Faculty Use of Service Learning Interest Survey

Dr. Julie Turner, professor and chair, nonprofit administration, is a participant in this year's Faculty Fellowship Program regarding effective adoption of service learning practices. She is seeking input from faculty who are interested in better integrating service learning into their courses on topics of interest through training, consultations, etc. To assist in planning, please participate in this brief survey by April 15.

Volunteers Needed For CAB OPS

If you have great relationships with students or desire to gain great relationships with students, Campus Activities Board has an opportunity specifically designed for you to achieve and retain this!

We need volunteers for an event called CAB OPS. CAB OPS is a resident hall and faculty vs. student competition. What does this require of you? Faculty and staff will be guarding glow sticks from students with water. That's right, use water guns and water balloons to "get students out." Everything will be provided for you, all you will have to do is wear all black, show up, bring your competitive spirit, and have a great time!

Date: April 25

Time: 8-9:30 p.m.

Where: Heritage Campus

Contact: To volunteer, sign up on Invovle U

A Note From OASIS

As the turmoil in Venezuela rises, we have heard more and more challenging stories from our Venezuelan students, many of which are not reported by the media. These stories range from concerning to harrowing. Many of our students' friends and family are facing rolling power outages, limited food at astronomical prices, and limited to no communication with loved ones. This is something that no one should ever experience.

With the Venezuelan embassy in Washington, D.C., permanently closing, a source of support is gone. Being an international student is not easy, plain and simple. It can include the highest joys at reaching new goals, as well as the awful lows of being alone and so far from home. Student Development and OASIS have both sent messages of support and also let these students know the entire campus stands behind them. We are simply asking faculty and staff to be aware of this situation and offer support wherever possible.

Nancy Schneider Nominated Most Valuable Person in the Life of a Student

Nancy Schneider, associate professor and coordinator of elementary student teaching, was recently nominated for a Most Valuable Person in the Life of a Student Award. Most Valuable Professional Development recently published the nominees, which include 15 educators from across the county. The winner will be decided by online voting on the award site.

Schneider's bio on the award site states that throughout her teaching career, Schneider has been known to provide exceptional ongoing support to her students. In one particular instance, Schneider went above and beyond by providing extensive encouragement and an extraordinary level of support to one of her candidates who was struggling during her practice as a student teacher. Schneider invited the student into her home to visit with and be supported by her family, which in turn helped give the teacher candidate the extra assurance she needed to achieve her goal of becoming a teacher.

"Being nominated to receive this award is an honor in itself," Schneider said. "As an educator of educators, I strive to promote the importance of connecting with students and helping them understand the impact sensitivity and kindness can have. I am fortunate to work with many individuals who exhibit these same characteristics, and I appreciate the Most Valuable Professional Development group for recognizing the value of compassion."

Oxfam Hunger Banquet - April 3

The Lindenwood Public Health Student Association is hosting its first Oxfam Hunger Banquet on Wednesday, April 3, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the AB Leadership Room. The Hunger Banquet is an excellent learning experience for students to understand global issues and how we, as a Lindenwood community, can address hunger locally and globally. Participants will be assigned to a certain socioeconomic status (high, middle, or low income), depending on the ticket they draw. This status will determine the meal they will receive. PHSA officers will lead big and small group discussions. Dr. Nhial Tutlam, public health adjunct instructor, will talk about his experience living through the South Sudan famine of 1992. This event is free of charge with food provided.

Please promote this event in classes, meetings, and even by offering the event as an extra-credit option. If you have any questions, please feel free to email any of the public health faculty.
