LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

ST. CHARLES, MO.

WE PRESENT this 1935 Linden Leaves to you, the students of Lindenwood. We have endeavored to capture the spirit of our beloved college . . . the spirit of youth, courageous, looking ever forward. Extremely modern, yet classic in origin, this book has been made for you. Its success depends upon the happiness you find, when, in years to come, the days spent here at Lindenwood are made to live again.

IN ORDER to make any organization successful, there must be some form of government. The students of Lindenwood are fortunate in having such an excellent group to govern. They owe much to the friendly, helpful faculty and the hard-working Student Council. It should be the aim of every student to take advantage of all the opportunities presented here.

“He that would govern others, first should be master
of himself.”

ALICE E. GIPSON,
A. B., Ph. D.
Dean of the College

TO DR. GIPSON, the Staff of the 1935 Linden Leaves, as well as the whole school, wish to extend their most sincere thanks. She has indeed been a friend to all of us, giving her advice, showing us when we were wrong, but always with the purpose of making better women out of us. A true teacher, and our most admirable dean!

STUDENT BOARD is composed of the President who is a Senior; the Vice-President, a Junior; and the Secretary-Treasurer, a Sophomore, all of whom are appointed by Mrs. Roemer and the regents of the dormitories. The remaining members are the President of the Y. W. C. A. and the House Presidents.

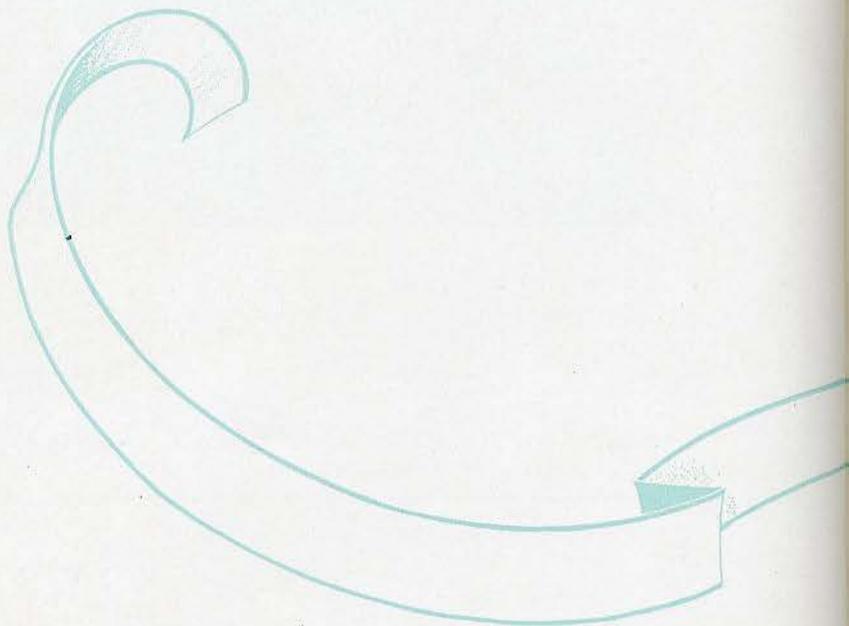

This year Student Board has sponsored two date dances, has sent a delegate to the convention of the National Student Federation, and has secured for the students several valuable privileges.

NICCOLLS HALL

THE time has come for the Seniors to resign their citizenship here at Lindenwood, now to become citizens of the world. The Juniors will step up and take their place, to carry on the glory of the Class of '35. The Sophomores and Freshmen will move on, giving room for others in the endless march for higher education.

more stately mansions, O
my soul.”

CITIZENS

AT LAST it's here—that magic year 1935, to which we looked so longingly four years ago. Now that it has arrived there's just a little hesitancy on our part to leave the sheltered life here for the "cold, cruel word." It has been a long and happy road that we have travelled since that momentous day in September when we entered college. With what pride we can look over our achievements! With what joy we can anticipate future ones!

As is the case on almost every college campus, the seniors are the recipients of a great deal of honor, even reverence, perhaps. Although these joys are great, the best is to be graduating from Lindenwood, that grandest of all Alma Maters.

During our four years here, we've studied a lot, yet we have also played. The first is shown clearly by the number of senior representatives in the different societies whose membership is based upon high scholastic standing. Evidence of the latter is found in the parties and date dances we have given. Remember the Soph Prom, with its "Stardust", and the "Little Dutch Mill" our junior year? We have built ourselves with the idea that we will never be too old to learn—and to play.

For the past two years, Allie Mae Bornman has been President of the Class. We are here as witnesses to prove what a capable leader she has been. This year she has been assisted by Geraldine Robertson of Carthage, Missouri, as Vice-President; Mary Roberts of Little Rock, Arkansas, as Secretary, and Virginia Porter of McLeansboro, Illinois, as Treasurer. These girls have done their part to make the Senior Class the "top."

A large part of our success has been due to the aid of our sponsors, Mrs. John L. Roemer and Miss Marie Reichert. We wish to pay tribute to them for their understanding and sympathetic guidance, which they were always ready to give.

There is little left to say, except that we hope that the oncoming classes will be as happy as we have been . . . And so we take our leave, saying a last farewell to you, our Lindenwood!

WE ARE the Class of 1936. We are not a superhuman group. We are a group of some forty individuals, each of us growing, learning, taking and giving. We have had fun learning. The beauty of Lindenwood has become a part of us. We have expressed that beauty in many ways. It was in us when we expressed in writing the beauty that we felt, or in our dancing, letting our inward beauty out, teaching younger girls the fineness of play. It was expressed in all of us by smiling, by playing, by being glad for us, and by doing the work we have found here was ours to do.

We have done the usual things. We elected officers we knew were leaders, and we were not wrong. Florence Wilson from Chicago, Illinois, was our President; Camille McFadden from Taylorville, Illinois, our Vice-President; Marie Ellis from Sioux City, Iowa, our Secretary; and Wilma Hoen from Hinsdale, Illinois, our Treasurer.

These were our leaders, but all of us are leaders and most of us possess originality. That originality combined gave us a hayride party—a new thing—full of fun, straw, wiggles, bugs perhaps, song, and laughter. We were all exceptionally glad to be Juniors that night.

We have given many jolly dances. We gave to the Seniors a Prom, the nicest dance of all. That night we were more than happy because it was Spring and we were entertaining our sister class.

For May Day we elected Jean Kirkwood as Maid of Honor, and Guinivere Wood and Violet Wipke as attendants. These girls represented some of our finest beauty and nicest personalities.

So we have lived this year, playing and working. Every day we have learned something, and every day we have grown. We thank our sponsor, Miss Frances Stumberg, our friends, and our school for helping us. We find ourselves ready now to be Seniors, to carry on the ideals of our school and the ideas our school helped us to form.

THIS year the Sophomore Class broke the traditional enmity supposed to exist between Freshmen and Sophomores and extended to the newcomers the friendly hand of welcome and almost-equality. The only vestige of former tyranny was the numerous pairs of huge green gloves surprisingly worn by Freshmen only. These were presented to the Freshmen in a very impressive service and a few weeks later were burned. Then the Sophomore Class gave a party at which the youngster Freshmen, forgetting the last ten years of their age, entertained.

All these affairs of the Class were guided by the sponsor, Miss Hankins, and the officers, who were Suzanne Perrin of St. Louis, President; Nan Latham of California, Missouri, Vice-President; Katherine Morton of St. Joseph, Missouri, Secretary; and Virginia Rugh of Decatur, Illinois, Treasurer. Suzanne, who had been President of the Class last year also, was married at the end of the first semester, and Nan Latham became President for the remainder of the year.

This year for the first time the Sophomores were allowed to elect attendants for the May Queen. For this honor the Class chose Jenny Sue Sparks of Paris, Missouri, and Dorothy Ball of Bowling Green, Missouri, to represent them.

The Class has done much entertaining during the year. For the whole school they sponsored one of the most successful "Date Dances" of the year. For themselves they gave a treasure hunt with clues in hollow trees, in bottles and one even in the graveyard, all of which finally led to a real buried treasure of chocolate-pirate gold; and indoor party of clever games; a final Spring outing; and most important of all, the delightful Sophomore Prom.

The Sophomores have played their part in the affairs of the college with ability and have shown that in their hearts exists a never-dying loyalty for Lindenwood.

“WE SOPHOMORE L. C. girls have come again,
 Back to the school for which we have a yen,
 And for the yellow and the white let's give a cheer,
 That can be heard the world around by every ear;
 So we will work and fight for every point
 That means our honor and our fame,

A LITTLE weeping, a bit of fearful shaking, and then, "Dinah!— Is there anyone finer—" than a Freshman? Ask a Sophomore. But the class with Miss Anderson's aid got started with great enthusiasm and elected officers for the first semester. The President was Ruth Ann McSpadden of Nowata, Oklahoma; the Vice-President, LaVerne Rowe of Kirkwood, Missouri; the Secretary, Virginia Estes of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; and the Treasurer, Catherine Schroeder of Cheyenne, Wyoming. In proof of their excellent ability these same girls were re-elected to carry on their work for the remainder of the year.

Finally the long-dreaded Sophomore Day arrived and very surprisingly the Freshmen were merely presented with green gloves many sizes too large, and rather startling with dresses of red, blue, and sometimes even green. These they had to wear to classes and even in St. Charles for several weeks. Later, amid much weeping (?) the offending articles were burned.

Soon after, the youthful class proved their right to a worthy place at Lindenwood by giving the opening formal dinner-dance of the year. They made charming and delightful hostesses, presenting all their guests with mirror jewel boxes at dinner and later entertaining them in the gymnasium which was decorated modernistically in black, silver, and pink. Not content with entertaining the whole school but once, they gave a "Date Dance" also, which was a great success.

The Freshmen too had a part in the May Day festival. They chose two of their members, Evelyn Eberly of Fort Collins, Colorado, and Jeannette Campbell of Norfolk, Nebraska, to represent them by attending the Queen.

On campus this year have been noticeable the abundance of white sweaters with the emblem, a shield in green and white, on the front. The people who wore these sweaters were members of the Class of 1938, that largest class which was so full of fun, yet serious too, that class which to such a degree possessed PEP.

SPORTS

MISS STOOKEY

LINDENWOOD girls are true athletes, and their success in this line, together with their enjoyment of the different sports, is due to the capable leadership of Miss Margaret Mantle Stookey and Miss Marie Reichert. We are fortunate in having Miss Stookey as head of the department, giving us her wide knowledge of the art of the dance. Miss Reichert has been extremely valuable in her coaching of the various sports. The athletic department justly deserves the fame it has received.

THERE isn't a greater privilege to be given a girl at Lindenwood than to become a member of one of the various scholastic honor fraternities. These organizations are excellent training for later life because of their emphasis upon both character and ability in their exclusive membership.

THE outstanding achievement of Mu Phi Epsilon this year was the public performance of its students and faculty members in Sunday afternoon musicales, group recitals, and individual recitals. In addition to this, the sorority gave a Hallowe'en party and Valentine Tea; it helped sponsor a banquet for all the music organizations and a Christmas dance at which the popularity queen was announced.

TO THE student body at large Beta Pi Theta has presented the French language in a novel way by means of the French puppet show at the Y. W. C. A. THE most important accomplishment of Kappa Pi was the sponsoring of the sale of Christmas cards designed and made by the members of the Art Department. The proceeds of this sale were given to the Mary Easton Sibley scholarship fund for the use of needy students. At Christmas also the fraternity decorated the graves of Major and Mrs. Sibley in recognition of their service to Lindenwood.

EL CIRCULO ESPANOL has given its members an opportunity to know more of the life and customs of Spanish speaking countries by bringing speakers who have visited these countries and by, in some small manner, practicing these customs. However, its greatest service was in giving the students studying Spanish a chance to speak the language to each other outside the classroom.

THE Lindenwood Athletic Association has sponsored many tournaments during the year in hockey, basket ball, tennis, and swimming. Each of these tournaments was presented in a very interesting way and was enthusiastically received by the student body. Besides this, the Association has interested many people in securing enough points by participation in athletics to become members.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB has brought together the girls of Lindenwood interested in that field of study. This year they have held social meetings to help the girls become better acquainted with one another, and meetings in which innovations of current interest to students in the department were discussed and demonstrated. A luncheon and afternoon of entertainment in St. Louis concluded the year.

The club has also sponsored several social meetings.

At Christmas and Easter they presented cantatas and in the spring concluded with the annual spring concert.

GLEANINGS! At last we have come to the harvest. Lindenwood has served as an inspiration for the expression of beauty in both poetry and prose. Here we have recorded some of our best examples of this expression. All of us cannot see the beauty of nature and life so quickly. We have our lighter moments, and in these pages you will find some of the campus jokes. May they be as delightful many years from now.

GLEANINGS

DANCE OF THE SNOW MAIDEN

Snow Maiden of Tschaikowski has come
 Alive for me. In one still moment I
 Have seen the beauty great Tschaikowski saw.
 Outside, the air, though silent, still,
 Was vibrant now with more than sound for me. I sat
 In dreams and heard the song of Russian men
 Which is to me the loveliest of all.
 The splash, the flare, the vividness and joy
 Of what is joyful, all of what is there.
 The lightness, quickness, whirling life
 Became live notes that spread from strings
 Of symphonies far distant miles to me. And that alone—
 As if it came from golden strings stretched through
 Blue ether, played by God—sends waves, quick waves
 Of more than I can name through me. That much
 Can melody already mine accept,
 For I, since I am mortal, see no more.
 My inner self has always danced to song—
 And leapt from high to low and moved through all
 The realm of heaven because music made Me so. That I had felt, but never seen until Tonight, when notes ablaze came dancing forth
 In tones of wild and free delight, and caught
 A candle burning there. The radio
 Took from the air the waves of sound and poured
 Them forth in all their beauty, plus a new,
 Fine beauty melody but gains in its
 Quick flight through space. And all the gorgeous tones
 The symphony could give, and all the life
 Tschaikowski gave the Snow Maiden now lived
 Within the candle flame. By every note
 And every half note sound the flame was moved.
 The mighty orchestration was but some Slight breath of silver strings invisible
 Which played upon the flame, so graceful in
 Its movement, yet so quick and violent
 Its dance. Around and back and up it whirled,
 And back and to the side, then swiftly slid
 From top to base and all around again.
 Then tapering high it swayed with pendulum
 Precision while the Maiden paused for breath.
 Then bent, it whirled more quick than joy,
 And bending lower still it swayed—
 But faster than before. The flame itself
 Was music—and I knew not which I heard.

 The air is sweet;
 Mist fills the woods. Down to the sea
 Hushed waters fleet.

And very still,
 Upon this tree-fringed hill
 Where whispering grasses sigh,
 And the blind bats flit by,
 While gentle moonbeams softly search
 The ground, she dreaming stands.
 Wood nymph? Or lonely silver birch?

—EVELYN BROWN

TWO SELF-PORTRAITS

A veil of fog is thrown across the sky;
 The trees are ghosts of lovers in the night.
 "Blue roses shine in moonlight" is my cry—
 And Pegasus is resting from his flight.

A golden flaming sun streaks through the sky,
 And browns the grasses with its brilliant light;
 "Blue roses fade in sunlight" is my cry—
 And Pegasus is grinning in his flight.

—KATHRYN FOX

CITY PARK

THE silence was deep in the frozen square of the city park as the shadows of the late January afternoon slid over the earth. The branches of brittle, frost-whitened trees struggled and creaked in a desolate protest against the arrogance of the wind. Black against the blank white of drifted snow in the small square toward the city's skyline. Thousands of little orange squares snapped into the gaunt sides of surrounding skyscrapers and burned through the darkness above the park.

There was just one human being in the park that night. Shuffling, shivering, and pulling his coat about his thin shoulders walked an old man, who paused now and then to catch his breath from the sharp ice of the wind. He was tired, and the light valise in his hand pulled heavily on his meager strength. His heart pounded with exertion, and his footsteps slowed as he made his way through the snow. He dropped, panting, on a bench at the park's edge to rest for a moment. The snow twisted into fantastic designs with the whirling wind and wrapped in fluted drifts around his legs as he sat there, resting.

—JEAN LEFTWICH

SCENE

AS OUR horses panted to the crest of the hill and paused there, we relaxed in the saddle and glanced around. The brown, deep-rutted road wandered down the hill, swung around a curve, and slowly mounted the opposite ridge. Brown woods extended far away to the right; a little brown stream flowed diagonally down the slope. Suddenly a wind moved the bare branches of the tall elms and rustled the dead brown leaves which covered the floor of the wood. At the left there spread a cultivated field, dark brown with an overcast of faint green. In the silence a horse stamped his foot and a redbird whistled in its flight, a brilliant flash, calling to the world to watch. At a signal we trotted on.

—CLAUDIA DELL JOHNSON

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

DID you ever stop to realize how little you do that you would care to do without an audience or a possibility of one? You hate to walk by yourself. Why? Because you are lonely; in other words there is no one to listen to your scintillating wit, no one to appreciate your tinkling laugh, no one to notice the stylish "bag" of your new tweed suit, no one to reflect your mood back at you. The only time you wish to be alone is the minimum number of seconds necessary to collect your thoughts and practice a little in order to put on a bigger and better act tomorrow. What would you do if you found yourself alone in a world with no people or possibility of any, but with all the books, music, art, food, and modern inventions that could add to your comfort and enjoyment? Would you read Mark Twain, P. G. Wodehouse, and Thorne Smith and live in a riot of laughter? Would you play Chopin nocturnes and Beethoven sonatas to enjoy their melodic beauty? Would you experiment scientifically trying to improve the plant life and living conditions? Would you exercise vigorously and attempt to become a perfect physical specimen? Frankly, would you do anything at all? I doubt it. You would just lie down and die—die because nothing would be worth doing without an audience. Of course, if you were a Robinson Crusoe, who expected to get back into society at some future date, you'd probably learn to jump from tree to tree, yell like Tarzan, and skin goats, thinking all the while what a good story it would make to tell the "folks back home."

Mere acquaintances can never satisfy your need for an appreciative audience. They are just spectators who will get up and leave if your show is bad. They may listen—with mouths open to tell their story—while you relate an amusing experience, a minor triumph, or the thrill of your last date. But they can not appreciate the splendor of your lost dreams, or your hope of singing in grand opera, or your plan to reform the world. None but the most patient of your friends can sit through your sophomoric dissertation on a philosophy of life. Only your youngest, most adoring companion will listen to your rambling account of a book you've read or a play you've seen. Unless you have a reputation for great cleverness, or unless there is a reward to gain, acquaintances will not supply your "fan following." An acquaintance may be an ideal if you endow her with a fictitious character. But in a friend you can have all the joy of appreciating her virtues and all the ecstasy of noting her faults.

Martha Perry: And here for twenty years I thought I was clubfooted.

Helen Lightholder: I hear that at your church you are having such small congregations. Is that so?

Rachel Hinman: Yes, the congregation is getting so small that every time the rector says "Dearly Beloved" you feel as though you're being proposed to.

Jeanne Stephens: Did the patent medicine you purchased cure your auntie?

Alice Bainum: Mercy no, when she read the circular wrapped around the bottle, she got two more diseases.

Peggy and Nancy were visiting an aquarium. "Wonder where I could get a live shark?" said Nancy.

"A live shark!" quoth Peggy. "What do you want with a live shark?"

Said Nancy with a vengeance: "A neighbor's cat has been eating all my goldfish, and I just want to teach him a lesson."

Timid Ruth Howe to friend, Olga Owen, who has fallen asleep at the wheel: I don't mean to dictate, Olga, but isn't that billboard coming at us awfully fast?

Kay Lehbrink: I never can tell which is a "d" and which is a "b."

Helen Moeller: Aw, that's easy. The "b" has its tummy at the back.

Instructor of Home Economics: This steak tastes queer to me.

Eleanor Hibbard: I can't understand that. I know I burned it a little, but I rubbed vaseline on it at once.

He dropped a nickel in the plate,
Then meekly raised his eyes.
Glad the weekly rent was paid
For a mansion in the skies.

So says the Humor staff: This is a good one, but we gotta graduate.

Registration Card: Give name of parents.

Frosh: Mama and Papa.

Student in Car to Sweet Young Thing: Pardon me—but—er—

Sweet Young Thing: NO, you've never seen me at Palm Beach, Newport, or Saranac Lake. I wasn't in the Pullman car on the New York Express last Tuesday night. I know I'm goodlooking and I'm not bashful, either. I'm not going your way, and I wouldn't ride with you on a bet. I didn't ever go to school with you, and what's more I'm not waiting for a street car. Furthermore, I have a 220-pound fiance waiting for me. Now, were you going to say anything?

Student in Car: Yes, darn it; you're sitting on my bag of chocolates.

Son: Father, when will I know when I am intoxicated?

Father: Shee those two women over there. Well, when you shee four of them you'll know you're intoxicated.

Son: Yes, but I only see one woman now.

Instructor: In teaching shorthand and typewriting, we are strong for accuracy.

Visitor: And how are you on speed?

Instructor: Well, of last year's class, six married their employers within two months.

She: A woman is a fool to marry.

He: Yes, but what can a man marry?

Evelyn Brown: I hear you have a job as a poet.

Kay Fox: Yeah, I scan meters for the gas company.

"I guess I'll cut into this dance," said the surgeon, as he commenced on the St. Vitus patient.

A lipstick is something that gives a new flavor to an old pastime.

Dad: Well, Bobby, what do you think of your new teacher?

Bobby: He's all right, but he keeps changing his mind. First he says two and two makes four, and then he says three and one makes four.

Wifey: Frederick, where were you in 1920?

Frederick: I don't remember. Why?

Wifey: Well, I'm worried. I just read that one out of every 750 was in prison in 1920.

Chivalry is the notion that the girl to whom you are engaged is better than the others that you date.

He who laughs last has it explained to him.

MARY JANE LINDEN: What a gorgeous dress, Susie—you must have paid a small fortune for it. No more picture shows or candy for you this month!

SUSIE LINDEN: Like it? Well, I'll break down and confess that I think it's real sweet, too. But it didn't cost any more than most girls pay for theirs.

MARY JANE: Come now, Sue, don't use your line on me!

SUE: All right—you come right down to the store and maybe you'll take their word for it.

MARY JANE: And where's that?

SUE: Silly goose, the MERRY MARIE SHOP, of course.

A Half-Million Annuals

Annuals

This yearbook represents twenty years of school annual printing and binding experience. It was produced by the organization which has printed and bound, under one roof, a half-million fine college and university yearbooks, representing 150 million printed pages, for schools in twelve states.

Each staff has its problems. In dealing with 460 such staffs, we have learned to advise them wisely and to produce books they are proud to distribute on their campus. 920 editors and business managers endorse our thoroughness and integrity.

When a staff signs a Midland contract, it enlists the aid of a College Printing Department composed of older men of many years' experience, associated with younger men who have the yearbook staff's viewpoint. The entire book is built under one roof . . . typography, presswork, binding and cover . . . the responsibility of one group of craftsmen.

Cooking . . .

has been greatly improved and simplified by the use of
ELECTRICITY

Modern electric ranges, refrigerators and food mixers have changed a wearisome daily routine to interesting little adventures for the thousands of women who use them. By taking the drudgery out of cooking and putting more certainty into the results, mealtime is a challenge to skill and a pleasant anticipation to the family. Who wouldn't enjoy an electrically-cooked meal that is healthful, rich and tasty with the juices and flavor that Nature gave it, and which did not require constant, tiresome watching during the whole cooking process?

Smart is the woman who saves her time and energy and who has discovered that the way to greater accomplishments is by doing her housework electrically.

*Electricity is the greatest aid of all time
. . . and it is cheap.*

AMERICAN LADY and TOPMOST FOODS

There are grades and gradings. But the grade of foods you buy packed under American Lady and Topmost Brand is the best we can procure. Perhaps superlatives are out of place in describing such quality. Rather, let us say, that for American Lady and Topmost Foods there is only one meaning to this "select" grading. Only one high quality standard for these foods, maintained by men organized to see that under these brands you buy the best in their judgment of fine foods.
