Convocation to Honor Decade

COMMEMORATION OF THE ROEMERS' FIRST TEN YEARS AT LINDENWOOD

BY order of the Board of Directors, alumnae and friends will join with the students and faculty of Lindenwood, in celebrating "Roemer Day," Monday, September 29, just after school opens. This is to be a formal recognition of the tenth anniversary of President and Mrs. Roemer in their service for "the Newer Lindenwood."

To be exact, the tenth anniversary occurred May 12, 1924, but everyone knows that all the limelight of that season was needed to shine upon May Queens and honor graduates and commencement speakers. Therefore the Board asked rather that the first Convocation of the school year, a time of plasticity and open-mindedness (when nobody is worrying about "exams") be devoted to this observance. A suitable program will be presented, in charge of the Vice-President of the Board, the Rev. David M. Skilling, D. D., pastor of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church.

BIOGRAPHY OF DR. ROEMER

John L. Roemer, the subject of this sketch, claims nativity in the same State as the present Democratic candidate for President, John W. Davis. He was a son of the late John Roemer, a dry goods merchant of Wheeling, W. Va. Mrs.

Roemer, his mother, had been Miss Sarah Donel of Ohio. There were eleven children in the Roemer family, of whom Lindenwood's future president was the seventh.

After attending the public schools of Wheeling, from which he graduated, he became a student at Linsley Institute in Wheeling, and then went on to the University of West Virginia, graduating with the degree A. B. His training for the ministry was at the Western Theological Seminary, at Alleghany, Pa., of which he is an alumnus.

HIS MARRIAGE

Before going to his first pastorate, which was at Fairview Presbyterian Church, Washington County, Pa., he married Miss Lillie Pickenpugh of Morgantown, W. Va., daughter of a merchant of that city.

The South Presbyterian Church of Cleveland, Ohio, extended him a call, and for eight years he was minister to that congregation.

He was next pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Chillicothe, Ohio, in a community widely known for its wealth and culture. More authors to the square inch, it is said, have come out of Chillicothe than from any other city of its size in the United States. Here among Presbyterians were the Woodrows, relatives of President Wilson, on the distaff side.

Since Presidents are being mentioned, it is an interesting fact concerning the late President Harding that Dr. Roemer gave him his first ecclesiastical lift, as it were, into higher things in politics, for it was the Chillicothe pastor (Dr. Roemer), who offered the opening prayer at the first political meeting when Warren Gamaliel Harding aspired to the people's favor; Mr. Harding was then candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship of Ohio.

CALLED TO ST. LOUIS

Tyler Place Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, which was a small, struggling, new congregation in a new community, had several energetic and ambitious men among its elders. They had heard of Dr. Roemer's preaching and administrative powers, and they determined to pry him out of his pleasant surroundings and bring him to this pioneer post, of which they had fine hopes in prospect. The Chillicothe Presbytery said "No." They were determined to retain their First Church pastor. The St. Louis Tyler Place elders went on to Chillicothe and made a special plea. It was only then that he was released.

Under Dr. Roemer's pastoral care for the next nine years, Tyler Place Church grew from small membership to be one of the largest Presbyterian churches in the city. A Sunday-School building was added, a new pipe-organ installed, and the church's benevolences balanced well its greatly increased home budget.

LARGER GIFTS FOR LINDENWOOD

There was a stirring in the tree-tops. It was "the year the war began." People were to begin giving with a generosity which had never been known before. Col.

James Gay Butler had a prescience of this coming change, and it was one of the good things ordained for Lindenwood that just at this hour the college needed a new president.

Rev. George Frederick Ayers, D. D., Dr. Roemer's predecessor and intimate friend, had died at Lindenwood in October, 1913. Col. Butler, who had long been a member of the Board of Directors, selected Dr. Roemer as his choice for Lindenwood's new president, and he promised that Lindenwood should profit financially if Dr. Roemer would assume its leadership. This suggestion was warmly seconded by the late Dr. S. J. Niccolls, of the Second Presbyterian Church, Col. Butler's pastor, and long-time president of Lindenwood's Board.

Col. Butler's slogan, "the useful life," has long since become inwrought in the sayings of Lindenwood. He regarded himself as an "investor" when he gave his benefactions. He said he had decided to "translate his money into life." He was a capitalist with millions, but he didn't desire to die rich, with nothing else to his credit. He founded the Industrial Loan Company in St. Louis, one of the very great charities which help people out of their debts and help them to help themselves. His giving of millions to Lindenwood was not simply a climactic act, for the sake of a "thrill." It was exactly in line with his steady pursuance of a principle of sharing. He gave allotted portions of his income regularly, in generous measure, to many charities, and to education. But in Lindenwood he saw an opportunity for the use of large funds, with good returns in character. That was why he "got back of it," as he said. Almost anyone, he thought, could make money, but it took a wise man to administer it.

So on May 12, 1914, Dr. and Mrs. Roemer came to Lindenwood to live, making their first home in Jubilee Hall, which was then a new building.

"INVESTING IN CHARACTER"

Butler Hall, the dormitory just north of Jubilee, started in 1914 and dedicated in the spring of 1915, was an earnest of Col. Butler's intention to have "a larger Lindenwood." This building caused much excitement among the students. It contained a Natatorium. Everybody was to learn to swim, which they did, and are still doing today. Col. Butler and his wife, the late Mrs. Margaret Leggat Butler, are kept in the memory of all by life-size portraits hung in the parlors of Butler Hall. Mrs. Butler, even after her husband's death and up to her own, had a personal affection for the girls of Lindenwood. She was fond of music, and girls from Margaret Hall (the music studio building named for Mrs. Butler) went often to her sick-room to sing to her and console her in her painful illness.

Butler Hall is now occupied entirely by seniors, who feel honored to call this historic structure their home.

Then came a still larger building—Niccolls Hall—the dormitory to the extreme southwest, which Col. Butler named for his pastor. Dr. Niccolls had died in 1915, and the new hall was started the next year. It carried out Col. Butler's plans, but he himself passed away (1916) before Niccolls Hall was dedicated, February 17, 1917.

"ROEMER HALL"

Still planning up to his death, Col. Butler had designed to build a very large building for administrative purposes. His legacies provided the funds, and the building was started in 1920. It is known that "Roemer Hall" is the name which

Col. Butler would have favored, but the direct cause of its being so named was the unanimous petition of the student body. Herein one is reminded of the story which comes down from the state-ly reredos, with its statues of saints, which stands, carved in exquisite Caen stone, in Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, high and wide above the altar. Harry Hems, the sculptor, of Exeter, England, had wrought the many statutes and their setting, from Patriarchs and Apostles on down to Bishop Kemper and others of early America. He had made, too, a statue of Bishop Tuttle, then in his prime. This statue, Harry Hems said, should be put in the crypt until the good Bishop died, and then it should have a place in the reredos.

But the people of Missouri said, "No. We won't have our Bishop's statue hid away in the cellar. We want it to be seen." Harry Hems' protests were swept away, and the Bishop's statue at once had its place, to be maintained for many a year, while the Bishop continued to live. At Lindenwood there was no Britisher to declare, "It isn't done," and so the students had their wish, and the building was named, with approval of the Board, for the living President.

Roemer Hall was built at a cost of $500,000. It was dedicated October 20, 1921. Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College, made the dedicatory address. It is a four-story building, north of all the others. The first floor is given over to administrative offices, including the library and an auditorium with a seating capacity of about 700. Lindenwood has its own post office, the College being a station, and this is one of the activities in the basement of Roemer Hall. There are 23 classrooms in the building, four lecture rooms with Democratic or Republican?

There are likely to be lively times on the campus in politics up to Election Day. The Republican National Committee cast wistful eyes toward Lindenwood as early as May 10, when letters were written from the College Bureau, seeking to enroll students in the "organization." Commencement came soon after, and nothing was accomplished, but the matter will be broached again. Nor will Democratic committees be idle, for Lindenwood contains many Southern girls, and it has sometimes been thought in the past that Democrats were the more numerous. Students of Lindenwood, when it was a junior college, used to be too young to handle the ballot, even had the sex been permitted to do so, but a census of the last senior class showed an average age of a fraction over 21. Several of the girls had even reached the tremendous age of 23. So the zest of a national campaign will be felt in the air, and students promise to go just as far as the powers will permit, in the way of bonfires, speeches and parades.

Homes of Their Own

Except for the house-mothers, few if any of the college instructors will lodge in the dormitories in 1924-25. This is in pursuance of a purpose which has been growing for several years—to give teachers homes of their own. Such an arrangement is generally preferred by the faculty, as a different atmosphere refreshes them after their work in the classroom. Popular teachers, when near at hand, are apt to be overwhelmed with visits from their loving satellites, but under the new conditions, it will be quite an event to be invited to a teacher's home, and far from staying too long, visitors may politely follow the mode in Edward Everett Hale's "Sybaris," of looking at their watches every 11 minutes and making "an honest effort" to go.

Another Birthday Party

Precedent for Lindenwood's ten-year celebration of President and Mrs. Roemer's incumbency was given in another 10-year birthday party, a very big and cosmopolitan party, the celebration on August 15 on the Isthmus of Panama, of ten years' existence of the Canal, which has now become so great a factor in the world's commerce that it is difficult to realize it has not always existed. Toll receipts for the last year were more than $24,000,000, in which the heaviest tonnage was Western Canadian wheat, shipped through Vancouver. It will always be a calendar mark to remember, that "the Newer Lindenwood" began in the same year as the Panama Canal.

Ending Her Furlough

Miss Catherine Sutherland, who taught music at Lindenwood several years ago, and whose mother, Mrs. George W. Sutherland (Olla Barnett), of 3815 Botanical avenue, was a Lindenwood alumna, is finishing her furlough in this country, and will soon go back to China to her missionary work. Miss Sutherland spoke in Markham Memorial Church on August 31. She has spent much of the year in special studies at Columbia University, and was at the Y. W. C. A. camp at Lake Geneva, Wis., this summer.

Dr. Knight's Widow Dies

Remembered at Lindenwood in the Nineties

A generation ago, from 1893 to 1898, Mrs. Anna M. Knight, who has recently died at Omaha, Neb., was identified with Lindenwood's advancement, both as a personality whom the girls of that time still bear in loving memory, and also through the work of her husband, the late Rev. William Sims Knight, D. D., president of Lindenwood for the five years noted. Their daughters were well known to Lindenwood, Miss Augusta Knight having been head of the Art Department while her father was president. Miss Ella Knight was a student, graduating from the literary department in 1895.

Dr. Knight succeeded Dr. Irwin as president of Lindenwood, after an 18 years' pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of Carthage, Mo., where he was one of the founders of the Carthage Collegiate Institute. After his five-year term of service at Lindenwood he went back to Carthage, this time to be president of the Collegiate Institute. He died there in November, 1905. The remains of Mrs. Knight were brought home to Carthage, and her funeral service was held at the First Presbyterian Church of Carthage, Monday afternoon, July 28.

FROM ONE CARTHAGE TO ANOTHER

Mrs. Knight was formerly Miss Anna Mack of Carthage, Ill., where Dr. Knight held his first pastorate for four years, from 1866 to 1870. They were married in 1871, and by a coincidence in names of cities, came four years later to Carthage, Mo., where her husband's long pastorate began in 1875.

A son, Mr. D. M. Knight of Parkville, Mo., and two daughters, Misses

Augusta and Ella Knight, who are teachers in Omaha, Neb., survive her, as also her brother and sister living in Carthage, Ill. Mrs. Knight was about 71 years of age, and was prominent in the Omaha Women's Club, giving particular attention to citizenship and Americanization work. She had made her home in Omaha since 1905.

Rev. Dr. James D. McCaughtry, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Carthage, Mo., officiated in Carthage, at the funeral, a previous service having been held in Omaha, Saturday afternoon, July 26. Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Knight and their little son, of Parkville, Mo., and Misses Augusta and Ella Knight of Omaha, accompanied the body to Carthage. She was buried in Park Cemetery, Carthage, beside the grave of her husband.

Miss Brennan, Librarian

Miss Wintress Brennan, of North of Ireland ancestry, is to be the new librarian at Lindenwood. She comes from experience both in college libraries and in city libraries. One of these posts was the Bailey Branch at Gary, Ind. She has served in the Kankakee (Ill.) Public Library, and since 1921 has been General Assistant and Order Assistant at the University of Illinois Library. Miss Brennan received the degree B. A. in 1914 from the University of Illinois, and B. L. S. from the same university in 1917, having attended the Library School. She arrived at Lindenwood August 19, and entered at once upon the classification of the new works which have arrived during the summer months.

raised floors, also laboratories for Botany, Chemistry, Biology, and the different branches of Physics. There is an Art Department of several rooms and foyer, and a fully equipped Domestic Science Department, both as to housekeeping and clothing. The building is fully provided with instructors' offices on the various floors.

At about the same time, provision was made for the remodeling of one of the smaller buildings into "The Gables," a bungalow with artistic porches, for the residence of President and Mrs. Roemer.

Last of the buildings is Irwin Hall, which will be ready for 84 students when school opens.

LINDENWOOD'S PURPOSES

Since President Roemer's accession the college has expended $1,500,000 for buildings and improvements, including the new Irwin Hall. The campus has been enlarged from 34 acres to 138 acres. The educational plan has grown from that of a secondary school to a college of the first rank. Lindenwood is a member of the Missouri College Union and of the North Central Association, Department of Higher Institutions of Learning, and is accredited for four-year college work. The number of students has quadrupled in the ten years.

"The real purpose of Lindenwood College," says President Roemer, "is the education of young women for a life of usefulness in the home, society and state. In addition to the work done in the regular course in the liberal arts, with the degree B. A., the girls are trained in business, in household arts, they are prepared to teach school or to enter journalism, in the courses looking to the degree B. S."

TITLES AND DEGREES

"Who's Who" records various honors that have been conferred upon President Roemer. He has received the degree L.L. D. from Westminster College and also from the Missouri Valley College; and the degree D. D., from Westminster. These followed his college and seminary graduating degrees, A. B. from the University of West Virginia, and B. D. at the Western Theological Seminary.

Dr. Roemer is listed in "Who's Who" as a 32nd degree Mason, and a member of the University and Missouri Athletic Clubs, St. Louis, the Sunset Club, Chillicothe, Ohio; the National Historical Society, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the State Historical Societies of both Virginia and Missouri, and the Chambers of Commerce of St. Louis and of St. Charles.

Home From Des Moines

A luncheon in honor of President John L. Roemer of Lindenwood College, was given Monday by about thirty-five former Lindenwood students, at the Harris-Emery tea room at Des Moines, Ia. These hostesses, with Miss Helen Rutledge of Early, Ia., presiding, were representative of the recently organized Iowa Lindenwood College Club, which has fifty-six members. Dr. Roemer was guest at the home of Miss Dorothy Hall and her parents in Des Moines. Others present from the administrative staff of the college were Mr. Guy C. Motley and Mr. C. A. Blocher. Miss Rebecca Louise Clark of Adel, Ia., secretary of the club, was one of those taking a leading part in the entertainment, which will inaugurate plans for Lindenwood girls in Iowa to have a part in the Mary Easton Sibley memorial scholarship.

Civil Service in House-Mothers

Miss Edna Hough, who has been head of Sibley Hall, which is the oldest dormitory, is now to be taken to the newest dormitory, Irwin Hall. With her love for flowers, and her skill in making every little bud and blossom thrive, Miss Hough may be envisioned in an environment of roses, jonquils and fragrant hyacinths which will spring forth from bare soil at her bidding next season, around the porches of Irwin Hall. Students agree that no one is better fitted to preside over this new dormitory de luxe.

A new house-mother has been requisitioned for Sibley, in Mrs. Mary B. Wenger of Cairo, Ill. Mrs. Wenger was educated at the University of West Virginia, at Morgantown, and more recently has been house-mother there for the Alpha chapter of Pi Beta Phi. Coming thus from a fraternity house, where much that is romantic may happen, the new house-mother will doubtless be well prepared for the traditional, eerie Hallow-E'en at Sibley Hall, when Mrs. Sibley, in costume of 100 years ago, is supposed to walk to the dining room at midnight, carrying a candle.

Cards have been received announcing the advent of Hugh McElroy Chalfant, July 13, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chalfant of 1221 Ford street, Boise, Idaho. Mr. Chalfant is a brother of Helen Moore Chalfant, A. A. '19 (Mrs. Ezra B. Hinshaw), and their father, Rev. Charles L. Chalfant, D. D., of Pittsburg, has often given talks at Lindenwood.

Lindenwood's First Portia

Governor Makes Miss Lois Dale Judge

Winning her appointment in the face of two other strong aspirants, Miss Lois Dale, 1907-09, has been appointed County and Probate Judge at her home in Texarkana, Tex., where she has been practicing law for five or six years. She was a brilliant and popular girl at Lindenwood, a member of the junior college sorority, Sigma Iota Chi, and a graduate from the Seminary Department in 1909. She went on to Tulane University, New Orleans, completing the law course there, with the degree LL. B. She has occasionally visited Lindenwood, and as "Judge Dale" she will be doubly welcome in the future.

The Dallas (Tex.) News, in a dispatch from Texarkana, has this to say about Miss Dale's appointment, under date July 29:

Miller County was given the distinction of having the first woman County and Probate Judge in Arkansas, when Gov. McRae Monday appointed Miss Lois Dale of Texarkana as the successor of Judge C. W. Nolan, who died about a week ago.

Miss Dale is a lawyer and has been a member of the Texarkana bar for four or five years, and for the last two years has been serving as county probation officer. She is regarded as a very brilliant young woman and is an excellent orator.

Gov. McRae appointed her over two male applicants, both of whom had held the office heretofore and whose friends made strenuous efforts in their behalf.

Announcement comes from Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Mowry (Lillian Stewart, graduate, Seminary Department, 1914), telling of the coming of a little daughter, Marion Louise, at their home at Gallatin, Mo., May 25.

Weddings

Announcement cards have been received from Mrs. Arthur H. Meyer of Kansas City, announcing the marriage of her grand-daughter, Miss Marjorie Leigh Wyman, 1922-23, to Mr. William Henry Murphy of St. Louis, on Thursday, July 10, at Kansas City. They are to be at home after August 1, at 3 Princeton avenue, St. Louis. Society columns of the newspapers in Kansas City and St. Louis featured this wedding, and in the Post-Dispatch, following the formal announcement, was this paragraph: "They spent their honeymoon at the country home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Murphy, 'Marydale,' Kingsville, Mo. The bride, who was educated at Lindenwood, is well known in St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Murphy recently returned from Honolulu."

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Ellis Buck of Monmouth, Ill., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred Buck, 1920-21, to Mr. Alden Williams Coffman, Friday evening, July 18, at the home of her parents in Monmouth.

Miss Virginia Shull, 1922-23, has recently been married to Mr. A. R. Walter, and will reside at 1313 Nebraska Avenue, Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. R. H. H. Hampton has sent cards announcing the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ruth Hampton, to Dr. F. H. Washburn, Tuesday, July 29, at the Hampton residence in Carterville, Ill. The bride was a graduate of the Home Economics Department in 1915, and a member of the sorority, Eta Upsilon Gamma. After leaving Lindenwood, she taught in the grade schools, spent one year as a student at the University of Illinois, and three summer terms at the Southern Illinois Normal School.

In the society columns of the Oklahoma News appears an account of the wedding, Monday, July 21, of Miss Ruth Bass, 1921-22, and Mr. Fabian Luder. The ceremony occurred at Yukon, Okla., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bass, with her sister, Miss Eunice Bass, as her maid of honor, the other bridesmaids being Misses Jane Hull of Zanesville, Ohio, and Florence Sanger of Drumright, Okla. Mr. and Mrs. Luder will reside in Okeene, Okla., where the bridegroom is associated with his father in business.

Announcement is sent of the marriage in San Bernardino, Cal., of Miss Orlo Theola Lambert, 1921-23, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lambert of Estherville, Ia., to Mr. Charles Everett Ridley, on June 20. Their future home will be at 1231 West 50th Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

After Fifty Years

A few girls of 1871-72 were posted by the July Bulletin for identification. Miss Pem Hibler, a student of that year, has been traced through the kindness of her cousin, Mrs. J. B. Brouster (Emma McElhinney, graduate of '75), of Creve Coeur. Long ago Miss Hibler became Mrs. Jessie Hogg. After living for years in St. Louis County, she and her family removed to Springfield, Mo., where she lives now, with her four children, from which city it is hoped that she may be persuaded to return for the centennial jubilee of Lindenwood in 1927, or at any earlier time, if she be so disposed.

Mrs. Berger's Bereavement

Death of Former St. Louis Banker

Mr. William E. Berger, a retired banker, whose wife (Viola Richards) has kept up her associations with Lindenwood for more than 30 years, died August 1, at the age of 62, at his home in Los Angeles, Cal., after an illness of two and one-half years, following a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Berger's original and important work in the development of the business of banking is told in the current number of the Argonaut, a magazine published in San Francisco and Los Angeles, as follows, under the caption, "Father of Up-Town Banking":

"In these days of up-town banks, it is interesting to note the passing away, in Los Angeles, of one who was responsible for the beginning of the movement in St. Louis, Mo., more than 40 years ago. William E. Berger, who died at his residence, 4216 Beverly place, Los Angeles, August 1, was a native of Lebanon, Ill., where he was born 62 years ago. His father, a physician of that city, was one of the Carl Schurz liberal Germans, who crossed the Atlantic in the middle of the century, and made such good records in this country in the succeeding 20 years.

"In 1891, finding himself free to act, owing to the reconstruction of the downtown St. Louis bank where he had received his training, William E. Berger resolved to start a bank more than twenty blocks from the center, on Jefferson Avenue of that city, which he named the Jefferson Bank. To the new institution he devoted all his energies and made it a success, but in 1908 he broke down under the strain and went to Southern California.

"His widow is a sister of Mrs. James Main Dixon, whose husband, Prof. Dixon, and the ex-banker enjoyed golf and lawn bowling together for many years.

In the winter of 1921-22, Mr. Berger suffered a stroke of apoplexy, which confined him to his couch until his death.

"He was a kindly, genial man, and bore his affliction patiently.

"His only brother, Albert L. Berger, is a well-known lawyer in Kansas City."

ONE OF THREE SISTERS

Mrs. Berger was the first president of the Los Angeles Lindenwood College Club, continuing in that office for several years. Her schooling at Lindenwood continued through five or six years, in the '80s. She was the youngest of three sisters, all of whom were wards of Dr. Marshall, and all attended Lindenwood. The other two were graduates.

Miss Clara Bell Richards, graduate of the Literary Department in 1882, now Mrs. James Main Dixon, is probably the only Lindenwood alumna who has been presented at the Imperial Court of Japan. She was eight years a resident of Japan, and taught in the Imperial Conservatory of Music at Tokio. Her husband, Prof. Dixon, taught for a time at Lindenwood. He is now connected with the University of Southern California.

The other sister, Miss Ida Bell Richards, Literary Department graduate of 1885, is the wife of Mr. Eliphalet N. Wright, a brother of the widely known native Indian evangelist, the late Rev. Frank Wright of St. Louis. Their home is in Olney, Okla.

Mr. Berger leaves a family consisting of his wife and a son, Elmer Berger.

Died in Germany

Announcement has reached the college of the death at Ratzeburg, Germany, on July 10, of Mr. Carl Rakenius, husband of Alma Goebel, who attended Lindenwood about 40 years ago. Mrs. Rakenius visited the college last fall, and gave a chapel address, telling of conditions in Germany.

Kansas City Club Greet New Alumnae

Election of Officers for 1924-25

Services of the latest graduates have at once been requisitioned by the Kansas City Club, as is seen in the election of Miss Adaline Ayers, B. S. '24, to be Corresponding Secretary. It is Miss Ayers who sends the following report of the Club:

"The girls who attended Lindenwood in the last year were the guests of the Kansas City Club at its meeting in June. Miss Helen Kready of Sikeston, Mo., who was visiting Miss Mary Louise Blocher, also was present. Mrs. Overall and Miss Anthony, who were guests of the College during Commencement, gave very interesting reports of their visit.

"Mrs. Overall, who was elected President of the Inter-Club Federation, gave a complete report of the formation of the Federation and its activities for the year. Miss Anthony then made a most forceful talk, urging the Club to raise its quota for the year 1924-25.

"The annual election of officers resulted in the choice of the following:

Miss Lenore Anthony, President.

Mrs. E. B. Gray (Martha Miller), Vice-President.

Mrs. J. S. Neely (Alice Van Guild-er), Recording Secretary.

Miss Adaline Ayers, Corresponding Secretary.

Mrs. J. H. Morris, Treasurer.

Mrs. J. V. Metzger (Gladys Myers), Auditor."

Changed Addresses

Mrs. J. M. Crumpton (Lucy Simpson), in sending her new address, 1031 West Morton street, Denison, Tex., adds: "I enjoy the Bulletin very much."

Mrs. A. R. Mosley's new address is 5713 Worth street, Dallas, Tex.

Chicago Club Guests

(Sent by Mrs. Ann Whyte Gentry, Corresponding Secretary)

The July meeting of the Chicago Lindenwood Club was at the home of Mrs. Irene B. Zaring, who was assisted by Mrs. Charles Peterson and Mrs. L. E. Crandall.

We were pleased to have with us Miss Alice Linnemann who, after luncheon, spoke, as always, enthusiastically of Lindenwood.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Malcolmson, who have been in London, England, two years, are touring continental Europe with Mrs. Malcolmson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Baity and the Misses Baity of Kansas City.

Scholarships Accepted

Up to date seventeen of the girls receiving scholarships at the last commencement have accepted them and will continue their studies at Lindenwood. These honor students so far registered who represent eight different States, are as follows:

Seniors, Gertrude Bird, Davenport, Ia.; Roberta Moehlenkamp, St. Charles, Mo.; Elizabeth Arveson, Merrill, Wis.; Margaret Boss, Jackson, Mo.; Ann Podrasky, Lake Charles, La., and Sara Shomberg, Altoona, Pa.

Juniors, Grace Larson, Paxton, Ill.; Ruth Shapiro and Eunice Willbrand, both of St. Charles; and Ada Hemingway, Clinton, Ia.

Sophomores, Helen Kready, Sikeston, Mo.; Margaret Bloebaum, Paris, Tex.; Virginia Symns, Nevada, Mo.; Nadine Swope, Tulsa, Okla.; Adelaide Peabody, Fullerton, La., and Marjorie Groves, Corder, Mo.

Freshmen, Frances Stumberg (whose scholarship was in the sub-freshman department).
