PEOPLE, NEWS AND NOTES

SENIORS INVITED TO JOB FAIR

Lindenwood Seniors are invited to attend the Job/Career Information Fair at Maryville College on April 7 from 8:30 a.m. till 1 p.m. in the Simon Center. For more information call Debbie Coats, ext. 307.

COLLEGE TO HELP WITH WELDON SPRING ENVIRONMENTAL RESEARCH

The Lindenwood biology department, in cooperation with the college's Office of Research and Planning is developing an environmental research project on Weldon Spring. The project will create an accessible computerized public information base of the existing data on the water and soil content of radionuclides and chemical contaminants within the watersheds surrounding the Weldon Spring chemical plant and the Weldon Spring quarry.

The collection, compilation and collation of data will be supervised by Dr. Rao Ayyagari and Dr. William Tietjen of the biology department, with consultation by Dr. Tom Aley, hydrologist and director of the Ozark Underground Laboratory, Protem, Missouri. Meredith Bollmeier will coordinate the collection of the data and the creation of the information base.

The environmental research project is being coordinated by Dr. James W. Swift, director of the office of research and planning and acting chair of the department of business administration. So far, contributions of $22,000 have been received toward a $50,000 budget. If you would like more information on this important research project, or if you would like to make a contribution, please contact Bollmeier at 949-2000, ext. 265.

AMMANN CONDUCTS SEMINAR

Elizabeth Ammann, Lindenwood assistant professor of business and fashion marketing recently conducted a seminar called "Fashion Marketing: Wardrobe Selection From A Textile Perspective" at Belleville Area College's Granite City campus.

AUDIO/VISUAL NEEDS YOUR SCHEDULE

Jim Haukap, director of audio/visual resources, has requested that all faculty turn in a written schedule of all audio/visual needs for the next quarter beginning April 9. Haukap needs a list of the equipment, times and places for your class needs.
