A STUDENT PUBLICATION
OF LINDENWOOD COLLEGE
SAINT CHARLES, MISSOURI

INTRODUCTION

The owl is the symbol of wisdom. We of the Senior Class have, for four years, endeavored to acquire a part of the real knowledge that has been offered us. For this we have chosen the owl as an emblem of our class, and we present him to you through the pages of this year's LINDEN LEAVES

Lindenwood Hymn

School of our mothers, in days of yore,
Goal of their fond ambitions long;
Within the portals of thy door,
Ideals were formed and wills made strong;
Thy honored rule was ever good,
Old Lindenwood, Old Lindenwood.

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The seniors year by year depart;
Still stands thy ancient edifice,
A stately and a noble pile,
With arched limbs of sacred wood,
'Round Lindenwood, Old Lindenwood.

Far called, old teachers pass away,
But new ones rise to take their place;
And all the pomp of yesterday
Goes on with but a change of face.
Few hearts but throb with kindly good
Toward Lindenwood, Old Lindenwood.

On girls that come and girls that go,
On all that walk beneath thy shade;
A heaven-sent gift wilt thou bestow;
A graceful and a gracious maid,
With brain for power and heart for good,
Old Lindenwood, Dear Lindenwood.

Amen.

LOUISE CRANDALL.

to THE FACULTY

We honor you for the noble and inspiring example of the truly learned which you have set for us. We thank you for the ideal which you have placed before us, because you have made it one not easily reached. We are grateful that you have given us a goal too high to be attained in four years. We are glad that it will take us our entire lives to assimilate all that you have striven to teach us. And so, in gratitude that you have shown us that our education is in life, itself, we dedicate this year's LINDEN LEAVES TO YOU.

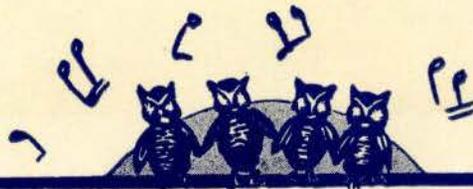

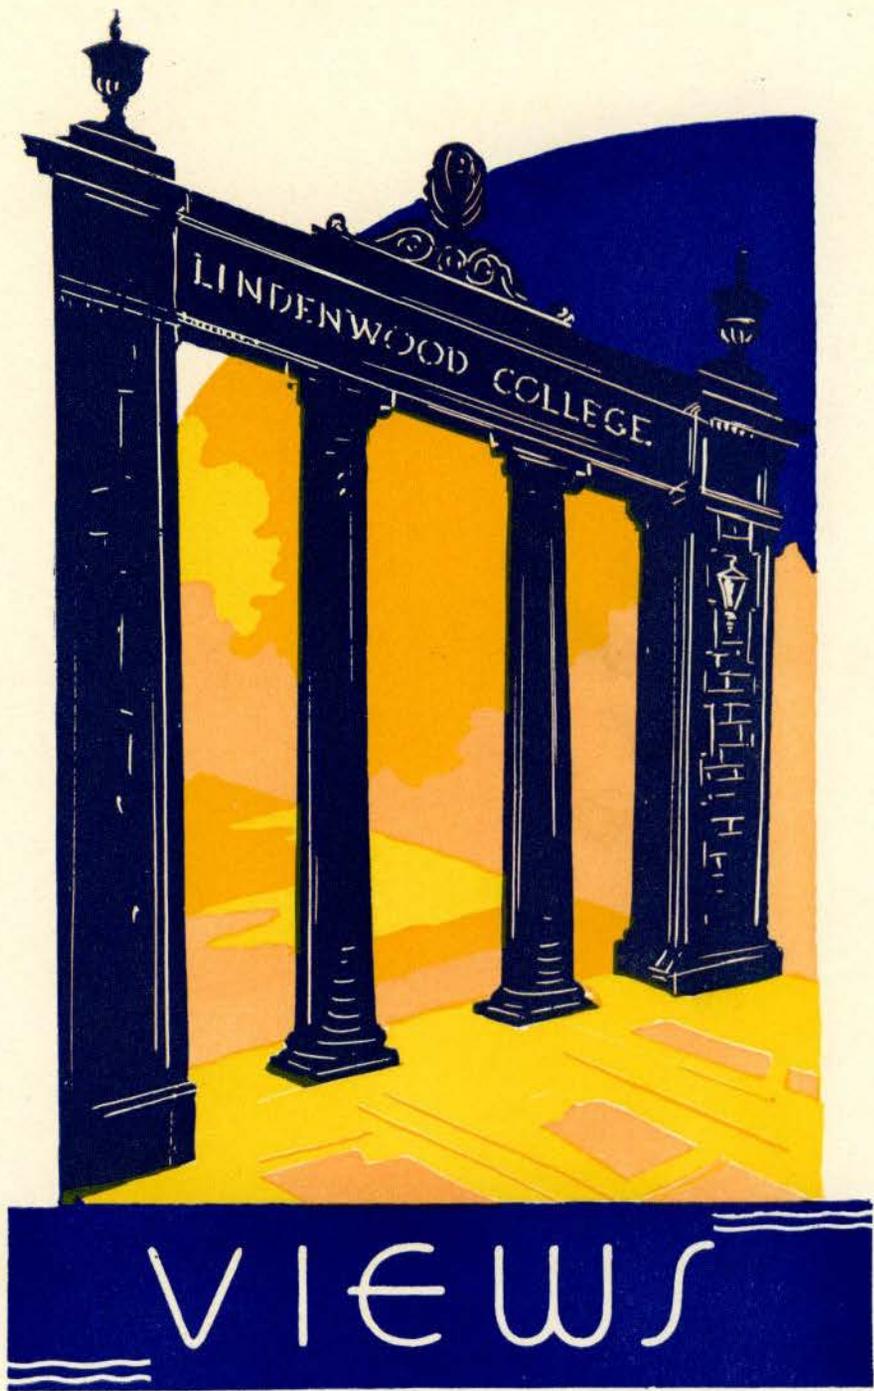

In The Heart of our Great Country

In the heart of our great country,
Under Western skies of blue,
As a beacon-light of knowledge
Stands our Alma Mater true.

With her flag of gold and snowdrift,
Bow her leafy sheltering trees;
Stretching arms of love and service
To inspire to nobler deeds.

Let us truly be the children
Of this mother, grand and good;
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater!
Hail to thee, our Lindenwood!

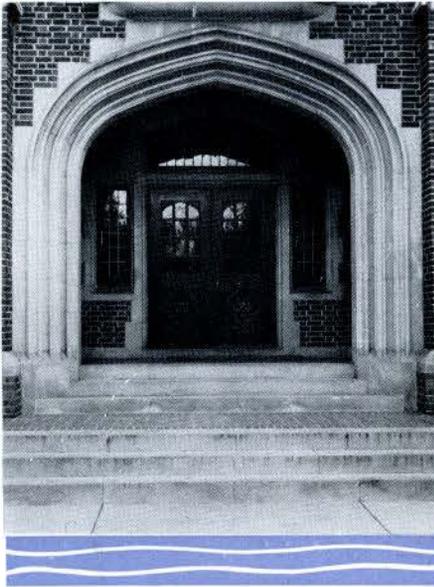

Views

We have found on Lindenwood's campus many natural beauties which add to our spiritual enjoyment. An atmosphere of stately dignity pervades the halls. The quality which is part only of things very old and very lovely is found in the green of a campus in the spring, and in the brilliance of foliage in the fall. We thank you, Lindenwood, for giving us now the beauty that we may treasure in memory our whole life through.

'Neath the Shades of Massive Lindens

'Neath the shade of massive lindens,
At the gateway of the West,
Stands our dear old Alma Mater,
Loved in ages for the best.

Truth and honor held the highest
By our mothers, loved and true,
Are the standards that surviveth,
Girls of Lindenwood, for you.

For your ideals and traditions,
For your colors firm we stand;
Lindenwood, our Alma Mater—
Best in ages of the land.

ANOTHER issue of the Linden Leaves makes its bow. Nineteen hundred thirty-three adds another success to the many annuals that have preceded. Each year the Annual Board strives to excel. This ambition is most laudable. It is natural to want to improve. It must also be remembered that each succeeding Annual Board is the recipient of the experiences of the past. Those who have gone before are honored by the success of those who follow.

The Annual of 1933 is the product of much painstaking and efficient labor on the part of those to whom the work was committed. The Editor-in-Chief, the Business Manager, and all the members of the Board have been worthy representatives of the student body and the appreciation of the students was shown in the hearty support given their representatives.

The artistic and literary makeup of the book speaks well of the efficiency of all who contributed to give the 1933 Linden Leaves the place of merit it so richly deserves.

Student Board

STUDENT jurisdiction at Lindenwood College was established in 1926 with a constitution providing for a Student Council with power to control all matters of campus life not academic or not under the direction of the Administration.

The President from the Senior Class, the Vice-President from the Junior Class, and the Secretary-Treasurer from the Sophomore Class are all appointed by Mrs. John L. Roemer, Dean of Students, and the regents of the several dormitories. The remaining members chosen by the student body are the President of Y. W. C. A. and the Presidents of the various dormitories.

The purpose of this body is to further self-government, to stimulate relations between faculty and student body, and to uphold the highest standards of honor.

Dearest of All, Lindenwood

Lindenwood, we're loyal until the last,
Ideals you instill forever.
No school can equal your glorious past,
Deeds of today do your future forecast,
Each girl must ever remember.

Nourished and loved till this century new;
Worthy of the one whose dear vision came true.
Ours just to make, not mar it;
Ours just to make, not scar it—
Dearest of all, Lindenwood!

CLASSES

Classes

THE owl flies slowly on. And after him, in stately march, come the Seniors, nearing the end of the journey. The Juniors lift their royal banners high; the Sophomores their crests of linden leaves; the Freshmen follow afar off with their eyes firmly fixed on the distant figure of the owl.

The Senior Class

THE Class of 1933, true to the traditions of its mascot, the wise old Owl, has kept its eyes open. From the fall, four years ago, when the present haughty group arrived in much confusion, two hundred and fifty strong, with all the fervent conscientiousness of Freshmen, through the superiority and subtleness of the Sophomore stage, into the diffident attitude of the Juniors, and, finally, to the sophisticated Seniors, who have dwindled to a select forty-eight. This Class of 1933 has been noted for its owlish wisdom and intellectual acuteness in the ways of the owls; that is, both before and after lights.

To the Senior sponsors, Mrs. John L. Roemer and Dr. Kate Gregg, who have organized this corporation, "The Senior Owl," the Senior class wishes to pay tribute. Their understanding and sympathetic guidance, so freely administered at all times, have enabled the owl to soar to heights which were unknown in its former blindness.

For an example of their owlish wisdom, note the officers of the Senior Class selected to represent them. For President they chose Elizabeth England from Kirkwood, Missouri; for Vice-President, Martha Duffy from Trenton, Missouri; Treasurer, Shirley Haas from Monroe, Louisiana; and Secretary, Harriette Gannaway from Mt. Vernon, Illinois.

The talents of the Senior Class are multitudinous and well-balanced. If they were suddenly isolated in a land by themselves, there would be little lacking for talents, scholastically, dramatically, and artistically. Homes would be run most modernly by its Home Economics majors, schools would be conducted, and they would never lack good music and dramatic ability.

Among the activities of the Seniors was the Senior Faculty tea, which for many years had become a tradition, but which had been discontinued for a time. This year it was again carried on. Then the important May Day, on which the May Queen, Jane Bagnell, was crowned at the foot of historic Sibley steps. The two Seniors accompanying the Queen were Elizabeth England and Martha Duffy. All of the other Seniors took part in this last May Day for them.

As a climax for the four perfect years at Lindenwood was the Prom given them by the Juniors.

And now they must leave—these wise old owls from the Forest of Lindens—where they have spent four years, rushing, both day and night, to gather the harvest which was given them in abundance.

CLASS SONG.

On, you Seniors; on, you Seniors;
Praise to Lindenwood!
Sing to the colors—white and yellow—
Hail, dear Lindenwood!

On, you Seniors, on, you Seniors;
On to victory!
We're here to honor you—
Our Lindenwood.

Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made,
Our times are in his hand
Who saith, "A whole I planned;
Youth shows but half. Trust God; see all, nor be afraid!"

Then, welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand but go!
Be our joys three-parts pain!
Strive, and hold cheap the strain;
Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!

The Junior Class

THE Junior Class is still the royal one of Lindenwood. The Queen of the Purple and White is Sarah Louise Greer from Denison, Texas, with Nancy Watson of Camden, Arkansas, as her Prime Minister. The Secretary of State, Katherine Erwin, is also from Arkansas, from the city of Newport. Jance Tobin is Chancellor of the Exchequer. You might know that there would be a power behind the throne. It is Miss Alice Parker, and it is rumored that most of the clever ideas of this class find their origin in her. Certainly she inspires her realm of subjects to implicit devotion and a desire to make their class one of the best.

The class laid aside its regal pose and gave a really original party on the show-boat. An old-fashioned melodrama kept the guests in tears for practically the entire evening. The melodrama was written by Betty Hart and Sarah Louise Greer, two of the cleverest and most original girls in their class. Who could forget this heart-rending drama? Who could forget poor little Nell, who was driven, sobbing, into the bleak December night? For that matter who could forget the most wicked villain of all time, Hubert Hardneck?

In the first week of May the true regal spirit of the class was shown. On May Day, they had their opportunity to show their royalty. The Queen was accompanied by the Junior Maid of Honor, Margaret Ringer, chosen by her class as most representative of this honor. For attendants they chose Sarah Louise Greer and Katherine Erwin, two tall, slim, vivacious girls.

To prove their class love for the departing Seniors, the Juniors gave them a prom, which will never be forgotten by either class. It was a final farewell send-off to the class whose place they were to take in the next year.

The Juniors are proud that theirs is the smallest class on the campus. Royalty is exclusive. For there are only thirty-six members in this class. The spirit shown by this small and stately group would truly make the old motto of "noblesse oblige" a fitting one.

The Sophomore Class

THE Sophomore Class has, as its President, Mildred Keegan, from Lawton, Oklahoma. The Vice-President is Ruth Cooper of Aurora, Illinois. Allie May Bornman, the Secretary, is from Clarksdale, Mississippi, and the Treasurer, Joanna Achelpohl, is of St. Charles, Missouri.

After keeping the Freshmen in terror for weeks, the class had its Sophomore Day on October the twenty-fifth. The Freshmen were presented with the traditional green caps and sternly ordered not to write on them, tip them at an angle, or lose them. Is there one Freshman who cannot recite, backwards, "To thee I squirm; a green and lowly worm?" There are some who can even put the words to music. The climax to the day came at dinner when "only a rose, to keep in memory" was given to the Freshmen by their new friends, the Sophomores. Just before Thanksgiving, the Freshmen were allowed to remove their green caps forever as a symbol that their time of bondage was over. Thus the Sophomore Class upheld its traditional dignity on a most trying occasion.

The most important function of the entire year for the Class was, of course, their prom when all the new spring formals made their appearance.

The spirit shown by this class has made it known as one of genuine sportsmanship. Great credit for this must be given to Miss Marie E. Reichert, the class sponsor, who is Assistant Director of the Physical Education Department. She has taken an active interest in all their trials and worries, and helped them through their parties.

That the class has good athletes is evident. They participate in every sport that is offered. Forming a part of a combined team of Senior-Sophomores, they won the always exciting traditional Thanksgiving hockey game. Two members of their class are dancers of great ability—Harriet Ann Gray and Dorthy Hope Miller. Their beautiful dances lend interest to every event they participate in.

They have kept up the tradition that has been the Sophomores for many years. In spite of the cold of middle December, they arose early in the morning before Christmas vacation and sung Christmas carols at each dormitory.

The Freshman Class

YOU cannot help noticing the Class of '36. They are flashing and dashing; they have a magnetic spirit about them that says, "Isn't it great to be at Lindenwood?" Their jokes cover the humor column, although a certain Freshman will tell you, "I never dare be as funny as I am." These Freshmen have talent, too. They are good students and good athletes and all-around good sports. We can never forget the formal dinner dance they gave; it was a fantasy of medieval castles, moon-lit moat, white fleecy clouds and enchantment all about. But it isn't so much what these girls do. It is the spirit of "Come on, let's win everything." And so they can.

They seemed to know from the first who the outstanding members of their class would be. They chose Helen Lightholder for their President. She is from Streater, Illinois, and is one of the most sparkling figures on the campus. The Vice-President, Sarah Nelle Pickett, of Joplin, Missouri; the Secretary, Nancy Culbertson, Kansas City, Missouri; and the Treasurer, Betty Hoover, from Springfield, Illinois, represent the other splendid choices of the Freshman class. Their song leaders are Louise Paine from Houston, Texas, and Evelyn Brown from St. Louis, Missouri. But the one who does the most for the Freshmen is their hard-working, enthusiastic sponsor, Miss Frances Stumberg. They are all very grateful to her for her wonderful support.

As usual, there were large crocodile tears at the beginning of the year, shed by approximately one hundred sixty-five Freshmen. "We are lone, lorn creeturs and everything goes contrairy with us." But that didn't last long. They soon donned their green caps that every puff of wind blew down the campus. Then came the selection of Hallowe'en Queen, Aileen Hill, a Dixie girl of exotic charm and loveliness.

The Freshmen showed their inherent good taste in the selection of their stunning class sweaters. The royal blue letters on snowy white brightened the campus the whole year.

Among the memories of this year that are dear to Freshmen is that of the get-acquainted wiener roast that occurred on a chilly September afternoon. Nor can they forget that memorable day when their slave drivers, the Sophomores, hung their guileless President upon an awful gibbet. Feeling remorseful, the Sophomore class declared them their galley slaves no longer, and the hatchet was buried.

The Freshmen want to feel that they have made a real contribution to the school, and have joyfully given their energy to the school that has led them on to higher fields.

Lindenwood Athletic Association

THE Lindenwood College Athletic Association is a member of the National Athletic Conference of American College Women, as well as the Women's Division, National Amateur Athletic Federation. As the largest and one of the most active organizations on the campus, the Association has as its purpose the development of a high standard of physical training and skill, and the fostering of good sportsmanship. Membership requirements include the "Triple A" posture test, 125 athletic points, and a scholastic average of M.

Girls who earn specified numbers of points through active participation in such sports and activities as swimming, tennis, hockey, basket ball, baseball, track, golf, hiking, archery, and dancing, receive awards from the Association. For earning 600 points, the "L. C." is awarded; for 1,000, a large "L."

In addition to tournaments in all sports and enjoyable meetings, the Association sponsors a fall dance revue, a sport party, and a spring musical comedy, this year entitled, "The Pirate's Treasure."

Athletics

IN EVERY girl's life the physical as well as the intellectual and cultural phases must be studied. To have a well-balanced personality, you must have physical fitness. The Department of Physical Education at Lindenwood College helps build up this fitness, teaches everyone how to play, and gives each girl an appreciation of the many forms of dancing. Whatever her favorite sport may be—tennis, golf, hockey, archery, basket ball, baseball—or if she prefers dancing, she may be trained in it or in all of them.

In the fall of every year, the first sport which attracts attention is hockey. After learning and becoming efficient in the sport, the efficiency is tested in a Round-Robin tournament between the four classes. The captains chosen for the four teams this year were as follows: Senior team, Helen Everett; Junior team, Peggy Blough; Sophomore team, Geraldine Robertson; and Freshman team, Evelyn Brown. The tournament is conducted under the direction of the head of hockey who, this year, was Lucile Chappell. To terminate the hockey season each year a sister team game is played each Thanksgiving. This game takes place between a picked team of Senior-Sophomore players and one of Junior-Freshman players. This year the game took place on Monday, November 21. The Senior-Sophomore team won and was acclaimed the wizard of hockey squads.

The American game of baseball is certainly not omitted at Lindenwood. Madaline John is at the head of the sport this year. The game is taught scientifically in order to develop individual skill as well as good teamwork. In the spring the interclass tournaments are well supported and afford much pleasure for all.

Athletics

BASKET BALL calls back our high school days with much gusto. The games we almost lost, those we had to win—they all return to haunt us, to spur us on to even greater triumphs. Basket ball in the capable hands of Peggy Blough was organized into six teams made up of all those who signed up for the sport instead of the usual class teams. This new scheme which provides that the captains choose their line-ups, made the teams more evenly divided and made competition keener. The captains were: Alley Cats, Geraldine Robertson; Blue Streaks, Claudine Davis; Pirates, Barbara Scott; T. N. T., Helen Lightholder; Bull Dogs, Edna Buenger; Devils, Myra Dudley Sponable. This tournament, which was played with all the usual enthusiasm, ended with the T. N. T. team as the proud victors.

Another opportunity for enjoyment and the winning of points for the Athletic Association is offered in the form of a series of hikes. Groups leave the campus on Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings, when the weather is fair, and come back smiling and rosy-cheeked after a brisk, refreshing trip out in the fresh air amid picturesque and historical scenery. Three girls are chosen to assist in these hikes and to take them on trips. These hikes form a means of complete relaxation of body and mind and thus serve a double purpose.

Another source of recreation and test of skill is in golf. In this game, girls who do not know how to play already are trained by efficient instructors, and those who do know find playing golf on Lindenwood's golf course a pleasure and a recreation. This year, Peggy McKeel is head of golf. During the fall, she sponsored golf tests for those who wished to gain points for the Athletic Association. In the spring, she will conduct a tournament similar to those in other sports, and in which anyone may take part.

LAST year track held a prominent place among the spring enterprises. This year, we are certain that the same enthusiasm will be shown, when the sport is under the capable leadership of Louise Paine. A mass meet will be held in which classes will have as many participants as possible. The average ability is computed and the group scores are calculated accordingly. Everyone comes out for the track meet and does her share in the following events: standing broad jump, high jump, fifty- and seventy-five-yard dashes, baseball and basket-ball throw, low hurdles, javelin, and discus.

The romance and legend of archery are the very soul and life of the sport. The song of the bow is so inextricably woven into the world history that it can never be lost or forgotten. At Lindenwood, endeavor is made to inspire into the archery students the same love and thrill in the sport as so many of its followers feel today. Under the leadership of Ethelda Gross, archery tests are held in the fall and spring, and a tournament is conducted once a year.

In connection with Lindenwood there is a riding stable. In this way Lindenwood girls may ride whenever they wish. Those who are already skilled riders are taught new skills in horseback riding under the instruction of Mr. Dapperon, while those who have not yet learned to ride are taught all the art of correct riding. This department is not in connection with the Physical Education Department, but affords recreation for any girl who chooses to ride.

Athletics

THE tennis tournament, to be conducted this spring, will undoubtedly bring some new stars to the front. Frances Marie McPherson is head of this popular game that adds so much to one's social status in these modern days of sport. Tests were given in the fall and will be continued this spring so that those who are beginners or advanced players may win points for the Athletic Association. There are eight double courts and four single ones, so there is ample room for all players. As soon as spring comes there is scarcely an hour in the day that someone is not playing on every court.

What is more invigorating and more soothing than a good swim? The swimming pool in Butler Hall is steam-heated the year around and in constant use. Adjoining the pool are adequate lockers, shower and drying rooms. Open pool offers time for play and practice. Classes give the opportunity for perfection in technique. Classes are divided into elementary, intermediate, advanced, and life-saving. Barbara Everham, the head of swimming, had charge of the swimming meet held in the early spring. Sister classes competed and some of the features were free-style, back-stroke, and breast-stroke for speed and form, side-stroke, relays, diving contests, and novelty relays. All of these in good form and which we all know. But the novelties are very amusing and a great deal of fun for the participants as well as the audience. Among the contestants were: Helen Everett, Harriette Anne Gray, Geraldine Robertson, Barbara Everham, Marietta Newton, Helen Lightholder, Dorthy Miller, Janet Winnett, Flora Mae Rimmerman, Elizabeth Kelley, Betty Hoover, Mary Frances Butler, and Betty Reed.

Dancing

THE Dancing Department is one of the principal attractions on the Lindenwood campus. It improves the appearance and lends poise and grace to the student. In addition to these advantages, training in dancing fosters an interest in the aesthetic and an appreciation of the art of dancing, which is certainly one of the universal features of the modern day.

The oriental pageant, entitled, "The Way of Old Peking," was directed by Miss Margaret Stookey, and was the most unusual and remarkable performance given at Lindenwood in 1932. The pageant given with a large and expansive outdoor setting, was particularly interesting because of the great variety of costumes, ingenious dances, and charming pantomime. The costumes, with their very original and vivid array of color, presented a most harmonious and effective picture. The dances of Harriette Ann Gray and Dorthy Hope Miller, who had leading roles in the pageant, were indeed beautiful and outstanding and were given with the utmost talent and superb grace, which so thoroughly characterizes their performances.

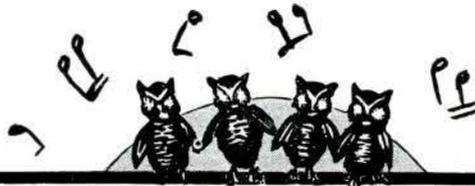

One of the best productions given at Lindenwood this year was the musical comedy, "The Treasure Hunters," sponsored by the Athletic Association. The setting of this romantic musical comedy was an imaginary South Sea Island. A native atmosphere was introduced by dancers in the costumes of South Sea Island girls and pirates. One of the most effective dances was that of the Water Study, a modern group dance, which was presented without musical accompaniment. This dance was a representation of the waves of the ocean. One might easily visualize the towering waves gradually receding to smaller ones, until the movement of the dancers entirely ceased. Another very attractive dance was the toe ballet, representing coral waves. The costumes were of a pink and silver combination. Solo dances were given in the ballet by Harriette Ann Gray and Dorthy Miller. One of the principal attractions of the program was the modern dance given by Harriette Ann Gray. From the pulsating Savage Dance with its weird tom-tom rhythm to the glorious finality of the Rhapsody in Blue, she showed the finesse and assurance of a true artist. As a contrast to Harriette Ann's dances were those given by Dorthy Hope Miller, with her customary skill and grace. From the charming oriental ballet with her jade costume and little mincing steps to the bold, carefree spontaneity of a red-costumed pirate, Dorthy proved herself an accomplished dancer. With its picturesque background, its talented dancers and its clever cast, "The Treasure Hunters" was one of the year's most notable successes.

Lindenwood

Oh, Lindenwood, we're true,
And always we'll love you;
For in the years to be,
Memories sweet will linger.
Our faculty, we're sure,
Is the best one can procure.
We students all will fight
For the yellow and the white.

Our voices raise to you, Lindenwood,
In truest praise to you, Lindenwood;
For you are of the best of colleges,
 And loyal e'er we'll be,
In your defeat or sweet victory.
 Long life to you we'll sing,
Always honor to you bring, Lindenwood.

THE Linden Bark, under the direction of Mrs. Julia C. Underwood, Ph. B., Lindenwood College journalism instructor and religious editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, is a weekly four-page, four-column newspaper published at Lindenwood department of journalism. Once a month the paper is expanded by two extra pages called the literary supplement, consisting of the best poetry and prose handed into the English department.

The Linden Bark Staff, composed of twelve young journalists, with the Editor-in-Chief, Sarah Louise Greer, works diligently on its publication, striving to express concisely and accurately the campus news and viewpoints.

WE HAVE been with the Owl for four years, and in this time he has taught us to sit quietly, to watch and learn. That which we have seen, we have tried hard to put in these pages that you, as well as we, may learn.

We have watched girls come, and then stay a while, then go. It is good that way; we would not have it any other way. We know that more girls will take our places after we have gone; but it is our wish that you may remember us, and so we give you this book.

As a member of the National Scholastic Press Association, the annual has tried to aid its purposes, which are to further the continual improvement of school publications.

KI YI, Hip Hi—Whoops! For the “Old Sooner” State, the land of the Choctaws, Osages, and Cherokees. The pale-face maidens from such a versatile state are staunch protectors of the Lindenwood Tepee. When at last the tribe is assembled, they shout the words, “Three cheers for the Yellow and the White!”

HERE'S to the peppy organization of girls from the "City of Cardinals." The St. Louis Club is made up of all the St. Louis girls and those who come from the vicinity of St. Louis. It has the distinction of being the only organization of a single city on the campus. Vacation time is "play time" for these girls as they always get together and have a continuation of their good times.

“THE eyes of Texas are upon you all the livelong day” is the message the Blue Bonnet girls send from the Lone Star State. The girls of the land of the Panhandle and the Alamo are noted for their musical, artistic, and journalistic talent.

THIS year there was a sufficient number of girls from this very western state that they formed a state club of their own. From many hundreds of miles they heard of Lindenwood and decided to come to cast their fortunes with girls from other lands. Judging from the individuals, Wyoming girls are vigorous, dependable, capable, and fun-loving.

Dear Old Lindenwood

Dear Old Lindenwood,
 You're the world to me.
Dear Old Lindenwood,
 You will always be.
For you bring the sunshine
 Everywhere I go.
I'm always thinking of you—
 When the shadows 'round me creep.
I'm always praying for you
 When I lay me down to sleep.
Dear Old Lindenwood,
 I'm in love with you.

GLIMMERING AND DECAYS

These have I loved:

A lighted candle in a darkened room,
Gold glowing in blackness;
A bright moon in a starless sky,
Whitening the night to day;
Shadows in a deep pool,
Dim pictures of the world above them.

These I loved:

But a little wind blew out the candle
Leaving me in darkness;
A cloud covered the moon,
And the night became black;
A falling star disturbed the shadows in the pool,
And left only ruffled waters.

BETTY HART

VEE-DAU-VOO

Red, smoky light above the fire,
Tiny in the stillness.
Quivering aspens, dancing shadows on the moonwashed walls of boulders.
Pines, thicker, graver shadows between the rocks.

Tall, heaped-up pile of granite,
White in moonlight,
Reaching up and touching thick blue-black sky.
A wisp of cloud flinging itself across the moon.

In the darkness behind the trees.
Are ghosts of Indians.
In the deep rock cave are ghosts of Indians.
At night the ghosts of Indians come home.

KATHRYN FOX

PURPLE CRACKLE

Black birds, returning
To the balmy green,
Preen
Each purple feather,
Frown together,
Sound the mating call.
And fall
Like mourning leaves
Bruised by my foot,
Wet, black with soot,
Breathing with the atmosphere
Near
Yawning eaves.

A RUSSIAN FUNERAL

I stopped and wondered at the somber strains of martial music I heard. The music rose and spread, accompanied by the rhythm of slowly marching feet. Then while I waited, stomping my feet to keep them warm and watching my breath curl white against the quickly darkening night, I saw a strange band of people stumble slowly through the gates of the Great China Wall. A group of men and women and children walked as if weighted down by the heavy chords of music. The men held their coats fast against their drawn faces; the women and children pulled their shawls tighter around their heads. Slowly, slowly, they marched, gripping their hands in their pockets. Behind them moved two horses drawing a flat sleigh upon which was a bright red coffin made hideous in the blackness by the red candles burning around it. The ears of the horses pulling that dead burden dropped almost to the ground, they held their heads so low. Occasionally their ears twitched and drew back as a note of the solemn, unceasing music directly behind them struck loudly. The band, their gleaming instruments in the flickering lights of the candles ahead of them, marched in solemn tread. Slowly the mournful, terrifying procession passed me. I stood there, somewhat afraid and filled with awe, my breath cooling faster in the cool night that carried, only dimly now, sounds of that somber, heavy, dirge.

WHITE DAWN

The clear casement ceased its dizzy swaying,
My couch its maddened sail on sharpened clouds,
And I stared upon the whiteness of a dawn
New and blinding to these eyes.
Bright gray glories broke behind
Pale yellow banks of river mist,
Crushing into pinkish gray the purple shreds of night.
Blackness lightened into shadows of the waking day.
Bent smoke shapes walked the dusky hills
Like men who go to labor.
These were no ether dreams; I lived
Again to know them real, and I was glad.
My body quivered with the curve of distant smoke
Across the radiance of this blue-white sun.
Between, God's ugliest river flowed as flaming waters;
Near my head a nun murmured of her litany.
It was good to know a listening God
And then I laughed, for I am called an atheist!

CHINESE FABLE

A sturdy oak grows not in the shade
Of a hundred and one small elms,
But in the clear
Flings forth its arrogance,
Wantonly boasts its strength.

A sturdy oak stretches deep and far
Its woven woof of roots.
Winds may buffet it,
Stones may mar its bark,
But rains and age will sooth it.

(Give to no one of your advice;
Let no man sap your vitality
Or tread near
That elusive spirit
You would call soul.)

ELIZABETH COMBS

FIELDS OF GOLD

I found myself at the entrance of a small inlet. It seemed to me to be the perfect setting for a play in Paradise; the back-drop was formed by tall trees that surrounded the pool; the properties were a little white house on the bank which showed no sign of life, a crooked little path that found its way to the water through a clump of willows, and an old pile of gray branches that had served as a blind for duck-hunting (though it seemed incredible that one could shoot anything in this spot.)

Sunlight was the only lighting effect; but most wonderful of all was the shiny lining of my haven—yellow water lilies. Great patches upon patches of pale gold, that seemed to be young sunlight from the waters come alive and washed ashore. As I paddled nearer they appeared fairly to glow with an effervescent, yellow light—fields of gold. I crawled to the back of the boat and lay on my back and looked.

The swallows came darting across the waves, skimming so low they seemed only to leap from one to the next. As I glanced down to see, I discovered a little silvery fish that had got stranded on a lily pad a few yards away. I watched him struggle for a moment, and then climbed back to the oars, rowed over, and flipped him off. Nothing must die this morning.

A kingfisher flew down to one of the gray branches of the "blind," and perched there with another little silvery fish in his mouth. But this time I could only laugh aloud—he was so cockily puffing out his feathered chest over his morning's enormous catch.

I rowed closer to the lilies to see them better—somehow I couldn't desecrate the spot by picking any—and as I paused, a red-winged black bird settled in the huge golden bowl of a full-blown flower. Deepest black velvet against pale yellow-gold, and a tiny splotch of scarlet.

CYCLES

Green sands on an infinite seashore,
Ethereal freedom and might,
Massed thought in its purple perfection,
And the motionless rhythm of might.

They sit in a row on the seashore
Cross-legged with mud in their hands;
Eternally silent, they're working
To fashion the lives from the sands.

Then they bind up thought pieces like wheat sheaves
And portion them out to the lives;
They give each his passions to play with,
And "he who is fittest survives."

Then after survival is over
With all that its races demand,
The thought is returned to its freedom—
Back to the rhythm and sand.

JULIA FERGUSON

FALL RIVER VALLEY

The windows formed a perfect frame for a picture of haze and delight—the Fall River Valley on an afternoon of rain. The aspen trees at the foot of Old Big Horn slowly dropped from their branches a tiny cargo of silver beads; while from the slender pointed needles of clustered spruce shot delicate blue arrows of "wetness." The flimsy ragged mist swayed with a gathering breeze, till hitting slender ends of stone, which projected from the Wall of the Rockies, it broke, and floated down, settling like minute mirrors on each thirsty plant.

ELLEN JANE PHILLIPS.

NIGHT CLUB

Limousines, bullet-like in form and speed; the low musical drone of horns; the sigh of gradually-applied brakes; black night—a prelude to the mad whirl of rhythm and color that leaped through the glass doors now opened by liveried attendants.

The orchestra was a purr of melody. Lithe, swaying bodies broke the pattern of light reflected across the shining floor. Glistening satins, dazzling jewels, stiff tuxedos; everywhere grace of movement, perfect poise, deep voices.

A fanfare broke the formal, frigid atmosphere. At the clang of a cymbal, a chorus of painted faces, tulle ruffles, and peroxidized curls tripped into view. Frenzy, jazz, exotic movement, hilarity. Did the dancers behind those frozen masks smile too? Their eyes, laden with mascara, looked old and tired.

Applause, like a stick being drawn across a picket fence. Wild laughter, tinkle of ice in tall glasses, shuffling of heavy feet; four notes from the court-house clock down the street.

JUNE GOETHE.

You Wouldn't Send a Boy

*If you had a task requiring the skill, ingenuity and strength of a man,
you wouldn't set an unskilled boy to doing it.*

THE task of furnishing America with gas and electric service—more than is used in all the rest of the world—is no boy's job.

To serve America with electricity and gas to the extent it is, has taxed the skill, ingenuity and strength of giants—giants of science, invention, business, finance.

There is much more to be done, and it cannot be done in a small way. The future development of the gas and electrical industry to meet the needs and demands of the American public requires tenacity of purpose, broad vision, vast sums of money to be invested by thrifty people.

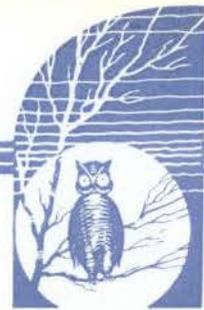

Mere bigness can not do it, but bigness properly directed, in the mutual interest of the public, the investors and the industry, can.
