Planning For Political Conventions

Committees Are Named For National Student Political Conventions To Be Held In March

Chairmen for the various committees of the Democratic and Republican parties have been chosen for the national student political conventions to be held on March 21, 22, and 23 at Lindenwood. The chairmen will meet to start the arrangements and to plan the program for this big weekend.

Dr. Clevenger urges everyone to volunteer their service to the chairmen. "Everyone will have to be on at least two committees," he says, "if all the work is to get done on time." The following committees have been set up and the chairmen elected:

From the League of Women Voters these committees have been set up: General Decorations; Registration and Badges; Housing—Chairman, Miss Mary Lichliter; Social—Chairman, Mrs. Betty Winter.

From the two political parties these committees have been set up: Committee on Registration—Chairmen, Joan Kirchherr (Demo.), Nancy Starzl (Rep.); Committee on Convention Hall—Chairmen, Cam McClure (Demo.), Joan Blessing (Rep.); Committee on Headquarters—Chairmen, Carolyn Smith (Demo.), Bonnie Holt (Rep.).

Dr. Homer Clevenger is chairman of the General Arrangements Committee. Dr. Siegmund Betz is sponsor for the Republican party and Mary Beth Banta is general chairman. Dr. John Moore is sponsor for the Democratic party and Nell Culver is general chairman. Dr. C. Conover is chairman for the Decorations and Setting for the Keynote Speakers Committee, and John Middents and Harry Hendren are co-chairmen for the Committee on College Names, Standards, and Campus Signs.

The Republican and Democratic parties will set up temporary platforms before the conventions begin. At the conventions then the two parties will adopt their main platforms. Lindenwood and all the other schools coming will get together and select, in respective parties, their candidates.

There is no definite information on speakers as yet, but there are prospects in mind and these are being asked. Watch later papers for further information as to who the speakers will be.

A dance will be held that weekend for all the students on campus, including those from the other schools. This will be an informal dance during which the students will be given a chance to get acquainted.

More good news! THERE WILL BE NO CLASSES ON FRIDAY, MARCH 20! This will give everyone a chance to participate and also work.

A picture of the last political conventions in 1948 will be shown in the auditorium Thursday at 11 a. m. At this time Laurie Bowman, Nell Culver, and Katie Holmes will give talks on the conventions. That afternoon a registration of voters will take place. Everyone be at the convo and everyone register.

These conventions will give everyone a good chance to learn more about politics and to learn, first hand, what a convention is like. Let's everyone turn out to help with these jobs that must be done. You'll have lots of fun doing it. I WILL VOTE! WILL YOU?

Carol Dearing Reigns As Queen Of Hearts Over Annual Valentine Ball

Carol Dearing was crowned the Queen of Hearts for 1952 at the annual Sweetheart Ball Saturday night in Butler Gymnasium. Her two attendants were Joann Filling, First Maid, and Patty Boothe, Second Maid.

The three girls walked down an aisle formed by girls holding red satin ribbons, to the tunes of "Bonnie Ross," while Connie Gordon, president of the Sophomore Class, gave the commentary about the girls' activities and about their gowns.

The first to appear was Patty Boothe, who wore a luscious pink and blue dress and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Patty is treasurer of the Sophomore Class.

Joann Filling, First Maid, wore a red taffeta dress trimmed in nylon net, and carried a bouquet of white carnations tipped with red. Joann is a member of A.A., interested in hockey, volleyball, basketball, and softball. She is French vice president of the Modern Language Club and belongs to Encore Club and the League of Women Voters.

Carol Dearing, the new Queen, was stunning in a white nylon net dress. She carried a huge bouquet of red carnations, and Jan Blevins, Queen of Hearts of 1951, placed 'Whofore Art Thou Romeo' Is He Yours?

Your Romeo pictures have been sent to Hollywood and are now being admired by our Paramount Pictures judge, Arlene Dahl.

Miss Dahl will probably have a difficult time picking from all these pictures just one Romeo, but we should hear real soon as to her decision (that is, if she can bear to part with all these good looking men).

Be waiting for a publication of the Romeo of 1952 in the Bark soon. He may be your man!

The staff appreciates the way you lent us your pictures for a few weeks. We certainly enjoyed drooling and sighing over them, but we assure you they will be back with you safe and sound.

When In Rome Do As The Romans Do, Say L. C. Lassies On Cupid's Holiday

By Shirley Price

The origin of St. Valentine's Day is uncertain. One theory is that it is a survival of an old Roman February feast, known as Lupercalia. The names of the maidens were put in a box and the young bachelors drew names for their chosen ladies. To make this festival a religious ceremony, the names of saints were substituted, and the day was then called St. Valentine's Day. The rural tradition of this day was that because the birds chose their mates at this time of year the young men should also make their decisions.

In England and Scotland Lupercalia was continued in the form of a lottery. The bachelors still drew the names of the damsels to be their Valentines for the day and sometimes true love and marriage developed. These squires displayed the names of their fair ladies upon their sleeves for several days. On St. Valentine's night a ball was given in their honor.

Today the serious connotation

Linden Bark To Poll Students On Politics

How's your politics? With Lindenwood's national student political conventions only a month off the Linden Bark is conducting its own poll to determine who is the leading choice in '52 for both the Democrats and Republicans.

In this issue is a ballot which the staff asks that every student fill out and drop in the ballot box in the

First Residents Of Home Management House Find It Good

Four girls, Marilyn Fawley, Kathryn Llewlyn, Janet Neilson, and Lorraine Klockenbrink Rogers, who were in the Home Management House last semester, have reluctantly given up their places to three new housekeepers.

The four Home Management girls think the Home Management course provides a wonderful opportunity for any girl whether she is a home economics major or not. The girls believe the two most important things they got from their stay in the House are that they learned responsibility and learned to think independently.

From the course itself they gained practical experience in running a home with efficiency. The girls lived and worked as they would if they were actually living in and running a real home. They planned menus for all of their meals, bought their own food, and kept within a budget. For two weeks at a time they lived on a low income budget and then a medium and finally a high income budget. And for a little over two weeks each girl took her turn at one of the four positions: Laundress, cook, assistant cook, and manager. Each of the girls had her turn at being cleaning woman too.

The girls were early birds as they were up by 6:45 o'clock every morning. The cook had to get up by 6:15 a. m. so as to have time to prepare breakfast, and breakfast was served between 7 and 7:15 a. m. so as to give the cook a chance to get the dishes done before her 8 o'clock class.

All made mistakes and thereby gained experience for later living. One of the girls talked on the telephone too long and the Home Management House had one coffee pot less. One eager cook had too many pots in the fire at once, so the toast in the oven burned. Another of the girls seems to think that beets and plums are the same thing. After the beets had burned the cook took a look in the icebox and found a dish of something that looked like beets. Everyone has to learn by trial and error, as the Home Management girls found out.

Each of the girls planned, prepared and served a dinner for outside guests. Those who were fortunate in being served by L.C.'s expert cooks and hostesses were: Dr. and Mrs. McCluer Dean Roberts and Miss Lichliter, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Colson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Houston, and the Houston's two little daughters were enter-

Hearts And Flowers

What does February 14 mean to a Lindenwood Lassie? Is it a day of great anticipation or a something to be desired? If only a comic valentine, just a whiff of somebody else's roses, or a piece of your roommate's candy is all that you can hope for—then you had better take stock of your charms.

It is time for something to be done about this. You must be the one that Leap Year was planned for. So take heart and carefully plan your campaign. The strategy of a home-cooked meal and an open fire or a moon-June-spoon night is a thing of the past. Today's miss must plan her campaign as carefully as a general. As the general spends months plotting his campaign on paper, so must a girl "with intent to wed" spend time working on her campaign.

As January 1 is inventory time for the men who must make out income tax reports, then so is February 14 the day that a gal should "take stock." So get your spring offensive under way and maybe when next February comes along you will be sniffing your own roses. After all, this is leap year!!

Cabin Fever

Are you restless? Do you see spots before your eyes when you read? Does your roommate annoy you? Do you have an urge to hide in your closet and scream? Your best friends won't tell you—but, my dear girl, you have been stricken with "cabin fever."

You don't know what "cabin fever" is? It originally was an ailment the cowboys acquired about this time of the year after they had been shut up in the cabins all winter. They got bored and restless and fought among themselves.

It happens in colleges too. About this time of the year we feel uneasy and listless. We've been shut up in our dorms, we are bored with the everyday routine, our work seems like a useless grinding, and we're ready to just "give up."

Don't give up though—there is a cure for "cabin fever." Merely find some new interest that will give you a variation from your everyday routine. How about that play you've been meaning to see? Go see it. Take time off to enjoy this college life. You'll be able to do your work better if you relax your brain once in a while. Try it for a couple months more—then Spring will be here.

Brotherhood

Next week is Brotherhood Week.

Welding together the people of the United States is not easy. Our common culture is young. Other countries have a background of hundreds of years of working together. We do not. Other countries are the size of one of our states.

In such a huge land there are bound to be sectional differences, and these differences combined with those of our ancestry make unity a difficult but essential goal.

But what sort of "welding" can we do as college students? We aren't Congressmen; we don't belong to the United Nations General Assembly. In fact, most of us don't even vote.

The answer of course is education. Some day we will vote. Some day we will have a voice in a community somewhere. Right now it is our responsibility to learn as much about ourselves and the world—physical, political, economic, and sociological—as we possibly can. It is our responsibility to fight discrimination on every count, to stand strongly for freedom, equal opportunity, and cooperation among all the groups of our nation.

It is our duty to support the ideals on which the United States was founded—those of individual liberties and opportunities—which we sometimes too easily forget.

Elephant Or Donkey?

Are you a Democrat or a Republican? This issue of the Bark will give you a chance to say who your favorite is for the presidential nomination. Thursday you'll have a chance to register as a Lindenwood voter. It's our duty as college students and as Americans to express our opinions through a political party.

The individual's importance cannot be overestimated, but his power in government is in his allegiance to a party. It is party policy that expresses the beliefs, as nearly as possible, of all the members of the organization.

Our conventions in March will be as nearly like the national conventions as they can be. No delegate to a national convention is doubtful about his politics.

Whether you're a Republican or Democrat, declare yourself, and then stick to your party's guns!

ELSIE SAYS

Happy Valentine's Day! Already the telegrams, phone calls, candy and flowers are flooding us all. Well, maybe that is a slight exaggeration. Anyway, I saw a telegram for a girl just this morning. Lucky thing! Those of us who thought we were so smart in not going steady are changing our minds—what do we get? A dozen red roses? No, that's if you're "serious." An engagement ring? No, that's if you're pinned. A telegram? No. A visit? No. We get a valentine.

Valentine's Day is fun, though. Remember the crepe paper box you used to make in grade school? And the breathless wait to find out who had and who hadn't given you a valentine? The fun we had picking out a pretty card for Mother and Dad and Teacher?

Did you send any valentines this year? How about one for Dad? It's not so silly and sentimental that he won't appreciate it. Even big brother might like to hear from you. It's a good opportunity to remind them that you love them. And remember, it's Leap Year!

By Barbara Ebeling

The jokes are rolling in slowly; in fact, I have not heard of any from you all. Some of the following are pretty good.

The political conventions will be coming up in March. Everyone get out and get in on the fun of helping get them started. Don't forget to pick your party and choose your man.

A very thin man met a very fat man in the hotel lobby.

"From the looks of you," said the fat man, "there might have been a famine."

"Yes," was the reply, "and from the looks of you, you might have caused it."

1st F.B.I. man: "That fellow is so stingy we couldn't even get his thumb print."

2nd F.B.I. man: "How's that? He doesn't pay for it."

1st F.B.I. man: "No, but he pinches pennies so hard that all we could get was a picture of Lincoln."

I think that I shall never see

A "D" comes easily, and yet
It isn't easy to forget;

But only brains can make a "B".

ALL BARK AND NO BITE

By Nell Culver
Happy Valentine's Day!

It's wonderful to see those familiar faces again, isn't it? The Washington Semester students always come back just full of ideas, and give us a real "shot in the arm" to begin the second half. Welcome back to you all: Mary Beth, Rita, Dinky Mary Lou, and Stelle. It's good to have you here.

And a special welcome to the new students. New faces brighten a new semester.

Dr. Gill gave us lots of things to think about. And he gave them to us so delightfully. Somehow he got across the point that being a Christian is not easy.

Are you listless, pessimistic, confused and obsessed by a fear of the future? ? ? A Harvard English professor, Howard Mumford Jones, says that the college girl is not interested in the world around her and does class work without applying her mind.

We live in a society, says Prof. Jones, obsessed with security, but unaware that it takes work to maintain security.

In an article in the January "Mademoiselle" Mr. Jones says that the average college girl wants a job but not a career. She wants a white-collar husband, but also a ranch house, "interesting" neighbors, and an income of $10,000 a year ten years after college. She is not one whit interested in the world around her—in modern art, music or philosophy.

Maybe Mr. Jones is right. I hope not. If he is it is "we ourselves" who should do something about it. Certainly it is up to all people to do their best to make the world a better place, and college students should be better qualified than most to do their part. If we're not preparing to take an active and, as Dr. Gill said, "creative and productive" part in society, then somewhere along the line we've missed the boat. If Mr. Jones' condemnations are valid, it's up to us to invalidate them as quickly as possible.

This is an apology to the Sophomores:

I remember quite clearly eulogizing about the Freshmen when the Harvest Court was chosen. And now what to my wondering eyes should appear but three beautiful Sophomores. In fact, the Sweetheart Dance in its entirety was a smooth job. Connie Gordon and her committees worked hard.

A salute to the Queen of Hearts and her maids!

Don't forget to register as a voter Thursday!

TELEVISION EQUIPMENT EXPECTED TO ARRIVE SOON - SEVERAL NEW PROGRAMS SCHEDULED FOR THIS SEMESTER

By Sharlene Agerter

After a week of vacation the Voice of Lindenwood will return to the air waves, full of vim and vigor. I have mentioned the new shows which we will feature, but just to refresh your memory, I will tell you about them again . . . "All The Things You Are" is a fifteen minute show designed especially for the college audience and contains many helpful suggestions which will be of help to you in your daily routine. "Jazz Classics," a half hour of music, will feature your favorite jazz artists. And don't forget "20 Questions." There is fun in store for everyone there.

Listen to this, girls! There is a very good possibility that we will have a male voice on the KCLC microphone. Yes our boy, Art, has expressed a desire to entertain you, and on Wednesday night I think you will be able to tune in "King Arthur's Turntable."

KCLC is happy to welcome back one of its staff members, Deana Izenberg. Deana, who has been a Washington Semester student, is our production director. We're glad to see you back and also to have another member with whom to share our headaches.

We've all been waiting expectantly for the TV camera to come. It was due to arrive Monday but so far we haven't seen it. I understand the television classes are going to experiment with making some commercial shorts for sponsors.

I imagine most of you saw Parks on campus the other day. I understand she is going to work in St. Louis in radio. Parks was active on KCLC during her four years at Lindenwood.

Doesn't seem to be much news from these quarters this week. But don't forget we'll be listening.

Students Today Are Interested In Theology, Dr. T. A. Gill Says

By Nell Culver

College students ask more questions about theology than about ethics or the sociological implications of Christianity, according to Dr. T. A. Gill, Religious Emphasis Week speaker.

In what seems to be a country-wide trend, Dr. Gill said in an interview, students feel that in order to apply Christian principles they must begin by understanding the history and ideals of Christianity. Nearly all of the recent student conferences have centered around Christian theology.

This, of course, is the right approach. It is only after students formulate some idea of the tremendous scope and relevance of their religion that they can begin to apply it effectively. Students must first realize all that Christianity implies and then they are ready to put their ideas into practice.

Asked what he thought about college morals, Dr. Gill said that he thought they were neither much higher nor much lower than they were 10 years ago. They have been brought to our attention, statistical studies have been made, and people talk of them a great deal. But it is again through use of the theological approach that the most good can be accomplished. The statistics and studies can be used to good avail if all of the final decisions are governed by a true Christian approach. Dr. Gill feels that the Christian should always try to find the most "creative and loving" solution to his problems. He should try to do the thing that is best for the most people.

Students can best prepare themselves to solve today's and tomorrow's problems by determining the character of a real Christian and using those principles in every phase of life.

Birgit Johannson Tells Of College Life In Sweden

College life in Sweden is nothing like life at Lindenwood, Birgit Johannson, who attended Lindenwood last year as an exchange student, writes in a letter to the Linden Bark staff. She has been majoring in political science this year.

"I have just one class a week," she explains. "It is a lecture, and then there are meetings once a week when we discuss either a paper prepared by a student or some current problem. Whenever a student feels she is able to pass the examination she may take it, instead of waiting until the end of the semester as at Lindenwood."

Birgit was a member of the Bark staff last year. She returned home last summer on a small Swedish ship and was the only woman on board. She and the captain became good friends, she adds, and he showed her all of the ship's operations. Birgit plans to work on a newspaper in Sweden this summer. She also writes that she has announced her engagement to a young man from her home city. They plan to be married this summer — if they can find an apartment.

White Elephants To Go On Sale Valentine's Day

There will be a White Elephant Sale on Valentine's Day, February 14, in the Library Club Room. Boxes have been put in each dorm for your White Elephants. In case you don't know what a White Elephant is, let me explain. A White Elephant is anything you may have in your rooms that is in good condition and that you do not want. It may be a bottle of perfume that you do not like and have never used. It may be a record or book that someone has given you and that you never play or read. Just put it in the box provided and it will be sold at the White Elephant Sale. Everyone cooperate and hand over something. The money collected from the articles sold will go towards a scholarship for some girl in the School of the Ozarks.

Commercial Club Serves Interests On

Campus Of Future Career Women - Field

Trips Are Feature Of Organization Program

The club on campus to which the future business women of America belong is the Commercial Club. Its faculty sponsor is Miss Mildred Hillestad.

Throughout the year the activities of this organization are to have programs with the primary purpose of making its members more efficient and better groomed secretaries. Field trips are made to become acquainted with the new machines and different types of work. The topics of guest speakers vary from business etiquette to self-grooming, or clothing.

In addition to these informative meetings, the Commercial Club also has social meetings. These are held with a two-fold purpose: To make it possible for the members to become better acquainted, and to make today's business women conscious of the fact that they too must be able to attend such functions.

tained on Halloween.

The Home Management course is open to non-home economics majors as well as majors. It is a wonderful and practical experience for anyone who takes the course, but it is especially valuable for the home economics major who plans to teach after college. A home economist is better prepared and is more able to teach that which she knows by having had practical experience than she would through theory alone.

The three girls who will take a hand at homemaking this semester, Shirley Price, Elizabeth (Betsy) Elliott, and Carmen Zarraga, will no doubt have to go through the same trial and error period.

Miss Hiller Directs 'The Lady's Not For Burning'

Miss Marjorie Hiller, Lindenwood's exchange professor from England, is directing Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning," which will be presented on March 7.

The play is unusual in Fry's use of verse and in his ability to say both simple and complicated things in new and exciting ways. The play, which is the story of a young and beautiful girl who quite naturally does not want to be burned as a witch and a disillusioned soldier who wants to be hanged, is universal in its appeal. Although the setting of the play is the Fifteenth Century, its satire and comedy are modern in form and impact.

The cast includes Sheron Brown as Richard, the mayor's clerk; Joy Hausman as Thomas Mendip, the veteran; Mary Kay Pinckney as Alison Eliot, who has been taken from a convent to marry at 17; Carolyn Cole as Nicholas Devize, the mayor's nephew; Arleen Becker as Margaret Devize, the mayor's sister; Eunice Sheley as Humphrey Devize, Nicholas' brother; Robert Douglas Hume as Hebble Tyson, the mayor; Nell Culver as Jennet Jourdemayne who doesn't wish to be burned; Deane Keeton as the chaplain; Siegmund A. E. Betz as Edward Tapperoom, a justice, and Patt Wilkerson as Matthew Skippis, the rag-and-bone man.

"The Lady's Not For Burning" has had highly successful productions both in England and in the United States. The student body is fortunate to be able to see the play in its own auditorium.

Madame Lyolene, Noted Paris Stylist, Gives Preview Of La Mode For Spring On The Campus

By Joan Kirchherr

Madame Helene Lyolene has been bit by the predicting bug again. Madame Lyolene, visiting style consultant and internationally known couturier, is back at Lindenwood for this semester. She gave a preview of spring fashions in an interview yesterday.

In predicting the fashions for spring, Madame Lyolene predicts the "Gibson Girl Separates, skirts and blouses, will go over big." This idea is practical as the skirts and blouses can be changed and thus have two or three outfits instead of only one.

Madame also believes the little, short spencer jacket will take the place of the older long jacket. The short jacket should give one a smaller waistline and thus a neater appearance.

For the spring season, she said the sleeveless dresses will be the trend. If a sleeve is desired a blouse could be worn under the dress, thus giving the dress a sleeve.

Madame Lyolene says that the "skirt length will be about mid-calf and that big skirts with unpressed pleats will be the mode. However, for the spring season the suit skirts will be straight and there will be no slits in the skirt." There will be a pleat instead of the old untidy slit. "In Paris," Madame said, "they always overlap the skirt to form a pleat that will not kick out or tear when one walks."

Madame Lyolene also has some practical suggestions for spring campus wear. She advises "separates for campus." One could change around and match up a blouse of one costume with the skirt of another. With several pretty blouses one could change about and this should bolster up that "limited budget."

Tailored suits should be in every college girl's spring wardrobe, as suits are very practical and can serve for almost any occasion, she urged.

She believes that "the sun-back dress with a bolero or a short jacket will still be in style this spring." Several of these would be useful for hot spring afternoons and for that vacation later on in the summer.

As for evening wear, "both the long and short evening dresses would be suitable," predicts Madame Lyolene. "The short formal with a jacket will also be popular." She personally prefers the long formal—for psychological reasons. "The girl or woman in a long dress is more helpless than the one in a short formal, especially when it rains."

Her topic led her to the Pentagon, the Adjutant-General's office and the Library of Congress. Estelle's adviser was also Dr. Van der Slice, Department of Sociology.

A study of "Late Nineteenth Century Impressionism. Its Relation to the Social and Political Philosophies Current, and Its Influence on Twentieth Century Art, Based on Original Works, Washington D. C." was the topic chosen by Rita. Her time was spent on her subject in the National Gallery of Art, the Coreoran Gallery of Art, and the Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington. Rita's adviser was Mrs. Svenson.

The girls enjoyed Washington very much and also the work on their subjects. However, we are glad to have them back on campus.

The Linden Leaves Are Whispering

By Jane Amsden

We hear Miss Morris has come up with a reliable test of student boredom. It's called the "Wiggle Meter." Wires are strung along on the backs of chairs; and every time a student yawns, stretches or wiggles, the impulse is recorded on a graph. She hasn't installed it in her classrooms yet but here's a warning for psych students—get plenty of sleep.

Heard someone say after semester tests that "They marked the exams so strictly, they flunked one girl for having a period upside down."

I notice that Barbara Williamson has a new ambition. Now she wants to be a drummer.

Anje has a new interest, too—Potts and pans. Planning on being a housewife, Anje?

An L.C. student was sitting in class working a crossword puzzle when a professor called on her to answer a question. Immediately the girl's friends sitting on either side of her began coaching her.

"What's holding you up?" asked the professor. "You ought to know the answer with all your friends' advice."

"Well," stammered the student, "no one seems to agree."

Sorry I missed one of the girls who became engaged over vacation. Marie Sellenschuetter, a day student, came back with a diamond, too.

JuRhee Jensen acquired a ring recently too. Ask her when the big event happened. She'll tell you 5:37 o'clock Saturday evening and that it is so many hours, minutes, and seconds old. JuRhee is one of the proudest girls around L.C.

I think I can say for the whole student body, that we're well pleased with our new president, Laurie Bowman, who took over for "Butze" when she left at the semester.

We're glad to see all the Washington Semester gals back and a welcome to all the new students.

Four New Students On Campus This Semester

There are four new students here on campus for the second semester. They are: Delores Bernice Kiss, Shirley Musick and Patricia White, of Chicago, Ill.; Carole Bach of Florissant, Mo., who will attend Lindenwood as a day student, and Cora Lee Critchfield of Tecumseh, Nebr., who attended Lindenwood last year, and will be back this semester.

Itinerary Is Planned For Mexico Trip

The tentative itinerary for the Easter holiday tour to Mexico has been announced. This tour, to be conducted by Dr. Eunice Roberts, has been scheduled for April 10 through the 19th.

The tour will start April 10 at 2:40 p. m. from Lambert Air Field, when the girls will depart on an American Airline DC6 Flagship. The students will arrive in Mexico City at 11:30 p. m. and they will go to the Hotel Geneve for their stay in the city.

Many interesting sights have been chosen for this tour, some of which include the many fine centers in Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco, and Acapulco. The girls will see such sights as the Plaza de la Constitucion, center of the ancient relics of Mexico in Mexico City; the Shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe; the pyramids of the Sun and Moon at Teotihuacan; the ruins of the Buried City and the Temple of Quetzalcoatl; Chapultepec Heights and Chapultepec Castle; Xochimilco, the floating gardens; the great Cathedral in Mexico City, and the beautiful sights of Acapulco.

The tour will return on April 19 to Lambert Field and then back to school. The rate of the tour per person is $325 round trip. This includes everything except souvenirs.

Pop Ordelheide To Retire This Spring

Harry P. Ordelheide, superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, who has seen Lindenwood girls come and go for almost 38 years, will retire because of illness at the end of this semester.

Mr. Ordelheide, better known as "Pop," first came to Lindenwood in 1914, when Sibley Hall and one little sorority house (the present Home Management House) were the only buildings on campus. In that year Ayres Hall was begun and from then on buildings sprung up like mushrooms in the wilderness.

To talk with Pop is an insight into life at Lindenwood as seen through the eyes of someone who has quietly observed the pranks and troubles of students for over 30 years. Asked if the girls had changed any during his stay at Lindenwood, he said that, "they were all alike," "all full of fun," and that he "loved them all." However, "Way back then there was more hazing than there is now." Otherwise the girls have changed only with the trends — smoking, and length of skirts.

The girls had their fun in the old days, but when a prank led to more than was bargained for, Pop went to the rescue. One class had a lot of spirit and showed it by trying to raise its class colors on top of Ayres. Before the flag raising was over Pop had to rescue the flag raiser. He rectified the time that he had to climb up the water tower ladder in order to bring an elevated "cloud climber" down to earth.

According to "Pop's" comments on the Lindenwood Lass of 1914 as compared with the 1952 miss, interest in sports has increased. It seems the L.C. girls have become more sports-minded than they were back in the days before Butler Hall was built. One of our college presidents even doubted that the swimming pool would be used. "I'm afraid, Pop, that we will have to fill the pool with cement because the girls will want to use it for dancing," he said.

In Pop's estimation, we have gone through three stages in our athletic interests — the "Indian Club" stage in calisthenics, "football," and up to the present inter-collegiate team sport contests.

The Campus Hall Of Fame

This week we nominate our new Student Council president, Laurie Bowman, for the Campus Hall of Fame. Four years ago she entered the portals of Lindenwood for the first time. Since that time, her face has become familiar to both faculty and students.

An English major, Laurie is assistant editor of the Griffin and chairman of the Young Republicans Club. She is an honorary member of Pi Alpha Delta and belongs to the League of Women Voters, and Beta Chi. She attended Washington Semester last year.

Along the athletic line, she is interested in field hockey, riding, and volleyball; she has been seen on various occasions a member of a team for the glory of either her dorm, or dear ole L.C.

Congratulations, Laurie, on being this week's candidate for the Hall of Fame.

Lindenwood's football team must have been a lot of fun to be on, but it must have been a little rough since the craze didn't last too long. When the game became especially rough one day, Pop was on hand to carry the player whose broken leg kept her from scoring.

Charles Bushnell has been appointed as supervisor of Plant Operation and Maintenance and will be in charge of maintaining and operating the physical plant of the college. Mr. Bushnell is a graduate of Hadley Technical School and served with the U. S. Marines during World War II. He is married and has two children. He and his family are now living in O'Fallon, Mo.

We will all miss Pop's cheerie "Hello," and his teasing smile as he asks us, "What's bothering you,

The Terrapins are getting big plans underway for the annual spring water pageant to be presented on April 3 and 4. Although the theme has not been revealed, the girls have started writing their routines and have begun practice.

This show is the high light of the Terrapin season and the work the girls put into it, the colored lights, the costumes and music have made every show a big success. The presentation is given two nights to enable each dorm and the families and friends of the swimmers to see it.

The club now has 13 active members who will swim in the pageant but tryouts are being held for any other swimmers who would like to join.

Nada Sue Roberson is president of the group and Miss Reese and Miss Ross are sponsors.

"honey, and what can I do to help?" However, he will remain in St. Charles and may even be seen at Lindenwood next year.

The Greek myth figure Hermes, better known as Cupid, has become symbolic, along with heart-shaped boxes of candy. Valentines with the traditional "Roses are red, violets are blue, sugar is sweet and so are you" to unmeaningful words are sent all over the world.

They Must Have Been Pretty Babies But Look Now!

The college faculty baby contest opened this week. Pictures of faculty members are on display now in Cobbs lounge, where each student can vote for her candidate for the prettiest baby of them all at a penny a vote.

The money collected in the boxes under the pictures will be contributed to the World Student Service Fund. Other money for "Woos-if" is raised through the bean suppers, the auction, personal solicitation, and the work weekend.

Work weekend, the first feature of the week of the drive, will come on March 7 and 8, the chapel telling us about Woos-if is March 12, and the auction will be held on March 13.
