Lindenwood University to Host Educator Resource Fair April 10

April 4, 2012

Lindenwood University will host an Educator Resource Fair from 4 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 10, in the Anheuser Busch Leadership Room of the Spellmann Center on the St. Charles campus, located at 209 South Kingshighway, St. Charles, Mo., 63301. The free event will showcase a variety of local organizations and the teaching tools they offer to local educators.

“For several years my colleague Nancy Snider and I have enjoyed a similar fair that takes place at the St. Louis Zoo each fall, but we wanted to bring that same opportunity to our students and to teachers in north St. Louis, St. Charles, Warren, and Pike Counties,” said event organizer Frank Thouvenot, Ph.D., assistant professor and chair of elementary education in the Lindenwood School of Education. “It’s a great way for teachers to know what educational resources are available such as take-home kits, weekend workshops, and more.”

Dozens of organizations are expected to be represented at the fair. Confirmed participants include the World Aquarium, Challenger Learning Center-St. Louis, Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, the Gateway to Peace Museum, and more.
