Prologue

The PSY404 students of Fall 2008 took on some of the most ambitious projects I have seen thus far. Every one of these projects bears out the passion the students have toward their selected topics. The hard work the students put into their project is only overshadowed by the amount of passion they have about the subject matter they were investigating.

I also want to mention that these were some of the most patient students I have ever had – the publication of this journal took two years, the longest it has ever taken, and the longest it shall ever be. The main cause of the delay is due to the loss of the precious papers due to the sudden death of my second portable hard drive as we were editing this journal. We also hit upon a transitional period with the course tutor, who is normally tasked to help edit this journal.

I am happy to say that in the end, we succeeded in recovering all of the papers and that this long awaited journal is finally ready to disseminate. The publication of this journal would not have been possible without our journal cover design, which was created by Lisa Clark, and help received from our present day tutor (Fall 2010) for the PSY404 course, John Gatermann, who graciously helped edit this much anticipated volume.
