Lindenwood Participates in World Kindness Day

The Lindenwood University System celebrated World Kindness Day. Various departments on both campuses helped celebrate this national holiday by inviting others to participate in showing and spreading kindness to the community. Some of the events held allowed students to write kind notes to give to others, provided opportunities for people to give to those less fortunate, and encouraged everyone to participate in five minutes of no cell phone use in order to stimulate conversation with others. Read more and more.

Tshuma Offers Workshop for Students

On Nov. 13, Lungi Tshuma, a Dec. 2017 grad in International Relations, led a training for approximately 100 of Lindenwood's international students. Lungi has been interning at Barry Wehmiller Leadership Institute (BWL) in St. Louis. On his own initiative, using the tools he's learned at BWLI, he created a leadership training program for LU students, with the goal of providing them with strategies for successfully and intentionally integrating into the LU campus community. It was a pleasure having Lungi back on campus!

Future Lion Day

Future Lion Day was held on Saturday, Nov. 10 and the cold had nothing on the excitement the event brought to campus! Faculty and staff united to put on this wonderful event for future lions. The campus was buzzing with people going on tours and learning about what sets Lindenwood apart from the rest!

Belleville First Generation Diwali Event

Sixteen students participating in Belleville's First Generation initiative, along with two team leaders, recently dined at the Indian restaurant "House of India." After the meal, the students attended the Diwali Festivities at WashU. The show featured Indian dancers and performers. The event was a wonderful experience for both the students and chaperones!

The Schwartzman's

Check out this beautiful fall photo of one of our Lion families! Mitch Schwartzman is one of our athletic performance coaches who has also been a dedicated student. Mitch has obtained a bachelor's degree and three master's degrees from Lindenwood, most recently finishing a master's degree in Counseling. Thank you for sharing your time and talents with us, Schwartzman's!

Rudloff Serving in the Peace Corps

Samuel Rudloff, a 2016 marketing graduate and former Student Government President, is currently serving in the Peace Corps as a health volunteer in the Kapolyo village in Zambia. As a health volunteer, Rudloff assists in matters of maternal/pediatric health, malaria prevention, HIV/AIDS awareness and positive living, along with other health concerns. Rudloff said, "My business courses at Lindenwood helped me pinpoint my village's needs and create action plans with community leaders in health -related issues." Rudloff will enroll in the University of Notre Dame's nonprofit management master program after his service in the Peace Corps.

Clancy Experiences Clinical Fellowship in Italy

Allyson Clancy, a biological sciences student, President's Ambassador, and member of the women's volleyball team, received the experience of a lifetime during her clinical fellowship in Genoa, Italy. Clancy's description of her "Real Experience" abroad says it all, "Since my trip, I have grown an appreciation for international culture, especially international healthcare. I reaffirmed my love for medicine and even confirmed my specialty of choice for my own career as an orthopedic surgeon. Taking a chance on this fellowship was the best decision I could have made. I know I will take these experiences with me throughout my life."

Exercise Science Grad Student to Attend Texas Tech

National Novel Writing Month

November is NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month), and many members of the Lindenwood family have taken up the challenge to produce a 50,000 word novel by the end of the month, tracking their progress on the NaNoWriMo website. On Nov. 8, over fifteen students, faculty, and St. Charles locals gathered at the LARC to work on their novels together, and more such “Write Ins” are planned for Nov. 15 and 29. Thus far, LU WriMos have produced 206,075 words. For comparison, that’s 23 more words than Herman Melville's magnum opus, Moby-Dick! They're aiming to surpass George Eliot's Middlemarch (316,059 words) by the end of Week 2.

Student Success Survey

Undergraduate students recently received a survey from the Higher Learning Commission (HLC), asking for their opinions about student success – how they define student success, their role in it, and the role that Lindenwood plays in helping them succeed. HLC will aggregate the data from all institutions participating in the survey and share the information with the membership. The student survey is part of a larger HLC effort to better understand and define student success (e.g., success can be measured in terms of retention and graduation) and how that success demonstrates institutional quality. Lindenwood received a note from the president of HLC thanking us for our participation.

Diversity Dialogue: Politics and Religion

The final Diversity Dialogue of the fall semester covered the topics of politics and religion. This included many theories and ideas surrounding the separation of church and state in the United States and the world. The panel for this dialogue featured a diverse group of speakers who brought very insightful opinions and contrasting points of view.
