Past topics have included conflict management, positive leadership, leading change, keeping members motivated, event planning 101, and more.

Be as creative as you like. These are helpful for students to gain valuable leadership skills, but also meet requirements for the Elevate Leadership Certification and student organization tier requirements.

Q2 MOMENTS

Registrar, Christine Hannar and Immigration Specialist, Roudina Thomsen

The family friend of a student who passed away reached out to the bookstore to purchase a diploma frame and asked about getting a copy of the diploma. The family wanted to be able to display the diploma at the funeral. Word got to Chris Hannar and Roudina Thomsen that this request had been made, and they printed a diploma in-house and sent it to the family via FedEx the very same day. While the integrity of our academics is a high priority, Academic Services consistently shows this kind of service rooted in empathy and compassion.

Assistant Production Manager, Tony Elliott and Production Manager, Brian Bird

I would like to recognize Brian Bird and Tony Elliott for assisting me at the Convocation ceremony. They helped set out 40 chairs for one of the break out rooms. They were very flexible to allow us to continue to use the main theater for awards. They stepped up big time to make sure the event was successful so the students and their families had an enjoyable experience!

Supervisor, Information Technology Help Desk, Tom Falls

My office is temporarily in Spellmann 4085. Not sure of the procedures for copying, I wandered downstairs to the Copy Center. Tom Falls was there, and as he has done with other IT issues, he dropped everything and made my 47 multi-paged copies, and explained the procedure for the future. Grateful for the Q2 spirit that is widespread in IT.

Associate Professor of Religion, Rev. Dr. Nichole Torbitzky

Dr. Torbitzky sent out a message regarding the start of the Holy month of Ramadan outlining the religious practices Muslims partake in. In her message she explained how the fasting can be physically and mentally difficult and requested faculty members to work with their Muslim students. This message was very heart warming for me as a Muslim.
