Peter Carlos, LUTV Station Manager and Associate Professor of Communications at Lindenwood University, has directed a short film titled Gravity that will be featured on Tuesdays throughout September on a local television show called Frames. The series airs on HEC-TV, the area's largest producer of education, arts, and cultural television programming.

"The film is about a guy who is robbed by his friend from high school," Carlos said. "Later, he and this friend have a talk, which leads to a confession. Then there's the ending that's a surprise, so I can't say what happens, but it's a real crowd pleaser."

Carlos cast both current and former Lindenwood students in the movie, as well as his son, Alex, who will be a freshman at the University this fall. His colleague Ben Scholle, Department Chair and Associate Professor of Communications, assisted in the filming.

Gravity was also submitted this summer to the Whitaker St. Louis Filmmakers Showcase, an annual presentation of the nonprofit Cinema St. Louis organization. It was well received, and Carlos won the award for best director of a short dramatic film.

Carlos' interview and a screening of his short film will air at 8 p.m. on Sept. 4, 11, 18, and 25 on HEC-TV. Both the interview and the film will also be available online at www.hectv.org.

Did You Know?

Did you know that a Lindenwood alum served as the first female president of the American Chemical Society? In 1978, Dr. Anna Harrison served as president of one of the largest and oldest associations of chemists in the United States.

O'Neal Selected as June Employee of the Month

Kate O'Neal of Institutional Advancement has been selected as June's Employee of the Month.

O'Neal has been a silent, hard-working leader in the IA office for more than a decade. She recently stepped up for Lindenwood in a big way by serving from February through mid-July as Interim Vice President for Institutional Advancement.

"Kate is professional, insightful, and very much a team player," said her nominator. "She always puts Lindenwood first in everything she does."

As Director of Advancement Services, O'Neal's duties include managing the office staff, managing donations, and frequently dealing with donors and alums.

"I am shocked," O'Neal said Monday after learning of the honor. "Lindenwood is my school. It's my job. And it's in my heart."

O'Neal has been employed at Lindenwood since May of 2001.
