A Look at Liberal Education for Women

By F. L. McCluer, President

It is clear that in the decade before us there will be a great increase in the number of young people in America seeking education beyond the high school. It is equally clear that our society is demanding this education as a basis for the skills involved in major occupations. The President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School has pointed out that increase in population, technological developments, and changing world conditions make necessary the increase in opportunities for higher education that our youth are now ready to seek.

In this situation the liberal arts college for women faces a great responsibility. It is not the responsibility of changing its fundamental character. Indeed, it may become the unique champion of liberal education. In loyalty to its purposes it must relate its work to the demands of our day. It will emphasize:

1. The growing need of our society for the liberal education of women.
2. The relationship of this education to professional competence in areas in which increasing numbers of women are employed.
3. The right of young women for college life that will give them the experience of responsible leadership in the college community.
4. An appreciation of religion in its relationship to moral values and to our culture.

This editorial will deal with the first two emphases.

Thomas H. Cobbs, for whom Cobbs Hall is named, also was honored at the dormitory's open house for his forty years as a member of the Lindenwood Board of Directors. Here he and Mrs. Cobbs are photographed at the party.

In spite of barriers in some areas women are partners with men in our free society. They share with men the responsibility for political decisions and for community welfare. The education that addresses itself to the whole personality will best prepare young women for this responsible citizenship.

The basis of their higher education should be found in a curriculum grounded in a study of truth and beauty that are universal and enduring. Young women, like young men, should acquire what has been traditionally thought of as education for liberty. Liberal education seeks to widen one's horizons, to deepen one's understanding, and to develop the powers for reflective thought. As a result, one's choices are not limited by ignorance or prejudice, or confined by habit, but are one's own. As Professor Ralph Barton Perry has said, "Freedom is not doing as one pleases, but as one chooses."

In the complex society in which we live, the ability to make effective and wise choices for one's self, one's community, and one's nation will be best cultivated in the minds that know something of the languages and literature of the human race, something of psychology, philosophy and religion, of the natural and social sciences, of mathematics and history. The hope that our spiritual and humane insights may keep pace with our technological power rests on education of this character.

This does not mean that the women's college should exclude from its curriculum any study designed to pre-

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE
ST. CHARLES, MO.

Entered at the St. Charles Post Office as Second Class Matter

TWO LINDENWOOD GROUPS—the Choralaires, small vocal ensemble, and Orchesis, modern dance group—have been invited to perform at the meeting of the National Council of Presbyterian Women's Organization, to be held at Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana, next June 29. The groups were auditioned on the campus this fall by members of the program committee of the organization. Wayne Harwood Balch, associate professor of music, is director of the singing group. Mrs. Grazina Amonas, associate professor of physical education, directs the dance group.

The Choralaires presented Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" at a Christmas chapel at the college and gave the program in several churches in the St. Louis area in December. Orchesis put on a highly original program in Roemer Auditorium, depicting the timeless search for life's fulfillment, a theme inspired by Tennyson's treatment of the search for the Holy Grail.

Art for Fun's Sake

ART for art's sake and art for fun's sake, too, would seem to describe the Lindenwood art department, where standards are high, hours are long, but camaraderie and good spirit prevail. Intimacy and friendliness are easy to achieve at Lindenwood, chiefly because the college is not large and most classes are comparatively small. But one of the departments which achieve a rather special esprit de corps is the art department.

A contributing factor toward the friendly climate that prevails on third floor Fine Arts is the institution of the art week-end. Twice a year—in the autumn and again in the spring—art students and faculty pack up their painting kits and sketching pads and head for the Ozarks on Friday to stay until Sunday. President and Mrs. McCluer usually join the group for at least one day and night—Mrs. McCluer to join in the sketching and Dr. McCluer to explore fishing in the area. Steady attenders of the week-end are Miss Mary Lichliter, director of guidance and placement, and Miss Lula Clayton Beale, registrar.

Art week-ends have been spent at several sites, but the favorite seems to be a rustic Presbyterian camp beside a stream and surrounded by Ozark hills, near St. James. The days and nights are spent in outdoor sketching and painting in the surrounding country and in the quaint town (see pictures), in indoor demonstrations of painting by Arthur L. Kanak and Miss Judith Glover of the faculty, and in fun—steak fries, pranks, charades, games, about which the non-artistic members of the campus are regaled for weeks afterward.

Visits in groups to art exhibits in St. Louis are a regular activity of the department. This year Harry D. Hendren, art historian, has taken classes to Chicago to see the outstanding Picasso show and an Oriental art class to Kansas City to see the permanent Oriental collection in the Rockhill Nelson galleries there.

The pictures on this page and the next were taken at last fall's art week-end near St. James.

Dr. Sibley Abroad on Leave; Replaced by Miss Macauley

Dr. Agnes Sibley, associate professor of English, is on leave of absence for the second semester, which she is spending abroad. She sailed from New York on January 29. She will spend most of her time in England, where she will teach at Longmeadow Girls' Secondary Modern School in Birmingham, England, but she plans to go to Greece during the Easter holiday. She also will do research on two English novelists, George Eliot and Winifred Holtby.

Replacing Dr. Sibley this spring is Miss Edith P. Macauley, former chairman of the English department at Gunstan Hall and at Marjorie Webster Junior College in Washington, D. C. Miss Macauley and Dr. Alice Parker, chairman of the English department, have been friends since they were colleagues at Gunstan Hall. Miss Macauley holds the B. A. degree from the University of Michigan, the M.A. from the University of Chicago, and has done further study at Bryn Mawr and Columbia University.

Mr. Beattie in Demand as Speaker And Planner on Aging Problems

Walter M. Beattie, Jr., professor of sociology, is a member of the 15-member national council of the Gerontological Society, concerned with problems of old age and aging, and he is program chairman of the social welfare section of the society. Since the November meeting of the society in Cleveland, he has been at work planning the program for next year's meeting, to be held in November in Philadelphia.

Mr. Beattie was the speaker in December at a meeting in Fulton, Mo., of the East Central Division of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare. His subject was "Missouri's Aged—Problems or Possibilities." In St. Charles he has talked before the Community Council, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and other groups on "Planning for the Needs of Our Aging Citizens."

Mr. Beattie has done a great deal of work with problems of aging citizens, and the emphasis in his graduate work in sociology at Washington University, where he is finishing up the course work for the Ph.D. degree, is on the aging.

Miss Beasley Invited to Tell About Teaching Math by TV

Miss Louise Beasley, professor of mathematics, has accepted an invitation to take part in a panel discussion on "Problems in Television Instruction in Mathematics" at the summer meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics. The meeting will be held at Colorado State College of Education in Greeley, August 18-20.

For the past two years Miss Beasley has taught a course in TV-math at Lindenwood. The five-hour semester course, encompassing college algebra and trigonometry, originates on KETC, the St. Louis area educational television station, and it is presented with the cooperation of the mathematics department of Washington University.

Ozan Marsh, Guest Artist With St. Louis Symphony

Ozan Marsh, professor of music and concert pianist in residence, was guest artist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, in two "pops" concerts on February 14 and 15. The concerts were the last four concerts presented by the Symphony Society in the Khorassan Room of the Hotel Chase in St. Louis. Friday night's concert, on February 14, was designated college night. As the bulletin went to press in late January, plans were being made for a delegation from Lindenwood to attend.

Mr. Marsh recently accepted appointment as head of the piano department for the summer session at Chataqua, New York. His wife, Patricia Benkman, resident pianist at Lindenwood, will be his assistant at Chataqua, where they will be teaching from July 1 to August 17.

During the course of the year Mr. Marsh is busy playing a concert season of seventy concerts for Columbia Artists, which include an appearance with the San Francisco Symphony and one with the National Symphony on tour.

Roman Theater, Subject of Kentucky Talk, Journal Article by Dr. Toliver

Dr. Hazel M. Toliver, professor of classics, will be a speaker at the annual Foreign Language Conference sponsored by the University of Kentucky, to be held at Lexington in late April. Her subject is "The Roman Theater, Breeder of Cosmopolites." Miss Toliver's special research is the Roman theater.

A lively article by Dr. Toliver, "The Roman Matinee-Goer," is the leading article in the January issue of The Classical Outlook, a publication of the American Classical League. The article shows that members of a Roman audience were not of necessity primarily interested in the dramatic performance. "Luxury, the opportunity to see and be seen, the hint of romance, glamorous stage stars, enchanting music—all these things contributed to the fascination of the theater in Roman times," she concludes. "Probably this helps to prove what a good many teachers of Latin have long suspected—that the Romans were really quite human."

President McCluer Speaker For Religion in Life Week

President F. L. McCluer was speaker for the annual Religion in Life week at the college, February 9-13. Breaking a tradition of having an outside speaker for this week, the Student Christian Association leaders and other students especially requested Dr. McCluer to lead the program. He chose "The Questing Spirit" as the general theme for the week. Individual sermons were based on seven different "quests": In Quest of Significance, of Morality, of Forgiveness, of Growth, of Immortality, of 'Wider Christian Fellowship,' and of Life's Good Investment.

The Rev. Dr. Denton M. Gerow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in St. Louis, assisted Dr. McCluer with private conferences throughout the week. Cornelia Childs, junior of Lubbock, Texas, was general chairman.

Education for Women

pare a young woman for a particular task. Indeed, in its counseling program it should seek to help its students to discover appropriate careers. Each passing year brings increased demands for the employment of women and finds an increased number of women employed at a great variety of tasks. In some areas a liberal arts college must seek a partnership with vocational education. It is a mistake to assume that no vocational subject may ever have a liberalizing influence. A course in the history of education, for example, will have a liberalizing influence whereas a course in the methods of ventilating a school room will not.

The traditional liberal arts curriculum has been proved to be the best basis for professional study. This is true, not only for professional study on the graduate level, but also in undergraduate professional study in preparation for teaching. At this point the college for women has an unusual opportunity. Those who are calling today for more engineers may do well to remember that most of the mathematics teachers in the high schools in the Middle West are women. A year ago 40 per cent of the high schools of Missouri did not teach trigonometry largely because there were not well prepared teachers available. To point out to young women in a liberal arts college the demand for an increase in the number of mathematics teachers will be one way to increase the supply of engineers.

Further, for a woman who expects to enter the teaching profession, professional courses may be taught so as to have liberal values.

If our citizens are to be free, they must have a capacity for critical and independent thought, else their loyalty to the state may make them ready pawns of the demagogue. The very effectiveness of modern communication entails a danger that uncritical minds may be responsive to mass appeals and emotional contagion.

The capacity for independent thought is the distinguishing mark of a liberally educated person. Democracy itself can succeed only where its citizens assert the right and assume the responsibility of thinking for themselves rather than accepting their thought from set molds.

Recent events present an insistent call for more highly trained scientists. They present an equally insistent call for men of broad understanding of the meaning of history, of man's life and destiny, and of deep appreciation of moral and spiritual values. We had best heed both calls.

Miss Lichliter Plans Program For Deans, Counselors; Staff Takes Part in National Meeting

Miss Mary Lichliter, director of guidance and placement, is on the program committee for the meeting in St. Louis in late March of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors. She is in charge of the interest groups, twenty-eight in all, which range over a wide variety of subjects. Three of them are devoted to the book on woman power brought out by the National Manpower Council, and they deal with new issues in the education of women, in the guidance of women, and the implications of the study on woman power for deans and counselors.

Other members of the Lindenwood staff will take part in the meeting. President F. L. McCluer will conduct a morning chapel service in Graham Memorial Chapel at Washington University on Sunday morning, March 30. Miss Lula Clayton Beale, registrar, will take part in a panel discussion on "Orientation Programs Beyond the Freshman Week." Dr. C. Eugene Conover, professor of philosophy, will discuss a recent study, "Varieties of Human Value," written by Professor Charles Morris of the University of Chicago. Sydney Finks, a senior and chairman of Lindenwood's social skills council and social committee, will be on a panel on "Developing Social Skills in Our Colleges."

Other interesting topics include "Ways of Stimulating the Intellectual Life of the College Student," "Religion in the State University," "Facing Problems of Social Dating Patterns and Early Marriages," and "The Handling of Problems of Dishonesty, Immorality, Stealing, and Vandalism."

Immediately after this meeting at the Hotel Statler, Miss Lichliter will take part in a meeting at the Hotel Jefferson of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, for which she is co-chairman of the placement service.

Mr. Powell McHaney's Death Means Loss to Lindenwood

Lindenwood lost a valuable member of its board of directors when Mr. Powell McHaney of St. Louis, president of the General American Life Insurance Company, was killed in an automobile accident in Washington on December 4. A graduate of the University of Missouri and former president of the university's board of curators, Mr. McHaney had a special concern for education. He was chairman of a citizens' committee in the St. Louis area to promote financial support of higher education.

Mary Gordon, Former Teacher, Acts, Takes Trip Around World

Miss Mary McKenzie Gordon, who taught speech and directed dramatics at Lindenwood from 1927 to 1946, and who has been acting in New York and in stock since leaving the college, is on a six-month trip around the world. She and her sister, Miss Edna Gordon, a librarian at Washington University, sailed from San Francisco in late January for Japan. Their travels will include Hong Kong, Malaya, India, Egypt, Turkey, and several countries of Europe. They will sail home from England in June.

From last May until New Year's Day, Mary Gordon was acting in a stock company at the Wagon Wheel, a resort in the Rock River Valley between Rockford, Illinois, and Beloit, Wisconsin. Last year she played for six months in "Cradle Song" in New York. During a visit to St. Louis shortly before she sailed, she spoke of several Lindenwood alumnae whom she has encountered recently, including Helen Bartlett (B.S. 1945), Sarah Jane Murfey Ash (1940-42), Harriet Heck (1938-40), and Phyllis Love McGee (1943-45).

Dramatic Scholarship for Men Again Offered; Plan Successful

Lindenwood again is offering dramatic scholarships to men who have completed the sophomore or junior year of college. The purpose of enrolling men drama students is to provide men to play roles in college plays and to assist in staging and production.

Four men have participated in the program in the two years of its existence: two from Texas, one from Kansas, and one from New York. The scholarships offer full tuition and board during the academic year. Arrangements for lodging are the responsibility of the students.

Awards are for one year and may be renewed for a second year by men who enter as juniors and who wish to continue, provided they have proved satisfactory academically and theatrically.

Commenting on the program, Robert Douglas Hume, director of dramatics, said, "It has worked very well so far. The men have adjusted easily and well to life on a woman's campus, and they have been well accepted by the college community and by the town."

Alumnae and friends of the college knowing men drama students who might qualify for the program and who might be interested in the scholarships, should write to Mr. Hume.

Choir Takes Annual Tour to Missouri and Kansas

The Lindenwood College choir will make its annual spring singing tour on March 21-25, during the week before the spring vacation. This year the choir will go again to western Missouri and Kansas. Alumnae in the areas are urged to attend the concerts. Mr. Milton F. Rehg, assistant professor of music and regular director of the choir, will tour with the group.

Dates in churches are as follows: Friday evening, March 21, First Presbyterian Church, Moberly, Missouri; Sunday morning, March 23, First Presbyterian Church, Wichita, Kansas; Sunday evening, First Presbyterian Church, El Dorado, Kansas; Monday evening, March 24, First Presbyterian Church, Topeka, Kansas; Tuesday evening, March 25, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Missouri.

The choir also will sing in several high schools along the route.

Judith Damhorst Memorial Windows Installed

The Judith Damhorst memorial windows have been installed in the little chapel of the Lindenwood College chapel building. Designed by Robert Frei of St. Louis, the three tall, slender windows are in a contemporary design which harmonizes with the windows of the sanctuary. They are predominantly blue-green with lavender and touches of reds and yellow. Suggested in the design is the vine of a developing plant, symbolizing intellectual growth.

The memorial fund was established after the death of Judith in January 1957 at the suggestion of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Damhorst of Jefferson City. Judith was a Lindenwood student in 1948-50 and later was secretary to Dean Paulena Nickell. Gifts of many friends of Judith and her family made possible this beautiful memorial.

Music Department Presents Convocation Recital

A convocation recital, with required attendance of all students, was presented on a recent Thursday morning by the music department. An innovation, this student-wide recital supplements the department's recitals in Sibley Chapel, which are presented chiefly to music students.

In a program of excellent quality throughout, the most experienced performance was that of Groff Bittner,

Washington Diary

Students Write of Life in Capital

EACH fall Lindenwood sends from four to eight juniors to Washington, D. C., to spend a semester studying in the Washington Semester program, administered by American University. About seventy colleges and universities participate in this program, which includes in its curriculum a seminar on national government and an individual project of directed study in the student's major subject.

A questionnaire sent a year ago to Lindenwood alumnae who had been Washington Semester students since the start of the program in 1947 brought replies of unanimous approval of the program and of the lasting beneficial effects of the awakening of interest in government which the program provides.

Four Lindenwood juniors were Semesterites this fall: Peggy Crane, Julie Orr, and Patsy Price of Fort Smith, Arkansas, and Becky Roberts of Longview, Texas. Like their predecessors of recent years, they wrote a column for the Linden Bark, called Washington Diary. To show something of the breadth of their experiences, we reprint excerpts from their Diary.

Meet Senator McClellan

October 2. "Highlighting our first two weeks here was coffee with Senator McClellan of Arkansas. We were sitting in the Senate coffee shop with Fred Livingstone, a young man who is Senator Fulbright's assistant, when much to our great excitement in walked Senator McClellan. Fred invited him to join us. We chatted for a while about the Little Rock situation and the Labor Racket hearings that were to open the next day. All too soon we had finished our coffee, drained the water glasses, and could find no further excuse for staying. Exciting—that's not the word for it!"

Peggy Crane

October 17. "The Queen is scheduled to arrive today, and all of Washington has been making frantic preparations for her visit. For weeks we have been walking around and climbing over painters in the Capitol, the House and Senate buildings, and numerous other government edifices. Little 'Green Men' (they wear gray suits up here) have been mowing the White House lawn, raking the leaves, trimming the hedge, and cleaning out the fountains. . . .

"Our days are filled with seminars. At night when we're not in class we are typing WELL past the 11 o'clock deadline. The reason for breaking the rule is that ordinarily we don't get started until after the deadline. And the reason for this—there are so many other interesting things to do.

"Last night we heard Frank Lloyd Wright speak; next week T. S. Eliot followed by e e cummings and Robert Frost. We saw "The Egghead" with LC's Phyllis Love—she was charming. Last Friday Becky, Patsy, and Julie saw "Time Remembered" starring Helen Hayes—she was phantasmagoric. Now, how about that for an expressive word?"

November 3. "Our seminars of late have inspired us to such heights that we are out looking for soap-boxes to climb on. Our last meeting was with Senator Hubert Humphrey (D. Minn.). He burst into the room thirty minutes late, bombed his way through two and a half hours of dynamic 'off-the-cuff' remarks. Then with a flourish, he strode toward the door, still talking, whirled around, threw one arm in the air and shouted with a deafening roar, 'AND THAT'S JUST THE WAY I FEEL ABOUT IT. THANK YOU VERY MUCH.' We broke into vigorous applause as he turned on his heel and walked out the door. To say the least, we were impressed.

"Senator Humphrey is a great believer in education—thought we would pass this on to you for what it is worth—and said that knowledge and education of the American citizens is the only political salvation for our country. He said: 'We will get the living daylights kicked out of us if we don't go out to other countries and build good will! Schools will win the Middle East for us!'

"A little less dynamic, but none the less interesting, was a lecture that Becky and Patsy heard last Sunday—'The Art of William Blake' by the outstanding Blake scholar, Dr. S. Foster Damon, professor of English at Brown University."

Enlighten Alumnae

November 15. "Do we have the low-down now! Our attendance at the LC Washington area alumnae luncheon proved to be quite profitable and most informative. The first comment as we entered the room was, 'Oh dear, seeing them makes me realize how long ago it really was.' We gave them the scoop on the latest campus activities and an understanding of the Washington Semester program. They were quite interested in the honor system and to know that since its installation LC girls no longer slip around to see how many rules they can break. They seemed really surprised to find that the walls around the college are much lower now than when they were students. We listened with interest to their tales of old college life—and their side comments about well-known professors."

December 6. "We left the seminar on the Federal Reserve System visibly shaken. . . . A lifetime of carefully chosen and avoided facts intricately structured to form a mental pattern of government—all this shattered.

"When they told us that Congressmen really don't always represent the people, we had suspected as much; when they said that the Legislative and Executive branches cooperate, it was practical; and when they worried that the President was submerged by staff, we dismissed it as relative.

"But Mr. Carpenter, secretary to the Board of Governors, jarred us out of our complacency. He said that there is danger in the Federal Reserve System. He said that there are seven men with the power to profoundly affect the nation. He said that there is no review of their policies.

"We thought of how much we trust in the higher officials and how much they trust in their staffs and subordinates. The general public is content as long as it doesn't have to pay more, receives all desired services, and keeps its self-respect intact. Within the government itself, the devotion of each man—to do the best that he can in his job for his clientele and constituents, or some nebulous desire to serve the 'national interest'—provides a consensus of interests which results in decision. These men don't want power except to perform a duty to the best of their abilities and to shape policies within the framework of events.

"And so, we breathed sighs of relief. . . ."

Saw Dignitaries

January 12. "The Lindenwood Semesterites met and saw a lot of dignitaries at the opening of Congress. . . . Chaos reigned on the floor of the House, and we felt deep sympathy for the poor clerk who was yelling out the rollcall over the noise of back-slapping, hand-shaking, and 'so-glad-to-see-you, how-is-the-family' -ing.

"Rayburn made a little noise with his gavel, but to no avail. We abandoned the House for the Senate chamber, where the session had just ended. Who stood two feet in front of us, as we entered, but the Vice-President himself, in deep conversation. Across the room were Senators Stennis and Anderson. Walking out we bumped into Senator Chavez. . . .

"In the next few minutes we shook hands with such notables (we'll do a little name-dropping here) as Mansfield, O'Mahoney, Byrd, Sparkman, Monroney, and Lyndon Johnson. . . . We got good glimpses of Senators Kefauver, Aiken, Thye, and Humphrey, and even saw the actor Edward G. Robinson eating in the Senate dining room.

"After this celebrity filled tour, we thanked our guide, Representative Beckworth from Texas, and floated out the door. While we are on the Congressional subject, let us say that next week Representative Trimble from Arkansas will 'wine and dine' us. (Moral: know your Congressman)."

ALUMNAE CLUBS

There's good news from Denver! A new club was organized there in late November, with Margie Terrell Langstaff (B.A. 1956) the initiator of action and several other alumnae lending a hand. Shirley Pollock Davis (1947-48) was named chairman. The second meeting was set for January 28 (after this bulletin goes to press), and the college film, "The Linden Leaf," was scheduled to be shown. Interested alumnae (and it's not the fashion not to be interested!) should get in touch with Shirley—Mrs. J. G. Davis II, 480 South Leyden. She's fairly new in Denver, so try information if she isn't in the telephone directory.

There's action in Cincinnati, too, where Zilpha (Zeke) Curtin (B.S. 1955) spearheaded a tea on January 25 for alumnae and mothers of LC students and prospective students. Among the assistants in the project was Peggy Barber (B.M. 1955), admissions counselor for Lindenwood. Anyone who may have been missed in their combining of the area for alumnae should get in touch with Zeke at 174 Congress Run Road, Cincinnati 15.

Next in the good news line comes Springfield, Missouri, where a club was formed in December and enthusiastic plans abound. Oreen Ruedi (B.A. 1942, LL.D. 1956) was the organizer, and she was elected president. Oreen may be reached at Southwest Missouri State College, where she is professor of sociology. As this bulletin goes to press, plans are in the making for an area tea in March—to include alumnae from Lebanon, Branson, Joplin, etc. Other Springfield officers are Virginia Rhorer Edwards (1927-28), Pauline Jones Neale (1926-28), and Frances Baggett Vandivoort (1924-26).

Spring Events Announced; Terry Ferrer to Speak

Spring dates on the calendar which will be of special interest to alumnae and friends of the college include commencement exercises, which will be at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, May 24, and May Day, Saturday, May 3.

The spring play will be presented on May 2, as part of the annual May-Day and parents' week-end program, which also will include the annual horse show, the May Queen crowning pageant, and the queen's ball.

A spring event of unusual significance is Honors Day convocation, to be held at 11 a.m., Thursday, April 24. Miss Terry Ferrer, education editor of The New York Herald Tribune and formerly of Newsweek, will be the speaker. Miss Ferrer was unable to come to Lindenwood for her scheduled Founders' Day address because of her transfer to the Tribune, but she has agreed to give this spring talk on the day in which students are honored for outstanding academic achievement.

Music Department

a special piano student of Ozan Marsh, who played Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. VI" brilliantly and effectively. Groff has a master's degree from Indiana University, where he also studied under Mr. Marsh.

Judy Kiger, a sophomore who also transferred from Indiana to continue study with Mr. Marsh, played two Debussy numbers.

Grete Rehg, senior, who is a violin pupil of Miss Gertrude Isidor, played a movement from Bruch's G minor concerto. Mary Ellen Wall, junior voice pupil of Miss Pearl Walker, sang two numbers. Sandra Williams, a junior, played Debussy's "Syrinx" on the flute. Sandra is a member of the college choir and also is a member of the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra and of the Alton Civic Orchestra.
