Dr. T. V. Smith Delivers Address at College's 115th Commencement

—Dr. Emory W. Luccock Gives Baccalaureate Sermon.

NINETY-TWO students received degrees, certificates and diplomas at Lindenwood College's 115th annual commencement in Roemer Auditorium on June 1. Of this year's class, forty-two were seniors and received bachelor degrees.

The commencement exercises opened with an academic procession under the linden trees to the auditorium, headed by Dr. Harry Morehouse Gage, president of the college, and the commencement speaker, Dr. T. V. Smith, professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago and former Congressman-at-large for Illinois.

The invocation was given by Dr. John W. MacIvor, president of the college's Board of Directors and pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of St. Louis. Two solos were sung by Miss Pearl Walker of the Fine Arts faculty, accompanied by Paul Friess, also of the Fine Arts faculty. The degrees and certificates were presented by Dr. Gage and Dr. Alice E. Gipson, academic dean, announced the college honors.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached on Sunday afternoon, May 31, by Dr. Emory W. Luccock, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston, Ill. Other events of commencement week included the annual commencement concert that night; the commencement play, presented Saturday night by Alpha Psi Sigma, and the annual art exhibit of the Fine Arts Department.

Dr. Smith's commencement address was entitled "Discipline for Democracy." Discipline, he told the graduates, is the price we pay for making ideals work in practice. Democracy must pay more, for it insists on making more ideals work than does dictatorship. Science is the discipline of Truth, Art is the discipline of Beauty, and politics is the discipline of Goodness.

"It is claimed by totalitarians Democracy cannot survive because it is not disciplined," Dr. Smith said. "Certainly only the disciplined survive, but certain also it is that Democracy cannot survive on their kind of discipline. It is a discipline narrow and brutalitarian; it can be opposed only by military discipline, which like it is destructive. But it will be adequately opposed, for the sake of the larger life to which democratic discipline is the means. This done, our own brand of discipline can flourish as science for more Truth, as Art for more Beauty, and as politics for more Goodness.

"More truth is kept coming by men who have narrowed their minds to rigorous canons. Science we keep alive by discovering talent with the right temperament, giving those with the talent the correct training, and then turning them loose free to produce the truth to which they are trained. Science is called a discipline because Truth does not grow wild on trees and men do not become its carriers without the price of resisting the natural undertow of human credence. New Truth can be discovered and demonstrated only by minds that yield assent, as Pasteur put it, after 'all adverse hypotheses have been exhausted.' Science keeps Truth dynamic and prevents it from progressively fading from the earth.

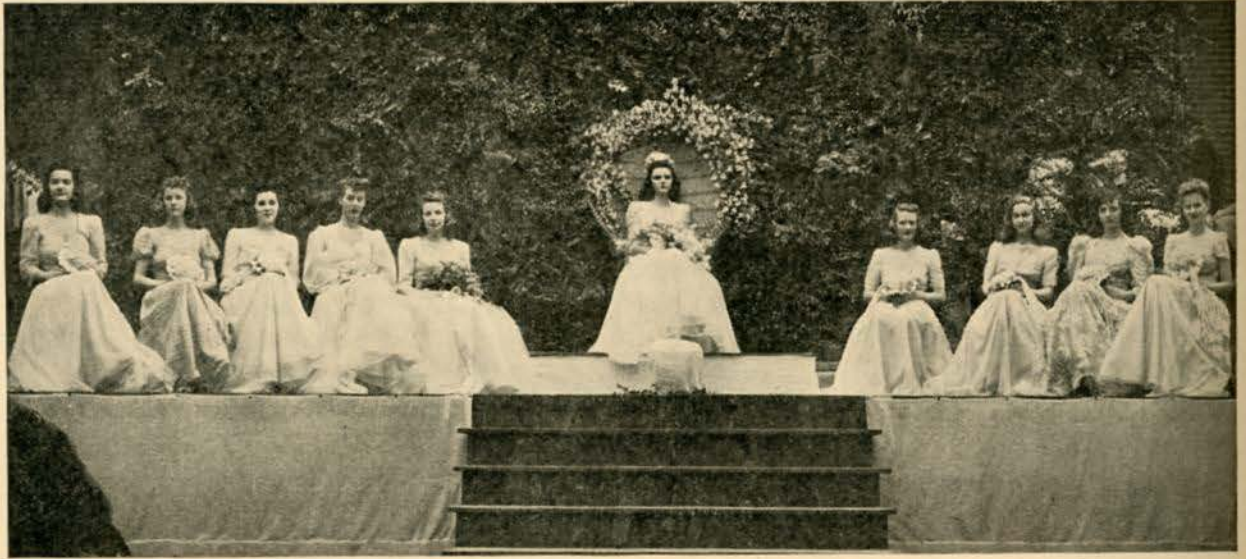

"So also must Democracy discipline enough men and women to keep man's fund of Beauty on the grow through mastery of the means to beauty. Beauty itself hardly grows wild on trees. Those who discover or create it are temperamentally imaginative, have trained themselves to see what others unsee, and have brought down what they see through the narrow bottleneck of birth into general practice. This discipline does not narrow imagination below the normal, as does science; but opens wide all the windows of the soul to welcome with glad clairvoyance every wind that blows.

"As scientific training is necessary to keep Truth on the grow, and artistic discipline necessary to keep Beauty on the grow, so Politics is a necessary means to enlarged Goodness. It is a shocking thought, but a true one, that none of us can continue to practice his own 'superior' goodness save upon the acceptance of the politicians' 'inferior' kind. When each person tries to be good in his own way, he runs afoul of others equally good, who are trying to do good in their own way. Every fanatic, and some not so fanatic, insists upon being good in such a cussedly queer way, namely, his very own. This happens as harmfully in religion as in business; and men do not agree with men equally good as to what is good.

"Politics is the art of adjusting all serious conflicts through the method of compromise in order that the private domain of goodness may thrive. That this is

Dr. and Mrs. Gage Guests of Chicago Lindenwood Club

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Morehouse Gage were guests of the Chicago Lindenwood Club at a dinner on April 24 at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago. Approximately 250 persons attended. Dr. and Mrs. Gage were introduced by Guy C. Motley, assistant to the president and secretary of the college.

In an informal address Dr. Gage described the seven-point program of Lindenwood. The college, he said, is a teaching institution for the achievement of excellence in leadership, the art of learning to live together, stressing health and happiness.

Two Lindenwood Girls in St. Louis Municipal Opera Chorus

Lindenwood can now boast of two opera stars. When the St. Louis Municipal Opera issued its call for candidates for the singing chorus of the internationally famed outdoor opera, three members of this year's graduating class entered the tryouts and were selected for the season.

One of the girls, Miss Mary Dillon, of Vinita, Okla., decided to decline her place in the chorus because she was busy preparing for her Bachelor of Music recital. The other two girls, Miss Marion Wettstone, of Wichita Falls, Texas, who received her Bachelor of Music degree, and Miss Dorothy Bailey, of Hiawatha, Kan., who received a diploma in voice, have been rehearsing for several weeks. They plan to take an apartment in St. Louis for the summer.

Miss Lear Honored for 25 Years' Service to Lindenwood

Miss Mary E. Lear, of the Chemistry Department, was honored at commencement for a quarter of a century of service to Lindenwood. On behalf of the college, Dr. Gage presented her with a wrist watch.

Miss Lear came to Lindenwood in 1916, and with the exception of one year spent in graduate study has taught ever since. She holds A. B., B. S., and M. A. degrees from the University of Missouri.

Evelyn Wahlgren Wins Lindenwood Fellowship for Graduate Study

Other Prizes and Awards Are Announced at Commencement and Members Named for Alpha Sigma Tau and Mu Phi Epsilon

THE Lindenwood Fellowship, awarded by Lindenwood College for high scholarship, character, personality, extra-curricular activities and ability to do graduate work, goes this year to Miss Evelyn Wahlgren, of Oklahoma City, Okla., who received her Bachelor of Music degree at commencement on June 1.

Miss Wahlgren, a piano major at Lindenwood, also received a diploma in organ. In her four years in college she frequently represented Lindenwood on musical programs, and this spring she was invited to play a piano solo with the St. Louis Scholarship Symphony. She has also appeared in recitals on radio broadcasts. She is a member of Alpha Mu Mu and in her senior year was president of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary musical sorority.

For the last two years she was the regular accompanist of the vesper choir and she aided Miss Gertrude Isidore as an assistant music theory teacher for the last two years.

In addition to the Lindenwood fellowship, the following honors and prizes were announced at commencement:

Miss Doris Banta Elected Student President

At a student election on May 12, Miss Doris Banta, of Jefferson City, Mo., a junior, was elected president of the Student Government Association for the year 1942-43. She succeeds Miss Ruth Dayton, of Ottumwa, Iowa, who was graduated this year. Three members of the Junior Class were nominated for the position. The other candidates, nominated by a committee composed of two representatives of each class, were Miss Betty Tatum, of Anderson, Mo., and Miss Peggy Lindsay, of Foreman, Ark.

Miss Banta, who is listed in the 1941-42 Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, has maintained a straight "E" average in her three years at Lindenwood. This year she was on the staffs of both the Linden Leaves and the Linden Bark. She was president of the International Relations Club, vice-president of the Junior Class, vice-president of Alpha Sigma Tau, and secretary of the Poetry Society.

difficult business, the most arduous kind of government, is next to certain. It necessitates that men shall be civilized: it requires politicians to elevate the general good above competing specific claims and citizens, to stomach politicians who substitute for what each of these thinks the highest good, some lowest common denominator upon which all grudgingly agree."

Lindenwood College Goes All-Out For Victory With Organized War Work

Blackout Drill, Red Cross Courses, Recreation Conference Are Among Highlights of Year's Program of Cooperation in Nation's War Effort.

THIS has been an all-out-for-victory year at Lindenwood. From the day of the first treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor, the college has been carrying on definite work in civilian defense and to aid the nation's war effort.

Lindenwood was one of the first colleges in the nation to provide air raid shelters for its students and faculty and to institute air raid drills. In addition to liberal support of the war bond drive and contributions to war relief funds, war activities at the college have included:

Two classes of approximately seventy-five students in first aid instruction, under the direction of Miss Marie Reichert of the Physical Education Department, and authorized by the American Red Cross.

One class of approximately thirty students in home nursing, under the direction of Miss Fern Staggs of the Home Economics Department, and authorized by the American Red Cross. Misses Bertha Jauch and Doris Gruer, registered nurses, assisted Miss Staggs.

One class of approximately fifty students in motor mechanics, under the direction of Miss Lois Karr of the Science Department.

A six weeks' training course in community recreation, ending in a Defense Recreational Conference on May 1 and 2. The theme of the conference was "The Role of Recreation and Camping in Civilian Defense."

Radio training for defense in which approximately 40 students participated. This class was under the direction of Mr. John Stine of the Speech and Dramatics Department.

Sixty students participated in the last registration under the selective service act and the sugar rationing act. This service was volunteer work.

Several bean soup suppers were held which provided substantial amounts of money; the students contributed this saving to various war activities.

The faculty, through research and study, is reconstructing a curriculum to help the students to understand the new opportunities presented to women for service in the post war period. New "Patterns for Living" will develop from these faculty studies. The main war industry for the students at Lindenwood College is education.

At the end of the school year Professor Hellmut A. Hartwig of the Modern Languages Department will be granted a leave of absence to serve again in the United States Army as a major.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

A poem by Patricia Lee, Lindenwood sophomore, was read over the air in a commercial program broadcast from Station WKY in Oklahoma City recently.

The Linden Bark was awarded two prizes at the Missouri College Newspaper Association meeting at Columbia, Mo., in May. Miss Patricia Lee, of Oklahoma City, won second prize for the best college poem, and Miss Barbara Goldenberg, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was awarded third place for the best feature story.

The Home Economics Department sponsored a Victory style and food show on May 14. The show emphasized ways of using substitutes during the war.

Three Lindenwood authors were represented in the spring issue of "The Rectangle," official publication of Sigma Tau Delta. They are Shirley Goodman, Jennie McRae and Patricia Lee.
