FASHIONABLE LINDENWOOD!

THE Home Economics Club recently sponsored a style revue of the latest fashions, designed, made, and modeled by members of Miss Tucker's artistic sewing class. The dresses were of various types and materials, crepe in the new rich shades being outstanding for the popular all-day and afternoon frocks. The expense in making each dress ranged from $4 to $10, and all the sewing was done by the girl modeling her creation.

Clever, thrifty, and fashionable Lindenwood!

Thinking of the Future

Loyal Former Students Are Advising High School Girls for Lindenwood

Half the college year is spent, and recruiting forces are already at work among loyal old students of the college to advise this year's high school graduates—those who are girls—to aspire to Lindenwood if they can make it. Lindenwood has always been fortunate in securing the brightest and best. The careful selection is due in large part to the consideration shown by the alumnae and all former students. Right on the ground, as it were, everyone knows who needs to attend college, and who is good college material.

Every year there is some girl in almost every community who ought to come to Lindenwood, for her own best interests and for the best interests of the college. The alumnae can cooperate most wonderfully in this, speaking a word where it will do good, and telling from their own experience the benefits to be derived from Lindenwood's preparation for "the useful life." Advertisements and printed literature tell a great deal of Lindenwood—its advantages in college studies, music and art, the sciences, the Bible, and history and sociology, the department of English, the teaching of French and German and Latin and Spanish, its preparation for vocations, its far-reaching home economics department, its original research, its much-enjoyed activities in physical education, dramatics, Y. W. C. A., honor societies, clubs and recreation, to say nothing of its beautiful location and equipment, its library and the advantages of St. Louis lectures, theatres, concerts and church and social life—all these may be told in print, but they gain more by the personal word which every former student can speak.

Girls are constantly writing back by the dozens, that their years at Lindenwood were the happiest and most beneficial of their lives. They have only to tell the girls who are not quite so mature as themselves, tell them some of the incidents which they knew in life at Lindenwood, and the young girl who "hasn't quite made up her mind" will then see why Lindenwood can do for her in every way. And it may be that even as much as Lindenwood is spoken of, there are still growing up high school girls unfamiliar with the Lindenwood tradition, the story of the lovely Mary Easton, at home in "Linden Wood," 105 years ago, with her soldier husband, Major George C. Sibley, and their high ideals in founding a school for the education of young women, the site and the ideals unblemished adding glory through the years.

Lindenwood, directly through the office of Secretary Motley, is ever ready to co-operate when anyone wishes to hear more about the college. If a girl desires some particular training, or if she simply wishes to know generally about the college, full information in either case is at hand, and a staff of skilled interpreters of Lindenwood's opportunities stands ready to explain just what may be gained by coming here. Write to Secretary Motley at once about prospective students in your community! * * * *

"Sit Urgently, With Courage"

Dr. Roemer received a seasonal greeting from a former commencement speaker here, the president of Alma College, Dr. H. M. Crooks, who utters some striking phrases:

"May light shine on the road ahead. Speaking of roads—a Japanese in our Oregon college once wrote of a Concord stage trip across the mountains: 'Much time it was smooth and very pleasant; but most time one must sit urgently, with great courage.'

"Even if urgency exists, may you have great and overcoming courage in 1932." * * * *

Dr. and Mrs. Garold Henning (Ada Hemingway, 1922-23), of Iowa City, Iowa, visited the college in mid-January and also spent a little while with Dr. Linnemann, under whom Mrs. Henning formerly studied art. Dr. Henning is connected with the Children's Hospital of the State University of Iowa medical department. Mrs. Henning, who "never quite" attained to a bachelor's degree, is going on to this distinction, she hopes, in that university.

Visited California

Mrs. Charles F. Adams (Rosalie Hart), of Topeka, Kan., writes of seeing the "old girls" in Los Angeles, Calif., two of whom were in Lindenwood when she was—Mrs. R. L. Hubbard (Cora Donlin) and Mrs. H. W. Stelle (May Wright), who was Mrs. Adams' room-mate back in the '80's. She tells also of Mrs. O. C. Ford (Clara Belle Ballaseux, 1890-94).

Mrs. Adams says she was happy to receive Lindenwood's calendar which is "certainly attractive." As for herself, she "keeps busy with church work and clubs, and has just been elected Regent of the Topeka Chapter, D. A. R." She "enjoys the Bulletin" and wishes for Lindenwood "the best and happiest year ever." * * * *

Personals

President and Mrs. Roemer spent the holidays in Chicago, stopping at the Palmer House, where they enjoyed many of the city's events of the season.

One of the announcements at Lindenwood's Christmas parties was that Lois McKeehan, a senior, of Hot Springs, Ark., is Popularity Queen for the coming year. This is the second time at Lindenwood that this honor has been conferred upon Lois, the first being when she was a sophomore.

Miss Frances Doak (1927-29) writes that she has been doing advertising for the weekly newspaper in her home town, Winterset, Iowa, the owner of which is the father of Dorothy Smith, a student at Lindenwood last year and the year before.

From Wichita, Kan., the Lindenwood Club's corresponding secretary has written of bereavements, greatly regretted. Mrs. Earl Blake, of Wichita, mother of Miss Louise Blake (1927-28) died in December. In the same month occurred the death of Mr. W. W. Rowland, in Hobart, Okla., father of Mrs. Jessie Rowland Walker (1916-18).

In the college also, the deaths of parents have saddened the holidays, at Pomeroy, Ohio, the mother of Miss Sayre, head of the infirmary; and at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the mother of Miss Stookey, head of the physical education department.

Miss Dorothy Dunn, of the class of 1919, writes from Littleton, Colo., thanking Dr. and Mrs. Roemer for the Calendar and saying, "Although I am far away in the shadow of the Rockies, I welcome each reminder of Lindenwood, for I treasure the memory of those two years. Why can't we have another get-together meeting in Denver?"

Mrs. C. W. Barber (Bertha Goebel, 1889-93), of Wyoming, Ill., suggests that the 1932 Lindenwood calendar be labeled, "Two Visions—Fulfilled," the first vision being that of Mrs. Sibley, the other that of Col. Butler. She says that in her house the Bulletin is always read "from cover to cover."

Lindenwood has two sets of twins this year: Eleanor and Emily Runnenburger, of Harrisonville, Mo. (younger sisters of Miriam, last spring's maid of honor to the May Queen), and Constance and Mary Key Wandel, of Marshall, Texas.

Prof. Andre Morize of the faculty of Harvard University, gave an illuminating address at Assembly January 21, on "American Education as a Frenchman Sees It."

A pleasing review of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," the modern play concerning the life of Robert Browning and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett, was given on the last Friday night of the semester by Miss Mary Lucile Cracraft, teacher of dramatic expression.

The Art Department moved along quietly with its Christmas card sale (originals), but the result is $37.70 added to the Mary Easton Sibley scholarship fund.

The illustrated lecture, "Photography of the Heavens," by George C. Blakslee, of Yerkes Observatory, was one of the programs much enjoyed by the students.

Channing Pollock, playwright, found time to come to Lindenwood, under the guidance of Mr. Richard Spamer, for a special address while his play, "The House Beautiful," was being produced in St. Louis. He was accounted one of the best speakers of the season.

Dr. Alice Linneman, head of the art department, was one of the members of the St. Louis Artists' Guild attending a dinner in mid-winter, given in honor of Mr. Vladimir Golschman, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and his wife. Several artistes were on the informal program. Miss Frances Stumberg, of Lindenwood's English Department, was Dr. Linneman's guest.

Catalogue Is Out

Those who "just can't wait for the Bulletin" are receiving something equally interesting—the new Catalogue and Viewbook. There is a February Bulletin, which is here presented, and the suspension of the Bulletin (so as to fill out the Post-Office sequence) was in January instead of February as in other years. By diligent attention the editors of the Catalogue were able to get it out a month ahead of the usual time. The volume stresses more than ever the training of girls for some vocation, in order that when they complete the college course they may be prepared for some sort of work. There is included an entire suggestive program, for example, for girls planning to go into social service work, filling four years of study. Other four-year courses along various lines are available for the student, each leading to a degree. The "blind alley" method is abrogated.

The Viewbook is attractive in an entirely new coat, with the color scheme of tan and brown throughout.

Death of Miss Cole

Hundreds of men and women who once were pupils of Miss Clementine Cole (1863-64) regretted her death, at the age of 86, in her home at Chester, Ill., the morning after Thanksgiving, November 27, 1931. Miss Cole, who ranked among the oldest of Lindenwood's students still living, was a choice friend and interesting companion through all the years. To her, teaching school had been a joy. It would have been hard to find anyone in the city of Chester who did not know of "Miss Clem Cole," and who could not direct a stranger to her residence. She had kept up her interest in things literary. She wrote poetry, and had several distinguished correspondents. Best of all, her disposition was sunny, her character generous, so that she did not seem to grow old, having still so many friends. She and her sister, who survives her, made their home together in Chester.

Miss Susan Buckwell, who spent 1927-29 at Lindenwood, writes from Carthage, Mo., the sad story of the death, December 21, in that city, of Miss Hazel Marie Doerner, a Lindenwood student of a decade ago who had devoted herself to business and was assistant manager of the Carthage Western Union office. Miss Buckwell writes, "I know she made many close friends at Lindenwood. She was loved by people in all stations of life here in Carthage—always happy and with a friendly word for everyone." She was 29 years of age, a member of the Carthage Presbyterian Church, and active in various organizations, including the local chapter of the Eastern Star. Death came from septicaemia, after an illness which began last April. Sympathy is extended to her parents, three brothers and other relatives.

How Lindenwood Girls Earn Their Living

Edited by KATHRYN HANKINS

I cannot tell you how much I enjoy this new department and how eagerly I look forward to receiving each edition of the Bulletin. I have lost track of many of the girls I knew and loved in that all too brief year at Lindenwood. How interesting it is to read what they are doing now.

As for myself, I have advanced to cashier of my father's bank since leaving Lindenwood. It is intensely interesting work to me and I am planning to go to school again next year to learn more about banking methods. Success to this new section. Truly it is an important link in the chain of Lindenwood girls all over the world.

Elizabeth R. Dent (1927-28),
Salem, Mo.

Dear Dr. Roemer:

We greatly enjoy reading the Lindenwood Bulletin which comes to our daughter Irene, each month.

It might be of interest to you to know that Irene, a Lindenwood student of 1927-28, is teaching public school music at Quincy, Kan., this year, at a salary of $135 per month.

Yours truly,
G. W. Hansen,
Preston, Kan.

I am more than glad to have this opportunity to write about my experiences earning a living. My first year found me teaching English and Latin in the high school at St. Ignace, Michigan, the second year in the Nevada, Mo., High School, and the third in Hutchinson, Kansas. I came to the last place in the year 1927 to start my Junior High career. I did not like it so much at first, but now I doubt if I would change. This is my fifth year at Hutchinson, and at present I am head of the Latin department. I met Allene Guthrie at a State Teachers' Meeting this year. It has been at least seven years since I last saw her. She has her Master's degree and is teaching French in the Junior College at Parsons, Kansas. I wish that the names of the girls from seven to eight years back appeared more frequently.

Most sincerely yours,
Bernice Boyd (1921-23).

I was fortunate to pass one of Uncle Sam's examinations (due, possibly to training at L. C.) and then to be appointed Postmistress in the old home town. I like the work so much better than teaching. I enjoy meeting the public and then there is something new each day. I wish that I might see all of my Lindenwood friends to greet them with a Happy New Year.

Sincerely yours,
Jeanette Clarkson (A. B. 1923),
Clarks, La.

Your new page in the Bulletin has interested me very much, and I hasten to contribute to it, for I feel that, by doing so, I can help some other Lindenwood girl to earn her own living, or, at least, to add substantially to her income.

Another girl and myself have a business called the Business Feature Service. We handle manuscripts for trade journals. We have, throughout the United States, about eighty correspondents, most of them newspaper people—some with years and years of experience—who cover our assignments, and furnish us with merchandising feature articles. Our clients are about forty or fifty of the better business and technical magazines. My partner handles the correspondence to the editors, and does most of the editing of manuscripts, and the rewriting; while I do illustrations and drawings for the various articles, and handle the correspondence to our writers.

Now, if there are any Lindenwood girls who feel that they would like to handle the correspondence for us in their community, we would be very glad to hear from them. Just write to the Business Feature Service, Box 767, Wichita, Kansas, and we will forward you further particulars and instructions at once. We send our correspondents assignments from time to time, and then, each writer is expected to uncover material "on his own hook," too. It isn't difficult work, once you have the "trade paper angle," and it is extremely interesting. And there's a market for it—which is a lot more than one can say about fiction, in these days of depression!

Let us hear from some of you!

Cordially,

Dorothy M. English ('20-'21; '21-'22).

In Southern California

Mrs. Viola Berger entertained the members of the Lindenwood College Club of Southern California, at her charming home at 201 South Mansfield, on November 21. The affair was in the nature of a luncheon and musicale. At 12:30 a delicious two-course luncheon was served. The guests then went to the large living room for a business session.

Miss Switzer gave a group of songs in a delightful manner, then Miss Virginia MacFarland captured the audience with her charming musical recitations and original poems. Mrs. Berger's son then favored the club with several delightful vocal numbers.

A most interesting talk was given by Mrs. Teresa B. Peyton, a former house-mother at Lindenwood.

Mrs. Berger was indeed a charming hostess, and the club is full of appreciation for her hospitality. This meeting preceded the Christmas party on December 16, with Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Hubbard as joint hostesses, of which the following account was received:

"The club of Southern California was entertained most delightfully by Mesdames Hubbard and Ford, at the home of the latter on Winona boulevard, Hollywood. Mrs. Ford's attractive home was decorated in Christmas greens. Mrs. Pfeiffer and Mrs. Cunliff, both members of our club, favored us with several most enjoyable readings, after which we were all asked to join in singing Christmas carols, led by Mrs. Lillian Henning.

"Delicious refreshments were then served by the hostesses, each guest being presented with a Santa Claus favor. Our next meeting in January will be at the home of Mrs. W. E. Smart."

At San Francisco

Mrs. Ann Shelton Douthit (1920-22), wife of the widely known baseball player (also Mr. Motley's niece) has written to Dr. Linnemann telling of attending the San Francisco Lindenwood College Club meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Rose Anna McGuire Mason, on December 8, 1931.

"There were 15 in attendance," she says. "It was such a happy afternoon for me. Mrs. Hain was present, and I enjoyed so much Mrs. Danes. I am planning to attend the January meeting with Mrs. Thompson in Berkeley."

Another letter concerning the same meeting came to Dr. Linnemann from Mrs. M. L. C. Funkhouser (Eugenie Mermod), of Burlingame, Calif., who speaks of the beautiful home of the hostess, built on a high elevation, spacious and beautifully furnished. There was a Christmas tree, with gifts for each one present.

Mrs. Funkhouser says that she is having an enjoyable winter in Burlingame with her daughter and her family, including a grandson, one year old. She loves the West but wants "a return ticket," and hopes to stop at Lindenwood on her way home, some months hence, to Chicago.

* * * *

A shock was experienced in a response received from a recent college invitation extended to Dorothy P. Miller, a student of late years, who had been resident in Webster Groves. The card was returned with the annotation, "Died, April, 1931."

The sad news has been indirectly received of the recent death of Miss Mildred Gassman (1927-28), formerly of Charleston, Mo.

Kansas City Club Active

The Lindenwood College Club of Kansas City is so full-grown that it has statistics in a yearbook, a copy of which has been received by Secretary Motley. Mrs. O. L. Berry (Lois Bockemohle) writes:

"We have 64 on our active list, and the associate list boasts 66. This splendid showing is due largely to the untiring efforts of 'Zippy' Bates Hammond and her committee, and the ability of Fannie Mae Sosland Marder to extract the dues on the meeting days. We have had an average attendance of 30 at our monthly luncheons, so you see we're not as 'depressed' as we might be.

"One of our best bits of news, and one of which we're extremely proud, is the biggest success of one of our most successful members—the young son of Nell Donnelly. David Quinlan is a real boy, and our only regret is that he can't eventually be 'one of us.'

"Our outstanding social event was our Yuletide bridge tea, given in honor of the girls home from school, and their mothers. Mildred Mayfield Kraft was our most charming hostess. She turned her lovely home over to us in all its perfection. If anyone should doubt the success of this party, just refer them to Margaret Mellott, who is the proud owner of a pair of 'Nelly Don' lounging pajamas, that were the envy of everyone at the party.

"So we're starting another year with enthusiasm, and with Dr. and Mrs. Roemer's well wishes, we feel that our twenty-first year must assuredly be a success."

Wichita Entertains

The Wichita Lindenwood College Club enjoyed a delightful luncheon on December 29, at the Innes Tea Room. There were twenty girls there—more than we have had at a luncheon for years, which was, of course, MOST satisfactory.

A delightful surprise was the appearance of Mrs. Victor Ernest Creighton of Arkansas City, who attended Lindenwood a great many years ago. She gave an interesting little speech, telling about the life there at that time; and Carlene Holt then told about Lindenwood as it is today. The table was all in yellow and white, and looked lovely. I am sure that every girl left feeling tremendously pepped up about the club. We are planning another luncheon at Eastertime.

Here is the list of girls attending: Theda Calhoun, Mrs. Merle K. Bennett (Gertrude Wallrick), Mary Cheney Missildine, Jeanne Reese, Verna Anderson, Elizabeth Hitchcock, Alberta Sievert Merrell, Virginia Thompson, Helen Myers, Carlene Holt, Jessie Rankin McEwen, Dorothy Solomon Cohen, Reta Willis, Jessie Rowland Walker, Katherine Axline Ormsby, Mary Elizabeth Elder, Mrs. P. H. Baugh (June Taylor), Dorothy English, Mrs. V. E. Creighton. * * * *

Mrs. Folly Doerr Davis (Fine Arts, 1920) writes from Chicago that she would like to see the names and addresses of the secretaries of the various Lindenwood College Clubs published in the Bulletin annually. This excellent suggestion will be followed, whenever the names are sent. Mrs. Davis says, "We all would like to know of meetings."

Girls at St. Joseph

The Lindenwood College Club of St. Joseph, Mo., gave a charming luncheon in vacation, at the Book and Bowl, in that city, honoring the present Lindenwood students from St. Joseph, Misses Lillian Hunt, Esther Groves, Roberta McPherson, Siddy Smith and Lucille Hausenbiller. About 35 were present in all, at tables prettily decorated in Christmas colors.

The St. Joseph club has elected the following officers: President, Miss Katherine Ann Disque; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Lalla Rookh Varner.

Mrs. Kenyon Ballard is the retiring president.

Dr. Kate Gregg, of the English faculty, has been making research in Washington, D. C., among original sources, concerning Lindenwood's early history. She brought out certain facts not generally known, in Major George C. Sibley's life at Fort Bellefontaine and Fort Osage, speaking at a college Y. W. C. A. meeting recently.

Talks on China

Miss Catherine Sutherland, who once taught in Lindenwood, and who is now home on furlough from mission work in China, gave an interesting address on life in China, the afternoon of January 25, before the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club, the members of which were entertained by Miss Sutherland's mother, Mrs. George W. Sutherland (Olla Barnett, 1880-83), at her beautiful home, 445 Baker avenue, in Webster Groves.

Another part of the program was the rendition of portions of the opera, "Pinafore," by twenty young people from the Webster Groves high school, who sang under the direction of Miss Esther Retloge.

Births

Twin boys head the list of additions to Lindenwood's alumnae family. These are Jack and Jim, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rose (Helen Mulliken, 1920-22) of Rantoul, Ill. They arrived September 7, 1931, weighing, respectively, five and five and one-half pounds.

Little Barbara Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Boling (Alease Wilson, 1926-27), arrived, with a weight of seven pounds, December 19, 1931, at the home of her parents in Kilgore, Texas.

Another September boy (September 1, 1931) is young Harold Prather Poe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson H. Poe (Emma R. Prather, 1924-26), who have recently removed to Elmdale, Kansas. "He is a darling," his mother writes, "such a joy because he is so healthy and happy."

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Adamson (Margaret Jane Hutchinson, 1926-28) of 2130 College avenue, Terre Haute, Ind., have a little son, James Henry, Jr., since October 25, 1931. She regrets "he can never come to Lindenwood," but "hopes he may have a sister some day who can be enrolled."

Just the day after Christmas, December 26, 1931, arrived little Shirley Mae, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Howard (Hilda C. Glenn, 1929-30), at their home in Lebanon, Ind. The card is very clever, showing a messenger boy giving the news.
