She was nominated for the award by her classmates, and Larkin has shown her support, dedication, and love for the University this past year.

“To be honored by your peers is incredibly gratifying, and I am so very thankful for this award,” Larkin said. “I love working with so many different departments within Lindenwood because I get to stay in touch with the people I’ve come to know and appreciate. To be recognized for the Alumni Service award is very special to me.”
