Felzien to Lead Roundtable at Conference in Sweden

Craig Felzien, director of the Duree Center for Entrepreneurship in the Hammond Institute, pictured with his Plaster School of Business & Entrepreneurship Collegiate DECA Competition team, has been asked to lead a roundtable discussion on student engagement with entrepreneurship centers” this September at the Global Consortium for Entrepreneurship Centers (GCEC) international conference in Stockholm, Sweden.

The GCEC roundtables are an opportunity to lead a high-level discussions with exclusive group of peers in entrepreneurship education. This is a great opportunity to share knowledge, network, and gain a deeper understanding of other entrepreneurship centers' best practices. "This is an excellent fit for our goals and objectives in the Duree Center, The Hammond Institute, and Lindenwood's mission of real experience and real success," said Felzien.

EPNL Researchers Publish Novel Body Composition Data

Researchers in the Exercise and Performance Nutrition Laboratory (EPNL) in the School of Health Sciences recently published a study in the Journal of Strength and Conditioning Research. The study outlined the body composition status of female rugby players.

"This study is exciting for a number of reasons," said Dr. Chad Kerksick, EPNL lab director. "It highlights the excellent relationship we have with our women's rugby program. It also provides data on high-level competitive female rugby athletes that simply hasn't been available prior to this publication."

Over the summer, Patrick Harty, graduate research assistant in the EPNL presented a poster presentation of this project at the National Strength and Conditioning Association meeting in Washington, D.C. The EPNL is planning to complete data collection on more athletic teams in the future.
