Online Public Administration Programs Ranked 18th in U.S.

April 5, 2017

Lindenwood University's online bachelor's and master's in public administration were ranked 18th in the country as a best value in the Guide to Online Schools, which is assembled and distributed by the SR Education Group.

The site indicates it identified 600 online public administration programs. The ranking table indicates tuition rates and also an academic strength score, which is based on the college entrance exam scores of students attending the university.

"We believe we have a strong, academically sound MPA program, with highly credentialed instructors who are accessible to the online students," said Jeanie Thies, chair of the Master of Public Administration program. "We are pleased to see our program receive this recognition."
