A Memorial to Guy Motley

THE LINDENWOOD community in St. Charles and throughout the nation is grieved by the death of Guy Cleveland Motley, a beloved officer of the college since 1918. Fitting tribute to him was spoken at the funeral service in Roemer Auditorium by Dr. James W. Clarke, President of the Board of Directors, and Lindenwood alumnae and students and his associates here will find their hearts expressing a tribute to him in the days and years ahead. He lives in this college community as surely as he did when last he walked campus paths seeking any opportunity to be of help to a Lindenwood student.

Mr. Motley's faith in youth and his freindship for students led him to provide help to any who might be in need. Recalling his never failing eagerness to help students, many have suggested that an appropriate memorial to him would be the establishment of a scholarship endowment to bear his name and to carry on the type of aid to students that he himself had given generously. Some gifts to such a memorial endowment have been received.

On the recommendation of Miss Gladys Campbell, President of the Alumnae Association, Dr. Clarke, as President of the Board of Directors, joins me in announcing the establishment of the Guy C. Motley Memorial Scholarship at Lindenwood. The principal of the fund will be held by the Directors of the college as a perpetual memorial to Mr. Motley; the interest will be used to apply on the tuition or college expenses of worthy young women at Lindenwood College.

In honoring the memory of Guy Motley, the college honors itself. We know alumnae and friends will wish to share in the establishment of this memorial fund.

Guy C. Motley, Secretary of Lindenwood, Dies Suddenly

Cerebral Hemorrhage Suffered During Holidays Ends Career of 31 Years of Service to College — Funeral Services Held In Roemer Auditorium

LINDENWOOD has lost an old and a cherished friend. Guy Cleveland Motley, secretary of the college since 1918 and assistant to the president since 1938, died suddenly on December 27 while visiting his sister, Mrs. E. J. Long at Caruthersville, Mo. Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Motley had apparently been in good health when he left St. Charles shortly before Christmas to spend the holidays with his sister. He was stricken the morning of December 27 and died an hour later while enroute in an ambulance to a hospital at Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

Funeral services were held in the Auditorium of Roemer Hall on December 29 and were conducted by the Rev. Dr. James W. Clarke, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in St. Louis and president of the college's Board of Directors. Interment was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

To thousands of Lindenwood alumnae, who remember him as "Uncle Guy," his death came as a personal loss. They will never forget his familiar "Yip-pee," his lively sense of humor as expressed in such advice as "Keep your powder dry," nor his thoughtfulness and understanding. It was "Uncle Guy" who was a new Lindenwood girl's first contact with the college. He met her on arrival, arranged for her room, looked after her baggage and helped over the rough spots of the first homesick days.

It was "Uncle Guy" who reserved seats for the theater, made travel reservations, received and respected confidences, and who was always willing to argue politics. "Counsel for the Defense" is the way many a Lindenwood alumna remembers him. One of his favorite tricks was to hand a girl a nickel and say: "Here's a nickel. If you ever get in trouble call me up."

It was "Uncle Guy" who was the college's link with the alumnae. It was to "Uncle Guy" to whom they wrote about jobs, about the young men they married, and about their children. Letters from him of congratulation upon a new son or daughter, or sympathy in the death of a loved one will long be treasured by those who received them.

Many letters have been received by the college from his "girls." Space does not permit using all of them, but these excerpts are typical: Mrs. Burton H. Tobias, of Chicago, wrote: "I remember the Easter in 1943 that we spent with him, six or eight of us had dinner and saw a couple of movies with him, and even got to dance a little to "When I Grow Too Old To Dream." To us, it was the best date of the whole year."

Mrs. Carra Weber Thomas of St. Louis wrote: "I have many sweet memories of 'Uncle Guy.' I am 84 years old. He wrote me such cheery letters—now I'll never get any more. I am deeply grieved and feel my personal loss—and Lindenwood's."

Mr. Motley was born August 6, 1885, in New Hartford, Mo., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brewis W. Motley. In 1909 he was graduated from William Jewell College, with majors in history and political science. Shortly after receiving his A. B., he became associated with Hardin College in Mexico, Mo., and a little later was married to Miss Blanche Green. She died in 1931. From 1909 until 1918 he was connected with Hardin College, leaving there in 1918 to become secretary of Lindenwood. In the early years after joining the college he taught courses in history and political sciences, but soon his duties as secretary demanded his full time.

In 1938 he was also made assistant to the president. At that time the late Dr. John L. Roemer was making plans to retire within a few years. In 1940, after Dr. Roemer's death, Mr. Motley served as acting president of the college until the arrival of Dr. Harry Morehouse Gage in 1941.

In May, 1949, Mr. Motley's alma mater conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D.

Always interested in politics and a staunch Democrat, Mr. Motley was for three decades a civic leader of St. Charles. He had served as chairman and as treasurer of the St. Charles County Democratic Committee and in 1937 he was one of Missouri's Presidential Electors. He was one of the founders of the St. Charles Rotary Club and had served both as president of the St. Charles club and of the district. Since 1947 he had been a member of the St. Louis Metropolitan City Planning Commission. Other organizations in which he was active included the Missouri Historical Society, the Missouri State Teachers Association, the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce, the St. Charles Conservation League.

In addition to Mrs. Long, he is survived by another sister, Mrs. J. C. Shelton, of Detroit, Mich., and three brothers, Marvin Motley, of Baltimore, Md.; Marion Y. Motley, of Kansas City, and Carey L. Motley, of Liberty, Mo., an enrollment counselor of Lindenwood.

Lindenwood's alumnae, faculty and student body extend their deepest sympathy to the members of his family in their bereavement.

Girl of the Month

WE PRESENT Miss Edna Baldwin as our Girl for this Month.

Miss Baldwin was graduated from Lindenwood in 1928, receiving an A. B. Degree with a major in biology and a minor in sociology. She decided to continue her study in preparation for a career in the field of social welfare. For this decision, she says that she is indebted to Dr. Schaper for the stimulation she gave her in the classroom and in personal association during her years at Lindenwood.

For one and one-half years following her graduation, she remained at home as companion to her father who was in failing health. Then she enrolled at the New York School of Social Work, where she completed a year's study of technical training supplemented by field work in the Italian Quarter of the Bronx. By then the depression was well on the way and social agencies were recruiting for staff. She accepted a position as Intake Worker in the Public agency then known as the Citizens Committee on Relief and unemployment in St. Louis. Her father died that year and she was granted a six months' leave of absence to assist in the settlement of the estate. On her return, she was assigned to the interviewing staff, which position she held for two years. She recalls many harrowing experiences in determining the eligibility of their large daily intake. When the Agency, which was then called the St. Louis Relief Administration, was faced with the problems of "America on the Move," she inherited the responsibility of all transients in the agency and their return to place of legal residence. Then came WPA with its many adjustments and she was placed in charge of all complaints, with the help of two assistants. When the Social Security Commission came into existence, she was made supervisor of staff and assisted with In-Service training.

In 1938 she became full time supervisor of students for both St. Louis University and Washington University Schools of Social Work in St. Louis in the handling of the three categories of assistance in the public agency.

Then came Pearl Harbor in December, 1941, and she was offered a position on the USO Staff. In January, 1942, she resigned to accept a position on the staff of National Travelers Aid Association as Director of a USO-TAS unit in Belleville, Ill. This was a challenge, as there was no social work machinery set up in that community and the job entailed a great deal of community organization in preparation for her job as administrator. This job carried a great many services using various skills. She recruited and trained volunteers and set up a housing service for families of military personnel. As her own project, she made possible a day nursery for children of military personnel. At the termination of this job in August 1946, she returned to the New York School of Social Work for her third Seminar and that fall she enrolled at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, where she completed a year's study.

For the past two years she has been a staff member of the Chicago Travelers Aid Society where most of her work has been with Displaced Persons from war stricken Europe. Her present plan is to complete her graduate work at the University of Chicago this year.

In addition to her professional activities, she owns and manages two farms comprising 500 acres, which she inherited, in the Illinois Corn Belt. These farms are modernly equipped and scientifically operated. Her vacations and leaves of absence have been spent in travel. In 1939, she visited Puerto Rico, Haiti and Cuba. Last year she spent a month on a South American cruise, visiting several cities in Venezuela and Columbia. March of this year, she spent on a ranch in the cattle country of Arizona. She says, "I love my work and have never regretted my choice of a profession. I attribute this to my love for helping others, using what skills I have acquired through my training and experience to assist those who are unable to cope with their situations. As I review the past, I attribute my foundation to my undergraduate training at Lindenwood for the philosophy and ideals it gives through its curriculum."

Last Tribute to Mr. Motley Paid by Dr. James W. Clarke

TRIBUTE was paid to Guy C. Motley, and to his long and devoted service to Lindenwood by the Rev. Dr. James W. Clarke, president of the Board of Directors and pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, at the funeral services for Mr. Motley in Roemer Auditorium. Dr. Clarke took as his text, Exodus 17:12: "His hands were steady until the going down of the sun."

"This afternoon we are come, not to lament a death, but to celebrate a life; not to announce a conclusion, but to testify to a beginning," Dr. Clarke said. "In a deep and true sense, this is a day of coronation and not a day of dolour.

"Death has not come to Dr. Motley but for him. As Christian men and women, we do not think in terms of his extinction, for that would be to deny the whole rationality of the universe. If the world is moral, and I believe it to be so, it is incredible that the only absolutely precious thing in it—a character built up and matured in goodness, with its trials, achievements, sorrows, and joys—should finally pass away. So today we meet in a positive mood, and our ruling emotion is that of gratitude.

"Donald Hankey, in one of his great books, has a chapter entitled 'The Religion of the Inarticulate.' It is very natural that this afternoon there should be a desire for reticence. Dr. Motley would be hurt and saddened if I engaged in any fulsome eulogy. Yet there is the need to say something, not to satisfy him or his family and relatives, but to satisfy and help ourselves.

"Rabinadrath Tagore, in self address, asks this question: 'On the day Death will knock at my door, what wilt thou offer him, Rabinadrath?' Dr. Motley had a good deal to offer, for his subscription to life was a worthy one. When I think of him, I do not think of a man possessed of great gifts, although worthy gifts were his, but of one possessed of great qualities.

"Friendship, to many of us, is not natural or habitual, because too often we are cross-grained and over-sensitive. Dr. Motley was naturally kind, and possessed of the spirit of good will. His nature was so out-going that always there were emanations of warmth. I can see him now coming towards me with a kindly inquiry upon his lips and with outstretched hand. His conversation was bright without sting, and happy without acid.

"Allied to this quality of friendship was simplicity. He wore no assumptive airs but walked in a straight line and bore himself with a happy modesty. He was honored by many organizations, educational and political, but was never bitten by the bacillus of brag, or beset by the plague of pose.

"Even stronger than the spirit of friendship and simplicity was that of loyalty. Each life moves around a center. Dr. Motley's earthly center was Lindenwood College. Faithfully and long did he serve it, and generations of students knew him with an intimacy not given to many others. He lived for Lindenwood, and he died in its service. In good times and bad, his affection never wavered but ever burned strong and bright.

"His friendship, simplicity and loyalty were but the expression of a deeper thing: faith. It would not be right for me to say that he was a mystic, for that was not the bent of his nature. Neither was he a theologian, for he had not deeply philosophied about the things which he most truly believed. But God was very real to him, and Jesus Christ was a fact by which he ordered his life.

"Thinking on these things, we are not cast down by his going. We are convinced that these values cannot be touched by Time or sudden death, for they transcend the material order and belong to eternity.

"With faith, therefore, we await the day when no longer we shall see through a glass darkly, but face to face; when no longer we shall know in part, but know also as we are known.

"To you, the members and relatives of his family, I extend the sympathy of the Board of Trustees, the faculty, and the student body of this college, where his influence will long abide and his memory will be deeply cherished.

"So, as Christian people, we sound again our defiance to Death, and say: O Death, thou canst not destroy us! Thou canst not displace one stone in the spiritual temple. Thou dost but take the flower from this winter clime, where it can never reach its full beauty and growth, and dost but transplant it to that summer-land up yonder, where it can reach its complete loveliness and fragrance. O Death, where is thy sting! O grave, where is thy victory! Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

"Sursum corda!"
