LEADERSHIP ED.D. BEGINS FALL 2021

January 14, 2021

Lindenwood University's School of Education will begin offering a Leadership Ed.D. in Fall 2021. Applications are currently being accepted for the first cohort of students.

The program will be offered fully online and asynchronous, with opportunities for synchronous student engagement to achieve program learning outcomes. The 48 credit-hour, three-year learning experience will provide two concentrations for students to select: Curriculum & Instruction, or Education Administration (Missouri Advanced Superintendent Certification).

In alignment with the School of Education's Digital Initiative, faculty will utilize open educational resources (OERs) which will eliminate the cost of textbooks and provide access to the most current research. Students will access materials through an iPad or their preferred comparable device.

For more information about the program including application timeline and criteria, visit the Leadership Ed.D. webpage.
