Calhoun to Lead LU-Belleville Radio Station

March 18, 2013
Volume 6, Issue 15

Tom Calhoun has been named Director of Radio Operations at Lindenwood-University-Belleville. The veteran broadcaster assumed the role after several months of collaborating with University administrators on the facility within the school's new Communications Department.

"I started nine months ago helping oversee the construction of the LYNK radio station and I've programmed over a thousand pieces of music into our automation system," Calhoun said. "I'm currently managing station operations, and when I finish my master's degree in September the plan is to begin teaching as well."

Calhoun brings to the role more than four decades of experience in the broadcast industry. He's been the arena announcer for the St. Louis Blues National Hockey League team for the past 25 years and is also the stadium announcer of the Gateway Grizzlies minor league baseball club. He's hosted a number of commercial radio shows over the years on WIBV, KXOX, KTRS, KMOX, and WIL.

"Tom's leadership and experience, along with his dedication in assisting and developing the skills of our students, has made him a perfect fit within the University community," said Jerry Bladdick, Vice President of LU-Belleville. "He is so passionate about helping others and growing our program, I could not think of a better person to help the University launch this exciting and innovative educational opportunity."

Calhoun said the LYNK station can be streamed through LU-Belleville's website and is also carried on the University's St. Charles-based KCLC HD 3 signal. He called his position as head of the new station a "dream job" and said he's looking forward to helping students become proficient in all aspects of broadcasting.

"I really enjoy the enthusiasm of the young people who come in here with

Did You Know?

Did you know that during the Great Depression, in order to help Lindenwood survive the economic downturn, the faculty and staff took a 20 percent reduction in pay? That was in 1932. In 1934, they took an additional 30 percent cut. After World War II, salaries steadily increased once again.

chance to make their dreams come true. We want to make sure they have all the skills they need to do whatever job is thrown at them.”

Mangels Addresses Professional Women’s Alliance

Susan Mangels, PhD, Vice President for Institutional Advancement, served as guest speaker for the Professional Women’s Alliance (PWA) on March 6 at the Ritz-Carlton in St. Louis, Mo. Her presentation, “Does Balance Matter? The Relationship Between Work-Life Balance and Success for Executive Women,” was part of the organization’s ongoing Women of Distinction Speaker Series.

Mangel’s address offered criteria to the 100 women in attendance that they could apply to their own career paths. She also discussed important factors to consider in the facilitation of success at work and harmony in life.

“PWA is a diverse and vibrant organization of professional women from across all industries and it was a delight to speak to such an engaging group,” Mangels said. “It was great to see the many commonalities across executive women’s experiences and to hear about the diverse ways they seek to establish an effective work-life balance.

“Whenever I speak and share my research, I always feel that I learn so much from those in the audience and from their responses!” she said.

Patrick Walker to Present at Lindenwood in April

Patrick Walker, JD, MBA, Associate Professor of Nonprofit Administration in the School of Human Services, will deliver a presentation in April at Lindenwood University through the 2012-2013 Nonprofit Professional Development Series. He will deliver the address, “Legal, Regulatory, & Governance Best Practices: Critical Governance Insight for Social Entrepreneurs, Nonprofit Advocates, and Other Catalysts Who Work to Change the World,” from 3:30 to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, April 10, in the Memorial Arts Building’s Latzer Hall.

During the seminar, Walker will outline the evolution of managerial and legal insights used in decision-making processes among nonprofit organizations. He will discuss issues regarding compliance, conflicts of interest, and corporate legal liability.

Walker is a first generation college graduate, professor, and lawyer with more than 15 years of demonstrated expertise in educational and organizational leadership, governance, compliance, and program management and assessment. His research interests include interdisciplinary approaches to small business and nonprofit matchmaking, and his work has been published in several management and law journals and presented at various industry conferences.

The cost to attend the seminar is $15 in advance or $25 at the door if space permits. To register, contact Julie Turner, Associate Professor and Chair of Nonprofit Administration, at (636) 949-4652 or jturner@lindenwood.edu.
