Torrid Tale Of Tender Torsos Toasted To A Terrific Tinge Of Crimson

By Barbara Ebling

Isn't it beautiful out! The sun is giving old Missouri (and Lindenwood campus) a real workout. This, as you may notice from the ever darkening skins running about, is perfect weather for sunbathing. It is that time again. A little early, too, this year.

At the first sign of spring and a warm, sunny day, everyone immediately plots ways to rearrange classes and work hours for the sunbathing season. It's heavenly to just lie in the sun and let the heat bake into the body, driving out all the cold chills from the bones, and then come out with a beautiful beginning of a tan. Some of us are going to wind up black by the time the end of the summer rolls around. Oh, but let's not talk of the end, it's only the beginning.

Cobbs sun deck and the hockey field are full every possible minute the girls are free (and some other minutes, too). You know, some years back the campus was featuring a new color in skin, lobster red. It was a painful color. The Infirmary was rushed. To all those eager sunbathers, try to avoid all third degree burns if possible. Lobster red is not very becoming.

Advice to sunbathers at this time is like locking the barn after the horse was stolen, but here goes:

1. Go well-equipped. Include in your pack - something to lie on, pillows, stationery, cards, (books??), oil, and change for a coke, if you can get someone to go get it for you.

2. Oils - Baby oil, a substance used on babies to keep them greasy—not guaranteed to prevent sunburn. Iodine, mineral oil compound—effective if you don't get a second degree burn from the iodine - beware - iodine will stain and may deceive you into thinking you have a tan. Mineral oil - the modern substitute for horse and mule liniment. If you can stand the sight of it, it should be effective as a lubricant. Suntan oils - some effective, some not, some terrible - consult your druggist on these.

3. Try to stay out of range of archers and golfers - a sunburned nose may easily be mistaken for a tee.

L.C. Delegations To Conventions At Washington U.

Washington University, like Lindenwood and several other colleges and universities, is planning mock political conventions this spring. Theirs will last only part of a day, but will include adopting a platform and nominating candidates for the presidency and vice presidency.

The Democratic convention will be on Wednesday, May 14. The delegates are Sharlene Agerter, Gloria Bursey, Astrid Castro, Margaret Conrad, Jo June DeWeese, Barbara Ebling, Romain Gibson, Katie Holmes, Joan Kirchherr, Mary Kirchherr, Eleanor Mauze, Pat Peterson, Charlotte Seehorn, Nedra Smallwood, and Carolyn Smith.

The Republicans meet on Thursday, May 15. The Lindenwood delegation includes Jackie Cheney, Cora Lee Critchfield, Zeke Curtin, Bert Johnson, Cara Jean McClelland, Rita McGee, Betsy Severson, Mary Lou Stubbs, Estelle Swanson, and Carolyn White.

The groups will meet from 4 to 6 p. m. and then reconvene at 7:30 p. m. on their respective dates.

L.C. Players Give Fine Performance Of Greek Tragedy

By Nell Culver

Lindenwood's versatile actresses triumphed again when they presented "Antigone," a Greek tragedy, for May Weekend, last Friday night.

Joy Hausman, as Antigone, is the betrothed bride of Prince Haemon (Arleen Becker). The king, Creon (Paula Moore), publishes an edict stating that Antigone's brother, who died in battle, may not have an honored burial, and because Antigone disobeys that command she is sentenced to death.

Ismene, Antigone's sister (Mary Kay Pinckney), although she refused to take part in the burial of her brother, offers to die with her sister, but Antigone refuses to let her.

The play ends in typical Greek tragic form with Antigone, Haemon, and the Queen, Eurydice (Patt Wilkerson), all dead and Creon left alone.

Gloria Bursey is the leader of the chorus, composed of Bonnie Holt, Margaret Conrad, Winnie Taylor, and Pat Leu. The two guards are Sara Sahli and Estelle Swanson. Pat Paterson and Charlene Smith are messengers, and the aged seer, Teiresias, is played by Sue Elliott. Julie Bauer is the little boy who leads the blind man in. Palace attendants are Connie Gordon and Caroline Singleton.

Members of the Missouri division of the Mathematics Association, who were having a convention on campus, attended the play, as well as parents and friends.

Climaxing the May WeekEnd was the crowning of Miss Carol Romann as the 34th May Queen of Lindenwood College last Saturday amid a spring-clad campus setting, by her Maid of Honor, Miss Alice Walthall.

The members of the court were dressed in formals of pastel blue and carried bouquets of spring flowers. They were: Joy Hausman and Joyce Fleet, Senior Attendants; Mary Lou Stubbs and Jan Blevins, Junior Attendants; Arlene Kruehl and Connie Gordon, Sophomores, and Eleanore Mauze and Barbara Williamson, representing the Freshman Class.

The May Queen wore a white organdy formal trimmed in lace. Carol has attended Lindenwood for four years and was "Miss Missouri of 1951." She is a music major and is known especially for her ability to play the bassoon. She is a member of Delta Theta, Alpha Sigma Tau, Future Teachers of America, and is the warden of Mu Phi Epsilon. She is also treasurer of her Senior Class. She succeeded Miss Sarah Hilliard of Miami, Okla., who was May Queen last year. Carol hails from Granite City, Ill.

The Maid of Honor, Miss Alice Walthall, from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, is a Junior. Alice is a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, is on the radio staff of KCLC, of which she is publicity and education director. She is secretary-treasurer of the choir, treasurer of Future Teachers of America, and is vice president of her class.

Juniors and Sophomores served as an Honor Guard this year. The Honor Guard lined each side of the aisle coming down from Sibley steps, and the May Court took their places on the platform. The colorful May Pole dance, under the direction of Miss Martha Reese, was presented by Orchesis and the modern dancing classes.

Following the crowning of the queen, a faculty-parent reception was held in the tulip bed across from the library to honor the queen and her court.

The week end began last Friday when the Speech Department, under the direction of Douglas Hume, presented its spring play, "Antigone," a tragedy by Sophocles.

Another feature of the week end events was the showing of a film of the Antarctic by Mr. Bursey, the father of Gloria Bursey, a Lindenwood Freshman.

Saturday night was the annual Queen's Ball, sponsored by the Senior Class, and held in Butler Gym for all students and their guests.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a worship service was held in Roemer Auditorium. Dr. Robert L. McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., conducted the services. Following this service, a special dinner was served in Ayres dining room for students and their guests.

Von Burton To Head SCA Cabinet

Installation of the 1953 S.C.A. Cabinet officers will be held in a Vespers program Sunday, May 18. Rev. James R. Blackwood will be the guest speaker. The officers include: President, Von Burton; vice president, Nell Culver; secretary, Eleanor Mauze; treasurer, Jeanette Hester; publicity, Dorothy Neblett; Christian faith, Arlene Kruehl; conference, Margaret Pfoff; recreation, Mary Nell Van Bibber; social responsibilities, Mary Lou Stubbs; fellowships, Ruth Weber, and song leaders are Peggy Barber and Ann Gilbert.

Members of the 1953 Student Council are: Beth Banta, president; Gret Bartenbach, vice president; and Alice Walthall, secretary-treasurer.

Enjoy Yourself

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK. So—do we enjoy ourselves or do we keep on the go?

May is going to be a full, busy month. There's not going to be much time for loafing (that's what we think of when we say enjoyment). The only way to enjoy yourself this final month is to just keep up with the work we have to do and you'll agree, college life is much more enjoyable if you do. Everyone enjoys herself a lot more when she does her job well. Being a student is a big job and we can't slack or quit the last month.

The moral is not a question of whether to enjoy ourselves or to keep on the go, but to keep on the go and enjoy ourselves. Then our job will be over and we can loaf during the summer.

What's In A Paper?

Have you ever stopped to think just what's in a college newspaper?

The Linden Bark is published for many reasons. It is a paper that gives a good picture of campus life; a type of memento to keep after college days are over. It is published primarily for the students, giving them an idea of what is past and of what is to come.

Freedom is essential to this type of paper. Freedom to print the truth, to give the news. The Linden Bark has tried to live up to this standard.

The college paper works a good deal of influence over the students on a campus, influence that can be good or bad. This is what must be watched out for by the reporters. Therefore, its provision of information and news evaluation and editorial comment must be guided by those beliefs which it considers best for the school.

The independent, individual exercise of these beliefs in the collections of objective data and in the presentation of editorial opinion constitutes the sole responsibility of a paper to its campus. The objective fulfillment of its obligation to inform, and the free exercise of its right to influence, comprise its legitimate role in the campus life.

Support from the students and from the administration lends life to the paper. Without that support there would be no paper, no Linden Bark.

Vernal Ergophobia

It's hit Lindenwood! Even worse than measles or virus, the dread disease of spring: Vernal ergophobia.

Spring fever, as it is known to laymen, strikes at the most unexpected times, but it is particularly prevalent during this season. It may hit you right in the middle of a test, or a walk downtown, or a convocation, or a drive in the country.

First symptoms are a sort of delicious, lazy feeling. One may have a seemingly irresistible urge to cut class and sunbathe, or take a long, leisurely walk; to dream.

One excellent description of spring fever is accredited to a doctor: "Spring is the time when the iron in the blood turns to lead and gravitates to the end-of-the-spinal column."

Spring fever has many manifestations and stages. It may have quite the opposite effect. Some lucky ones find that spring fever makes them quite delirious. They're the people who frantically clean out all the closets and plan trips and family projects. And study night and day for exams.

The fever is extremely contagious — it's almost bound to hit you. There's only one cure we know of: Summer.

FALL BARK AND NO BITE

By Nell Culver

Watch out for the sun, kids!

Now Parents' Weekend is over the queen has been crowned, rooms have been inspected, fond farewells are done, and it's time to settle down.

Hard as it is to do, when the sun is shining and there's an inviting breeze, there's some work that's gotta be done. Namely, studying for finals. There are just a little over three and a half weeks before finals begin. Scary, isn't it? So, now is the time for all smart kids to get the last semester's work organized and absorbed. This is your last chance, and tired or not, energy spent in study for finals is well employed.

Try it and see. You'll be so surprised when those pretty grades appear in the mail along about the end of June. You really will.

In view of the conventions coming up at Washington University, perhaps it would not be improper to delve here into the mysteries of our political system, specifically, our nominating conventions, and particularly, our 1952 conventions.

What do you think? Will there be a deadlock in the Republican meeting? Will the Democrats have a tough time agreeing on a candidate? Will the "States Righters" walk out? Will Warren or Stassen get the nomination as a compromise candidate?

And after the candidates have been selected, who will win the election?

There certainly will be plenty of excitement, and those of you who have TV sets and are at leisure will probably be seeing most of the proceedings.

What is more, since our conventions, they're bound to mean more to you. Wouldn't you love to be a delegate?

Did you have a HAPPY EASTER?

L.C. Girls Take Part In St. Louis Church Services

Thirty-seven girls from Lindenwood participated in morning services in 16 Presbyterian churches in the St. Louis area on National Christian College Day, April 27.

The students sang, read scriptures, gave prayers and presented talks on "The Christian College." Also, Dr. F. L. McCluer preached in the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church.

Lindenwood girls who took part in the National Christian College Day events were Annabelle Gwinn, Lois Deisenroth, Betty Moore, Sheron Brown, Arleen Becker, Paula Moore, Joy Hausman, Patsy Fields, Nell Culver, Margaret Pfoff, Beverly Stukenbroeker, Sue Hughes, Beverly Trescott, Betsy Nevins, Sara Sahli, Deane Keeton, Peggy Barber, Cara Jean McClelland, Sue Null, Alice Walthall, Joan Maness, Mary Beth Banta, Sue Elliott, Lavone Burton, Alberta Johnson, Nancy Boergerhoff, Virginia Ratcliff, Ann Gilbert, Rosemary Dysart, Eleanor Mauze, Jeane Rice, Ann Frazier, Mary Lou Stubbs, Louise Swain, Pat Paterson, Mona Hand, and Jacquelyn Cheney.

You know, there's a little portion of campus life that's been bothering me for a long time.

There is a simple formula for greeting people on campus. One simply says "Hi," or "Hello," receives a word in return, and goes about her merry way. Of course, if one says "Hi" her friend is sure to yell "Hello," and vice versa, but through the years I've been accustomed to this quirk in human nature, and it doesn't bother me any more.

My problem is this: What does one say to a person she has already seen during the day? "Hello" (or "Hi") again? "Well, fancy meeting you here"? Or does one just smile shyly and go on? And what on earth does one say to her roommate?

I find myself smiling at these people in a conspiratorial manner, which seems to puzzle them. There must be some rule. Maybe we could draft a plan of some sort in which second-timers could just wave gaily or give a secret sign.

The way things are now, it's just plain embarrassing!

This new book, "They Went to College: The College Graduate in America Today," must be just full of interesting statistics.

Materially, college graduates are better off than non-college people, even though about 70 per cent of these worked at least part of their way through school. And Grade-A students do better than those who made lower grades, in every field.

OF ALL THINGS

By Barbara Ebeling
HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR TOBACCO?

The Maryland Diamondback, University of Maryland, thinks there is a subtle analogy between women and tobacco. It declares:

"Sophomores want their women to be like cigarettes, slender and trim, all in a row, to be selected at will, set aflame, and when the flame has subsided, discarded only to select another.

"A junior wants his woman to be like a cigar. They're more expensive, make a better appearance and last longer.

"A senior wants his girl to be like his pipe, something he becomes attached to, knocks gently but lovingly and takes great care of at all times.

"A man will give you a cigarette, offer you a cigar, but will never share his pipe."

Teacher: "The report on all your aptitude tests shows you're not qualified for anything—Have you ever thought of teaching?"

A five-year-old girl was given a Teddy bear with eyes sewed on so crookedly that the bear looked cross-eyed. The next Sunday when she came home from Sunday School she was heard to call her bear "Gladly."

"What a queer name! Where did you get it?" she was asked.

"Why, this morning in Sunday School we sang, 'Gladly My Cross I'd Bear.'"

She: "Can you drive with one hand?"

He (hopefully): "You bet I can."

She: "Have an apple."

ELSIE SAYS

I know that spring is here because all the leaves are out (they weren't when we left), there's sunbathing from morning 'til night, and I overheard a Senior say in front of Irwin the other day, "I always did love that tree in the spring."

May weekend has passed, and that means that commencement is just around the corner. And as for us underclassmen, exams. Let's change the subject

Carol was a beautiful Queen—did you know that she made that gorgeous dress herself? Everyone looked pretty, including those cute children I liked all the blue dresses

Junior-Senior pin day is coming up. Let me warn all you Freshmen: better bring a large handkerchief—if you don't need it you may have to lend it to an puer-classman who has forgotten hers.

And picnics! This is the time for all clubs to rally 'round and have a picnic. Have a good time, and don't get completely eaten by little carnivora.

Goodbye for now; I have to help plan some sparkling publicity for KCLC next year.

Acidopolus, from Athens. Mr. Acidopolus examined the suit and asked, "Euripides?"

"Yes," replied the professor. "Eumenides?"

Honor System: Some schools employ the honor system. The school has the honor and the students have the system.

Juniors Entertain Seniors At Annual Prom At Sheraton

Another Junior-Senior Prom has come and gone. This year it was held at the Crystal Room of the Hotel Sheraton in St. Louis, on April 5.

It was a beautiful dance, with the girls in the soft pastel colors of spring. A buffet lunch was given after which the dancing continued until 1 a. m.

Linden Bark Staff Takes Off For Convention

The Linden Bark staff is taking its annual trip to the Journalism Week at Missouri University May 9. The staff submitted articles they had written during the year to a board of judges at Missouri University for judging along with stories from other papers. Story classifications are news, feature, editorial, and sports. The staff, consisting of Nell Culver, Sharlene Agerter, Joan Kirchherr, Flip Amsden, Shirley Price, and Barbara Ebeling, will leave Friday morning. During the day they will attend various meetings of the convention. The high light of the day will be the awarding of prizes for the best stories and articles. They have their fingers crossed that their articles will be it.

Charles C. Clayton, Journalism instructor and president of Sigma Delta Chi, will speak at the convention on Thursday night and Friday. Thursday night he will speak at the annual dinner of the Missouri University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, and Friday noon he will speak at the luncheon of the Missouri College Newspaper Association.

Biology Classes Make Trip To Pere Marquette

The annual biology trip to Pere Marquette State Park was held on April 26. The Invertebrate Zoology class and the Cultivated Plants class, with Dr. Dawson and Dr. Talbot as sponsors, left Saturday morning and spent the day climbing over the bluffs along the Illinois River.

Von Burton, a first semester Senior, is the new president of the Student Christian Association. She has been active in SCA in different capacities since she arrived at Lindenwood three years ago. Her Freshman year she was a member of the chapel committee. When she was a Sophomore she was vice president and this year Von is in charge of the WSSF campaign.

In addition to her SCA work, Von has been on the Dean's Honor Roll. She is a member of Encore Club, the Modern Language Club, and belongs to FTA.

Von is a member of Delta Theta and has been a soloist with the orchestra. She will give her diploma recital in voice on next Tuesday. An active member of Young Democrats, she served as a member of the Lindenwood delegation to the recent convention and was a useful member of the Resolutions and Platform Committee.

Besides that, Von is one of KCLC's disc jockeys.

You may meet Von any place; on the way to the Fine Arts Building, coming out of Roemer, or giving the pitch for grace in the dining room. She's easily recognized by her beautiful long red hair and her gorgeous sweater and skirt combinations.

Congratulations, Von!

L.C. Lassies Take Good Advice And Do As Romans Do When In Rome

By Jane Amsden

When Pi Alpha Delta took over the Ayres dining room last Wednesday for its Roman Banquet, all Lindenwood turned out dressed in togas to do as the Romans did and to eat as the Romans ate.

The Latin menu consisted only of such foods as were familiar to the ancient Romans—"everything from egg to apple," as the Romans would have said. The dinner included three courses: the appetizer course of eggs, olives, lettuce, onions, radishes, and grape juice; the dinner course of pork, carrots, beans, bread, buns, horseradish and milk; and the dessert of apple tarts. However, such modern luxuries such as coffee, tea, butter, and forks were allowed to be used.

Following the dinner, Marlene Czarlinsky, Romain Gibson, and Caralie Crichfield, members of Pi Alpha Delta, presented a skit on the strangeness of modern students.

President of the Pi Alpha Delta fraternity is Camilla McCluer, and Dr. S. A. E. Betz is sponsor of the group.
