NUMBER 7

K. Kolocotronis, M. Marshall, V. Woodman To Grace Court Of Valentine Dance Saturday

Three sophomores who will compose the court of the annual Valentine Date Dance of the sophomore class Saturday are Kathy Kolocotronis, Marian Marshall and Virginia Woodman. One of the three will be crowned queen, but her identity will not be known until the time of the crowning ceremony at the dance, to be held in the gymnasium, 8:30 p. m. to midnight.

Members of the court were elected by the class at a meeting last Tuesday, according to Celia Bay, class president. George Jacob's Orchestra from Washington University will furnish the music for the event, the theme of which is "Queen of Hearts."

Susan Cunningham and Virginia are co-chairmen of the decoration committee to turn the gym into a ball room, and Kathy is in charge of throne decorations. Marilyn Heberlee is chairman of the refreshments committee.

92 Colleges Invited To March Meeting

Ninety-two colleges and universities in the Mississippi Valley have been invited by Lindenwood College to send student representatives to a conference on Human Relations, to be held on the Lindenwood campus, March 18-20.

Three speakers will address the conference. Dr. Morris I. Stein, clinical psychologist at the University of Chicago, will discuss tensions within the individual. Dr. Thomas Eliot, chairman of the department of political science at Washington University, will discuss tensions in group relations, involving the area of prejudices, group contacts and international conflict.

Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, will deliver the concluding lecture on the general theme of what the individual can do about these problems. Discussion sessions, with student participation, will follow each lecture.

The invitations were sent to the presidents and chairmen of the departments of psychology and sociology of the 92 institutions.

Paintings By 2 Members Of College Art Faculty Chosen For Exhibitions

Paintings by Miss Mildred Fischer and Arthur L. Kanak of the art faculty have been accepted in the Midwest Show at the Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, to be on exhibit Feb. 18 to March 28. Miss Fischer's winning picture is a gouache, "Tracks in the Sand," and Mr. Kanak's is an oil, "The Mera-mec at Mound Ridge."

Mr. Kanak also has paintings on exhibit in shows at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia and the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis. His painting was one of 30 in the Minneapolis show chosen for a traveling exhibit.

52 On Honor Roll; 9 Get Straight A's

Fifty-two students are on the Dean's honor roll for the first semester, it was announced today by Dr. Alice Parker, acting dean, and Miss Lula Clayton Beale, registrar. Requirement for the honor roll is a 3.5 (B-plus) average or better in all academic subjects, and no grade below a C.

Nine of the 52 students made straight A records last semester. They are Suk Hun Chan, Jeanne Ellis, Yu-Chen Li and Mary Nell Van Bibber, seniors; Doris Beaumar, junior; Barbara Bining and Marie DeBasio, sophomores, and Chloe Burton and Phyllis Steinmetz, freshmen.

Freshmen — Darlene George, Willa Gleeson, Jane Graham, Martha Hoaglin, Pamela Hutchinson, Shirley Jones, Marian Kasper, Claudette Leachman, Nancy Lovejoy, Elizabeth Mason, Patsy Ruth Miller, Patricia Owen, Joanne Petefish, Constance Richards, Gwen Rytter, Ann Sawyer, Kay Sherwood and Nita Steed.

Dr. Parker announced that a supplementary list will be published later to include Washington Semester students and students who were ill at examination time.

Sacred Art Show To Run a Month

An exhibit of contemporary religious art, which was arranged by the art faculty to coincide with Religious Emphasis Week, opened at Roemer Hall yesterday and will be on display until Feb. 28.

Sculpture, painting, stained glass, prints and tapestry are included in the show, which is with one exception, the work of St. Louis area artists. A Finnish tapestry designer, Martta Taipale, is the non-local artist whose exhibits are a small woven tapestry Angel Head and several color sketches for tapestries.

Other exhibitors and their works are: Hillis Arnold, sculptor from Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill., three works — "Stephen Being Stoned to Death," a terra cotta, "folded" technique; "Our Lady," plaster model for a 12 foot terra cotta statue for Fontbonne College, and two plasticene sketches of "Joseph and Christ."

Rudi Torrini, St. Louis sculptor, "Crucifix," a plastic model, and a number of drawings; Emil Frei, St. Louis stained glass artist, two pieces of glass; Siegfried Reinhardt, also from St. Louis, a painting, "The Creation"; and Werner Drewes of the Washington University art faculty, two prints: "Annunciation" and "Madonna and Child."

Dr. Hans Hofmann To Speak For Religious Emphasis Week With 'Christ - Hope of World'

Dr. Hans Hofmann

Data On H. Hofmann

Dr. Hans Hofmann, who is to be Lindenwood's guest speaker during Religious Emphasis Week, is a native of Switzerland. He studied in Switzerland, in Paris, and at the Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries in the United States.

Dr. Hofmann has received his Master's and Ph.D. degrees in psychology, a Bachelor of Divinity, a diploma for psychoanalysis, and a Doctor of Theology degree.

The theologian and psychologist has worked in Europe with the International Red Cross, the Christian Student Federation, and UNESCO. He is now visiting lecturer at Princeton Theological Seminary in theology and psychology.

Frosh Open Term With Peppy Mixer

The first class to put pep into the new semester was the freshman class which staged a mixer Friday night in Cobbs' rec-room.

Evelyn Italiano, chairman, was assisted by Ruth Phelps and Marilyn Zimmermann. The stag line consisted of men from Washington and St. Louis Universities.

L. C. Children's Theatre Returns To Air Saturday In Play By Janice Gordon

"Mouse Town Moves," a radio drama written by Janice Gordon, a junior speech major, will open the 11th annual program of Lindenwood's Children's Theatre of the Air, at 11:30 a. m. Saturday, on KFUE, St. Louis radio station. The Children's Theatre was begun 11 years ago as a class function of the radio production class, and soon became an annual project, presented on alternate Saturdays.

Original scripts for the program are written by the class in radio writing conducted by Dr. Alice Parker, head of the English department. The scripts are geared to children from four to nine years

Lindenwood's Religious Emphasis Week will open Sunday at Vespers with a sermon on "Christ — The Hope of the World," presented by Dr. Hans Hofmann, visiting lecturer in theology at Princeton Theological Seminary.

The opening topic of the Swiss theologian and psychologist corresponds with the theme of the conference of the World Council of Churches, to be held in August at Evanston, Ill., according to Dr. Theodore A. Gill, Dean of the Chapel.

The Religion in Life Week, Feb. 14-18, will be led by Dr. Hofmann, who, following Sunday's opening sermon, will give six talks on the subjects of faith and order, inter-group relations, evangelism, international affairs, social problems, and the laity.

Monday at chapel Dr. Hofmann's title will be "Our Oneness in Christ and Our Disunity as Churches." Monday evening at 7 o'clock a panel discussion will be held by the guest speaker and the faculty, discussing questions presented by the students. A reception in the Library Club Room will follow the discussion.

Tuesday's chapel talk will be "The Church amid Racial and Ethnic Tensions," and Tuesday evening Dr. Hofmann will talk on "The Mission of the Church to Those Outside Her Life."

Speaking on international affairs Wednesday noon, Dr. Hofmann will discuss "Christians in the Struggle for World Community." "The Responsible Society in a World Perspective" will be Wednesday evening's title.

A Thursday morning convocation at 11 o'clock will close the week of religious emphasis, as Dr. Hofmann talks about "The Christian in His Vocation."

Explaining the program, Dr. Gill said the subjects are the same as those to be discussed at the World Council Assembly.

"The aim is to communicate to the students something of the spread and breadth of truly Christian concern. The outcome should be a new sense of the scope of the Christian faith, for or against, which all must finally decide," said Dr. Gill.

Janice's script concerns an uncooperative mouse who is against his community's moving and causes many delays before he resolves to join the movement. The studio organ at KFUE is used for musical accompaniment, and also many of the sound effects. The music department cooperates in working out music arrangements. Molly Peterson, junior music major, will play for this year's productions.

The class, consisting of Janice, Kathy Hale, Margaret Bittman, and Barbara Rowe, works directly with the Rev. Elmer Knoernschild, program director of KFUE.

For Retaining the Voting Age of 21

Everybody wants to vote. That's only natural, for everyone wants to express his own opinion and have it count. Everyone needs to feel adequate, and to have status in the group, says the psychologist. Or put another way, "Everybody wants to get in the act," says Durante.

President Eisenhower's recent public endorsement of lowering the legal voting age to 18 has brought on new appraisal of that perennial question. The Linden Bark staff splits on the issue—two-thirds in favor of retaining the voting age at 21, one-third for lowering it to 18.

Majority opinion denied the validity of the argument: "Old enough to fight—old enough to vote." Reasoning ran thus: The wise selection of important high government officials takes more foresight and general political knowledge than the ways of war. War takes daring, and obedient following of authority. The political process of voting takes thoughtful caution, independent judgment, knowledge and the weighing of it.

The 18-year-old is not ready for the responsibility of voting. He is still under the influence of views of his teachers and parents. But most persons, by the time they are 21, will have matured enough to know what they want and to make up their own minds.

The Bark staff reprints the following excerpts from editorials on the voting age from four college and university newspapers:

Please, Not Another Empty Promise

(From the Michigan Daily, University of Michigan)

President Eisenhower's plan to allow 18-year-olds to vote in national elections is a proposal long overdue . . . The old adage . . . that a person old enough to fight for his country is old enough to participate in its elections, though time worn, is still true . . .

Extension of suffrage will help maintain the civemindedness of those high school graduates who never go to college . . . This large group, after three years out of school, does not have the incentive to get out and vote that they would have if just out of high school, with courses directed toward the responsibilities of citizenship still fresh in mind.

Popular, But Unrealistic Appeal

(From the Cornell Daily Sun, Cornell University)

President Dwight D. Eisenhower's proposal . . . seems to be based more on a wish to capture popularity than on a realistic appraisal of any merits in lowering the legal voting age. Lowering the suffrage age is, first, not at all necessary, and second, the effects in some instances will be harmful . . .

If any action is taken . . . it might also be wise to take into consideration the difference in the educational systems of the various areas, leaving the final decisions as to the voting age up to the various states.

Not Yet Equipped

(From The Gong, Maryville College, St. Louis, Mo.)

"If he's old enough to fight, he's old enough to vote." We've often heard this statement. It is usually the first argument offered in favor of lowering the voting age to 18, and one which, on the surface, seems valid.

However, in that very statement lies the principal reason for not allowing 18-year-olds to vote. It is an emotionally-packed statement which gathers adherents through feeling and not by rational thinking . . . We need intelligent, informed voters, who think for themselves, who can get through the external frosting of a political speech to the heart of it, and who can weigh its basic proposals for what they are worth. An 18-year-old is not yet accustomed or equipped to do this.

ELSIE SAYS

The florists and the mailmen will soon be busy delivering flowers and candy to many of the Lindenwood girls. Why? Well, don't forget, Valentine's Day is only five days away.

Cupid will be sharpening his arrows and getting ready to start his flights. I'll bet a good place for cupid to go would be to the Valentine's dance, Saturday, in Butler gymnasium. So, get your dates and maybe you'll be one of the lucky girls whom cupid will shoot.

Hurry up. Good luck and happy Valentine's Day to you.

Well at long last we finally make note of one little Mr. David Arthur Kanak. How a notice like this slipped by us I don't know, because Mr. Kanak's broad grin certainly reminds us of the new little feller. The best story was Mr. Kanak's description of David to our drawing class: "Why he's the huskiest little thing . . . has great big shoulders like a full-back . . ." Mother Fran just beams through all this oration . . . Seriously—tardy congratulations to our new number one pin-up boy. . . . Don't know about the "Greeks having a word for it," but they certainly have a dance for it. The intermission show that Kathy Kolocotronis and Ann Zotos put on at the AA Barn Dance was quite an exhibition . . . Pat Wilkerson's engagement to Mr.

L. C. To Debate St. Louis University Here Feb. 24

The Lindenwood debate team will oppose the St. Louis University team in the Library Club Room at 7 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Lindenwood will take the affirmative side on the national collegiate debate topic for the year, Resolved: that the United States should adopt a policy of free trade.

Burton Meisel, the drama coach at St. Charles High, is new news, and Harriet Graber's pecan-sized diamond is really a dazzler—no one seems to know the scoop on the Graber engagement, but the rock is advance notice enough . . . Seems the Sibley girls think a lot of the U.S. Army—at least they have a near monopoly on about half of the boys bivouacking out at Blanche Park. There has been a steady stream into fair Sibley Hall and Jenny Barton is the new cupid.

2 One Act Plays In The Round Drew Large Crowds In Library

"The Unseen" by Alice Gerstenberg, and "The Twelve-Pound Look," by Sir James M. Barrie, two one-act plays presented in the round, drew large audiences both nights they were presented in the Library Club Rooms. Both plays were directed by senior speech majors, Paula Moore directing "The Unseen" and Julie Richards, "The Twelve-Pound Look" as class projects.

A new actor was brought to Lindenwood's theatre in "The Unseen." Burton Meisel, drama coach at St. Charles High and former actor at Washington University, played the part of a young architect, who believed his career to have been ruined by the flighty forgetfulness of his maid, Hulda. Kay Collins Jordan again portrayed a hilarious maid and added the usual comedy to the play. Patricia Wilkerson played opposite Meisel as his struggling housewife.

Doris Beaumar, junior speech major but a newcomer to the theatre, made a most successful debut in "The Twelve-Pound Look," as a typist and the first wife of Sir Harry. The Rev. Mr. Thomas C. Cannon, pastor of the St. Charles Presbyterian Church, made his second debut of the season as the "money-mad" and social climbing Sir Harry. The second wife was played by Eunice Sheley, a senior speech major who has played many roles at Lindenwood. Carl House, director of food service, played the part of Tombes, the Sim's butler.

The performances were given equally well each night and were well accepted by the audiences. The change of properties was smoothly handled by Barbara Binninger. Chloe Burton, Mary Kay Pinckney and Sandra Snider were in charge of lights.

Honorary Societies Initiate 6 Members

Barbara Shuttleworth, junior, will be initiated into Pi Alpha Mu at 5 p. m. today in the Library Club Room. Doris Beaumar, junior, is president of the English honorary society.

Pi Alpha Delta, classics society, initiated five students last Wednesday in the Library Club Room. The girls are Mary Lu Tracewell, Constance Richards and Sally Ann Ford, freshmen; Ann Smith, a sophomore, and Mrs. Esther Smith, a junior. Mary Lu Merrill, junior, is president.

Dr. Siegmund A. E. Betz, English professor, is faculty sponsor of both societies.

J. Wood New Instructor Of Horse Back Riding

A new instructor has joined the physical education department. Miss Josephine Wood of Clayton, Mo., is now teaching beginning, intermediate and advanced horse back riding. Students who are interested will also be able to receive training in stable management and in the skill of jumping.

Miss Wood informed a Bark reporter that she has provided four horses for the stables herself and that five more come from the Otis Brown Stables in St. Louis.

Westover College, Middleberry, Conn., and Bennett Junior College in Milbrook, N. Y., were the two colleges in which Miss Wood perfected her already natural skill of riding and caring for horses.

2 Speech Majors In Television Work

Julie Richards, January graduate of Lindenwood, apprenticed at KWK last week, and this week is apprenticing at KSTM-TV. Julie, a speech major, has also been offered part time work at KSTM-TV.

Eunice Sheley, senior speech major, is doing apprentice work at Channel 9, KETC, the educational television station in St. Louis, helping produce a children's art show. Her apprenticeship is part of her seminar in radio and television.

Room Deposits Due

The deadline for room deposits for next year is April 9 at 5 p. m., Mr. William F. McMurry, director of admissions, announced today.

Writers Will Vie For Annual Award

Sophomores, juniors and seniors are eligible to enter the annual competition for the Spahmer Prize Awards in writing. Dr. Elizabeth Dawson, professor of English, announced today. Cash awards of $50 are available to the winners.

Students may submit original stories, poems, personal essays, critical essays, research papers, radio scripts, or other literary material, Dr. Dawson said.

Contestants are urged to submit a portfolio of all kinds of writing to the English faculty by May 7.

Scholarships Open For Studies, Travel

The following announcements of scholarships for study and travel abroad have been received by the Linden Bark. They apply only to seniors, but they may interest other students as indications of future opportunities. Further information about the scholarships may be obtained in Roemer 27.

A six-week bilingual summer school, sponsored by the Universidad Autonoma de Guadalajara and Stanford University, will be offered in Mexico June 27 to Aug. 7. Total cost of tuition, room and board is $225.

The Study Abroad Inc. is offering free travel to Europe for a small number of students and teachers, who will serve on the educational and recreational staff of the 1954 student sailings of the one-class ship Casteel Felice.

Katherine Gibbs School is offering two national scholarships for college senior girls. Each scholarship provides full tuition of $620 for the secretarial training course, plus an additional $500.

Mademoiselle magazine is offering two $100 Dylan Thomas

Awards for the best poems by young women writers. One prize will go to women college students under 30 and the second to women under 30 who may or may not be college graduates. All poems must be in by April 15.

Three Fashion Fellowships, of $1,050 each, to the Tobe-Coburn School for fashion careers will be awarded in a nation-wide competition to college senior girls.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says . . .

FOR more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos . . . especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

For four years we have maintained in the smoker's interest an intensified larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country" (From Business Week Magazine) and eminent scientists from leading universities.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.
