

All We Who Enter for This Feast

Lords, Ladies and Noble Guests! We bid you welcome to this hall, which, by our fair Queen Elizabeth's command, has been fitted for an evening of feasting, singing and dancing for the general merriment of you all. May our evening of festivity recall the blessed event of Christmas, which joins us all as men of good will. As has been the custom, we have annually invited guests from the reaches of our kingdom to come and spend several days with us. Now let us sing of this holy season of Christmas which makes all England glad, provides us with pleasures for our senses to enjoy and renews friendships which our hearts will forever treasure.
