Lindenwood University Named 2013 Military Friendly School

September 17, 2012

Lindenwood University has been named to the 2013 list of Military Friendly Schools® by Victory Media, a global media entity that supports military personnel through the transition into civilian life. This is the fourth consecutive year Lindenwood has received the honor, which places the school among the top 15 percent of all colleges, universities, and trade schools nationwide that are committed to recruiting and retaining military and veteran students.

“I am very gratified by the military friendly designation,” said James D. Evans, PhD, President of Lindenwood University. “We have always valued the presence of service members and veterans in our classrooms, and Lindenwood is always looking for ways to expand educational opportunities for this special group of scholars.”

Lindenwood will be included in a full listing of all honored institutions featured in the annual G.I. Jobs magazine Guide to Military Friendly Schools®. The guide will be distributed digitally and in print to hundreds of thousands of active and former military personnel in early October.

The list will also be published in Military Spouse and Vetpreneur magazines.
