ROEMER HALL

April · 1930

PHOTOGRAPHED on the night of the May Queen Party, the Royal Court presents a charming appearance and is an indication of the grace and beauty, with special costumes, which the last day of the coming month will bring—Lindenwood's Spring Festival, May 31.

All Lindenwood Going to Church

Lent Is a Time for Special Services at the College

At the request of Lindenwood's Young Women's Christian Association, President Roemer, for another year, has instituted Sunday morning Lenten services. Everyone noticed the beautiful poster, done in white and orchid, across from the post office with its two lighted candles which gave stately announcement. There was, of course, a 100 per cent attendance at the opening service on March 9, which was conducted by Dr. Roemer. The new officers of the Y. W. C. A. took charge. These are: Elizabeth Thomas, President; Eleanor Eldredge, Vice-President; Audrey McAnulty, Secretary; and Lucille Tralles, Treasurer. Throughout the season the Lindenwood vested choir will assist with the musical program. This is a candle-light service and the officers on the stage wear white.

Dr. Roemer spoke on the topic, "Eternal Life," and his text was the query of the rich young man, Matt. 19, 16: "What shall I do that I may have eternal life?"

"Lent is a time," said Dr. Roemer, "to get in closer relation with God; a time to make ourselves more conscious of our real condition in God's sight; a time when we are to take a spiritual inventory of our life. Lent is something more than the observance of rules to govern ourselves. It is meaningless, unless through prayer and fasting we come face to face with God.

"Life was the foremost theme of Jesus. He declared that His coming would give Life, and that more abundantly. From His Cross would flow the benediction of life, not death. From the beginning to the end of His ministry on earth, life was the dominant note—life here and hereafter. The 'life of the ages' was His great concern.

"His discoveries interested great and small, for life is sought everywhere, at all times, by all men. It is not strange that the young man who listened to Him was impelled to ask, 'What shall I do that I may have eternal life?'

"He had much of this world's goods. He had experienced through his wealth something of the meaning of life. He was attracted by the Teacher who talked of the 'life of the ages.' Being naturally of a devout mind, the young man propounded his question. Jesus was attracted to him by his reverent and sincere inquiry, and it is easy to see how Jesus loved him. He was honest, he was reverent, he was sincere.

"But the young man was surprised by the answer. He had doubtless expected a metaphysical discussion, an explanation of its mystery. We can imagine his amazement when he received the simple reply, 'Keep the Commandments.' All these things he declared he had kept from his youth up. What more was there lacking to make him an heir to that which he most desired? 'What lack I yet?' was a natural question that followed, for it seemed so impossible that a never-ending life could be so easily assured.

"Jesus gave opportunity through this query, to put the young man to the test. He already had in his possession the possibility of eternal life, but how could he make sure? Some think that the direction he received was a condemnation of riches; others think that Jesus here drew the distinction between a moral and a religious life. But not so. Religion that is not moral is not religious; morals without religion are as tinkling brass.

"Jesus tells us through the rich young man of the story, that the 'life of the ages' is the right use of this life.

"The one thing lacking in the rich young man to whom He spoke is the one thing lacking in man generally—vision of possibilities. The difficulty is in seeing that the eternal is not to be attained except the price be paid. There are people who want the best in this world and the world to come, without giving anything in exchange. It was the price that made this young man leave Christ and turn away sorrowfully. He did not see the connection between his possessions and the life of which Jesus spoke.

"We make a distinction between the secular and the sacred. Jesus made no such distinction. Everything, even wealth, is sacred. The request that the young man go sell all he had and distribute to the poor was not an invitation to court poverty, but to be rich through sharing.

"The principle involved is simply this: life is possible only as we are interested in life. Life can be enlarged only as we enlarge the life of the world in which we live. Christianity is not a personal but a social problem. We can save ourselves only as we save others.

"The final possibility in understanding the 'life of the ages' is contained in the advice Jesus gave the young man: 'Follow Me.' Man left to himself fails to see beyond his material possessions. He loves to speak of his ownership. We are required to associate with, and live with One who can show the way of so using earthly possessions as to possess eternal riches. If we would have eternal life, we must follow Him who is the Way, the Truth, the Life."

Dr. Case's Discourse

On the second Sunday morning of Lent, March 16, Dr. Ralph T. Case, head of the department of Bible and Philosophy, took the service. These services, to be held at 11:30 o'clock throughout Lent, under Y. W. C. A. auspices, will have Dr. Roemer and Dr. Case alternating, so that each shall give three sermons.

Dr. Case's opening sermon emphasized the deepening of religious feeling. The Lenten season, he said, should be "a period of heartsearching religiously, and of spiritual quickening.

"Lent is a means to approach the life of Jesus by the Kingdom Come. Jesus has set forth the objective around which His life was built—life, ministry and work, thus He stated the great objective of His own life and purpose, as He sought to have His followers build their aspirations, hopes and ideals around His kingdom. He first set them for Himself, and manifested them constantly throughout His own life. His sincerity made Him a power among men, and He has stood all the tests put up against His flawless character. Men's attempts to dethrone Him have proved futile.

"Jesus the same yesterday, today and forever. He was the preeminent Emancipator of man's religious needs throughout all the years, not only for His disciples and His hearers, but for Himself, with the Kingdom Come his great objective. He matches his preachings by His conduct, for if this is to be the guiding principle for His followers, it must first of all be His guiding principle.

"Throughout His life he pointed out that His next move was to be in the interest of the Kingdom—that it was Alpha and Omega, the all-inclusive and all-absorbing consideration for them. He did not ask anything of them that did not first apply to Him. He drew the line excluding inferior, inadequate and unworthy goals from His life.

"Jesus expressed the determination to follow steadfastly the course set before Him. There was to be no slinking even in the face of death, and His disciples gave their last measure of devotion to the Kingdom."

At this service a trio, composed of Allison Platt, Betty Leek and Katherine Davidson, sang.

Death of Mrs. Brier

The Lindenwood College Club, of Southern California, has recently written the Bulletin concerning the death of Mrs. Jessie Daughtery Brier, who passed away March 5, at her home in Pasadena.

Mrs. Brier was a Lindenwood student from 1883-'85, specializing in music. She was a woman of sterling character, whom to know was to admire and love. She faithfully followed the injunction, "Let not the right hand know what the left hand doeth."

Mrs. Brier was happy in visiting the shut-ins, bringing to them some of the sunshine from the outside in her cheery smile, scattering good deeds and encouraging words to all within her reach. She will be missed by all who knew her and especially by those who were the recipients of her ministry. She had no children; her husband preceded her about three months, having died in December, 1929.

Mrs. Brier's will leaves a substantial legacy to Lindenwood.

Bereavements

Word has been received, belatedly, of the death of Mrs. J. McPherson, last November 16. She was the former Miss E. Mildred Scott, of Lindenwood, 1918-'19. She died at the Jacksonville Memorial Hospital, Miami, Florida, and was buried at Aurora, Mo. Lindenwood extends sincere sympathies.

Lindenwood feels great sympathy for Mrs. Carl Colwick of Stephenville, Texas, (Grace Chandler, A. B., 1922), and her mother and brothers in the announcement, just received, of the death of her father, Judge F. H. Chandler, last May. Like his daughter, who became for several years a teacher, Judge Chandler was greatly interested in education. He was a civic, social and political leader in Stephenville, and was mayor of that town from 1919 to 1928.

It is a season of pledges, and Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, has thus honored Mary Mason, Josephine Peck, Cary Pankey and Roberta Manning.

Major Sibley's Birthday

This April 1st copy of the Bulletin brings to mind the birthday of Major George C. Sibley, U. S. A., co-founder of Lindenwood. April 1, 1782, was the day he came into the world, and the greater part of his life was lived right here in "Linden Wood" up to his death on January 31, 1863. This college should always be grateful for the fact that its founders, Maj. and Mrs. Sibley were people of the highest character and culture, unsurpassed in integrity or high social standing by any of their generation—Major Sibley as an honored army officer and a U. S. Commissioner to the Indians whose humane and wise policy was the talk of the time; and Mrs. Sibley, "so fathered and so husbanded" that by reflected glory she should shine, even if it had not been that she was personally a woman of strong convictions and of great good judgment. Major Sibley's name is still remembered in army archives. In Indian lore there are traditions handed down about him. He was a guest at their festivals; he was invited on their journeys. That one episode of the Indians taking him as the first white man they had ever permitted to gaze on the mystery of the Grand Saline, is an indication of their entire confidence in him. Later in "Linden Wood," both Major and Mrs.

Sibley often received the Indians and taught them the Christian religion. Apart from founding and maintaining the college, there are so many sidelights on the character of this great man of early days, showing him as a Christian gentleman, that every L. C. girl, looking back now 148 years on Major Sibley's birthday, should be thankful for a shining record and a good heredity.

Chicago Club Meets

Word has been received of a meeting of the Lindenwood Club of Chicago, February 14, at the Frascati Restaurant. The alumnae attendance was large, and the program interesting. Mrs. E. R. Gentry told of her recent trip to Iceland, and illustrated with pictures of that little-known country.

At a meeting of the Chicago Club, earlier in the season, Mrs. H. M. Huse gave a reading of her poems which were much enjoyed. The Chicago girls gave a generous Christmas offering for Olivet Institute, as a memorial for Mrs. A. Schroeder.

Mrs. Eastlick Hostess

The Lindenwood Club, of Southern California, met in February, at the home of Mrs. Eastlick, who entertained with a bridge luncheon. The home was decorated with yellow and white sweet peas. There were twenty-eight members present, and at this meeting, the new officers assumed their duties for the coming year. The new officers are: Miss Cora Coogle, President; Mrs. Benjamin Cunliff, Vice-President; Mrs. Cora M. Hubbard, Secretary; Mrs. E. E. Huse, Treasurer; Mrs. Eloise Bergmann, Historian; Mrs. Clarence Dickmann, Corresponding Secretary.

News From Tulsa

"The Tulsa Lindenwood Club held its third meeting, since its organization, at the home of Alice Bell. The second meeting was held at a breakfast during the Christmas holidays, in order that the girls that are now at school might attend.

"For the benefit of former Tulsa Lindenwood girls and our friends, perhaps you would like to know what we are going to do now that we are organized. We are planning to meet once a month at the homes of the different members and alternate having book reviews and playing bridge. The reviews will be given by different members of the Women's Clubs in the city. At present we have only about fifteen members, but like our Alma Mater, we expect to grow."

From a Far L. C. Group

From the Pacific Coast—Miss Linne-man has recently received a number of enthusiastic letters covering the meetings of the San Francisco Lindenwood College Club, which counts as its members former students and friends of Lindenwood who reside in the Bay Region of California. This Club meets for luncheon on the second Saturday of each month in the homes of the members.

The March meeting was held at the home of Mrs. L. R. Hain (Eva Meek), on March 8. The next meeting is to be an evening affair to which the husbands of the Club members are to be invited. The hostess will be Mrs. T. T. Tavernette (Rae Graham), of Berkeley.

The San Francisco Club is one of the smaller clubs (in number), but they are a group that radiates loyalty and great enthusiasm for their Alma Mater.

Helping Mountain Children

It has been 50 years since Miss Jessie L. Robards, long since Mrs. Jessie L. Robards Clemmons, was at Lindenwood College. She was very young then, and it is a joy to the college to learn that she is today "carrying on" in what she describes as "a delightful and interesting work for the Master."

This work is the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School in the mountains of Georgia—a self-help mission and industrial school for the mountain boys and girls. These fifty boys and sixty girls are "still unspoiled by the world," many of them being away from home for the first time. Farm families are also getting training in farming here. The school divides its students on the platoon plan, an equal part being given to books and to work. One-half the school is at study while the other half is at work for the common good of the institution, which has a 1500-acre farm. This school is one of twenty which is being made the subject of special study by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Mrs. Clemmons writes reminiscently of the years of 1880 and 1881 at Lindenwood. "I can say truthfully," she says, "that those two years were two of the happiest years of my life, and I shall always love the place and the wonderful work being done there. I am hoping my grand-daughters may attend Lindenwood."

* * * *

Officers of the Lindenwood Athletic Association have been elected and installed, to be in readiness for next year. They are: Helen Weber, president; Madeline Johnson, vice-president; Eleanor Eldredge, secretary, and Catherine Carper, treasurer.

Weddings

Mr. Alex Bloomenstiel sent invitations for the marriage of his daughter, Lillie, to Mr. Bernard A. Pearl, on the evening of March 19, at a large hotel in Baton Rouge, La. Miss Bloomenstiel was a member of the class of '29, and took a leading part in many college activities.

Mrs. Richard L. Becker, formerly Kathryn Cowles of Independence, Kansas, 1925-'26, writes of her change of address to Coffeyville, Kansas, where she and Mr. Becker reside at the Peacock Apartments. Announcement of her marriage was inadvertently omitted. It occurred May 4, of last year, at the home of the bride's parents, in Independence.

* * * *

The Bulletin has received an announcement of the marriage of Miss Mildred Wilmans, who attended Lindenwood up to 1927, to Rev. Paul D. Newell of Alpine, Texas, on September 13. Mrs. Newell formerly lived in Newport, Arkansas. Mr. Newell is from Little Rock and attended the Sewanee Theological Seminary. He now has charge of several missions in west Texas.

Mrs. and Mrs. Dennis L. Gaughan of Camden, Arkansas, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Dennis, to Mr. William Alfred Daniel, on Thursday, February 27. Mrs. Daniel attended Lindenwood in '23-'24.

Mrs. Benjamin Files has announced the marriage of her daughter, Ada Belle, to Mr. Arthur E. Lave on February 8, at Richmond, Missouri. Mrs. Lave attended Lindenwood in '22-'23.

Engaged

An announcement has been received of the engagement of Miss Margaret Keesor of Wheeling, West Virginia, to Mr. Paul H. West, prominent Washington, D. C., young man. The definite date of the wedding has not been announced, but it will take place in the early spring.

Miss Keesor graduated from Lindenwood last year, and was prominent in activities on the campus. She has leading parts in several dramatic productions, and was a member of Alpha Psi Omega, the dramatic fraternity. She was also a member of Alpha Sigma Tau, the highest honor of the schools of Arts and Sciences.

Mr. West is a graduate of Virginia Military Academy at Lexington, Va., and is now associated with the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington.

The engagement of Miss Virginia W. Symns of Columbia, Mo., to Mr. Raymond J. Norton of Washington, D. C., has recently been made by Miss Symns' mother, Mrs. C. C. Symns. Virginia is a former Lindenwood student, 1923-'25, and at present is teaching French and Spanish at Arlington Hall, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Norton, a graduate of Harvard, received a Bachelor of Laws degree at Georgetown and is a master of Patent Law. He is now a junior partner in the firm of Semmes and Semmes, Patent Lawyers of Washington, D. C.

The wedding will take place in early autumn, and after a honeymoon in France, the couple will make their home in Washington, D. C.

Knew Mrs. Sibley

A charming letter from Mrs. Henry Watson of Auxvasse, Mo., (Anna M. Harris, 1877-'78), thanks Lindenwood for the book of views and catalogue, and contains some unusual news.

"A friend of mine and I boarded with Mrs. Sibley," Mrs. Watson writes, "in the school year of 1877-'78. "We were with her in her little home which in late years was known as 'Sibley Cottage.' The memory of that period is very delightful to both of us. Our association with Mrs. Sibley was near the end of her life. She died about two weeks after the close of school."

Beta Pi Theta, in its Theta Xi chapter at Lindenwood, honorary French fraternity, has elected new officers: Kathryn Datesman, president; Doris Force, vice-president; Fern Halliburton, and Carey Pankey, secretaries; Dorothy Winter and Virginia Furnish, treasurers. Three new pledges of the season are: Frances Jennings, Josephine Peck and Frances Blair.

Among the old girls coming back for the A. A. play on the night of March 7 ("Yetive," by Josephine Bowman), were Mary Alice Lange, Mildred Milam, "Pep" Perry, Edith Hussman, Abigail Holmes, Bernita Nolan, Sue Anderson, Verna Anderson, Ruth Finch and Louise Dressel.

What the Seniors Had to Tell

The May Queen party, one of the most brilliant of Lindenwood's dances, was given on Friday, February 28, with the seniors as hostesses. It was at this affair that the May Queen and her royal court were announced. It was a dinner-dance with dinner at six-thirty and dancing from eight until eleven. Butler gymnasium was decorated in Japanese fashion with festoons of wisteria, cherry blossoms, and paper lanterns.

The event of the evening was the announcement of the queen and attendants made by Dr. Roemer. He first named the two girls elected by the freshman class, Irma Culbertson, of East St. Louis, Illinois, and Dorothy Hyer, of Olathe, Kansas; then the sophomore representatives, Juandell Shook, of Lincoln, New Mexico, and Kathryn Datesman, of Council Bluffs, Iowa; next the maid of honor, Dorothy Dinning, of Helena, Arkansas; and finally the queen, Adeline Brubaker, of Springfield, Illinois.

Amid enthusiastic cheers from the crowd, girls in Japanese costume escorted the royal party to the throne, where Mrs. Roemer presented a lovely bouquet to the queen. Then there was a dance by the Japanese girls followed by a grand march which was led by Mrs. Roemer and Mary Sue Wisdom, senior president; Mary Mason, the vice-president, walked with Dr. Roemer, and the May Queen with Miss Schaper, sponsor of the senior class. Miss Hankins, Junior Sponsor, accompanied the maid of honor, while Miss Gordon and Miss Campbell walked with the sophomore and freshman attendants respectively. At the end of the grand march the queen and her court were overwhelmed by a crowd of friends eager to congratulate them.

All the girls are worthy representatives of their classes and the ideal for which they stand. Adeline Brubaker, the May Queen, was a sophomore attendant two years ago; she is now President of Ayres Hall and of the Illinois Club and Secretary of the International Relations Club. She belongs to the Athletic Association, in which she is head of golf; she has also won her numerals in swimming. She has recently become a member of Pi Gamma Mu, the new social science honor fraternity.

Kathryn Datesman has many honors to her credit; she is a member of four scholastic organizations, Alpha Sigma Tau, Beta Pi Theta, Sigma Tau Delta, and El Circulo Espagnol. Juandell Shook is a talented artist as well as being active in campus affairs. She is Secretary of Kappa Pi, the national art fraternity and has been doing some of the art work for the Linden Leaves, college annual. She is also President of the Western Club.

All the girls looked beautiful in their evening gowns of varying shades. Adeline Brubaker was lovely in apricot satin made on long, flaring lines and gold slippers with brilliant buckles and jewelry. Dorothy Dinning's dress was of red taffeta and lace in bouffant style. The two sophomores were most attractive together, Juandell Shook in burnt-orange and Kathryn Datesman in white. Both freshmen were in black which was most becoming to their dark hair and vivid coloring.

* * * *

Kappa Pi, the national honorary art fraternity, has announced as pledges: Evelyn Elben, Betty Cambern, Jane Tomlinson, Olive Gillis, Ethel Seitz, Frances Knorp and Louise Phipps.

Aluma in Church Work

Doubtless the inspiration came to Miss Agnes Walker, when she took the "home-maker's course" at Lindenwood in 1920-'22, to do what she is doing now, glowing accounts of which come from the Presbyterian Health Center in north-central Arkansas. Here in the Ozarks, at Mt. Pleasant in Izard County, with the nearest railway town eight miles away, Miss Walker is in charge of a Health Center, one of whose works is a hospital which had 31 patients last year. "A number of these would not have lived without hospital care," she writes. "There is no physician in Mt. Pleasant."

Both Miss Walker's mother and grandmother were students at Lindenwood. There are few persons who can show such a record. While Miss Agnes was at Lindenwood, she made Alpha Sigma Tau, and is remembered for her sympathetic and genial disposition. She went on to a school of nursing and a college of missions after getting her Lindenwood certificate, and she is well prepared for her stalwart undertaking. The Presbyterian Health Center was started in 1928, and one of its first works was to confront an epidemic of smallpox, and "nurses were kept busy for days and weeks vaccinating men, women and children."

Miss Walker took charge here last May, having previously been in similar work in New Mexico. She describes the Arkansas setting:

"The Health Center stands on a rocky acre plot. The one-story frame building, facing east, is painted apple-green, with white trimming. A garage for two cars, with a small engine-house for the Deleo attached, is similar in design and color. On the east side of our building is a sun porch, which serves as a living room, recreation room and office." She describes the scientific arrangement of the hospital with its rooms for patients "on the south side of the house." There are six adult-sized beds and four child's beds. Included in the equipment is an operating-room, which has been in use only once, and in intervals of non-use "serves as a nursery." Miss Walker tells of a patient who came last May for an operation and who was in a serious condition. A surgeon from Little Rock was called and attended her. "Though there seemed to be little chance for her recovery, she has made a slow but steady gain and is able now to care for her house."

The youngest patient is a ten-months-old baby who is "getting stronger and a favorite with all." Miss Walker says: "We had a Christmas tree in the living-room and called it Shelby's tree. Christmas day we had the baby's parents and brother here to spend the day. They had little for Christmas, but felt they had much since they had Shelby. We had a Christmas service, and at the close the gifts were distributed. We were able to give dresses, hose, shirting and dress material to some needy families."

Many of the women, Miss Walker says, "work in the cotton fields." Dispensary and out-patient calls are part of her Center's work. She says: "The work is slow, but we hope there will be a steady increase in the amount of service that the Health Center can render to this and surrounding communities. We feel that the churches are standing by us, and we earnestly hope that we may have your prayers that we may not only help to heal the body but also to bring the people to know the Great Physician by whom they are healed and saved."

Personals

Miss Gladys Osborne, who attended Lindenwood 1923-24, writes that she is a second-year medical student at Vanderbilt University, and "is enjoying the work." She says of the Bulletin: "It's a great pleasure to know what my classmates and friends are doing."

Mrs. Charles F. Adams (Rosalie Hart, 1882-83) writes, expressing appreciation of Lindenwood's calendar, which "finds a place on her desk." She says, "Roemer Hall has a familiar look, after my visit at the Centennial."

Miss Edna Baldwin, graduate of 1928, A. B., writes that she is in personnel work with the Marshall Field establishment in Chicago, and her address in that city is 5300 Blackstone Avenue. Her sister Edith, she writes, who also attended Lindenwood, has a social service position in psychiatry in a Chicago hospital. Miss Baldwin says she "always is interested in Lindenwood, and hopes to get back to see everyone before the college year closes."

* * * *

Dr. Ernest R. Kroeger, director of the Kroeger School of Music, presented a charmingly varied program at a lecture-recital at the college on March 6. On the night of March 12, also, a considerable group of students went in to the city for a Rachmaninoff concert.

Kansas City Hospitable

One Bulletin number being omitted, it may now be permitted to give an account of New Year's celebrations, which are too interesting to be overlooked, held by the Kansas City Lindenwood College Club. Mrs. Paul Donnelly was hostess at a delightful tea in her spacious home, in which the students home on vacation, and their mothers, were guests with the Club.

There was a program by Mrs. Paul Ellis, Miss Lenore Anthony and Mrs. F. E. Whitten. Tea was served by Mrs. Mildred Mayfield Kraft, Mrs. Kathryn Pence Mathews, Mrs. Ruth Laitner Waltner and Mrs. Adele Herman Dahlglish. A committee on arrangements consisted of Mrs. Marion Titus Ellis, Mrs. Alice Van Guilder Neeley, Mrs. Lucille Allen Evans, Mrs. Martha Miller Gray, and Miss Gertrude Nofsin.

A luncheon took place later in January at the Women's City Club, where Mrs. C. P. Barshfield, Mrs. Harold Evans and Mrs. F. E. Whitten were hostesses.

* * * *

Mrs. Roemer gave a delightful party in the tea room, on the evening of March 10, to about twenty-five of the administrative and teaching staff.

Births

Suzanne is the name that has been chosen for the baby girl born on February 26 to Dr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell, of Flora, Ill. Mrs. Campbell was Frances Stanford before her marriage, and was a student at Lindenwood from '22 to '24.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer W. Hancock, of Alton, Ill., announce the arrival of a baby boy, James, born February 18. Mrs. Hancock, as Helen Julia Masel, was a student at Lindenwood in 1920-21.

Mr. and Mrs. Park William Lamerton, of Enid, Okla., announce the birth of a son, Park William Jr., on March 4. Mrs. Lamerton is the former Julia Margaret Reck, of Oklahoma City. She attended Lindenwood in 1922.

Another birth is that of William Dale McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. McKee, of Atlanta, Ga., on March 6. His mother was Mildred Seawell Carson when she was a student in Lindenwood from 1923 to 1925.

Marol Lynn is the new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Harding Wingett, of Kansas City. Mrs. Wingett, who was Margaret Morris, of Kansas City, went to Lindenwood in 1923-1924.

Mrs. Orin C. Hughes, formerly Chaille Groom Hughes, 1925-27, in writing from Bristow, Okla., of a baby daughter, Colleen Patricia, says she "wishes some of the girls would write to her." She says, "so much has happened since her school-days, part of which time has been spent in the oil fields of Oklahoma." The Bulletin, she says, is her chief source of Lindenwood news.

"Important news" concerning the birth of Master George Edward Ewing, March 12, 1930, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ewing, has come to Lindenwood. Mrs. Ewing attended Lindenwood from 1923-1927, and her home is now in St. Louis, Mo. She was Miriam Garver.
