Recognize Employees Who Live Out Lindenwood's Core Values!

Use the link under the "Announcements" section on your Workday home screen to access the form that allows us to recognize employees that we see living out LU's core values.

Value: We have grit.

Manager of Access Services Joanna DeYoung was absolutely dogged in her help figuring out our library's new MOBIUS lending system. She walked me through an issue I was having requesting a book from MOBIUS, fixed the problem on our end, and reached out to the lending system admins to ask for changes on their end. Not only did she persist in making sure that my issue was resolved, she followed up with me and did it all with a sense of humor and grace that made a frustrating experience so much better.

Value: We put our students first.

Christina Sachs from the College of Education and Human Services quietly, confidently serves Lindenwood undergraduate and graduate students in her role as Student Success and Certification Officer. Students often come to Chrissy with last-minute high-pressure requests to get needed information for new teaching and administrative positions. Chrissy consistently goes above and beyond to help Lindenwood's students as quickly as possible. Her efforts are greatly appreciated.

LEARNING ACADEMY

LinkedIn Learning Course Club: Conscious Relaxing
July 17, 2-3 p.m.
Online

Do you often find yourself in a place—at work or at home—but not present? This audio-only course covers skills and tools that can help you set a strong foundation for your journey into mindfulness. Instructors Tara Brach and Jack Kornfield show, for example, how simply pausing for a moment or steadying your breath can help you learn to bring yourself more fully into the present moment, develop greater awareness of your thoughts, and practice receiving the wisdom of your body in the spirit of friendly, open inquiry. With these practices, you can come home to yourself, your heart, and the present moment. Each lesson offers clear instructions for integrating mindfulness into your workday right away. This course was created by Sounds True. Be sure to take this 14-minute LinkedIn Learning course prior to attending this online session. Prior to the live discussion, complete the guided meditation within the clip.
