Lindenwood's Founders Remembered

Feast-Day in Every Sense Inaugurates 104th College Year

Lindenwood is now in truth well launched upon its year. Founders' Day has been held—a cloudless day of reunion for those of older years, and of holiday and play for those who are still in classes. Dr. and Mrs. Roemer were the ideal hosts, the sermon by Dr. R. Calvin Dobson was just solemn enough, the dinner was undoubtedly excellent, the afternoon Gym programme spoke well for the new Physical Ed Director, and the far-famed American pianist, Tomford Harris, at night gave a programme which showed what music really is.

Just after luncheon there was a surprise. The seniors had sung, the juniors, the sophomores and the freshmen each also contributing their bit, when Mrs. Lorraine T. Bernero, president of the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club, sprung the surprise. By reason of a generous gift of $100 from two members of the club, sisters, the St. Louis Club now handed over its final payment on its $5,000 scholarship. The members have raised all this since the Centennial, 1927. The income will be used every year to help some student. The candle will never go out. Of course there was a lot of applause, and enough of the "glad hand" remained also for Mrs. Arthur J. Krueger, who made a little speech when called on, as she has been president of the St. Louis Club till now and has done much to inspire its achievement.

Founders' Day opened at 11 o'clock in Roemer Auditorium with the processional, "School of Our Mothers," and the invocation by Dr. Ralph T. Case, head of the Bible department.

A quartette composed of Elenor Hall, Frances McPherson, Maxine Namur and Kathryn Martin, sang two numbers, "In Autumn," by Grieg, and "Cradle Song," by Brahms. Miss Dorothy Detweiler, new teacher of voice, followed the responsive reading with a solo, "The Pilot," by Protheroe.

Dr. Roemer, presenting the speaker of the day, said a few words concerning the honorable record of Lindenwood through its friends of the long trail now entering on the one hundred and fourth year. His own incumbency has been for sixteen years of this period, or almost one-sixth of the entire time.

Dr. Dobson, who is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, and former assistant to the late Dr. S. J. Nicolls, for many years president of Lindenwood's Board, was well chosen as a Founders' Day speaker. His congregation ranks as the oldest Protestant church in St. Louis, going back eleven years earlier even than Lindenwood. Dr. Dobson said:

“It is most appropriate that Lindenwood College should observe a day like this. In the busy rush of life we are too prone to forget the past and to fail to appreciate the rich legacy we have received from those who have gone before. Our country and institutions are comparatively new and young; and because of their youth we are inclined to minimize our past. When one travels through Europe, he sees on every hand the memorials that a grateful people have reared in commemoration of the past and a nation's indebtedness to her great men and women, and their benevolent gifts and sacrifices for the founding and development of her institutions.

“And when one visits some ancient and historic school or college like Oxford or Cambridge or Leipsic or Eton he is impressed with these beautiful memorials in paintings and statuary and halls and dormitories and towers and tablets erected to the memory of those who had a part in building and maintaining these historic institutions. Such is a custom to be commended, lest the people forget. It is equally important that our youthful nation, rich in historic lore, and our young institutions like this one, should memorialize their past and fittingly remember their benefactors, as you do today.

“It is often said that the past belongs to old age, the present to maturity and the future to youth. If this saying be true, then memory presides over the life of the aged, hope is the guardian spirit of youth, while the mature are controlled by the spirit of work and contentment. But, strictly speaking, life cannot be thus divided into arbitrary sections as ancient Gaul was divided into three parts. The true life partakes of all three, and the great soul lives at once in the past, the present and the future. The aged man who lives entirely in the past will find himself, like Lot's wife, overtaken with destruction, because of his overmuch looking backward, while if the youth drifts through the present, living and waiting for some far-off time when golden success is to be his, the time will come when he will be like the farmer who postponed planting from April and May to those months that bring the frost and snow. Having withheld the seed in time of planting he will have no sheaves in time of reaping. Having sown the seeds of idleness and indolence, he will reap the harvest of penury and want. For whatsoever the youth sows that shall he in old age reap. Nor will today be profitable to the man of mature years unless he gives himself to diligence and honesty. The ideal life is the life of the righteous man who holds three scepters, and with untiring loyalty sways them alike over the three kingdoms of the Past, Present and Future and who is ruled alike by memory, reason and hope. This is the man of whom the Psalmist tells us: ‘He shall be like a tree, planted by the river of water.’

“Life's greatest word is ‘today.’ And our yesterdays will be meaningless and the deeds of those who have gone before will be futile unless we rule well over today. The Bible emphasizes it. ‘Now is the accepted time.’ ‘Today if ye will harden not your hearts.’ The world holds many men of very modest gifts, who are making for themselves a place among the immortals because they make the most of every passing hour.

“No man should be discouraged or idle in whom God believes, preserving him in life. Therefore, put forth new activities. Plan for larger things. Hope on—hope ever—until yonder sun shall set forever. And press steadily onward. Fulfill the dictum of the one who said, 'I am as one going across this vast continent: I would lean forth and sow as far as hand can scatter the seed. Let the angels count the bundles.'"

Afternoon Programme

Flowers as well as food added to the gayety of the Founders' Day luncheon, where former students and friends from St. Charles and St. Louis sat at tables of honor, enjoying the class songs and responding to greetings.

Many of the guests afterward visited the sacred graves of Lindenwood, in the Sibley enclosure. These graves, as always, had been decorated with flowers by the art class, under the leadership of Miss Linneman.

An informal meeting of the St. Louis Club was also held, in Sibley Hall, before going on to Butler gym.

Here at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Margaret Stookey presented the most graceful of her pupils in a "Miniature Dance Review." Tap dancing was shown by three different classes, and the advanced dancing class interpreted "Nymphs' Delight." "Youth" was a pretty dance number by La Vern Wright and Carol Wade. Madeline Johnson, who is president of the Students' Athletic Association, appeared with a partner, dancing "Rhythm." "Carolina Moon" and an acrobatic dance were the offering of Louise Bennett.

Helen Davis, younger sister of Pauline, a graduate well remembered, danced an "Eccentric Tap." Frances Pedler showed great versatility in "Black and Silver" and other numbers.

Auditorium Recital

The fame of Tomford Harris, from his debut recital in London through European cities until now, brought a large audience to Roemer Auditorium. The young pianist charmed his hearers from his prelude, by Bach-Rummel, Choral, "Fortify Us by Thy Grace," to the final number, "Don Juan Fantasie," by Mozart-Liszt. One division of the programme was entirely Chopin: two Mazurkas; Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 1; six Preludes, and Ballade F Minor. Then he took up the moderns: Esquisse, Op. 9, No. 4, Bela Bartok; Rigaudon, Ravel; Arabesque, A. Tcherepuine; Guossienne, Satie; and Malaguena, Lecuona. It ended, as indicated, with Mozart-Liszt. And so closed a day of great profit and enjoyment for all connected with Lindenwood.

Mrs. Frederic Zench (Madeline Lassar) sends her new address, 206 South St. Paul street, Austin, Minn.

"To miss a copy of the Bulletin is worse than missing a serial installment," writes Mrs. F. H. Ephraim (Gladys Lee Gladstein), whose address is now 1729 South Baltimore, Tulsa, Okla. She hopes to visit old friends at Lindenwood soon.

Guests at college on October 24 were the bankers who make up what is known as "Group 5" in the Missouri Bankers' Association. They accepted Dr. Roemer's hospitality in letting them meet in Roemer Auditorium, and the men from out of town enjoyed luncheon in the dining room, followed by an informal music programme by the girls.

Will You Be in K. C.?

President Roemer wishes to extend a wide invitation to all former students of Lindenwood who are in Kansas City on Friday, November 14, to be his guests at a Lindenwood College luncheon on that day at 12:30 o'clock, at Hotel Muehlebach. The entertainment is timed for the Missouri State Teachers' Convention, which enrolls quite a number of old Lindenwood girls, but whether teachers or not, it is desired that all "the girls of yesterday" make their appearance if possible.

Secretary Guy C. Motley is in charge of the guest list, and those who can come are asked to advise him of the fact, at the college; the folks living in Kansas City, who can come, are asked to send word to Mr. Glenn Park, 23 West Sixty-ninth street, in that city.

Minister's Widow

Girls of forty years ago at Lindenwood, as well as those of the present time, will sympathize with Mrs. Hulda Haeberle Bettex (1887-88) in the death on July 28 of her husband, Rev. E. Bettex, a clergyman of the Evangelical Church. He and his wife were residing at Idalia, Colo., near which town he had been pastor. He had also served churches in Louisville, Ky., Los Angeles, Calif., and Grand Junction, Colo. Mrs. Bettex's father, Dr. Haeberle, was the president of the Theological College of the Evangelical Synod, and she has lived always in the atmosphere of the church.

Rev. Mr. Bettex was in his sixty-fifth year. A daughter and two sons survive him.

In Early Motherhood

Sad news comes of the death of Anne Studt Koch (1912-16), on July 21. She was the wife of Mr. Robert R. Koch, and leaves a son only three years old, besides her parents. She had been ill for several months. She will be remembered as a popular student, and was president of the junior academy class of her day.

* * * *

Sadly Bereaved

Misses Janet and Adele Stine, so well known in the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club, have the sympathy of all in the death of their mother, Mrs. William A. Stine, at her home in Webster Groves, after a brief illness, on September 28th.

* * * *

Mrs. W. D. Pickett (Elizabeth Walton, 1923-24) writes that she has removed from Kennewick, Wash., and her home is now in Selah, Wash., Route 2.

Mrs. Paul E. Pulliam, who was Miss Mary Tebbe (1919-20), formerly of Los Angeles, is now living in Pasadena, Calif., at 2083 Las Lunas street. She writes that she and her three boys "love California," and she "enjoys so much reading of Lindenwood and her accomplishments."

Was Here Fifty Years Ago

Mrs. A. S. Mermod, of Webster Groves, who as Miss Mary E. Jewell was a teacher at Lindenwood in the '70s and acting president for two years, died at her home in Webster Groves on September 30, at the age of 92.

Last year a tablet in memory of five early "pilots" of Lindenwood was erected, Miss Jewell's name among them, and the tablet has a place of honor in Old Sibley. It was given by former students. After the name Mary E. Jewell are the dates, 1876-80, and the inscription for all the five is: "Scholars, Teachers, Friends: In Commemoration of Their Fidelity to American Ideals and Traditions of Christian Education, Who Gave the Best Portion of Their Lives for a Noble Cause."

Mrs. Clemens H. Wold, of Jackson, Mich., formerly Miss Anne Plett of Grand Rapids, Mich., a student at Lindenwood in the Centennial year, says that she "looks for the Bulletin each month, and reads it from cover to cover." More than that, she hopes to make a trip southward before long, to see old friends at L. C. once more.

Margaret Shouse Jones (1923-24), whose husband, Mr. David Lee Jones, is owner and editor of the "Kirkwood Messenger" of Kirkwood, Mo., takes pleasure in making "Page One" stories of the doings of Kirkwood girls at Lindenwood, and she writes that she has "more than a journalistic interest" in the college.

Mrs. Craig Carroll (Almyra Givens, of Louisiana, Mo., 1921-23), who was married in March, writes that her address is now La Grande, Oregon.

Her Roses Honored

Miss Nellie Boal (1883), the "Rose Lady" of California, has carried off the Grand Sweepstakes Prize at the Glendale Flower Show recently held.

"My precious roses!" she writes to Miss Linneman of the faculty. "I did not enter them for anything at all but to fill in any vacant place on a table, for I had cut them at random from the small hedge near the house as I was leaving the place."

There were many press notices of her beautiful display—she won on snowballs last year—and she says she has "pasted them all in her Garden of Desire Book."

Mrs. H. E. Riggs (Emma K. Hynes, 1883-84) visited Lindenwood early in October, and went for a while to her old room in Sibley Hall. She was delighted to see the four added dormitories since her time, and the other improvements. Mrs. Riggs' husband is a professor in the engineering department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and she was with him in St. Louis at a convention of those interested in engineering.

Why It Was So Good

Maybe Sophomore Day was extra good this year, on Friday, October 10, because the class had the benefit of ideas of the class sponsor, Dr. Kate Gregg. Their morality farce, "Ever Fresh, or About to Mend," was her writing, one hears. It was very amusing and human in its citation of freshman offenses—too much rouge, "snootiness," and so on, from all of which the freshmen were delivered by the candid criticism of the older class, until finally what seemed to be Mrs. Sibley's Ghost appeared, saying that she was glad the day had occurred, and the freshmen would be the better for it.

The green hat was enforced upon the freshmen, to be worn till Thanksgiving, and they were reduced to traditional subjugation for the day, finally sealing a truce with a pleasant party at night. Both class presidents, Helen Teter for the freshmen, and Alice Kircher for the sophomores, maintained good leadership.

Miss Marie Bruere, of New York City, who has been visiting relatives and friends in St. Charles and St. Louis, spent several hours at Lindenwood, renewing memories of years ago.

London Times Opinion

The "candle" of Lindenwood College, through its gifted dean, Dr. Alice E. Gipson, has "shed its beams" even to the city of London, where that world-renowned newspaper, the London Times, the "Thunderer" of tradition, has found it quite in keeping with British dignity to publish a good review of Dr. Gipson's Western historical novel, "Silence." There have been many notices, of course, of this book in the book columns of papers in this country, from east to west and in the Mississippi valley, but Bulletin readers will be pleased to hear in detail of this particular one, which incidentally may be admired for its fine English:

"Dr. Alice Gipson," says the London Times, "describes in her novel the life of the pioneers who irrigated the little desert settlements of Idaho less than a quarter of a century ago. A young married couple fresh from an American university settle near a township, where their neighbors show a good-hearted friendliness, but conditions affect their spirits. A baby born to them fails to live, and while the wife spends the following months mourning, the man is fascinated by a storekeeper's daughter. Dr. Gipson writes simply, broad-mindedly, and with knowledge. Her book lacks the gratuitous sensations of the ordinary 'Western' novel, but its character sketches are firm, and its sincerity agreeable."

Among other attentions which have been paid to "Silence," word comes from Rockford College at Rockford, Ill., that the volume has been given a place among reference books of that college for the study of pioneer life. It is also mentioned in Dr. Phelps' department in the November Scribner's.

Traveling Through Europe

Miss Tom Border, A. B. 1923, "a graduate of dear old Lindenwood," as she writes, had a charming trip abroad last summer, which has given her new inspiration for her work as teacher of history in the Junior and Senior High School of her home town, Mangum, Oklahoma.

"I sailed from New York harbor June 21," her letter says, "and landed at Liverpool, England, July 1. I toured England pretty thoroughly, visiting the Shakespeare country, Chester, Canterbury, and London. Spent two weeks in London visiting friends and of course went to the interesting landmarks.

"There I joined my tour. We crossed the English Channel over to the Hook of Holland and on to Amsterdam, The Hague, the Dead Cities of Holland, and other Dutch villages. Holland is surely the land of flowers and color.

"We boarded a train from Amsterdam to Cologne, Germany. Took the trip up the Rhine to Mainz, then to Munich. From Munich I went to Oberammergau to the 'Passion Play.' That was a most delightful trip as we stayed in the homes of the villagers for three days—most interesting to observe their customs and ways of living.

"Switzerland is truly 'the playground of the world.' I enjoyed seeing the sunset glow on the Jungfrau glacier while at Interlaken, also an all-day trip up Eiger glacier. Other side trips at Lucerne proved most enjoyable.

"Going through the Simplon tunnel, we arrived at Venice and toured Italy thoroughly, visiting Milan, Florence, Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Sorrento, Isle of Capri — went through the Blue Grotto, Pisa and Genoa. We spent almost three weeks there.

"Then on to Nice, Marseilles and gay Paris. France was the least attractive of any of the countries to me. We were five days in Paris. We sailed from Cherbourg August 23 on the steamship Lapland.

"On our trip back we were caught in the bowl of a hurricane that lasted for twelve hours. It was certainly a thrilling experience to see a storm at sea, but I should not like another. I landed at New York September 2."

Miss Johnson writes that her younger sister is considering coming to Lindenwood next fall.

Four Classes Choose

Rejoice and be happy! The elections are all over! What elections? Why, the elections of the presidents and officers of the classes. Everything has been decided and settled; and really the most corking girls have been chosen.

The seniors after much deep and serious thought have chosen Marjorie Florence of Roodhouse, Ill., for their leader, which is another proof that the wisdom of seniors is not merely a myth. Mary Louise Wardley, Margaret Cobb, and Frances Blair will act as vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively.

The sophs. and juniors evidently recognize a good thing when they have it, for both of the girls elected as presidents held this office for their class last year. Dollie Kircher of St. Louis, Mo., will be the ringleader for the sophs., and Lois McKeehan, of Hot Springs, Ark., our own "Shing," was unanimously re-elected president for the juniors. The other officers of that class are Eleanor Eldredge, Madeline Johnson, and Virginia Green. And, by the way, that little town of Belton, Mo., must be a big banking center, because both the treasurer of the senior and junior class claim it as their home town. Velma Olson, of St. Louis, is the sophomore vice-president; Mary Ethel Burke, secretary, and Agnes Grover, treasurer.

The freshman class is the largest and was the last to organize, but they certainly did accomplish the task brilliantly. Helen Teter of El Dorado, Kan., Ruth's (A. B. 1930) little sister, was chosen president of that much abused class. Ellen Jennings was elected vice-president, Jeanne Warfield, secretary, and Frances Datesman holds the office of secretary. Now that all the big campaigns and elections are over, plans for the good times of the year are the next thing in order.

Mrs. George Coolidge (Bessie McNary, B. S., 1927) is teaching afternoon and evening classes in Home Economics at the St. Louis Y. W. C. A. with great success. Her winning of one of the Nellie Don prizes for dress designing will be remembered.

The first faculty recital of the season was given on the night of October 6, in Roemer Auditorium. Miss Eva Englehart, pianist; Miss Dorothy Detweiler, soprano, who is new in the music faculty, and Miss Esther Rhodes, made up a delightful program.

The Art Class has organized, with Melba Garrett, president, and Betty Leek, Lucille Lynn and Jane Tomlinson filling the other offices. Miss Linneman took the girls in to the St. Louis Art Museum on a recent Saturday, to see American contemporary paintings on exhibit there.

St. Louis Club Honored

It is reflected honor on the St. Louis Lindenwood College Club, that Mrs. Arthur J. Krueger, recently president of the club, has been appointed Chairman of Education for the Eighth District of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs.

* * * *

Lindenwood College Club of New York City, please notice! Miss Margaret Roberts (1924-26, Lindenwood A. A.), formerly of Springfield, Mo., writes to the Bulletin that she will attend the New York School of Social Work this winter, and she wants to get in touch with the New York girls. She will make her home in Brooklyn at 354 Ninety-third street.

Singing Still Better

"Angel voiced" Dorothy Gartner, as Linden Leaves of 1930 characterized this Lindenwood Bachelor of Music of last June, is advancing her fame as a vocalist, one learns from the Chillicothe (Ohio) press. Miss Gartner's rendition of the "Shadow Song," from the opera "Dinorah," won her first place over 29 Columbus (Ohio) singers in an Atwater Kent radio audition, early in October. "The honor is all the greater," says the Scioto Gazette, "because the judges were unanimous in their decision. Her technique was judged to be faultless, especially in the point of her trilling."

She is soon to sing in the State finals, over WAIU.

* * * *

Mrs. R. W. Trotter, of 135 South Dennis street, Decatur, Ill., formerly Mrs. Warren George of Demopolis, Ala. (Levenia Horne, 1907-09), visited the college early in October. She was married to Mr. Trotter last April.

Mrs. Donald Walker (Carmen Lee Neber, 1927-29) of 225 Main street, Parkway Apartments, Aurora, Ill., says, "I surely enjoy reading the Bulletin."

* * * *

Births

Lindenwood has a very deep interest in little Margot Dee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kansteiner, of Overland, Mo. Her mother, the former Cora Mary Wallenbrock, honor graduate A. B. 1926 after a four years' residence at Lindenwood, taught in the college for a couple of years, and was for one year editor of the Bulletin.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Long, of 1208 Woodland Drive, St. Louis, send dainty cards announcing the coming of Jessie Ann, on September 30. Mrs. Long was Jessie Schaper (1922-24) of Washington, Mo., whose sister is an honored member of Lindenwood's faculty.

"Announcing the arrival of Lucy," says the small card attached with white ribbon to that of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Merle K. Bennett, of Wichita, Kan., with the date June 7. Mrs. Bennett was formerly Gertrude Wallrich (1923-25). She received the B. Mus. degree, and was secretary here of Alpha Mu Mu, honorary music fraternity. The Bennetts' residence is at 155 North Roosevelt.

A minister's son is little Robert Willmans Newell, whose advent on September 5 is announced by his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Paul D. Newell (Mildred Willmans, 1925-27). They have removed from Little Rock, Ark., their former home, to Alpine, Texas, where they are now living.
