kind ends in divorce.”—MISS BAILEY.

JEANIE SWARR—Due to her marvelous training and experience in writing to a love-lorn column during her college years, she was immediately snatched upon graduation by "The Port of Lonely Hearts" to be general circulation manager. This position she has filled ever since. She is now Mrs. Yvon Milre. Mr. Milre was, by the way, her first correspondent.

RUTH DAYTON—$30,000 reward for the capture of Ruth Dayton (alias Amoeba Dayton). Dangerous character. Carrying cannon concealed in a cello case. Last seen standing on the Mexican border thumbing her nose at the G-Men.

1943—

"Stinky" BINDLEY, "Deb" EBERSPACHER, "Peter" TATUM, and "S" GALLAGHER have become socially known as the "Gay Divorcees". Each has been married and divorced four times. They are now in their mountain retreat planning a fifth attack, and, as an added note of interest, are still wearing each other's clothes.

GRACE QUEBBEMAN—Some fifteen years ago Grace started out her front door just as a passerby sneezed. She quickly drew back and slammed the door shut, and she has remained in the house ever since. Looking back and remembering old "Antiseptic Queb", who was constantly on the look-out for germs, we can easily see how she has led this hermit life, polishing bushels of apples yearly for the Anti-Bug Clinic.

BETTY BREWSTER—"Brunie" has been receiving her salary from Lindenwood for a good many years now. One spring afternoon in her sophomore year she, with a smile on her face, completely froze at her typewriter, and Miss Allyn ever since that day has had her placed in front of the classroom as a model for all typing students.

MARILLYN APPELBAUM still has her brother. Need more be said?

LOUISE MALLORY has become widely known and recognized. She is now associated with Arthur Murray and heads the list as the foremost Conga and Rhumba expert in the Americas. She and Carmen Miranda share an apartment in New York, and we are proud to say, "We knew her when—".

1972—

EVELYN BRADLEY—"Brad's" lust for excitement drew her magnetically to the circus. Her first connection was unofficial, playing poker with the animal trainers. One day during a heated argument over four missing aces, the circus manager heard her voice come out above the roar of the lions and tigers, and he immediately hired her as chief barker of the side show. Two weeks ago she was fired because they found the four missing aces in the soles of her shoes. Poor "Brad".

MISS LINDEN WOOD

Here she is—the average Lindenwood girl! Here's how she would look to Earl Carroll (and we must say she'd be a Choice Number for him to snatch), and here are all of the "favorites" that go with her. We present—Miss Linden Wood, our debutante of '41.

Her height	5'5"
Her weight	121 lbs.
Her hip measurement	35½"
Her waist measurement	25"
Her bra size	34"
Her shoe size	7

By now some four hundred fifty Lochinvars have probably come out of the West and are cantering up Butler way to meet Miss Wood. "What does she like to do on a date?" they question each other. We have the answer for them. Her favorite entertainment on a date is dancing. (Some of her sisters claim it depends upon the date, while one pipes up that her favorite entertainment is eating!)

Her favorite brand of cigarettes: Lucky Strikes. (Second choice is Phillip Morris. One chance in 450, though, she smokes O. P.'s—Other People's.)

Without a doubt Lady Linden is enrapturing the hearts of all Lochinvars. They have forgotten their Lady Guineveres. The query now is, "Does she consider matrimony?" Yes, very decidedly! What she wants to do more than anything else after she graduates is to marry. A few desire a career (one wants to be a matron in a prison), and several would like nothing better than to travel. But, by far, Linden herself chooses marriage.

But Lochinvars, take heed!!! Modern Miss L. W. has definite ideas about you! She knows what she wants, and she intends to go after it. The “musts” she wants in a husband, according to the number of times mentioned, are:

1. Ambition
2. Sincerity and faithfulness
3. Consideration
4. Intelligence
5. Personality

(It is true that one lists as a “must”, a good cook; another, an Irishman; still another, a red-headed engineer; and yes, still another, a graduate from Spring Hill College, one named Joe who smokes a pipe. But the above-mentioned rated as the top five.)

Problem:

Write complete specifications for a GOOD TIME

DON'T try it, brother (or sister) . . . you'll be all night at the job.

And you'll come up with nothing but a long list of things.

But not with complete specifications for a good time.

For, a good time is made up of many intangibles. Such as a bright smile here, an inane laugh there; the right responses to your witticisms at the right times; just the right nuances of the sublime and ridiculous (never the same in any two situations) - - and some indescribably delicate mixture of the physical and spiritual within you that must be just right for each particular time and occasion.

NOR could you come much closer to writing complete specifications for a Midland-built school yearbook.

There are values and ingredients in such a made-to-order production which are easy to see in the finished product, but difficult to describe in specifications.

There is no technical manner in which to specify perfection in halftone printing, the master's touch in typography, the subtle skills embodied in graceful, lasting bindings.

Printers have individualities - - good or bad. The "best" specifications ever written by the most snoopingly suspicious purchasing agent never changed the character of a printer, and that's what counts!
