About the Research Methods Journal

It is evident from the papers found in this journal that the students from the spring 2008 semester had interests in a variety of different areas within the field of psychological science. The students worked very hard to produce fine papers and they all took part in helping to review each other's work in preparation for this publication. The cover of this year's journal was chosen by the students and designed by Allison Smith.

On behalf of the PSY404 class of spring 2008, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many individuals who contributed to the students' success; a special thanks goes to the members of the Institutional Review Board (IRB), to the officers of the Human Subject Pool (HSP) as well as to all of the HSP-supporting faculty members in the Anthropology/Sociology and Psychology programs.

Last but not least of all, we would like to extend a special thanks to the course tutor, Rachel Rogers for her support throughout the course and for editing the current journal.
