REV. JOHN W. MAC IVOR, D. D.
President Board of Directors, Lindenwood College

REV. JOHN W. MAC IVOR, D. D.

We present Rev. John W. MacIvor, D. D., president of the board of directors of Lindenwood College, to you this month.

Dr. MacIvor is pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, succeeding the late Dr. Samuel J. Nicolls, who for many years was President of the Board.

In the selection of Dr. MacIvor as president, the board has placed at its head not only one of the leading pastors of one of the leading churches of the Synod, but a most capable, large-visioned, consecrated man of God to whom the Synod can look for a wise and progressive management of the large affairs now entrusted to him.

THE OPENING OF SCHOOL

The eighty-eighth year of Lindenwood College opened Thursday morning, September 12, with an enrollment of 275 students, representing twenty-three states and three foreign countries.

This number is the largest ever enrolled in the college. Every room is taken and a few girls have been temporarily placed in the infirmary. Many others applied for entrance who could not be accommodated and they have been placed on the waiting list for next year.

Owing to the large bequests made to the college during the past year, many new departments of a practical character have been added to meet the demand of the government for women to fill the positions left vacant by men who have gone to war.

The secretarial course, under the direction of Miss Lillian Allyn, is but another step toward the ideal of a useful education which has always been the aim of Lindenwood.

Courses in wartime cooking and public speaking have also been added at the request of the United States government. The cooking course, under the direction of Miss Grace Godfrey of the department of home economics, is intended to teach the girls to handle intelligently the present-day food problem.

The course in public speaking is directly under the control of the government. All materials for the course will be furnished by the federal authorities and, upon the expiration of the school year, the young women who have successfully completed the course will be given bronze buttons in recognition of their work. They will be qualified four-minute speakers. This class will be under the direction of Miss Anna Pugh, who is head of the English department of the college.

Dr. B. Kurt Stumberg is in charge of the war medical department which includes courses in physiology, hygiene, preventive medicine and first aid. Dr. Stumberg is particularly suited to this line of work as he has been an army surgeon for several years, having served in Cuba and in Panama with the United States medical department.

Owing to the large enrollment, it has been necessary to add several new teachers to the various departments. Among these are Mrs. James W. Hopkins, Miss Ethel Sykes, Miss Lucile Roberts, Miss Eleanor Mohlenkamp and Miss Pauline Weissgerber.

RECEPTION TO NEW STUDENTS

Not a single strain of the "Homesick Blues" was heard at Lindenwood College Friday evening, September 13, when the faculty entertained with a reception and dance in the gymnasium in honor of the new students.

A stunt program was arranged by Miss Willie O. Minor and Miss Lucy Proudfoot. The Darktown Singers, Misses Lena Mary Allison and Nellie Shuttee, sang a number of songs, and Miss Dorothy Vinyard followed with a Dixie jig

A playlet entitled "The Commotion Caused in the Stomach by the Things a College Girl Just Loves to Eat" was acted out by a number of students, while Miss Louise Child read the story. The following cast appeared:

Gastric Juice.....	Martha Scroggins
Chocolate Drop.....	Elizabeth Howell
Pickles.....	Elizabeth Clark
Peanuts.....	Mildred Ogle
Coca Cola.....	Willella Pierson
Ham Sandwich.....	Christine Webster
Mike Spread.....	Mary Dunwoody

The program concluded with an exhibition by Miss Dorothy Smith and Miss Adrienne Jordan and the remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse.

TRAINED LEADERS ARE NEEDED.

President Wilson in a letter to Secretary of the Interior Lane urges that young people, especially during the war, continue their education.

"I am pleased to know that, despite the unusual burdens imposed upon our people by the war, they have maintained their schools and other agencies of education so nearly at their normal efficiency," writes President Wilson. "That this should be continued throughout the war and that, in so far as the draft law will permit, there should be no falling off in attendance in elementary schools, high schools or colleges, is a matter of the very greatest importance, affecting both our strength in war and our national welfare and efficiency when the war is over. So long as the war continues there will be constant need of very large numbers of men and women of the highest and most thorough training for war service in many lines. After the war there will be urgent need not only for trained leadership in all lines of industrial, commercial, social and civic life, but for a very high average of intelligence and preparation on the part of all the people. I would therefore urge that the people continue to give generous support to their schools of all grades and that the schools adjust themselves as wisely as possible to the new conditions to the end that no boy or girl shall have less opportunity for education because of the war and that the Nation may be strengthened as it can only be through the right education of all its people."

MISS ETHEL SYKES

Because of the unprecedented demand for romantic languages this fall, a third instructor has been engaged in the French and Spanish department.

Miss Ethel Margaret Sykes, the new instructor, graduated from the University of Missouri in 1916, receiving her B. S. degree in education. Since that time she has been teaching in Poplar Bluff, her home city.

Miss Sykes will have charge of the Spanish classes, while Miss Jones and Miss Anderson will teach the courses in French,

WAR COURSE AT LINDENWOOD

Army Physician to Head New Department at Girls' College

A war course, with a war physician at the head, and a certificate for a year's study, will be offered in the curriculum of Lindenwood College in the term beginning September 12. Dr. B. Kurt Stumberg of the United States army, formerly of the chair of Histology and Pathology at Maryland University, will teach physiology and hygiene as associated with first aid, conservation of health, surgical dressings, and other war work. This course is inaugurated at the request of the Government, and is entirely new.

Electives in the war course, supervised by Miss Childs, resident graduate nurse, are so adjusted that the student may specialize along different lines. Cooking, sewing and knitting are included, as well as child welfare and sociology. Under "conservation of health," the student will take up sanitation of the home and the community and the town, and the prevention of many diseases.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch, August 28, 1918.

TRAIN GIRLS FOR WAR SERVICE

The new million dollar endowment of Lindenwood College by the late Colonel and Mrs. J. G. Butler is to be used primarily to help win the war and equip young women for the work of reconstruction abroad. A new war service course has been mapped out, and all the students it is possible to accept have enrolled. Dr. B. Kurt Stumberg, formerly an army surgeon, will have the chair of physiology and hygiene. Miss Louise Childs, graduate nurse, will be instructor and demonstrator in class clinics. In hygiene and sanitation the course will cover "conservation of health," not only for the individual, but for communities and towns. Sewing, cooking, hygiene, first aid, gymnasium and the Bible are required, while home nursing, knitting, sociology, child welfare, surgical dressing, shorthand and typewriting are electives.—The Continent.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS

The advantages a college woman may gain by becoming an active member of the Young Women's Christian Association were discussed by Miss Lucy South Proudfoot, director of the physical training department, at the first meeting of the Y. W. C. A., held Wednesday evening, September 18. Miss Proudfoot, who is new at Lindenwood this year, has formerly been associated with the Y. W. C. A. at Springfield, Mo. The program also included a solo by Miss Welcome Hayhurst and a violin number by Miss Marjorie White.

Plans for the winter's work are now being considered by the president, Miss Suzaine Brecht, and the cabinet members. A course of mission study will be given throughout the year instead of the usual weekly program and address. A social meeting will be held every two months.

The recognition meeting in honor of new members was held on Wednesday evening, October 2, in the college chapel.

FACULTY LECTURES

A series of faculty lectures discussing the different courses of instruction given at Lindenwood College and designed to assist the new students in starting their school work was given during the first two weeks of the new college year.

Dean Templin spoke on the subject of "The Woman of Today," discussing the attributes which the college girl should have to be successful and telling the students how Lindenwood hoped to help them this year.

"Ambition, gladness, industry, reliability and lovingness spell a girl," said Dean Templin. "A wet string will not stand alone, and the college girl must realize that it is necessary for her to make good in order to make the world a better place in which to live. She must form the habit of being glad, for it is much more pleasant to approach work and play happily than with a grouch. Be industrious and let the Lindenwood girls 'git up and git.'

"Be reliable and strive for honorable reliability which has no bluff in it; act naturally and be your own true self every minute. Be loving and thoughtful, for the little deeds of kindness are never forgotten. First of all, make good in college, but also bring pleasure and sunshine to others. Stop occasionally and ask yourself these two questions: "What am I here for? Am I doing it?" "

The fact that conservation of health is as important as the conservation of food, coal, clothes and other essentials was made clear by Dr. B. Kurt Stumberg, college physician, who is giving this year courses in First Aid, Conservation of Health, and Physiology. Dr. Stumberg discussed a number of communicable and infectious diseases and showed how great a progress had been made in the study of preventive medicine during the past few years.

"Women in Business" was the subject of a talk by Miss Lillian Allyn of the Secretarial Department which showed that women are rapidly taking the places of men in the business world. Miss Allyn also spoke of the woman in the home, explaining how a course in business will help housewives in the management of their homes. "Every girl should have some knowledge of business," said Miss Allyn, "so that if reverses should ever come to her, she will be able to take care of herself."

Positions open in newspaper offices and the chance a woman has in journalism were discussed by Miss Mary McMahan of the Department of Journalism. Women are now entering not only as reporters of the society page, but as department editors, special reporters, correspondents from large cities, copy readers, make-up women and as editors.

The conservation of food and what Lindenwood has been asked to conserve by the government was discussed by Miss Grace Godfrey of the Department of Home Economics, who compared the amounts of sugar, wheat, butter and other products used last year with those which would be used this year in a way which showed the girls graphically what would be expected of them by the federal food administration.

Miss Anna Fugh of the English Department spoke on "How to Study and Take Notes" and urged the girls to train themselves throughout the year for the tasks awaiting them in aiding in war work and taking the places of men who have been called into service. She then explained how to use books in looking up reference material and different methods of taking lecture notes in class.

How to use the library was explained by Miss Sarah Findley, librarian. The catalogue system, the arrangement of books on the shelves, the newspapers and periodicals on file and other matters of interest to all students and dealing with the library were discussed.

CONVOCATIONAL SERVICES

The annual convocational service of Lindenwood College was held Monday evening, September 16, in the college chapel.

The Rev. G. A. Hulbert, D. D., of St. Louis, gave the convocational address, using for his subject: "Getting a World View," and Mrs. J. W. Hopkins of St. Louis, a new member of the Lindenwood musical faculty, sang a solo, accompanied by Professor Leo C. Miller, musical director.

"The physical side of life is much more emphasized than either the moral or the spiritual life in most of our colleges today," said Dr. Hulbert. "These three—the physical, moral and spiritual orders—are the great orders in life. But the physical laws are taught more thoroughly and every student learns that they cannot be defied. No more can a man disobey physical laws and be free than he can defy the law of gravity. Obedience gives freedom, disobedience gives boundaries."

Dr. Hulbert, in speaking of the moral order, said that these laws must be obeyed in the same manner as are those of the physical order. "They are just as universal and unchangeable as those of the physical life; in fact, they are even more unchangeable often than the physical laws 'for what you are speaks so much louder than what you say, I can't hear you.'"

"The college man and the college girl are often spoken of as broad minded; in fact, that is one of the main things for which they are sent to college," declared Dr. Hulbert, "but let us remember that we should not only have breadth of mind but depth as well. Let there be a depth to your morals and to your character."

The spiritual order, he continued, is the last great order in the program of life, and the Christian religion combines this with the moral order.

"To be a full-grown man or woman, you must accept all of the orders of the program of Christ: physical, moral, intellectual and spiritual. The denominational college fits its young people better for this program than any other. It gives a principle to each student and without a principle no man can go through this world happily. It teaches that the greatest themes in music, in art and in literature are Christian themes.

"Christ came to master life. He paid the price and so must you. Master the program of the Christ, for His is the greatest of all," concluded Dr. Hulbert.

Dr. R. S. Calder, college pastor, gave the invocation and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. E. W. Ely of the Jefferson Street Presbyterian Church of St. Charles.

THE LETTER BOX

St. Louis, Mo.

"How I do treasure all memories of dear old Lindenwood. While I attended in 1885 we had but the one large building, and now to see to what vast proportions it has grown! I am so proud of it and of the dear, good, wonderful friends you have had in Dr. Niccolls and James Gay Butler."

MRS. PAUL THOMAS.

611 S. Norton Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

"I am more than pleased to hear of Lindenwood's great prosperity, as the many years I spent within its walls are associated with dear and happy memories and I shall always be pleased to hear of its advance and anything that I can do to aid that, I shall be happy to do."

VIOLA RICHARDS BERGER.

112 N. Grand Ave., Long Beach, Cal.

"We had such a delightful time at the Lindenwood banquet which was given in Los Angeles. I had no idea that there were so many old Lindenwood girls out here and they took so much interest in the development of the college. Miss Linnemann was a charming hostess and delightful experiences of Lindenwood days were told by several of the ladies.

"It was suggested that we southern California girls organize a club. The suggestion was received enthusiastically and I am proud of the fact that I am a Lindenwood girl."

LUCILE ARMSTRONG.

Puente, Cal.

"Reminiscences, vivid descriptions of the present Lindenwood and the expressed hopes for the new Lindenwood with her wonderful prospects struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the guests who attended the dinner in Los Angeles and will draw them close to you.

"The thirty or more who responded to your kind invitation—extended so thoughtfully through your efficient art teacher, Miss Linnemann—each carried away a greater love and loyalty for dear old Lindenwood.

"Success to her and the great work she is undertaking is my sincere wish."

"I saw a catalogue last year and the place is so changed I could not realize it was the same old school and, indeed, it is not, but a finer, better Lindenwood than in the old days, though it was fine then."

DR. KING GIVES LECTURE

Rev. George W. King, pastor of the Markham Institutional Church of St. Louis, discussed vacation Bible schools in an address before the students and faculty of Lindenwood College on Thursday, September 19.

These schools are being used as models for other schools throughout the country for they not only emphasize Biblical teachings but they instill patriotism into the pupils, they teach useful and practical crafts and they stress physical exercises.

"St. Louis vacation schools are the marvel of the country," Dr. King said. "No other city has such large attendance. Too much of our preaching today is by men who have lived in the country and who do not know how to speak in the language of the city. We have children in our school who are sure that milk comes in tin cans and when I asked a class of my boys what they would do if they were out in the country with only a match and a potato, they simultaneously answered: Light the gas."

Dr. King then explained how the school had been directed during the summer months and how it would be continued on Saturday afternoons throughout the year.

Lindenwood girls were praised by him for the assistance which they have rendered and he asked that more girls volunteer for service this coming year. Young women who are interested in playground or social work are especially needed.
