Faculty and Staff Members Participate in Entrepreneurship Mindset Facilitator Training

Trainers from The Entrepreneurial Learning Initiative (ELI), second and third from the right, are Gary Schoeniger and Rob Herndon.

Thanks to the support of Dr. Howard Wall and the Hammond Institute for Free Enterprise, this training was made possible to Lindenwood University faculty and staff and for more than 20 individuals from other universities, high schools, and organizations across the country.

the ELI facilitator mindset training is designed to develop the creativity, critical thinking, passion, and persistence skills associated with an entrepreneurial mindset, driving them deeper into our daily lives and academia.

The Duree Center for Entrepreneurship in the Hammond Institute is dedicated to promoting an entrepreneurial mindset internally at Lindenwood University and externally to the communities we serve. For more information, call Craig Felzien at 636-949-4432.

Workday Improvements to Expense Report Performance

Workday has made some improvements to expense report performance. The changes were made in Lindenwood's Workday tenant on Monday, June 17.

The main change is the expense report processing is moving from document to line level, which means the expense report is created when you click OK on the initiation page. Previously, the expense report only became a document in the system when the user submitted or saved the document for later. Workday now assigns an EXP number and puts the transaction in draft status as soon as you begin the expense report process. The information is now organized in three tabs: Header, Attachments, and Expense Lines. Changes are saved as you move between expense lines and between tabs.

Employees must cancel any expense reports that are in draft status that will not be submitted for approval. Any expense report (whether submitted, or saved for later in draft status) will reduce your budget dollars available for spending. Details of the Expense Report Enhancements can be found in Useful Links, under the Finance and Operations tab. The Workday Guide for Creating an Expense Report has also been updated to include the changes.
