Band Members Performed in St. Louis Wind Symphony Youth Ensemble

June 16, 2022

Eight Lindenwood University Band members were selected to perform in the St. Louis Wind Symphony Youth Ensemble this past March.

Their program included a composition by Williams Owens entitled Fourth City. The St. Louis Wind Symphony commissioned William Owens to write the piece for this performance and was the world premiere of the composition with Mr. Owens conducting.

The eight band students included: Maggie Dultz on the oboe, Alyssa Harry on the alto saxophone, Trevor McGraw on the trumpet, Emma Stubblefield on the horn, Luke Juergensmeyer on the trombone, Trey Schriewer on the euphonium, Grace Cooke on the euphonium, and Nat Baugher on the tuba.

To participate in the St. Louis Wind Symphony Youth Ensemble, students be ages 14-23 actively participating in their high school or college band or orchestra program and must audition.
